O. P. Jewett, a member of the Legislature, who neither smokes nor drinks, has introduced a measure which he trusts will relieve him from strain of inhaling other persons' habits within the borders of the State. The bill is as sweeping as Mr. Jewett is indignant, and if it becomes a law only the most reckless, swaggering type of social bandit will ever again blow a smoke ring in Kansia.

Heavy penalties are provided for any public menace who has the temerity to smoke in the street, on any train, street car, omnibus or in any taxicab, carriage, public park or public place. There is to be no smoking on horseback or in the caboose of freight trains, and no man who has children in his home can smoke there. If a man smokes in his office every one therein, except possibly the office cat, is liable to arrest for not informing the police of the miscreant's action. Men who have no children may smoke at home, but aside from that the only smoking rinks are to be located in clubs wherein club members who smoke will be segregated from those who sneeze in the presence of a perfecto.

Prominent non-smokers who have carefully studied the Jewett law have pronounced it as nothing short of sweet.

Willie—"Bump has a very up-to-date office."

Gillis—"Yes. He has one of these office systems where you can find just what you want when you don't want it by looking where it wouldn't be if you did want it."

SAYS BLOCKADE IS CERTAIN TO BRING VICTORY IN 1918

LONDON, March 9.—A speech by Winston Churchill in the House of Commons, urging that preparations be made immediately for the 1918 campaign, is construed as indicating that the Allied authorities do not expect to end the war his year. Mr. Churchill intimated a strong belief that the blockade will force the collapse of the Central Empires and bring about the finish of the war in 1918 without such huge sacrifices of life as would be necessary in forcing a military decision. This view is widely entertained and Mr. Churchill's wide reputation as a man who ordinarily favours action gives especial significance to such a declaration.

The Government knows that internal conditions in Germany and Austria-Hungary are very bad, that they are becoming worse rapidly and that as the nations behind the fighting lines grow weaker than the armies, they cannot support the pressure indefinitely.

Men of the Churchill school, including the naval party, believe a continuance of the blockade of economic pressure will force Germany to send its high seas fleet out for a last desperate effort. This is keenly desired by advocates of extreme masures for the destruction of the German naval power, who urge no peace will be safe while Germany possesses its fleet.

Meanwhile, with the mobilization of the man power resources of the whole world and the tightening of the blockade, the Allies expect to starve the Central Powers into submission. This view is strengthened by the fact that in the House of Commons Mr. A. Bonar Law has refused to discuss the Salonika campaign; indicating that, despite widespread criticism, it will continue as a part of the plan to starve the interior countries.

Ed. (in motor car)—This controls the brake. It is put on very quickly in case of an emergency.

ORIGINAL ESTIMATE ONLY GUESS

Special to The Examiner:

TORONTO, March 9.—That the original estimate of $400,000 for the building of Government House was a mere guess, was suggested by H. H. Dewart, K.C., M.P., for Southwest Toronto to-day, when R. P. Fairbairn, Deputy Minister of Public Works, came under his examination before the Public Accounts committee. 'Matters of detail were arranged after that estimate," remarked witness. "The total expenditure of the government was $1,098,104. There was a marked increase in prices of labour and material since 1912, when the estimates were made and the time of the actual building," said Mr. Fairbairn.

Germany's Friend At U. S. Court

NEW YORK, March 9.—Calling for Senator William Joel Stone's resignation as chairman of the Senate, Foreign Relations' Committee, the New York Morning World said:

"Under disguises as transparent as any assumed by the innumerable agents of the Kaiser's propaganda in this country, he has been revealed time and again as one, who, in the presence of Germany, would equivocate, shale, and even sacrifice American rights.

"He has made this plain from the day of the Lusitania horror, which he dismissed as lightly as any junker and for which he found as many excuses as any instructed German-American."

The New York Morning Sun bitterly attacks Senator Stone, declaring he should be deprived of his chairmanship, saying: "His continuance there in constitutes a menace to the safety of the United States."

STOP INDUSTRY IN BELGIUM

Almost Complete Cessation of Work Forced by Germans.

AMSTERDAM, March 7, via London.—The Telegraaf says there will be an almost complete stoppage of industry in Belgium within a few days, the German authorities asserting that this is necessary owing to the lack of coal and transport facilities. Practically the entire population of Belgium will be thus unemployed, with such few exceptions as receive special permission from the civil authorities to continue their businesses.

BELGIAN FUND IS IN NEED OF MORE HELP THAN EVER

Mr. A. L. Killaly, Secretary of the Belgian Relief Committee has received a letter from the Hon. Secretary-Treasurer of the Belgian Fund, from which the following is an extract:

"There appears in to-day's Montreal papers an article stating that the Belgian supplies were being stored in London as the British and German governments had not arrived at any understanding concerning the safe shipping of these supplies.

We do not know whether any such news appeared in your papers, but would like to emphasise the point, that this stoppage in the forwarding of supplies only applies to those supplies as are at present in British ports and that an arrangement has been arrived at and is being carried out ensuring a safe lane from Northern American ports to Rotterdam. Thus as supplies can only go forward now from North America ports if behooves more than ever every Canadian to do his or her best for the Belgian Fund.

Intoxicated Women Sing And Dance All Over Dining Rooms

VANCOUVER, March 9.—Mayor McBeath initiated a moral clean-up crusade, when the police, at his instructions issued summonses against a number of hotel and up-town cafes for breaking the regulations by selling liquor after hours, and to girls and youths.

The Mayor did a little previous scouting two weeks ago, and saw after closing time at night innumerable beers served out of silver teapots to persons under 20 years of age. He engaged several private detectives, he declares, brought to light an astonishing state of affairs.

Scenes in which women were so much intoxicated that they sang and danced all over dining-rooms in an unrestrained manner, are described in affidavits sent to the mayor.

IN INTERNMENT CAMPS.

The Number of Aliens Held Reduced by about two-thirds.

OTTAWA, March 7.—There are now 2,646 enemy aliens in the internment camps throughout the country, of whmo 1,501 in the camps 1,135 Austrians, and 10 Bulgarians. There have been 7,751 in the camps up to November last, but many of these have been given comparative freedom as they were not regarded as dangerous.

Soldier Inherits Fortune

PORTLAND, Ore. — When Emil Langendorfer, aged 21, private in Troop A, Oregon cavalry, was mustered out of service, he was penniless, and owed the troop canteen 65 cents. In his extremity he sought and obtained employment at the troop stables.

As he curried the horses, his brother, Arthur Langendorfer, brought him news that their uncle, Jacob Henry Langendorfer, had died in New York, leaving to his nephews and their father, Charles Langendorfer, the bulk of his fortune, estimated at $500,000.

Collegiate Concert Was Fine Success

Proceeds Netted About $80 Which Will Be Used for Paying For Enlarged Photographs of Students Who Have Met Death in War

The proceeds of the concert given by the boys of the Collegiate Institute were one hundred dollars. After payment of expenses the remainder which will be about eighty dollars will be handed to the Board of Education at their next meeting for the purpose of hanging in the Collegiate Halls, enlarged pictures of ex-students who have made the supreme sacrifice. The students and those in charge of the concert are to be congratulated on its success. The programme involved considerable preparation and effort.

We are told that the last item on the programme—the camp fire scene—of which mention has been made in other columns of this paper, was largely planned by the boys who participated and reflected credit on their originality and resourcefulness. It is to be hoped that the criticism of a few will not deter the boys from further altruistic efforts.—Com.

Spring Suit, Dress, Coat and Blouse Models of Supreme Interest

There is one word that finds its full meaning in this store "DISTINCTIVENESS" when buying stock it is often the word that condemns some particular garment, it may be pretty in an ordinary sense but if it is to take its place in our cases it must be extraordinarily pretty. Hence our desire for you to see the inimitable spring styles in, this The Redfern Store.

Latest Coat $39.00

We'll call the colour yellow gold and the material valour, for such they are. Every stitch has been made with care, the finish is perfect. The material is pleasingly supple — lined with floral silk poplin — deep roll collar that lends itself to either high or low effect — wide cuffs — shoestring girdle encircles, and ties gracefully at, the waist. The heavy tailored stitching of self-same colour makes an effective trimming throughout. Price—

Navy Suit $35.00

To say that it is all wool sounds almost untrue, nevertheless, it is — and what's more it is French serge. The youthful young woman was the one for whom it was especially designed. Coat shows a girlish amount of fullness—fastens with fancy belt at the waist — wide sailor collar partly concealed by an additional white silk collar. Skirt has becoming fullness at back and fancy belt; side closing. Price—

$35.00

Serge Suit $20.00

The suit is made of a weight suitable for spring. The coat immediately conveys the impression of smartness, possibly the wide collar and fancy belt, which secures its charm from fantastic stitchings of silk, are responsible, but the pearl buttons are justified in claiming a portion of your praise. Skirt is much on the order of coat. Price—

Ling'rie Blouses $1.98 to $5.00

To complete the effectiveness of the suit we would suggest a blouse. You owe this to the suit skirt, when you enter the house and throw off the coat—see that the skirt has a fit companion. White voiles in the plainest and fanciest models imaginable. Each model has an individual charm — beautiful trimmed fronts and large fancy collars. Prices from

Orderly Officer for Friday, March 9th, 1917, Lieut. T. W. Quinn.
Next for duty, Saturday, March 10th, 1917, Lieut. V. J. McElderry.
A. E. BRITTAIN, Lieut.
Adjutant, 247th D. S. Battalion, C. E. F.

Mrs. Wes. Edwards, 485 Sherbrooke street, has received an interesting letter from Pte. Stan. Garrett of Peterborough, formerly of the 2nd Battalion, and now with the 1st Canadian Trench Mortar Battery. Pte. Garrett, who went overseas with the 1st Division, and has twice been wounded, writes to thank Mrs. Edwards for a parcel which she sent him. "How is the 247th?" he asks. "I suppose they are well filled up now. Our old adjutant (Major O'Flynn) is there now. I see by the papers. I can't tell you much news, that is, war news, but keep up the people's courage, and we will come out on top. It takes time to do a good job of anything, and we are at one now that we intend to finish before we go back to Peterborough again. When we do go back we intend taking the old Union Jack and not Fritz's flag. So cheer up and don't forget the boys far away, for we often dream of Home, Sweet Home."

OTTAWA, March 8—The Dominion has dispatched 5,000 men overseas for forestry work, and Great Britain wants 5,000 more. The shortage of transport has necessitated greater efforts within the borders of Great Britain and the embargo on timber imports has compelled the Imperial authorities to supply the needs at home.

In eastern Ontario recruiting for a forestry battalion will be carried on at Kingston, Renfrew and Brockville.

Pte. J. Glendenon of the 21st Battalion, who was wounded at the Battle of the Somme, has been invalided home and is now visiting at the home of Mrs. A. Webb, 555 Sherbrooke street.

This Simple Rule Soon Strengthens A Delicate Stomach

It really is unnecessary to doss yourself with pepsin pills or artificial digestives or to live on a miserable nursery diet. If you will observe one easy rule you can eat the hearty, nourishing foods that your appetite craves and your body needs. That rule is to take a teaspoonful of Bisurated Magnesia in a half glass of hot water with each meal. Bisurated Magnesia is non-laxative and harmless and possesses medicinal qualities that promptly overcome impaired digestion, fermentation, acidity, catarrhal conditions of the stomach, gas, distress after eating and other stomach disorders. As Bisurated is prepared in various ways be certain to insist on obtaining it in the bisurated form, especially recommended for stomach purposes. Sold by all druggists.

Teacher — I'm surprised at you, Sammy Wicks, that you canot tell me when Christopher Columbus discovered America! What does the chapter heading of the week's lesson read?

Sammy—Columbus—1492.

Teacher —Well, isn't that plain enough? Did you never see it before?

Series of Lectures At Public Library

The series of lectures to be given under the auspices of Otonabee Chapter, I. O. D. E., deserves more than a passing mention. The idea of instituting such a course during the Lenten season was derived from Trinity University, where it has been in vogue for over twenty years, and has proved an abundant success. The custom has been to obtain the services of men best qualifid to speak on certain specific subjects, and in this way to bring the public more and more in touch with matters of current interest and modern thought. The speakers who have kindly consented to give their services on the present occasion, are all gentlemen eminently fitted for the task, as their names testify. A double object will be gained by hearing them. In the first place, much-needed help will be given to the causes for which the members of Otonabee Chapter are working so ungrudgingly and untiringly in the war, and, in the second, those who avail themselves of the privilege of attending, are assured of receiving a very great deal of valuable information and instruction. The members of Otonabee Chapter look forward with a considerable amount of pleasurable anticipation to the scheme proving a great success. The meetings will be held every Saturday afternoon in the Assembly Hall of the Public Library from 3.45 to 4.45.

Editor of the Examiner:

Editor of the Examiner:

Dear Sir,—Every woman loves a uniform from the smallest nurse-maid who ogles a soger-man, whilst fer charges suffer perils to life and limb up and on through the social scale woman manifests her preference.

Women of the Central Powers are trained to defend their native land against the day when the gallant Tommy shall march into Berlin. Why not the women of Canada to defend her native land? Also, as recruiting officers, on a trip to the West they would be superb, given the ordinary comforts of existence, private car, adequate compensation for loss of time and magnetism, there could be no doubt of results. Women are very welcome in the West, some might decide to stay and carry on the work in dual alliance. Women need an outlet for their energies, otherwise men will not be permitted even the prescriptive right to minds or opinions of their own. Even a horse, a sagacious beast, may be led to water but you can't make him drink.

That ex-clerk Royal Borough can in another week or two, find employment on a farm where the need is great. A little "red tape" won't hurt the farmer, but it might tie up a recruiting expedition completely, besides the party might get Royal Warrant Omania, an entirely re-actionary form of recruiting, which would undoubtedly tend to deaden the vitalizing force of Nationality in the future, even more than the paralysing incubus of present existence. In the mean time the ex-clerk R. B. can do her house cleaning, no necessity for any one to be idle, the days are all too short for most of our busy women. Why should she find them monotonous, the fault of early training, we fear, or lack of practical example. Work, work, work is the watch-word of Canada. Work until it hurts. Well it's better than drink, drink, drink or even of too much pleasure and games, but women must receive recognition of a kind that "flatters the appetite for novelty and excitement." Why not? Has she not earned it? Also her home defence work will free many robust looking officers for the firing line. This is a matter of National Business not of Social Etiquette.

Yours respectfully,
PUSH-ON PUSH-ON.

SIOUX FALLS, S. D. — The law just enacted by the legislature and signed by Gov. Norbeck for carrying statewide prohibition into effect July 1 next throughout South Dakota is one of the most stringent prohibition measures ever enacted by any state. "Bone dry" scarcely describes the measure, which is even more stringent than so-called "bone dry" prohibition laws of other states.

The law defines as intoxicating liquors all distilled, spirituous, vinous, malt, brewed and fermented liquors, and any other liquid mixture or compound capable of being used as an intoxicating beverage, whether proprietary, medicated or patented. It is believed that under the terms of the law many patent medicines which contain a quantity of alcohol, and which have been common among the stocks of drug stores, will be prohibited.

LIQUOR ADVERTISING BARRED.

The law prohibits any person in South Dakota from soliciting by any means orders for intoxicating liquors and makes a violation for the first offense a misdemeanor, and the second a felony. It prohibits any advertising of liquors in newspapers or other publications within the state, and prohibits the sale of any magazine, paper or periodical within the state if it contains liquor advertising.

All members of any club or association which attempts to sell or give away or distribute among its members intoxicating liquors are equally guilty and the penalty is misdemeanor for the first offence and felony for the second offense.

The law requires that any retail druggist who desires to sell liquor upon prescription shall secure a permit, after due notice, such permit being revokable in the event of the druggist violating the law.

Sales of liquor for medicinal purposes can only be made on a physician's prescription and a record of all such sales must be made public and filed each month with the county auditor. It requires all purchases of liquor by retailers to be from wholesalers within the state, where a check can be kept upon the amount of purchases.

The law places close restrictions upon the writing of prescriptions by physicians and fixes a heavy penalty for their writing such prescriptions in violation of the law.

CHIEF "BONE DRY" FEATURE.

The chief "bone dry" feature of the law provides that it shall be unlawful to keep or use intoxicating liquor in any hotel, restaurant, store, drug store, pharmacy, lunch room, office or office building or a place where any business is carried on, factory, club, place where soft drinks are sold, fruit stands, news stands, room or place where bowling alleys, billiard or pool tables, boxball or similar games, are maintained; livery stable, garage, railroad depot, freight depot or house, express office, blacksmith shop, warehouse, elevator, boat house, public building, park, road, street, alley or any other public place.

REGULAR MONTHLY MEETING OF THE COUNCIL OF WOMEN

Use of Oleomargarine Discussed at the Meeting, Also the Care of Feeble-Minded—Address by Miss Hatton

The regular monthly meeting of the Council of Women was held yesterday in the green room of the Y.W.C.A. In the absence of the President, Mrs. Neal, Mrs. Harstone was in the chair.

Mrs. Harstone was appointed to attend the informal conference to be held at St. James Parish Hall, Toronto, where the attitude toward existing political parties and conference on how women may educate themselves to undertake their new rights, may be discussed.

Mrs. Harstone said that while pleased to get the vote, women must not fail to feel the full responsibility of the privilege, and that the vote had evidently been given in view of the efficiency shown by women under war conditions, and that women must avoid extreme partizanship. The party must not use women, but women use the party.

The question of the use of oleomargarine was brought up, and it was found that the only opposition to the importation of this food, which has a food value of only 5 p.c. difference from butter, was found amongst the dairying interest, who violently oppose its importation.

High Cost of Living.

The high cost of living from a standpoint of abused cold storage rights, was next discussed by Mrs. Morris. Cold storage is followed to some extent in the home in the canning of fruit and packing of eggs, etc. It is the principles that have been abused in the storing of large quantities to hold up the market.

A resolution for the local Council to request the National Council to request the government to appoint a food controller, was carried.

Care of Feeble Minded.

Miss Hatton read a brief address on the alarming increase of feeble-minded, in which it was shown that 60 to 80 per cent. was due to heredity. The influx of mentally defective foreigners was becoming an alarming question and must be controlled or undermine the country.

Miss Hatton laid stress on the need for some action to be taken in regard to mentally deficients in our schools. This, she said, was a serious menace and must be dealt with directly.

The following resolution was passed:

Moved by Mrs. Stevenson, seconded by Mrs. E. F. Mason, that the Council express itself in favour of some special steps being taken by the Board of Education with regard to the feeble. Council place themselves on record Council place themselves on record as ready to support some such movement.

The back door agrden scheme for cultivation of vacant lots for the growing of vegetables was discussed, and a committee to be chosen by Mrs. Parsons, who has power to act, will look carefully into the question and report.

DEPUTY MINISTER LAID OFF

Gerald Brown of Ottawa of Labour Department—A Political Matter.

OTTAWA, March 7.—The Minister of Labour, Hon. T. W. Crothers, has suspended his Assistant Deputy Minister, Mr. Gerald H. Brown. Mr. Crothers has given out no statement, but it is thought complaints of a partizan nature have been made in connection with the recent investigation of the department into the high prices of the necessaries of life.

Mr. Brown was appointed in 1910 by the Laurier Government, and has taken a deep interest in Boy Scout affairs, the Canadian Club, and civic playgrounds.

EMBEZZLER BARES AMAZING DETAILS OF DOUBLE LIFE

He Maintained Wife No. 2 in Luxury Here, He Tells Detectives—Midvale's Business Excuses Absences

NEW YORK.—Robert H Carter, until recently export traffic manager for the Midvale Steel Company, was returned to this city from Albany on a charge of embezzling possibly $25,000, and he had not been in a cell at Police Headquarters ten minutes until he began to reveal a most unusual story of a dual life.

For six months he had maintained two homes, one in West 160th street, where his wife and two children lived, and the other in the Chateau Apartments, in 100th street, near Riverside Drive, where another wife lived in much more luxury.

Neither wife had called on Carter last night and he was greatly worried. He said that at the home of a friend he had met Miss Rene Housenberry, of Bradford, Pa. She believed he was a widower and went with him early in August to Canada, where they were married.

"My downfall began in that month," Carter last night said at Headquarters. "I had told my bride that I was a big man with the Midvale Steel, and I had to make good. I rented a $80 apartment and furnished it luxuriously for her. I had two automobiles to carry out the idea with her that I had plenty of money.

"It was in August when I began to take the company's money and I don't know whether I took thirty cents or $30 the first time or how much I took altogether.

CALLS SECOND ROMANCE A MYSTERY.

"I don't know how I happened to fall in love with that girl. I just did and that is all there is to it. She is a fine young woman and I wouldn't do anything to bring shame upon her if I could help it. My wife also is a fine woman. We had been married sixteen years and lived ver happily. We have two children, one of them now fourteen years old."

"Some one said you had three automobiles," said the interviewer.

"Did they?" Carter replied. 'Well I think two is enough. Make it two.'

"Now, get this—I don't think that my second wife had any idea that I was already married, and my first wife had no idea about the other woman. When I would be with one I would tell the other that I was out of town on business."

The first Mrs. Carter, who has been interviewed by detectives for the company which provided a $25,000 bond for Carter, said she observed that in August her husband had to be out of town a great deal. The second Mrs. Carter made similar observations. The first Mrs. Carter observed that the automobile in which her husband rode were for business purposes," and she and her children never had a chance to ride in them? The second Mrs. Carter believed they were her husband's automobiles and rode in them much of the time.

Carter said he was able to continue the deception in both households until last Christmas. As that holiday season approached the second Mrs. Carter desired to spend it with her parents at Bradford, Pa. Carter agreed to join her there on Christmas Day.

BROKE HOLIDAY ENGAGEMENT

Carter passed the day, detectives learned, with his wife and children in the 160th street house. A letter explained to Mrs. Carter in Bradford that her husband had suffered a broken arm during an inspection of a factory and would be a day or two in a hospital.

In the interval between Christmas and New Year's Day auditors of the steel company appeared at the company's offices here. Discrepancies were discovered in accounts. Carter appeared surprised. He agreed the day before New Year's to work the following day and explain the discrepancy on January 2.

When the auditors appeared on January 2 Carter did not appear. They awaited in vain and then began an investigation that caused a report to be made to the police that he was short in his account. Detectives learned he had appeared in Bradford with his arm in a sling.

They learned also that as the man who lived in 100th street he was possessor of three automobiles, which have been levied upon by the surety company, which was on his bond. The bond was for $25,000.

His stay at Bradford completed, Carter is alleged to have announced he had been commissioned by his employers to make a tour of their southern plans. The newspapers of that town so reported. With his wife No. 2 he went to Pittsburg, Pa., and from there to Washington, and thence to Baltimore, from where they went to New York. Mrs. Carter thought she was going to the chateau. Her husband bought tickets for Boston, Mass. She protested and asked why. He left her. She returned to Bradford to her parents.

Detectives learned that from here Carter went to Poughkeepsie, was unable to obtain work and went to Albany. There he obtained a place at a wage of seven cents an hour. He was unused to such labour. He quit. He worked as a bus boy, however, until his blistered feet prevented. He spent three days without eating.

OFFERED $5,000 POSITION

Then he obtained work as one of a "demonstrating crew" employed by a macaroni company, which was promoting advertising displays in Albany. Quickly Carter displayed his ability. He wrote to the company telling them wherein the advertising campaign was imperfect, and how economies could be effected. So impressive was his letter that correspondence found in Carter's room in Albany showed he was about to be promoted to a place at $5,000 a year when he was arrested.

Carter's downfall is alleged to have been effected when his clothing having become shabby, he wrote to a friend here to go to a shop where he had left clothes to be repaired. That fact was known to Mrs. Husenberry Carter. She told the police and surety company detectives.

At the private residence in 160th street given as Carter's first wife's address it was declared nothing was known of him. The same statement was made at the 100th street address.

"I realize that I'm in a bad fix," said Carter ending his narrative at Police Headquarters, "and I want to do all I can to get out of it. I'll tell you this, however, that I never went in for the cabarets, the white lights, Wall street or many of the other things that are blamed for ruining men."

BRITISH BOYS AND GIRLS MADE GOOD BY LAWS OF OWN

(By John S. Steele.)

LONDON—One of the by-products of the war in England has been a large increase in juvenile crime and the result is that reformatories and other institutions for the care of criminal children are full, and some even have a waiting list.

This condition has focussed the attention of sociologists and reformers on the success of an experiment on the lines of the George Junior Republic in America.

The Little Commonwealth, as it is called, was established by a group of men and women who had observed the woeful lack of training and discipline among the street children of the big English cities, and who were convinced that the juvenile crime was due not so much to moral turpitude as to the entire lack of restraint.

SUCCESS DUE TO AMERICAN

Chief among the founders of the Commonwealth was Cecil Chapman one of the London police magistrates who has made a special study of the subject of juvenile delinquency; the Duchess of Marlborough the Earl of Lytton Otto Beit, financier, and Sir Matthew Nathan, civil service organizer.

All agree, however, that the success of the experiment is due almost entirely to Homer T. Lane, an American, who was thoroughly familiar with the work of the George Junior Republic and whose rare gift of influencing children and gaining their confidence has proved invaluable in dealing with the material with which he had to work.

The Little Commonwealth is established on a farm of 200 acres at Batcombe, in Dorsetshire. At the beginning the only buildings were the old farmhouse and stables, but the citizens themselves have built three other houses, Bramble, Heather, and Bracken cottages, and the buildings are continually being added to and extended by the labour of the youngsters.

In addition to this water and sewage system have been constructed, the farm has been drained, and many other betterments have been made, all by citizen labour. The citizens are both boys and girls, in about equal numbers, and half a dozen babies.

CHARGE CAUSED THE WAR

The difficulty of raising money in war time is one which has restricted and is restricting the usefulness of the Commonwealth. Until this year the community was self-supporting. The boys and girls were received free of charge and soon became able to earn their keep by their labour, but the immense increase in the cost of all necessities has made it necessary to charge $2.50 a week for each new citizen.

This is provided by the parents, if they can afford it, in some cases by the boards of guardians of the district from which the children come, and in others magistrates try to find charitable persons to act as "godfathers" or 'gormothers' to the extent of paying so much a week to save a boy or girl from the gutter.

I had a talk on the subject with Cecil Chapman, the magistrate whose indorsement of the scheme and whose active assistance has done so much to make the schmee a success, and found him enthusiastic over it.

He was strongly in favour of state assistance, declaring it would pay in every respect, as not only is the cost of the maintenance less than the cost of mainaining boys and girls in a reformatory but the state is provided with a good and useful citizen instead of a criminal or a waster.

Citizens Make Their Own Laws.

"The great feature of the commonwealth is that it develops the sense of individual responsibility" said Mr. Chapman. "The citizens govern themselves. They make their own laws, administer them themselves, and inflict their own punishments.

"All our citizens are paid for their work in coin of the Commonwealth—aluminum—which has the same value at the 'Commonwealth store as coin of the realm and which is exchangeable for coin of the realm when the citizens cash in their savings on leaving.

Each citizen earns from $3 to $3.50 a week. He is paid for his work at the market rate current in the district, and farmers and builders who have seen them at work say that the money is fully earned. Out of their earnings they are charged $1.75 a week for their board and they buy their own clothes and other necessaries at the Commonwealth store.

"But the soul of the Commonwealth is Lane. He is a rare psychologist. He has the gift of ruling without appearing to rule. He never gives an order, but if he wants to get a thing done he will say: "Of couse, it's your affair and none of my business, but if it were mine I would do it this way," and the citizens, who have an immense respect for Lane's judgment, gained by experience, say to each other: 'Well, if Mr. Lane thinks that's the way to do it, it must be the right way.'

"Lane had no use for the namby pamby boy. Send me the most daring and wicked boys you can find,' he tells us. 'They are the most vital and are worth the trouble. I can make men of them.'"

THE BRITISH CRANK

With the possible exception of the United States of America, no other country in the world offers quite so happy a hunting ground to the crank and the faddist as Great Britain. It would seem to be a fixed principle with Britons to give a patient hearing to any kind of person who chooses to address them; but it is almost a matter of religion with them to listen politely to the orator who attacks or belittles them. It might be possible to find a limit to their patience and endurance if your theme were complimentary; but the type of crank of faddist, whose theme is anti-British knows no such fear, and, however boring he may be, is always quite certain of his hearing.

Everyone who knows the British public is aware of the existence of this one among their various idiosyncracies ;and, except perhaps in Germany, whose people never can understand any other nations or methods than their own, the world recognizes and makes allowance for this peculiarity. Thus, even in this war, the issues of which are of such vital and gigantic import not alone for the British Empire and its Allies, but for humanity, the crank and the faddist, the finest fellows with mental or moral kinks, are listened to with quite extraordinary patience whenever they elect to afflict the British public with their queer, perverse, distorted views of its part and prospect in Armageddon. If in the beginning the circumstances had been such as to permit of Britain holding aloof from the struggle without detriment to her honour, or neglect of her responsibilities, these eccentries would undoubtedly have berated their fellow countrymen as cowards, and cried aloud from the house-tops for most bloody war. Finding the nation united as one man in the righteous determination to stand by the right and to fight for the liberty of small states and freedom from the German menace, no matter what the cost or how long the struggle, the little tribe of perverse fanatics, of men of twisted mentality, at once set to work, busy as ants, to throw up little barriers, to cast obstructions in the way, to hunt up and utilize difficulties and objections, to thwart heaven mainly effort of every kind, to chill enthusiasm if they could, to suggest suspicion, and to inspire if they might, doubt, dissatisfaction, or treachery.

In the first tremendous rush of war effort, they were brushed aside and rather badly frightened; not that anyone in Britain wanted to hurt them; (they are always nursed with the sort of care that is given to cripples and idiots in England) but merely that they happened to get in the way of a vast national movement in which nobody had a moment to spare. But directly Britain had settled into her war stride, they wriggled out into the open again, and ever since have pursued their customary tactics of venomous opposition to the national will and spirits, without let or hindrance, sure always of a patient hearing, and of good-humoured attention and tolerance.

Or almost always. Now and again their perverse exuberance and the insolence of lifelong license have carried them a little too far in their orations, and they have been pulled down from their platforms, and good-humouredly hustled out into the open; or their orotund periods have been interrupted by rollicking choruses, and a hearing laughingly denied to them. In other words, they have been peremptorily shut up; but always with easy good humour, and never until the insolence of their mud-throwing has passed the bounds of common decency, in a country whose people are fighting for their existence, and for the freedom and protection of Christendom.

But—and there is a point here which is notable; one which should be specially weighed in Germany, and by the Teutonic propagandist—on these comparatively rare occasions when their anti-norsual, anti-national diatribes have been refused a hearing and howled down from their rostrums, it has been invariably at the instance of one class of the community; always the same class. It has always been the British soldier, and not the British civilian, who has said at length: "Look here, we can't stand any more of this mischievous nonsense. You must shut up. You don't know what you are talking about, and we simply won't let you blether any longer!" On the few occasions upon which the anti-war, peace-agitating crank in England has been metaphorically ducked in the nearest horse-pond, and the extinguishing cap of ridicule placed over his eloquence, the thoroughly well-deserved operation has been performed, not by rival theorists and speech-makers ,but by the men who in their own proper persons and with their own lives, are paying the penalties and suffering the hardships which the prosecution of war entails. The point is one of psychological importance, and for any German propagandist capable of understanding it, it is worth careful consideration.

Withal, and quite apart from any consideration connected with the war, this whole question of the British people's extreme patience and tolerance where their cranks are concerned is really deeply interesting to the student of national character. Writers in certain neutral newspapers express astonishment at the patience of the American people in their attitude toward their extreme pacifists and their hypnotized advocates of eternal non-resistance. But how much more striking, in fact, is the remarkable British tolerance of its noisy handful of anti-British cranks. These gentry are listened to with stolid patience and civility, by people who are straining every nerve in war work, by people whose sons and brothers have already sacrificed their lives in the service of the Allied cause, and, on occasions known to the present writer, by youths who have gone straight from the hearing of such orations, to the task of endeavouring to deceive recruiting officers into permitting their attestation as recruits, by making a patriotically false statement with regard to the number of their years.

Truly, the British are a very remarkable people, and it may be that their peculiarities do form a respectable excuse for the consistent miscalculations regarding them which have so thoroughly upset the strategy of the Germans since August, 1914.

It might perhaps be said of the British that they never have refused a hearing or given adherence to the views of cranks, fanatics, or perverse extremists; and of the Germans, that they will hear nothing which does not bear the stamp of their own official orthodoxy, and give their adherence only to extremists.

TRYING TO HELP RUSSIA.

LONDON, March 7.—Though unsensational in character, the recent allied conference in Petrograd reached decisions of the greatest importance. There will be no startling change in policy, but the conference will make for closer co-operation, and its fruits will be continuous and will extend over a long period.

Viscount Milner, member of the British War Cabinet, who headed the mission to Petrograd, says: "The Russians all seem to be agreed that the war is going until it ends in victory for the allies. All controversy does not hinge on whether the war is going to continue to that end, but whether it is being carried on in the most effective manner. All Russia's domestic difficulties turn on that question.

"The Russians are confronted with peculiar and special difficulties. Cut off from their western allies by the blockade of the Central powers, they are almost entirely dependent on their own resources, which are enormous potentially, and quite inexhaustible, but which have not been developed so highly as those of Britain and France. Russia also has little access to foreign supplies. With her it isn't the will to win nor the strength, but how to get her full weight on the foe.

"We went to Petrograd to discuss plans for greater units, to study Russia's special difficulties, and to offer our help in lightening her financial burdens."

ALLIED CARGOES OF MILLIONS VIA SAVANNAH PORT

SAVANNAH Ga., March 9.— Munitions valued at $10,000,000 are to be exported to the allies through the port of Savannah within the next two or three weeks.

The greater part of this is being loaded on ships already at the Central of Georgia terminals, through which the munitions will move, and the remainder will be placed in ships due here in the next few days. Most of the munitions will be sent out by the Churchill line to the English government.

The cargoes range all the way from raw steel and iron for the manufacture of shells to the finished projectiles for four, six and eight inch guns; tractors for the making of the British tanks, tinned foodstuffs and preserved meats for the armies and cotton and naval stores for the manufacture of explosives.

Forerunner of Vast Orders.

The exportation of munitions through Savannah is a recent thing. During January brass projectiles valued at slightly over $70,000 were exported to the British government. This, the forerunner of the present vast orders, was the first to go through here.

The British steamer Ardgorm cleared through the custom house from the Churchill line with a cargo estimated at $2,000,000. It carried 17,545 bales of cotton, valued at $1,754,500, and 2,700 tons of steel, in addition to a large amount of general cargo.

Whether it would be convoyed across by a British or French cruiser, as was stated when it first arrived, or would mount a gun on its forward deck could not be learned.

The British steamer Elswick Tower is also loading cargo from the Churchill line and will be ready to sail for the war zone in a few days. It will carry a cargo that will go close to $1,500,000, it is thought. In addition to 10,000 bales of cotton, valued at $1,000,000, it will carry a quantity of steel, which has already been loaded in it, and several thousand tons of agricultural machinery for the English government, valued at several hundred thousand dollars.

Cargoes Mount to Millions.

The British steamer Gretavale has already loaded forty carloads of projectiles for four and eight inch guns, as well as a quanity of steel for a dead weight cargo. It also took on a quantity of meat and other stores, including 5,000 bales of cotton, valued at $500,000, which brought its cargo over the million dollar mark. Stalls for 300 horses were constructed and installed here in the vessel. It is now en route to Norfolk to take on the horses there.

The contract to ship 200 carloads, approximately 7,000 tons, of agricultural implements to Russia has been obtained by the Strachan Shipping company from the International Harvester company and the implements will go to Russia on the steamer Norfolk, which is expected in port within the next few days. In addition the Norfolk will carry twenty carloads of kerosene tractors which will be used in the construction of the British tanks. Its cargo will go over the million dollar mark.

A vast quantity of foodstuffs for the allied armies is being received by the Churchill line and will be sent to the British government on the steamer Hellopolis, due in port shortly. It has been estimated that this cargo will go close to $1,800,000.

BILL AIMED AT CANADA.

Held Up by the Filibustering U. S. Senators.

OTTAWA, March 8.—The filibustering group of United States Senators who talked out President Wilson's Armed Neutrality Bill have unwittingly done Canada a service. Following the failure of an attempt made by Seattle fishing interests to get a bill passed in the Senate to prevent the importation through Canada of Pacific coast halibut and salmon caught by Americans, an endeavour was being made to tack an amendment of similar effect on to the revenue bill. However, adjournment was finally taken without this being accomplished, thanks largely to the efforts of the dozen filibustering Senators mentioned. The proposed measure was designed against Prince Rupert which has become an important shipping point for Pacific coast fish thus competing with Seattle.

WEDDING BELLS

TAYLOR—DRUMMOND.

A pretty wedding took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Drummond of Otonabee on Thursday, March 8th, at 5 o'clock, when their youngest daughter, Helen Miller, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Mr. Fred H. Taylor of Dinsmore, Sask., and formerly of Keene, Ont. The bride looked charming in her grey crepe de chene dress and bridal veil and she carried a bouquet of white carnations. The young couple were unattended.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Mr. McEachern of Keene, in the presence of about seventy-five guests. After the ceremony the guests retird to the dining -room, where dainty refreshments were served. The toast was proposed by the Rev. Mr. McEachern and responded to by the groom's uncle. Numerous and costly presents testified to the esteem with which the young couple were held by the community.

Among the guests from a distance were Mrs. H. C. Cruickshanks, Mrs. Ling and Mrs. Wallace Wood, relatives of the bride; and Mr. J. W. B. Taylor, brother of the groom; all of Tornto; also Mr. and Mrs. Greenbanks of Norwood, Ont., and Mr. and Mrs. Jno. Douglas of Millbrook, Ont.

Mr. and Mrs. Taylor will leave on the 3.43 train on Saturday for their future home in Dinsmore, Sask., and will visit en route. They are followed by the good wishes of their many Otonabee friends.

Mrs. Jno. Taylor, mother of the groom, formerly of Otonabee, now resides at 730 Bethune street, Peterborough, Ont.

50,000 MILES OF MOVIES.

Enough Films to Girdle World Twice Went Through United States' Customs in 1916.

Fifty thousand miles of motion picture films, or enough to stretch twice around the globe at the equator, passed through the Customs Houses of the United States in the calendar year 1916. Forty-three thousand miles constituted American films exported, the rest European films imported. Statistics of this industry, made public yesterday by the Foreign Trade Department of the National City Bank of New York, showed that nearly $10,000,000 worth of films made in the United States were sent to foreign countries, and American colonies, and more than $1,000,000 worth of foreign films were imported in the last calendar year.

The exportation of motion picture films from the United States has grown rapidly. It was only in 1912 that the exportation of this class of merchandise was considered of sufficient importance to justify a mention in the statistics of our international commerce. In that fiscal year the total exports of films amounted to 80,000,000 feet. By 1914 it was 185,000,000 feet, in the calendar year 1915, 199,000,000 feet, and in 1916, as stated above, 224,518,980 feet, exclusive of approximately 5,000,000 feet sent to Porto Rico and Hawaii. The officially returned value of the exportations of 1916 was $9,261,075, against $6,713,174 in 1915, and $4,742,620 in 1914.

The bank's compilation showed that nearly three-fourths of the films exported in 1916 were "exposed" ready for use. The exact figures were: Exposed films, 164,214,434, and unexposed, 60,304,446 feet. The average export price of the exposed film was 4.5 cents per foot, and of the unexposed, 3.5 cents per foot. The valuation per foot of the imported film was but about half that of the films exported, the stated value of the 42,000,000 feet of films imported being about 1.5 cents per foot, for the unexposed, and more than 4 cents per foot for the exposed, of which the quantity, however was extremely small.

Most of the films exported go to Great Britain, the total to that country alone in 1913 amounting to 121,538,000 feet, while to France went 16,286,00 feet; to Canada, 13,355,000 feet, and to other countries 71,354,551 feet.

AMERICA TO THE MOTHERS.

If the bugles blare on the Springtime air
And the guns start booming heavily;
If the big bombs break and the buildings shake
And the tramp, tramp, tramp grows steadily,

Will you come to me, that my eyes may see
The chariot fire in the souls you bear?
Will you charm my ears with your loyal cheers
And glad my eyes with the smiles you wear?

Would I might know that each mother's woe,
Her grief at war, was a bygone thing!
Would I might see, in her loyalty,
That her haunting sorrow had taken wing!

For when warefar's wage—when the steel fires rage,
'Tis a woman's heart that must feed the flame!
As a mother gives, so a soldier lives—
She may bless with valour or curse with shame!

If the bugles blow, would I might know
That no coward fear I will ever see!
With your steadfast will my own veins would thrill
And naught could hinder our victory!

INVITED TO RESIGN.

Teacher Declares That Action of Board Did Not End Contract.

TORONTO, March 7.—Campbellford Board of Education on July 27th passed a resolution that T. C. Smith, principal of the High School, be given a month's notice to resign. The secretary wired him at the Macdonald Institute at Guelph notifying him that he was given a month's notice of the cancellation of his contract.

Mr. Smith argued that notice to resign was not notice of the termination of his contract, and returned for duty after the summer holidays. Finding his place filled he sued for $707.46. The County Judge of Northumberland threw out his action. This morning the matter was before the Appellate Division.

Mr. Justice Hodgins thought notice to resign was not dismissal. Counsel for the Board of Education argued that it was a polite way of putting it.

Chief Justice Meredith turned up a dictionary and found that to resign meant to relinquish, to give up, to get out.

"That doesn't sound so polite," commented Mr. Justice Hodgins.

Judgment was reserved.

AN INVITATION TO SICKNESS

mpure Blood Means a Break-down in Your Health

Impure blood is an invitation to sickness. The blood is at work day and night to maintain the health, and any lack of strength or purity in the blood is a weakness in the defense against disease. Anaemia is the doctor's name for lack of blood. There may be an actual loss in the quantity of the blood, or one or more of its constituents may be lacking. Its surest symptom is pallor. Anaemia is particularly common in young girls. It is not, however, confined to them alone, for it is this same lack of blood that prevents full recovery after la grippe, fevers, malaria and operations. It is also present in old age and in persons who have been under unusual mental or physical strain. If you are suffering from this trouble take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. They make pure, new blood with every dose and this new blood means health and strength. Thousands have proved the truth of these statements, among them Mrs. John Hyatt, Metiskow, Alta., who says:—"About a year ago I was in a badly run down condition, my blood was watery, I was very nervous, slept badly at night; suffered from frequent headaches and found my housework an almost intolerable burden, my appetite was poor, and I did not seem to assimilate the food I took, altogether my condition seemed serious. As there was no doctor in our neighbourhood I decided to give Dr. Williams' Pink Pills a trial, and I have much cause to be thankful that I did so, as in a few weeks I could feel a great change for the better. I continued the use of the pills for some time longer, and found a complete cure. I feel better than I have for years and can therefore cheerfully recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills to all who are weak and run down."

You can get these pills from any dealer in medicine or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Republics Plan To Corral Hun Spies

WASHINGTON, March 10. — The United States is planning joint action with Latin-American republic to stamp out German propaganda and spy activity throughout the Americas, according to authoritative information yesterday.

Revelations of sinister German movements in half a dozen South and Central American republics have served to arouse the Government, as well as the various republics themselves, it was said, to a realization that vigorous steps must be taken to eradicate the evil and preserve strict neutrality.

It was known yesterday that various South American diplomats have applied and received from the State Department a great deal of information collected by the United States as to German activities in the Latin-Americas.

PROMINENT CAVAN TOWNSHIP FARMER KILLED YESTERDAY

Mr. William Henry Staples Struck by a Limb While Working in the Woods—Died Several Hours Later

Mr. Staples was felling a tree yesterday morning when a limb broke, inflicting a severe wound on his forehead and rendering him unconscious. He was about three-quarters of a mile from his home, in the woods and the man working with him had great difficulty in carrying him to his home. Dr. Eastwood was called, but all efforts to save him proved futile, and he died at ten o'clock last night. Mr. Staples' death will be a great loss to the community, in which he took a great interest. He was superintendent of the Sunday school of Cavan Methodist church. Mr. J. F. Staples, of the same township, is a brother.

Berliner Tageblatt Pictures American People Rejoicing While Civilization Expiring—U. S. Suffering Least, Yet Complaining Most—Viciously Assails Wilson's Volte Face Between December and Time of Inaugural Address.

NO MORE ARGUMENT

BERLIN, March 10.—Picturing America as "the gleeful beneficiary at the deathbed of European civilization," the Berliner Tageblatt yesterday, in an editorial, viciously assailed President Wilson's abrupt change of front from his peace speech of December to his present attitude, particularly as revealed in his inaugural address.

"None of the stateleaders of belligerent countries or of neutrals have spoken as often as President Wilson," the newspaper asserted, "although America is the least affected by the war. It is a gleeful beneficiary at the death of European civilization. Wilson's intention to change the idea of 'neutrality' is evident from each successive speech, in spite of the tradition of America's reserve from having a hand in the developments of the war.

HAS DESERTED MONROE.

"This is proved in the last speech of the man who has deserted Monroe's position, by his statement that 'America may possibly be forced to take an active part in the fight.'

"It is difficult to answer the question of what Wilson wants with 'war' because Wilson's chief opponent, and one of the persons supposed to be best informed, says America 'is in danger of being dragged into the war without reasons'."

NO MORE ARGUMENT.

Continuing, the Tageblatt asserted the "time has passed for arguments."

"It is necessary," the editorial added, "to state Wilson's tendencies in enduring from one party what he intends to avenge against another, as a 'minimum right and principle of freedom.'

"But it is absolutely necessary to point out the contradiction in Wilson's words, which may possibly cause a misleading opinion by the whole world, and that is that in pointing out the necessity for arming against Germany, he turns abruptly from his peace programme of December, as if it were necessary to defend his programme against its sole enemy, Germany.

HUNS HELPED WILSON!

"We raise the strongest protest that Wilson must remember his peace programme found more sympathy in Germany than in the Entente countries.

"To-day Wilson may succeed in carrying a great people with him and in making them believe the ideals and happiness of all people is threatened by Germany, but he who does this ought not to put the principle 'fair dealing' at the head of his demands."

The Tageblatt's reference to "Wilson's chief opponent" evidently means former Secretary of State Bryan, who has frequently been quoted substantially as stated in the editorial above.

American Government Looks Out Upon The Prospect of Actual War

Germany is Hard Pressed For Food—It Appears to Be a Race Between War Engulfing the Two Nations and Starvation Swallowing Germany.

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

(By Robert J. Bender.)

WASHINGTON, March 10.—The United States Government is preparing for the worst.

Warned by Germany that she has spoken with finality as to her submarine intents, the Government to-day looked out upon the prospect of actual war, following the order to arm American merchantmen.

Some officials fear Germany will be as ruthless toward armed American ships, as she has been toward enemy merchant marine.

Looming out and above the war cloud, however, is the tremendous possibility that peace may be just around the corner.

Germany is hard pressed for food. That fact is admitted by her leaders.

It appears to be a race between war engulfing the two nations, and starvation swallowing Germany. The spectre of famine as authorities here see it, has in it the potentialities of a speedy peace.

Meantime work on the armament of American ships proceeds.

PRUSSIAN FOOD CONTROLLER SAYS CONDITIONS BAD

Warns People That Very Radical Measures Are Needed if They Are to Hold Out—Admits Food Shortage Causes Much Distress

BLAMES THE JUNKERS

LONDON, March 10.—The Prussian food controller, Dr. George Michaelis made in the Prussian diet what the Koelnische Zeitung calls a serious speech on the food situation, says a Reuter despatch from Amsterdam. Dr. Michaelis declared that the distress was such that a more serious state of things especially in the large industrial centres, could hardly be imagined. He indicated the possibility that all surplus stocks of grain would be exhausted and said that very radical measures were needed to enable the people to hold until next year.

NOT ENDURANCE EXPECTED.

"We have in the third year of the war," the food controller is quoted as saying, "discovered that among all sections of the people the general feeling evidenced is not one of that endurance for which we had hoped. This is human nature, but it is highly deplorable and may have most serious results.

"We have not perceived in the towns that stern supervision which is absolutely necessary in the distribution of foodstuffs. There has been widespread abuse of bread tickets, entailing grave consequences as regards our stocks. Bread tickets have been illegally used on such a shocking scale that our entire reserves were exhausted. So when potatoes failed and bread was ordered as a substitute there was none available. Flour has been similarly reduced, owing to the similar irregularities in the mills."

NEED MORE SEVERITY.

Dr. Michaelis, concluded by urging the utmost severity to remedy the shortcomings while there was yet time. Some of the mills would have to be closed and the municipality deprived of their autonomous powers. Rationing and requisitioning must be strictly applied with respect to eggs, milk, butter, fruit and vegetables. He added:

"We are confronted with the thought of what would happen if this measure also should fail and what grim starvation there would be if suddenly during the closing months of the economic year we should find there was insufficiency, and we could not hold out. The ensuing misery would be indescribable."

BLAMES THE JUNKERS.

The speech caused a sensation, and the Socialist Hufer, who followed, according to the Rheinisch Westfalische Zeitung, declared that the junkers were to blame if a famine supervened. An attempt was being made, he said, to shift the blame on England.

"The selfishness of the agrarians," he said, "is the cause of the high prices. The war would long since have been ended if everybody had to suffer hunger equally. The present meat ration is insufficient. To withhold such a necessary from the people in the interest only of agrarian tariff is damnable. I recall professor Abbes' retirement from the council of the war feeding department; the strikes of munition workers in Essen and Berlin, owing to underfeeding, have only too well justified him."

The Minister of Agriculture then spoke and vigorously defended himself against attacks. He alluded to the critical situation created by the partial success of the Entente's plan of starving Germany, and added:

"For the small bread ration one can only make the Almighty responsible, who has not given us the harvest we expected."

YOUR FRECKLES

Need Attention in March or Face May Stay Covered.

Now is the time to take special care of the complexion if you wish it to look well the rest of the year. The March winds have a strong tendency to bring out freckles that may stay all summer unless removed. Now is the time to use othine — double strength.

This prescription for the removal of freckles was written by a prominent physician and is usually so successful that it is sold by druggists under guarantee to refund the money if it fail. Get an ounce of othine—double strength, and even a few applications should show a wonderful improvement, some of the smaller freckles even vanishing entirely.

OUR SERIAL STORY

THE RED PAPER

By C. HOTCHKISS

"No one to protect her?" He would see to that. Harper might form his syndicate and go porth alone. And then——"

His pleasant reverie was broken in upon by the man whose name was floating through his mind. Without knocking, the new deputy burst into the room with as much precipitation as though the apartment were his own, and his first words brought Wentworth's castle tottering to the ground.

"They have escaped! They have gone, Heaven knows where, for there is not a trace of them. Oh, fool! ass! imbecile that I have been!"

"Gone!" shouted Wentworth springing to his feet.

"Yes! Vanished into thin air! Thorp has stayed behind to investigate. He is not a cursed bit flummoxed. I ought not to have waited an instant for Thorp—or gone to see you about what to do! I might have had them! I'm a fine specimen of an officer of the law! Oh, kick me, somebody!"

"And Miss Merridale has left no word—no note for me?"

"Not a thing. I inquired. We only know that some time in the evening when I was asleep at your place, an automobile came up and took the whole kit."

"We should easily trace the auto," began Wentworth.

"That's the cursed of it!" interrupted Harper. "No one knows its number or its driver. It was a planned, sneak—a get-away. They were scared by what Planet did yesterday and knowing what would be likely to happen to-day. Oh, I ought to be horse-whipped! Why in Heaven's name did you not stay in the house as you agreed to do?"

There was no answer to this. Harper savagely bit off the end of a cigar, savagely bit off the end of a cigar himself into a chair with an air of infinite disgust.

Neither man spoke for a time. There was nothing to say since the story had been told. Wentworth knew that the fault had been his, but in the face of what had happened in the Alamo before Planet attacked him he was not prepared to say he was sorry he had broken his promise though he was sorry enough for one of its results. He understood his friend's irritation and knew that a hasty or inappropriate word would be a spark which might cause an explosion both would forever regret. The two men sat and looked at each other, both smoking, but neither ventured a remark. The situation was growing more and more tense and each silently prayed for the coming of the sheriff. He might have some news.

But it was nearly an hour more before Thorp came in, bringing with him an air of alacrity and decision. "For a time we have lost them," he said, as he entered the room, but the remark was given in a manner that conveyed the idea that the news was favourable. "At the railroad station I get no trace of them. From what I have discovered I have come to the conclusion that they were driven into the open country or to some point where the auto was exchanged for an ambulance. But in what direction they went I am not as yet satisfied. If I only savvied more of the men!"

"The men? Haven't you heard the whole story?" asked Wentworth.

"Only in part. Little aside of what the warrant covers, and nothing as to the character of the men."

"Then you are but half-informed! You tell him, Tom. I can't go into the thing again!"

And so Harper told the whole story, Wentworth here and there putting in a word of correction. It was a long but very complete tale and when it was finished the sheriff's face had lost its puzzled expression.

"A precious pair of villains!" he ejaculated. "I believe they have gone as straight to the mines as possible, or will go after disposing of the lady. They will outfit for the plains at Boerne. They must, for Boerne would be the last place they would outfit. And they have elected to drive rather than risk identification on the railroad."

"I know that Bagshot intended to go to Boerne. Miss Merridale told me that," said Wentworth.

"Ah that simplifies matters! Boerne is thirty two miles north from here. I was born there; my father lives there now—drives the stage from Boerne to Johnson City. The place is something more than the mere settlement it was a few years ago but it is the jumping off place for the llanos directly west. By thunder. I see their game! Look here!" He went to a drawer and brought out a map of Texas. "See! They go to Leon Springs—then to Boerne, then to Comfort, crossing the ford of the Guadaloupe, then to Kerrsville where he is to meet some parties who are to go on to the mine with him. Of course they are hurried but they are conservative, too; they show that by taking to horses and wheels instead of going by the short railroad that ends at Kerrsville. And they dare not drop the lady until they are ready to lose themselves on leaving Kerrsville, having outfitted for the mines. Gentlemen, I know every foot of the land beyond Kerrsville. A few miles west it is practically a desert. It would be hard to catch them if they enter it. I shall at once telegraph Boerne and Kerrsville, but I doubt if we get them that way. I think Bagshot is too foxy for such a simple trap. Does he know Mr. Harper is connected with this?"

"No; he thinks I alone am after him," said Wentworth.

"Good. Now I see my way! Gentlemen, this thing interests me for its own sake as well as for yours. Just now I am comparatively free, and I will take this up and carry it through if you wish it, but it will cost you time, money and hard work. Are you for it?"

Thorp was walking up and down the room as he talked, his head bent, his thumbs hooked into his belt, his step and voice filled with energy. Wentworth caught the man's fire.

"Most decidedly we both are for it, when I am free," he said. "Neither time, money nor work need be considered."

"That paper alone is worth the trip after them," said Thorp. "You may leave the details to me. Of course, Planet won't be in court, and you will be discharged at once. But, gentlemen, you must start the moment I am ready. We are chasing desperate men who will stop at nothing. I would advise you to buy proper clothing and arm yourselves—a rifle each and revolvers. In Texas a civilian can no longer carry arms without a license but officers of the law are exempt. I will swear you both in as my posse. It is best to keep this to yourselves. Stand up."

He drew himself up before them and in a rapid and perfunctory manner administered the oath. There was a headlong dash about the man that was contagious and the two friends felt themselves booked for a novel adventure, though neither hesitated for an instant.

"Meet me in front of this building at five o'clock to-night," said Thorp in a voice that admitted of neither question nor suggestion. "I have a heap to attend to before that time."

"Can you ride?"

"We both ride."

"Good! And your ability will be tested. I will attend to getting the horses."

"Here?" asked Harper, astonished. "Don't we go by rail to Boerne?"

Thorp simled. "Hardly—and for two reasons; first that I wish to cover more breadth of ground than lies between two steel rails; and second: that there is not another train to Boerne until to-morrow morning at nine. And I wish to stop several times on my way."

He walked to the door where he turned and spoke again, his face becoming impressive. "Gentlemen, those two scoundrels have nigh twenty-four hours the start of us. You have booked yourselves for no picnic; it will be an experience that will test your sand, or I fail to read those fellows straight. But we will not let up on them until we have them, alive or dead. When I go on a trail I camp on it."

And with that he went out. Later both Wentworth and Harper, remembered his prophecy.

CHAPTER XVIII.
THE STAGE DRIVER.

Instead of it being five o'clock, it was past sunset when the mounted trio left the door of the San Antonio jail. In that latitude darkness falls swiftly after the sun goes down, but the moon in its second quarter gave plenty of light for travellers.

From the time that Thorp had left the two men in his room there had been no hitch other than some delay in the business of the sheriff's office. Regarding the steps taken for Wentworth, the matter had been almost perfunctory. He had appeared before the judge and was promptly discharged not only on account of the weight of his own story but through the absence of his accuser. The case of the watchman at the Alamo was to remain in abeyance until the more urgent business of catching Bagshot had been accomplished.

Nothing more had been learned of the fugitives and apparently nothing more was necessary to the present knowledge of the pursuers. Thorp was positive that Bagshot was on his way toward the northwest.

"I cannot quite understand it," said Wentworth, as the trio moved out of the city. "Whatever else he may be, Bagshot is no fool. He believes that I am on the trail. Why did he not send Miss Merridale to Kerrsville by railroad while he and Planet hid themselves in Mexico until the trouble blew over and they knew I would be gone? That would be their logical proceeding."

"My friend," said Thorp, drawing his horse to Wentworth's side, "my experience is that criminals are rarely logical, as you call it. For which we are to be thankful; for if their brains worked consistently we would have little chance of catching them. Every crook has a little touch of what might be called insanity. He lacks mental balance else he would not be a crook; and while he appears to be mighty sharp in some of his motions he is equally stupid in others."

Enemies of Tea

If tea is left open near oranges, soap, spices, matches, etc., the tea will take on the flavor of any of these articles.

In fact, tea absorbs odors as readily as does butter. This is because of the high temperature at which it is "fired" during the drying process, which makes the tea very sensitive. It thus quickly loses flavor and strength, and goes "flat" if left exposed to odors, dust or air.

To Protect the Consumer

When you buy a package of Red Rose Tea at your grocer's you get the benefit of the great care we take to protect the consumer, as the sealed package is an armor that keeps out odors, dust and air. It keeps the tea pure, clean, fresh and full strength.

CRUDE THOUGHTS FROM THE EDITORIAL PEN

HOME HAPPINESS.

It makes little difference in home happiness whether you own your own house, or have one little room on the sixth floor of an apartment house.

You can make that one little room the perfection of all that is worth living for, a quiet harbor to which a husband will turn, feeling that he has run out of the storm of his day's work into the security of something that is real.

We are not all born with the sunshine in our hearts, as the Irish people prettily term it, but we can all coax some of it in there if we only try.

The faculty of seein the bright side or at least the edges of that side is one that married people might cultivate with profit to each other.

Courtesy is of more value in the home than many believe it to be. It is easier to love a person than it is to be always courteous to him and yet it is one of the most valuable recipes for keeping that love fresh within our hearts.

Of all men the newspaper men who are to select from the world's doings and the community's doings that with which the public is to be made familiar needs to be wise and judicious, and to lay aside his likes and dislikes and clear himself of all malice. If the newspaper which you take is to decide what information concerning the doings, good or bad, in the world, and in the community, you and your family are to be made familiar with, have you not also a duty as to the kind of a newspaper you take — whether it be one that parades and patronizes vice and crime, and sneers at goodness and decency, or one that does the reverse of this? Does it make a difference whether you admit daily or weekly to your household, a paper which has regard for truthfulness and fairness, or one which will lie and slander at any time to suit its purpose?

To the newspapers are committed great responsibilities, and of it there must be corresponding demand. The responsibility of the paper, of those who make it and give it its character, is a matter of vital concern.

BOYS, NEVER SWEAR.

It is vulgar; altogether too low for a decent boy.

It is cowardly—implying a fear of not being believed or obeyed.

It is contemptible—forfeiting the respect of all the wise and good.

It is indecent—offensive to delicacy, and extremely unfit for human ears.

It is mean. A boy of high moral standing would almost as soon steal a sheep as swear.

It is abusive—to the mind which conceives the oath to the tongue which utters it, and to the person at whom it is aimed.

It is venomous — showing a boy's heart to be a nest of vipers and every time he swears one of them sticks out his head.

It is wicked—violating the divine law and provoking the displeasures of Him who will not hold him guiltless who takes His name in vain.

KEEP COOL. — As I write, the thermometer is registering six below zero here in Chicago, and the reports from northern and western cities all show a much lower temperature, so from a physical standpoint my suggestion is unnecessary. Just at this time, however, there are many things happening in this beautiful world of ours that will have a tendency to make the head hot and the blood to boil. In some cases I regret to say that the head may get warm but the feet will get so cold that the cowardly owner will use them to run with, and the direction will not be toward the danger zone.

Mental poise is one of the most valuable assets of an individual or a nation. We especially need that poise just at this time. It is almost impossible for this nation to avoid war unless the sorely distressed German nation back down in their declaration of ruthless slaughter by the use of the implement invented by an American—and the Germans are not the sort of people that back down except for the purpose of getting a stronger hold.

The people of this country occupy a peculiar position. Among our warm personal friends and neighbors are a number of men and women that were born in Germany and Austria. They are citizens by adoption and almost to a man they will be loyal to their adopted country, but stop and think of the distress and mental anguish of these people and let your hearts go out to them in love and sympathy.

Mental suffering causes physical suffering and is responsible for most cases of sickness not due to external or accidental causes. Help them and at the same time help yourself. Whenever a human being performs a really unselfish and helpful act for others he strengthens his own character and mental health.

My own ancestors came from England in 1633 so that I can claim American birth for nearly 300 years, but one of my nearest friends was born in Austria and is entitled to be called a Baron. He was as a young man an officer in the Austrian Army, but he is now a citizen of the U. S., and has already tendered his services to his adopted country's flag.

Keep cool and put into practical use all of the knowledge that you have gained from the Home Health Club by preparing your loved ones for every emergency. Men should see to it at once that their teeth are in perfect condition; don't wait for toothache to tell you to go to the dentist, but go now, and be ready because if war is declared every able bodied man will be called to serve his country. Next, get your feet in perfect condition; carefully keep the nails trimmed, and get rid of corns and callouses. Now, there are two things of importance to the men; they will be of benefit whether you are called upon or not.

The women should carefully lay aside all of the old sheets and pillow cases. Have them thoroughly clean; then go to a doctor or trained nurse, and have them show you how to make a roller bandage. Make up all that you can if the call comes, and supply the men of your family and towns. There are many other things you can do to help and you also must be ready, for if it comes you also will be needed.

I will gladly answer all inquiries for information on health subjects from readers of this publication, if the same are addressed to Home Health Club, 5039 Cottage Grove Avenue, Chicago, Ill. Send full name and address with 4 cents postage.

Bear Doctor: There is a contagious disease in our neighborhood, something similar to diphtheria, but the doctors do not call it that. I do not know of any of the symptoms. Can you suggest a remedy; also a preventive? Do you think that wearing asafoetida around the neck or sulphur in the stockings will prevent one from taking contagious diseases? Would it be of any use to disinfect a house during an epidemic as a preventive? Would swabbing the throat with goldenseal, potash or gargle with salt water be of any use? Do you think lemon juice or strong lemonade helpful? What causes the urine to be alkaline and what would help to overcome it? If one has to choose between a furnace and a base burner which would you recommend? What is the best way of lighting a house? What is the advantage of gas for cooking? Is it preferable to gasoline? Is it less dangerous?

Mrs. B. R.

Answer: In the absence of specific symptoms regarding the contagion now in your vicinity, I could not make a correct diagnosis. All of the questions that you desire answered regarding this condition, precautionary measures, as well as home treatment, you would find in the Home Health Club books. It would take entirely too much space to go into details here. The preceding feature on prevention would enable you to ward off the trouble. The acid sponge bath referred to in this lecture would also be valuable as a preventive. Wearing sulphur or asafoetida would be valueless.

If the disease is not in the house, there is no necessity to disinfect it, although of course sterilizing the home occasionally is healthful, whether disease is rampant or not. Swabbing the throat with the various articles that you mention would do no harm. Lemon juice and lemonade are healthful and are especially indicated in conditions of alkaline urine. Vinegar, just enough in a glass of water to give it a sour taste, would also be beneficial for overcoming this trouble. It is caused by errors in diet.

In regard to the heating of houses: furnaces are to be preferred to stoves because they will heat the whole house, while the stove will not; personally I much prefer either steam or hot water, although a great many people prefer the hot air from the furnace. According to my idea electricity is the best method of lighting a house. The greatest advantage of using gas for cooking is that it is more convenient. It is possibly a little more expensive but it is as a rule less dangerous.

BEET SALAD.

Prepare the dressing as for potato salad except leave out the onion juice and pickles. Cut cold boiled beets in small cubes, mix with the dressing. Plain potato salad garnished with beets cut in small cubes makes an appetizing dish.

COFFEE CAKE.

1 cup butter, 1 cup molasses, 4 cups flour, 1-2 lb. raisins, 1 teaspoon cinnamon, 1 cup sugar, 1 cup cold coffee, 2 teaspoons baking powder, 1-4 lb. citron, 1-2 teaspoon cloves, 1-2 teaspoon nutmeg. The fruit in this is much a matter of choice, dates or figs may be substituted.

TO COOK YOUNG CHICKEN.

Dress them and joint as usual; place in dripping pan and just cover with sweet cream. Season with salt, pepper and a little butter, and by the time the cream is nearly cooked away the chicken will be done. There should be enough cream to serve the mashed potatoes as gravy.

CARROT PUFFS.

To each cup cooked mashed carrots add half-cup cream, one well beaten egg, one teaspoon butter, melted; half-teaspoon sugar and one-fourth teaspoon salt. Mix well, pour into greased custard cups and bake about half an hour in a hot oven until puffed up and light.

HICKORY DOUGHNUTS

One egg, half-cup sugar, one generous tablespoon melted butter, half-cup sweet milk, half-cup finely chopped hickory nut meats, salt, nutmeg, and baking powder, with flour to roll soft.

Amazing Power of Bon-Opto To Make Weak Eyes Strong

Doctor Says It Strengthens Eyesight 50 per cent in One Week's Time in Many Instances

A Free Prescription You Can Have Filled and Use at Home

Victims of eye strain and other eye weaknesses and those who wear glasses, will be glad to know that according to Dr. Lewis there is real hope and help for them. Many whose eyes were failing say they have had their eyes restored by this remarkable prescription and many who once wore glasses say they have thrown them away. One man says, after using it: "I was almost blind. Could not see to read at all. Now I can read everything without my glasses, and my eyes do not hurt any more. At night they would pain dreadfully. Now they feel fine all the time. It was like a miracle to me." A lady who used it says: "The atmosphere seemed hazy with or without glasses, but after using this prescription for fifteen days everything seems clear I can read even fine print without glasses." Another who used it says: "I was bothered with eye strain caused by overworked, tired eyes, which induced fierce headaches. I have worn glasses for several years, both for distance and work, and without them I could not read my own name on an envelope or the typewriting on the machine before me. I can do both now and have discarded my long distance glasses altogether. I can count the fluttering leaves on the trees across the street now, which for several years have looked like a dim green blur to me. I cannot express my joy at what it has done for me."

It is believed that thousands who wear glasses can now discard them in a reasonable time and multitudes more will be able to strengthen their eyes so as to be spared the trouble and expense of ever getting glasses. Eye troubles of many descriptions may be wonderfully benefited by the use of this prescription at home. Go to any active drug store and get a bottle of Bon-Opto tablets. Drop one Bon-Opto tablet in a fourth of a glass of water and let it dissolve. With this liquid bathe the eyes two to four times daily. You should notice your eyes clear up perceptibly right from the start, and inflammation and redness will quickly disappear. If your eyes bother you even a little it is your duty to take steps to save them now before it is too late. Many hopelessly blind might have saved their sight if they had cared for their eyes in time.

Note: Another prominent Physician to whom the above article was submitted, said: "Yes, the Bon-Opto prescription is truly a wonderful eye remedy. Its constituent ingredients are well known to eminent eye specialists and widely prescribed by them. I have used it very successfully in my own practice in patients whose eyes were strained through overwork or weak glasses. I can highly recommend it in cases of weak, watery, aching, smarting, itching, burning eyes, red lids, blurred vision or for eyes inflamed from exposure to smoke, sun, dust or wind. It is one of the very few preparations I feel should be kept on hand for regular use in almost every family." Bon-Opto, referred to above, is not a patent medicine or a secret remedy. It is an ethical preparation, the formula being printed on the package. The manufacturers guarantee it to strengthen eyesight 50 per cent in one week's time in many instances or refund the money. It can be obtained from any good druggist and is sold in this city by Warne Drug Co. and Other Druggists.

EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE

LADY'S ONE PIECE DRESSING SACQUE.

By Anabel Worthington.

What every woman knows is that a pretty negligee or dressing sacque is the most fascinating of intimate garments and when it makes a most acceptable gift when fashioned of silk mull, silk, crêpe de chine, dimity, lawn or batiste, with the addition of some ribbon and probably a little lace to give the necessary soft touches. If for one's own wardrobe, cotton crêpe, crêpe, flannelette and outing flannel may be added to the list of suitable materials, especially if for bedroom wear on chilly mornings.

When one is in just the state of mind for rest and comfort, a sacque like the illustrated in No. 8,059 is necessary to complete the picture of contentment. It is cut in one piece in a very becoming length and may be made with or without a yoke at the back also, the sleeves may be long or short gathered into a band cuff or finished without a cuff. The surplice closing adds to the attractiveness of this garment, which has all edges bound with ribbon of contrasting color. A feature worth noticing is the pointed effect at the side.

Keeping in mind the ease with which a [illegible] may be developed, your [illegible] will be found for the pattern [illegible] is designed "as you [illegible]

Battalion's Glorious Success helped by Bovril

DAY by day proof after proof appears to show how Bovril "gives strength to win." A Rifleman of the ——— Inf. Brigade, after speaking of the valuable quality of Bovril, "which has once again proved its worth," writes as follows:—

"In the recent strenuous fighting of September 15th, I remember the case of my battalion. After spending two wet and miserable nights in the firing line, we were ordered to attack at break of day. We were feeling very cold, but cheerful and confident, because we were told that the Tanks were to accompany us. To add to our satisfaction we were given a good issue of Bovril, which I know enabled the chaps to withstand the many hardships, for rations failed to turn up that day, and the chaps would have felt very hungry. As it was, the issue of Bovril made my chums feel very confident, the result being that they attained a glorious success. This issue of Bovril no doubt saved the lives of many of the wounded, as some had to lay hours before they could be removed."

Not only on the Battlefield, but in the Munition Shops, in the Factory, in the Home, Bovril "gives strength to win."

Send Bovril to your friends—they deserve the best. Take Bovril yourself. Take it to defend you against winter ills, and to give you that added vigour and energy which mean so much just now.

VOTED DOWN BILL

Sam Carter, M.P.P., for South Wellington, was in very vigorous form in the debate when the Government, after giving women the vote, voted down Mr. Rowell's bill to give them the right to sit in the Legislature.

"I don't mind your sudden conversions on woman suffrage and prohibition," said Carter, "but I hate your conceit about it. After what you had done to block these reforms, when finally you did come around, why didn't you have the decency to be humble about it? Instead of that, you go about blowing. The conceit of you.

"It was great to see you running for cover when the Committee of One Hundred got its club out!

"And woman suffrage, too when you saw the stick coming, down you ducked again!

"I don't like people who sit on the fence. I like men of courage!

"Why shouldn't you let the women in the Legislature? It's women who understand such things as the factory Acts and the care of children. Women are going to be voters the same as the men. Why won't you give these voters the rights that belong to them?"—Toronto Star.

Smith got married. The evening of his first pay-day he gave his bride $14 of the $15 salary and kept only a dollar for himself.

But the second pay-day Smith gave his wife one dollar and kept $14 himself.

"Why, John," she cried, in injured tones, "how on earth do you think I can manage for a whole week on a paltry dollar?"

"Darned if I know," he answered. "I had a rotten time myself last week. It's your turn now."

And there is no question that a W. G. & R. collar, therefore, looks smarter and fits neater than a straight "up and down" collar.

Legislation To Prevent Stealing Of Industries

The Ontario Government measure for the creation of a Bureau of Municipal Affairs furnished materials for a debate in the Legislature this afternoon.

Hon. W. D. McPherson, Provincial Secretary, in moving the second reading of the bill, stated that the Bureau would be of great general utility, particularly to the smaller cities and towns of the Province, which had not the highly qualified officials of the larger cities. The bill intended to assign to the Bureau the operation of the Schools Accounts Act, and control over the work of the drainage referees and official arbitrator, as well as the work at present done by the Ontario Railway Board under the Public Utilities Act.

Want Expert Advice.

Sam Carter, South Wellington, regarded the bill as altogether too indefinite. The bureau was only a trial. What municipalities wanted was a Government department to which they could go for expert advice. Municipalities, he said, should have full autonomy. He thought something might be done to prevent one municipality from bonusing industries from another. This competition should be ended.

Mr. Carter told how Chatham had tried to induce Libby, McNeil and Libby, to remove their plant from Guelph, where it had been established after financial assistance.

The proposed bureau, Mr. Carter contended, should have a capable director of wide experience in municipal affairs, and one or more eminent engineers who could give expert advice to the cities and towns who could not afford to employ such officers.

Government to Bear Expense.

Hon. Mr. McPherson informed Wm. Proudfoot that the expense of the bureau would be borne by the Government.

Allan Studholme, East Hamilton, asked the Premier if there was a law in operation which prevented the bonusing of an industry by one municipality from another, and was assured that this was the case.

J. C. Elliott, West Middlesex, stated there was scope for great work by the proposed bureau, but unless the man selected as director of the bureau was a man head and shoulders above the officials of municipalities the bureau would largely fail. The director should be a man of wide municipal experience, unlimited energy, and of such ability as to satisfy every municipality.

"Get the best municipal man that can be obtained in the Province to fill the position of director," was Mr. Elliott's advice.

Move in Right Direction.

Armstrong H. Musgrave, North Huron, said the bureau was a move in the right direction. What municipalities most needed at present time was expert advice.

Hon. Mr. McPherson promised the suggestions offered would be considered by the Government. The creation of the bureau, he regarded as a first step in the formation of an important branch dealing with municipal problems.

Chas. M. Bowman assumed the debate on the bill of Hon. Mr. Ferguson for the re-organization of the forestry service.

Public Opinion Changing.

When Premier Hearst moved the second reading of the bill to amend the Dairy Standard Act to postpone indefinitely the date for the Act going into force, George A. Gillespie, West Peterborough, asked the Government to fix a definite period for the bill becoming operative, as he feared the opposition which had caused the present postponement would again be met next year, and further delay secured. Premier Hearst gave assurance that nothing had occurred to change the Government's confidence in the legislation. Public opinion was changing rapidly in its favour and opposition he expected would break down before a continued educational campaign.

Tone of the wheat market stronger to-day, based on a slight relief in the car congestion, and also in anticipation of a bullish Government report issued to-day. What these boys do, you can do

SEVERAL hundred dollars worth of vegetables was the splendid contribution of the Broadview Y.M.C.A. boys of Toronto towards increase of food production last season. No wonder the boys proudly fly the British flag in their "Garden City" and win fine compliments from everyone.

Helping in the War

Toronto Y.M.C.A. boys doing their bit by growing vegetables. Each boy looks after his own plot, and either sells the vegetables or uses them at home.

No army could fight very long on an empty stomach. Plentiful supplies of food must reach our heroes in France every day. Besides, there is all Canada to feed, and Great Britain depends largely upon us too. There exists a world shortage of food. Hundreds of thousands of Canadian soldiers are now consumers instead of producers. So you see that every bit of help in growing extra food supplies is of colossal importance. Every home should have a vegetable garden.

Every dollar's worth of vegetables you grow saves money otherwise spent for vegetables or gives you vegetables you would not otherwise have, and thus helps to lower the "high cost of living." Growing vegetables saves the labor of others whose effort is urgently needed for other vital work. Boys, girls, grown-ups—everyone should help. Let the slogan for 1917 be

"A vegetable garden for every home"

Who doesn't enjoy nice fresh juicy vegetables on the table every day! Isn't it well worth everyone's while to grow vegetables this spring? Decide now. Boys and girls, ask your parents for the use of the ground and their help. They will gladly give you both. Grown-ups should plan now to have a garden.

Horticultural societies, lodges, school boards, etc., are invited to encourage vegetable growing by every one. Parents and guardians are requested to give boys and girls their co-operation.

It is suggested that organizations arrange for addresses on vegetable growing by local expert gardeners. If these are not available, the Department will endeavor to send a speaker. It is urgently requested that applications for speakers be made promptly as the demand for them will be great and the supply of available experts is limited.

The Department of Agriculture suggests stimulating interest by forming organizations to offer prizes for best vegetable gardens. Every possible assistance will be given any organization encouraging vegetable production on vacant lots.

You do not need to be an expert. Scarcely any plot of ground is too small. Just write a letter to the Ontario Department of Agriculture (address below) and you will receive literature telling all about vegetable growing, how to prepare the ground and cultivate the crop; also a plan showing suitable vegetables to grow, best varieties for Ontario, and their arrangement in the garden. These will be sent free on request. Attend the meetings in your community.

Write for Poultry Bulletin—The high prices for eggs make a flock of poultry well worth while. They are not expensive to keep. In the average home the waste from the table is sufficient. Write for bulletin.

FOR some time we have been advertising the need of Life Insurance in general. NOW we propose to show you WHY you should place your insurance with the Sun Life of Canada.

Fifteen years ago a parent in this City placed a ten pay 15 year Endowment Policy (No. 200916) in the Sun Life of Canada, on his son who was then 11 years of age.

On the 1st of February, inst. he was offered any of the following Options:—

First, a fully paid up Policy of $4045.00 payable at death.

Where can a man take $89.30 per year for 10 years and invest it in ANY OTHER WAY and produce an immediate estate of $4045.00 in case of death?

Or he could withdraw $905.85 which you will notice is more than he paid in, ALL TOLD, and still retain a FREE paid up participating policy of $1000.00, payable at death; thus his dollars did two things at the same time,—carried the risk, and gave a FREE POLICY and he saved his money for himself too.

Or he could have drawn $1266.80 in cash, which was $373.80 more than he paid in, or a return of over $141 for every hundred he paid, besides having had free protection for the past fifteen years.

Boxing as a Manly Art.

There exists a tendency to treat boxing as a mere sport demanding little else but an orthodox knowledge of punching, coupled with brute strength. A greater mistake never was made. Boxing is an art, and in no branch of sport is the human note so developed, and I challenge any one to name one wherein the emotional element is more predominant. There is something so intensely, primevally masculine about it the wonder to me is that it does not rank in the general mind as the grandest of all forms of athletics. Here is a sport which not only develops the man, but disciplines his lower nature. Far from developing brutal instincts, it is an ennobling sport—one that, while developing the self protective spirit within him, also instills the quality of mercy. This is the real boxer, for I am not alluding to the few exceptions who are a disgrace even to themselves.—Georges Carpentier in Leslie's.

Military Spies.

Poultney Bigelow, author of "The Borderland of Czar and Kaiser," was once told by a German officer how he managed to dispose of his secret notes when he was spying in Russia. As he was being led to headquarters he pulled out cigars and offered them to the policemen guarding him. Then as he lit his own he held with the cigar a bit of the tissue paper on which he had made his memoranda, and as the match burned it consumed the paper held in the hollow of his hand.

Every German officer, says the author of "The Borderland of Czar and Kaiser," knows that if he wishes a furlough he can always get it provided he gives the assurance that he will spend his time not in pleasure, but in gathering information valuable to his country, studying a new language or in making a report upon a particular equipment of a particular foreign army.

Fatal Flattery.

Art Connoisseur—Where did you get hold of this daub? Friend—I picked it up in a studio, said something nice about it out of politeness, and the artist gave it to me. Art Connoisseur (sadly)—You can't be too careful.—Judge.

A Ready Compliment.

She—Some day I want to show you our family tree. He (looking at her admiringly)—I should like to see it. I am sure it must be a peach.—Somerville Journal.

He was running a small provision store in a newly-developed district, and the big wholesale dealers found him very backward in payment of his accounts.

They sent him letter after letter, each more politely threatening than the last. Finally, they sent their representative down to give him a last chance.

"Now," said the caller, "we must have a settlement! Why haven't you sent us anything? Are things going badly?"

"No. Everything going splendidly. You needn't worry. My bankers will guarantee me all right."

"Then, why haven't you paid up?"

"Well, you see, those threatening letters of yours were so well done that I've been copying them out and sending them round to a few customers of my own who won't pay up, and I've collected nearly all outstanding accounts. I was only holding back because I felt sure there must be a final letter, and I wanted to get the series complete."

I had suffered terribly with my heart for nearly ten years, could scarcely do any work, and would nearly smother at times. I had many remedies, some only relieving me for a time. MORE ECONOMY!

ARE WE TOO WASTEFUL?

Sample Menus Tell How Leftovers May Be Turned Into Tasty Meals—A Plea For Plainer Furnishings That Require Less Care.

Carelessness with the food supply is regarded as the greatest source of waste in British homes. "It is the waste, not that which is legitimately consumed in our homes, which adds to the burden of the present high cost of living."

Nine women out of every ten throw away the water in which potatoes have been cooked. The tenth cuts a slice of bacon into small pieces, fries it and in the fat cooks a tablespoonful of minced onion, mixes a tablespoonful of flour with a little water, seasons to taste, adds it all to the potato stock—and she has a savory soup.

A tempting little hot dish for supper may be made from several kinds of vegetables if they are chopped, mixed with egg, formed into croquettes, dipped into egg and breadcrumbs, fried and served with brown sauce. Cold boiled potatoes may be remodeled au gratin, creamed or used for salad, and the saucerful of baked beans (not enough to serve again) may be advantageously disposed of in the making of soup.

The cupful of cereal which is left over may be used for cream soup, with either half stock and half milk or all stock.

By a cultivation of simplicity in the home the expense would be cut down and the household work reduced. Rooms with buff colored background and a few pieces of furniture of modest design and one or two pictures or rare pieces are the right sort of thing, say these preachers of frugality. And, for all the plainness of such surroundings, they may be made very charming by a little planning or originality on the part of the housewife.

Labor saving devices in the home are recommended as one step toward thrift. By their use the number of hands employed about the house is reduced.

And even in the use of coal and gas the housewife is advised how to save a penny here or there. For instance, here is a valuable pointer in one of the "war economy" hints:

"Utensils used on a coal fire should not be used on a gas cooker, as a coating of soot acts as a nonconductor and wastes heat." Here is another:

"Always get the oven thoroughly hot before beginning to cook and then reduce the gas. Cook as much as possible in the oven when it is once heated."

Chicken Souffle.

This is also very nice for left over chicken. The chicken is mixed with chopped parsley, about a tablespoonful to a pint of chicken. Melt a tablespoonful of butter in pan and mix with flour, adding a pint of milk and stirring until the mixture boils. Then add half a cupful of dry breadcrumbs and cook a little longer. Remove from the fire and add the chicken hashed very fine. Season with salt, pepper and cayenne if liked. Add the well beaten yolks of three eggs and mix well. Place in a butter greased baking pan and bake for twenty minutes in a quick oven. Serve very hot.

The greater number of these churches had to be abandoned by the Germans.

NEW CAMISOLES.

Helps For the Girl Who Makes Her Own Lingerie.

It is natural that every girl should crave dainty underwear, but it is usually impossible for the average girl to buy the attractive models shown in the shops. By making her own garments a girl can acquire some of those things which she has long admired.

There is a variety of material from which the home sewer can make selections. Nainsook, fine lawns, silk muslin, crepe de chine and Italian silk are all admirable.

Hemstitching is a successful means for elaborating underwear. It is practical, too, in that it can be done so cheaply by machine, and it wears much better than lace. If one has the time hand embroidery is especially appropriate for underwear, particularly in these days of sheer blouses. An expensive blouse or frock is marred by shabby underwear or underwear which is cheap and showy.

The liberty to wear colored underwear has misled some girls. They abuse the right and make themselves conspicuous by wearing beneath thin blouses camisoles or chemises of brilliant pinks and blues. Now either color in a dainty shade is rather attractive and lends beauty to a blouse or dress.

One little tip in the making of the chemise or camisole may prove helpful to the home sewer. That is to be sure to place the shoulder straps sufficiently over the shoulders to prevent them from slipping, thus causing much annoyance to the wearer. Pin them on first and see if they fit comfortably.

Embroidered shoulder straps are a feature of many new chemises. These are sometimes edged with lace. Ribbon straps are very much in favor too.

A chemise which is so simple that a child could make it is made from a straight piece of material folded in half the length of the goods. The sides are stitched down to within a few inches of the bottom, and the top is finished with beading, lace or whatever one wishes to use. Along the folded line the material is cut to form holes large enough for the feet to pass through. The bottom at the sides can be shaped if desired, and the rough edges can be concealed with lace or beading. A touch of hand embroidery across the front and the addition of shoulder straps are all that are needed to complete the garment.

Wet Clothes.

Wet feet or clothes "give us cold" because the evaporation absorbs the heat so rapidly from the surface of the body that its temperature is lowered beneath the normal, straining the organs of the body and resulting in what we call a cold.

Sunday Sermon For Those Who Do Not Go To Church

(By JAMES SUTHERLAND)

THE SECOND COMING OF CHRIST

I have chosen Christ's own words as recorded in the 24th Chap. of Matt. to point out his prophecies in reference to the destruction of the temple the city of Jerusalem and the Jewish church and nation and his second coming. I have also referred to the statements of his coming by St. Mark and St. Luke and St. Paul, and of her sacred writers all confirming the prophecies of Christ, a great part of which has been literally fulfilled. I wish now to quote from the Book of the Revelation concerning the events described therein, in reference to Christ's second coming, as given to the angels sent to the apostle St. John. This book is the Revelation of Jesus Christ, the whole Bible is so far all revelation comes through Christ, and all centres in him. Its principal subject is a previous discovery of the purposes of God respecting the affairs of the church and of the nations as connected therewith to the end of the world. These events were such as would surely come to pass; and they would begin to pass very shortly. Though Christ is himself God, and has light and life in himself, yet as mediator between God and man, he receives instructions from the Father. To him we owe the knowledge we have, of what we are to expect from God, and what he expects from us. This revelation Christ sent and signified by his angel—the angels are ministering spirits to the heirs of salvation, they are Christ's servants. John was to deliver this revelation to the church, to all Christ's servants, for the revelation was designed not only for the use of ministers, but for all the members of the church; they all have a right to the oracles of God and all are concerned in them. The subject matter of this revelation was, the things that must shortly come to pass. To all who read or hear the words of the prophecy, a blessing is pronounced. They are well employed who search the Bible. It is a privilege, not only to read the scriptures ourselves, but to hear others who can lead us to understand them. It is not sufficient that we read and hear, but we must keep the things that are written in our memories, in our minds, in our affections and in practice and we shall be blessed in the deed. The time is at hand and an acquaintance with this revelation, concerning the purposes of God, respecting his church to the end of time, when united with humility, must greatly benefit the Christian. It must enlarge his views of God's providential government, as combined with redemption and encourage prayer for the prosperous days of the church and reconcile to events which, although distressing, form a part of the glorious design already partly accomplished. Even the mysteries and difficulties of this Book are united with discoveries of God, peculiarly suited to impress the mind with awe and to purify the soul of the humble attentive reader, though he may not discern the prophetic meaning. Many doubtless read in a wrong spirit, and get harm thereby, but this has been the case with other scriptures, which they have wrested to their own destruction. No part of scripture more fully states the gospel and warns against the evil of sin, and while it becomes us, to leave secret things to God, we ought carefully to read, hear, keep and obey whatsoever is revealed, for every word of God is pure, and does good to them that walk uprightly. The blessings pronounced on the seven churches of Asia, are grace and peace, holiness and comfort, grace that is the goodwill of God toward us, and his good work in us, and peace; that is the evidence and assurance of his grace—there can be no true peace where there is not true grace—and where grace goes before, peace will follow, this blessing is in the name of God, of the Holy Trinity, it is an act of adoration devout wishes for blessings which God alone can bestow are indirect prayers and these blessings are grace, the free favour of God, to those who have no claim to it—deliverance from evil and the gift of the greatest good—showing the love and compassion of infinite goodness, conferring the noblest gifts of holiness and happiness, on the helpless and sinful, and peace the tranquil and delightful feeling with the hope of possessing these enjoyments—these are the highest blessings that omnipotent benevolence can bestow. The Father is first named Jehovah, who was and is, and is to come, eternal and unchangeable. The Son and the Spirit are spoken of with relation to their characters and offices, but as possessing all divine perfections and as co-equal with the Father, the Holy Spirit is called the seven spirits, not seven in number or in nature, but the infinite perfect spirit of God, in whom there is diversity of gifts and operations. He is before the throne as God made, so he governs all things by His spirit. The Lord Jesus Christ was from eternity, a witness to all the counsels of God, (John 1-18) and he was in time a witness to the revealed will of God, He is the first begotten or first born from the dead, the only one who raised himself by his own power, and who will by the same poer, raise up his people. He is the Prince of the Kings of the earth, by Him their counsels are overruled. The inspired writer breaks out in adoring praises to Him, who great and glorious as he was has loved them with an everlasting love, and has washed from their sins in his own blood. Christ has made believers Kings and Priests to God and his Father, having justified and sanctified them, He makes them Kings to sit on His throne with Him and judge the world. He has made them priests giving them access to God—let us meditate frequently on the second coming of Christ in faith and expectation. He will come publicly in his own glory as mediator and in the glory of his Father ,and every eye shall see him, and if we would be numbered with his saints in glory everlasting, we must now willingly submit to Him, receive Him, and honour Him as our Saviour, who we believe will come to be our judge. I wish to add to the testimony already given, that of the beloved disciple St. John who leaned on the Mount of Olives and saw Him weep over Jerusalem as he uttered the prophecies, which I have been trying to unfold and to describe. John at this time was in the Isle of Patmos banished there by the Roman Emperor, Domitan, because of his adherence to his Master Christ. He was a sufferer for Christ's cause, he had the comfort that he did not suffer as an evil-doer, but for the testimony of Jesus, for bearing witness to Christ as the Messiah, the Saviour of the world and the Spirit of God, and of glory rested upon him—the day and time that he had this vision was the Lord's Day—the Christian Sabbath, the first day of the week, observed in remembrance of the resurrection of Christ. He was in the spirit, in a serious, heavenly spiritual frame of mind, under the gracious influence of the Spirit of God and God usually prepares the soul of His people for uncommon manifestations of Himself by the quickening, sanctifying influences of his good spirit; we tell our secrets to those that we love so God reveals his secrets to those who love Him, for the secret of the Lord is with them that fear Him. If we wish to enjoy communion with God we must endeavour to take our thoughts and affections from earthly things, if Christians are confined to their homes by sickness or other causes and deprived of the means of grace by necessity—they may expect great comfort in meditation, reading and prayer. The opening of the vision was given by the sound of a trumpet, and then the apostle heard the voice of Christ saying I am the first and the last commanding him to write the things now about to be revealed to him and to send them to the seven Asian churches, whose names are mentioned.

Yours sincerely
JAMES SUTHERLAND

FIRED OUT KIDNEYS

Kidney troubles are so frightfully common because the kidneys are so easily upset by overwork or excesses in eating and drinking. Cure is effected not by whipping them on to renewed effort but by awakening the action of the liver and bowels by the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. This rests the kidneys and makes them well. Backache and urinary disorders then disappear.

Rheumatism Disappeared!

Rheumatism is the scourge of many lives. Generally it is brought on by impurities in the blood, which means that the kidneys are not performing their proper function. In all such cases the remedy is

Cattle Markets.

The market this week was not quite so keen on edge as some recent markets. Trading, in fact, was generally slow all through the week. The large packers' representatives were not eager buyers, and were more inclined to be critical as to quality. Receipts were moderately high, and the choice offerings were not many, as compared with the large proportion of poor and medium quality. Prices for the very best finished cattle held good and steady at recent high levels, one extra choice bunch of steers reaching the high point for this season of high prices at $12. Several small lots sold around $11.25 to $11.50. For the general run of good to choice butcher, prices ranged from $10 to $10.50, but barely holding steady at these prices. Common to medium qualities eased off during the week, 25c to 30c from the week before.

There was a fair active trade for stockers and feeders, prices reaching record levels for good breedy stock.

Choice veal calves have held steady to firm, but common were off.

Hogs continued on their merry upward flights all through the week, finally leaving all former records far in the rear, the high point of $16 to $16.25 being reached on Wednesday's market, but finally closing at $16, fed and watered, for Thursday's quotations.

Cattle Market Receipts.

Union Stock Yards—Total receipts this week, 508 cars, with 4,762 cattle, 902 calves, 18,412 hogs, 675 sheep and lambs, and 1,379 horses.

City Cattle Market—80 cars, with 568 cattle, 247 sheep and lambs, 506 hogs, 86 calves, and 18 horses.

Maxwell

We chose to sell the Maxwell because—

We KNOW that the Maxwell Motor Company is the kind of a concern which will manufacture a product exactly as it claims, and will stand back of its product both morally and financially.

It represents an investment of $38,000,000.

There are four mammoth plants employing 12,000 men.

There are 57 acres of floor space.

There is an actual production for the season of 1917 of 125,000 cars.

We are satisfied that the Maxwell is a remarkably high quality car—and an unequalled value. The facts that we have just stated regarding the Maxwell Company insure that the Maxwell Car will continue to lead.

$890 f.o.b. WINDSOR

HOW TO KEEP WELL

THE BABY'S CLOTHING.

WE HAVE NOW gotten the baby along to the period that, for the time at least, its food is looked after; but the new world is a cold one, and the infant must have protection against an uncertain climate. Some of these must be provided against the baby's coming. It is a matter of pride for the prospective young mother to provide for her baby. She should lay in the following toilet articles, viz.: three dozen strong white safety pins, two dozen very small ones, a box of absorbent cotton, a few tubes of lanolin, one of pure vaseline, three cakes of unscented castile soap, some unscented talcum powder, one bath thermometer, a pound of boracic acid crystals, eight ounces of olive oil, four soft wash-cloths of all-wool flannel, two woollen bath blankets, six soft towels, and a soft hair brush.

The Clothes. Should comprise one soft receiving blanket, six one-yard-square flannel wraps, four knitted blankets, two soft blankets for the crib, six crib sheets, two yards of double-sided rubber sheeting, four dozen diapers of cotton, four flannel binders, four high-neck long-sleeved woollen shirts, four abdominal bands with shoulder straps with smooth inner seams, four nightgowns of flannel or canton flannel, white slips, three flannel gertrudes, six horse blanket pins for pinning baby in his crib, one-quart hot-water bottle with woollen cover.

It is the fashion that the baby's clothing changes as he gets older. At first custom ordains that he should wear long clothes, then short clothes, and as he begins to creep and walk another set must be provided. As these directions are meant for people with moderate incomes, it is not intended that they shall cover all that may be prepared in the way of clothing for the baby but only what is essential. The mother with plenty of ready money can easily augment her store.

The Long Clothes. In addition to what has already been advised to procure, several long dresses of white cotton or of more expensive material should be provided.

The Flannel Binders. Make these of all-wool flannel. They should not be hemmed as the hemming will destroy their elasticity and the hem will cut into the baby's tender skin. They should be fastened snugly but not too tightly by means of safety pins, tapes, or sewed with needle and thread. The binder should be fastened to one side of the middle of the abdomen and not at the back. The binder should not be too wide. It must not go so low as to interfere with the movement of the legs nor so high as to constrict the chest. It should be used for three or four weeks, when the knitted bands may be used.

Knitted Bands. These have shoulder straps. There should be no inner seams and the shoulder straps should be fastened to the band so as to avoid any rough joinings. They should fit the baby so as to avoid wrinkles.

Knitted Shirts. These should be high-necked and long-sleeved, of cotton, wool, or silk and wool. For summer a lightweight is needed. For winter a thicker but not too thick material. The baby should be dressed according to the temperature and not according to the season. Most mothers keep the baby too warm. When he perspires and lies in wet underclothes his skin becomes irritated and he is less able to resist "catching cold."

Flannel Gertrudes. These should be made of all-wool flannel and not of canton flannel or flannelette. These garments should be open in front.

White Dresses. These should be made without any waist-line, should be loose at the arm hole and without lace. The dresses should be fastened with small buttons at the back or with tapes.

Nightgowns. Nightgowns should be made of flannel, canton flannel, or stockinette, and of different weights to suit the temperature. Viyella flannel is the best of the flannels and washes better than other kinds. All flannels need careful washing. Flannelette is dangerous because it is inflammable and should not be used for the baby's clothing.

Diapers. These should be made of diaper cloth or stockinette. They should not be made (as they often are) of factory cotton, which, at least when new, is harsh and irritating to the soft skin of a baby. The hem should be hand-made as it is softer than machine made. The first diapers should be 18 by 36 inches or 20 by 40 inches. Begin by making two dozen large ones 22 by 44 or 22 by 48 inches. The larger ones should be used outside the smaller.

Applying the Binder. (1) Have the diaper snug but never tight enough to pinch the baby's stomach or legs. Vomiting and red lines sometimes indicate too tight a diaper.

(2) Do not bring too many thicknesses up between the legs.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

Markham's Ruse

He Learned That He Was Not Married For His Money.

By ELINOR MARSH

Warner Markham, a young American, rich, was very much afraid that, if he married, the girl he chose would place a much higher value on his money than on himself. He went abroad thinking that he might meet some girl with whom he might have a real affair of the heart. To conceal his wealth he traveled in second or third class railway carriages, stayed at pensions (boarding houses) instead of hotels and otherwise curtailed his expenses.

In Florence, where art is the principal attraction, he was one morning looking at the pictures in the Uffizi gallery when he came upon a young girl copying a picture by Titian. The sun, shining in at a window, glinted a head of wavy hair the exact shade of that belonging to a girl represented in the painting she copied. Of the real girl and the painted one Markham greatly preferred the former. Indeed, his heart went out to her with one of those sudden, unaccountable impulses that are common in young persons.

Standing behind her, he pretended to be examining her work, but his eyes were fixed on her. A friend passed her, and she spoke a few words of salutation in the English tongue without the British accent. Markham judged that she was an American, and Americans abroad need no introduction. Our country seems very far from them, a distant land sunken far below the western horizon, from which they are cut off and from which they hear very little. This makes them all akin. Markham, who was a fine judge of pictures, did not hesitate to express his approval of the way the copyist was doing her work and call her attention to some differences between her copy and the original. She looked up at him, saw admiration in his eyes and turned hers back upon her work with a fluttering of the heart that she had never felt before. Markham told her that he was an American, and she admitted being from the same land. After chatting awhile he passed on.

She was Madeline Trevor. Having some artistic ability and the necessity of making her own living, she had used a little money left her in a legacy to study art in Florence. Her funds had been used up, and she was now endeavoring to keep body and soul together by copying masterpieces for such Americans as would give her an order. Markham made up a story about himself to fit his being in Florence. He had come abroad on a venture to find pictures of great artists to sell to wealthy Americans at home on commission. He had been disappointed in not finding such pictures for sale, and those that were to be had were not acceptable in the American market. He let drop a hint that he was near the end of his rope and had not money enough to take him home.

He was looking at Miss Trevor when he said this and saw by her expression that he had touched a sympathetic chord. So he followed it up with a show of resolution to conquer adversity which excited admiration. Sympathy and admiration are two effective weapons with which to attack a woman's heart, as Markham very well knew, and by the time the first interview ended he congratulated himself that he had made a beginning.

The next morning Markham passed through the gallery again, and when he stopped to have a look at Miss Trevor's work she received him with a smile. Again he gave her some points as to her copy and let drop the information that he had had a very poor breakfast. There was no untruth in this, for no one on the European continent takes anything but rolls and coffee at breakfast, and it would be impossible for him to call any coffee to be procured there good. Indeed, it is all bad. But the girl conceived the idea that Markham was hungry on account of his poverty, and this excited pity. Markham added to the fact of the poor breakfast that even a beggar would refuse to eat sawdust he would not flinch.

His confidence drew forth confidence from Miss Trevor, and she, too, at times confessed to hunger. This very nearly spoiled Markham's game, for it was all he could do to keep from inviting her to dine at the best hotel in Florence. He restrained himself for the time being, but the next day joined her, radiant. Claiming to have made a commission of 100 francs ($20) on the sale of a picture to an Englishman, with true bohemian weakness he filled Miss Trevor with viands so expensive that they used up all his pretended commission. For this he received a lecture from her on his shortsightedness and his generosity; but, since that generosity was expended on her, it only bound her closer to him.

Markham began his lovemaking by a fit of despondency. When asked the cause he intimated that he had met with a change of heart. He no longer looked upon his poverty with unconcern. It was not long before Miss Trevor wrung from him the cause of this change. He was in love, and in love with her.

This set her to thinking. She had done very wrong to permit him to become so chummy with her. Poverty added to poverty makes misery. A marriage between them would be suicidal. Markham lugubriously admitted the fact. He told her that he loved her and was only prevented from asking her to be his wife by the misery that such a union would bring upon her.

Markham noticed that there was no statement from Miss Trevor on this matter to match his own. She did not say, "Would that I had a fortune—how happy we could be together!" He wondered, if she had a fortune, whether she would throw herself away on a poverty stricken man with bohemian instincts. He feared not. He had given her to suppose that he was only prevented from being a spendthrift by not having any money to spend. Would her love for him should she become wealthy triumph over common sense?

While Markham appreciated common sense, he set more store upon Miss Trevor's love for him. He wished that she might suddenly get a windfall—a few hundred thousand dollars—that he might learn whether she loved him well enough to permit him to make ducks and drakes with it. This set him to thinking how he could give her the fortune without her knowing that it came from him.

One day Markham went to Miss Trevor very much agitated. He said that he had discovered an original Murillo. It had been taken from a part of a house that had been bricked up for several hundred years and was now being torn down. The surface was covered with dirt, and if there were a name in the corner it did not appear. When Miss Trevor asked him how he knew the picture was a Murillo he said that he relied entirely on his knowledge of the great artist's other works, this painting bearing the same individual characteristics.

Markham told her that what troubled him was that the work could be bought for a song and he hadn't enough money to buy a cigar, which in Italy may be had for a fraction of a cent. He begged Miss Trevor to try to raise 30 francs, the price asked by the finder of the picture. She happened to have the money, having just been paid 50 francs for copying a painting, and offered to lend it to her lover. But Markham would not listen to such a proposal. If she took a risk on his opinion she should reap the benefit in case he was right. She gave him the money to invest for her, and he brought the picture to her studio.

All depended on whether when the accumulated dirt was removed from the corner the magic name would appear which, like a Midas touch, would turn the picture into gold. Markham had brought with him cleaning materials and, setting the picture on an easel, began to rub. The first letter that appeared was an "l," then an "i," then another "i" and an "o." Then, working the other way, he exposed the word "Murillo."

Miss Trevor was too much excited to take an unbiased look at the picture, and if she had done so it would have availed nothing, for it was all except the name, covered with dust. Markham took it away, promising to let her see it when it had been cleaned, but before the dirt had been taken off he reported to her that the painting had been snapped up by an American pork packer for 400,000 lire.

So it was that the impoverished American copyist was suddenly enriched by $80,000, an amount which invested at 5 per cent would yield $4,000 a year. To one who could not always afford an Italian breakfast of coffee and rolls this was wealth indeed. Markham expected at least hoped—that the possessor would throw her arms around his neck and say, "Now we can be happy together." Instead she asked:

"When shall I get the money?"

"I am to go to the bank tomorrow, where the purchaser will draw on Chicago. The draft will be cashed by the bank, and I will receive a certificate of deposit in your name."

Markham wondered if she would offer to divide. She said no more. He was curious to know if anything more to his satisfaction would be said on payment of the money.

The next day he brought her a certificate of deposit for 400,000 lire. She looked at it, feasted her eyes on it, and a pleasant smile came over her lips.

"Don't you think," she said, "that ought to have you [illegible] finding the picture—and—doing it all?

"Not a cent. You risked your money and are entitled to the profit."

"I suppose now"— she began and paused.

"Now what?"

"If you feel the same"—

"I do."

"There's no objection to"—

Markham was about to embrace her when she motioned him to desist.

"I'm afraid you'll spend the money and we'll be in poverty again. You must expect to leave it in my keeping."

"I promise."

"Your promise isn't enough. You must sign a paper waiving all a husband's rights to his wife's money."

This was a backset to Markham's happiness, but he consented. She produced a contract which she had had prepared by her attorney. He signed it, and they were married.

Markham had hired the picture painted for 30 francs, had put the artist's name on it himself and smeared it with dirt. He was the wealthy packer who had bought it.

When Mrs. Markham discovered that she had married a multimillionaire she felt a bit troubled about having required her fiance to resign all rights to her fortune, but not for long.

"I don't think you treated me fairly, dear," she said to him.

"In what respect?"

"Why, if I had known how rich you are I would have required a settlement."

DEPORTATION OF BELGIAN MEN LEAVES WOMEN AND CHILDREN MORE HELPLESS THAN EVER

Neutral protests do not prevent the Germans from continuing the deportation and enslavement of the able-bodied men who were left in unhappy Belgium—and we are powerless to stop it until we have won the war.

Meanwhile the Neutral Commission for Relief in Belgium, administered without pay by great-hearted Americans, is saving the women and children from starvation. Here we CAN help promptly and effectively, by giving generously to the Belgian Relief Fund.

More contributions than ever are needed, because the higher prices of foodstuffs, particularly wheat, have seriously increased the cost of feeding these millions of dependent Belgians. How much can you spare the victims of one of the blackest, most cold-blooded crimes?

Practical information for those who are Interested in the Idea and would Like to see the System Introduced in Schools of Peterboro. Mr. G. N. Gordon is one member of the School Board who would like to see the Penny Bank adopted in this City. Teaching Thrift in the Public School

On at least two occasions since the beginning of the year, Mr. G. N. Gordon has drawn the attention of the Board of Education to the advisability of introducing Penny Banks into the public schools of the city. At the last regular meeting of the board it was decided to have Mr. M. A. MacKenzie, manager of the Penny Bank of the Toronto public schools, visit Peterborough and address a meeting of the teachers, citizens and all who are interested in the movement.

A communication issued by the Ontario Department of Education contains the following extracts:

The Minister of Education is impressed with the importance of the encouragement of thrift amongst the school children and has had under consideration the practical assistance given in this direction by The Penny Bank of Toronto.

ECONOMY IS A HABIT.

To teach a child how to economize slender resources, how to resist temptation to needless expense, and how to make reasonable provision for the future, is an important part of its education. Such knowledge cannot be acquired too early in life, and much may be done in a school to render its acquisition easy to children and to show them the advantages of economy and foresight. Economy is, however, a habit, and is to be acquired by practising it, rather than by listening to demonstrations of its importance. The child who is helped to deny himself some trifling personal gratification, who is encouraged to save by degrees a few dollars, and who finds this sum available for his own needs, or perhaps for helping his parents at a time of family misfortune, has received a practical lesson in the advantages of economy and foresight which may make a lasting impression upon him. The value of such a lesson will not be confined to its influence on the scholar's own character and welfare: It will exercise a reflex influence on the members of the household to which he belongs, providing them with a practical lesson of lasting value. It will tend to encourage the parents to start Savings Bank accounts themselves or to assist their children's.

MINISTER RECOMMENDS SCHEME

The Minister feels no hesitation in making this recommendation to School Boards and Principals, because he is certain that the more general adoption of such a plan will increase the usefulness of the school as an instrument for the formation of character, and because he has every reason to believe that the keen interest which has been shown in the past by all concerned will continue and spread in the future.

THE WORKING OF THE SYSTEM.

1. What is done in the Class Room:

On Monday morning in each class, during a period when the children are at work at their desks, those who wish to make deposits are called up in the order of their names in the cash book. One at a time, each child presents his cash book. After the child has seen the teacher enter the amount of his deposit opposite his name in the cash book as well as in the pass book and date and initial the latter, he passes on to his desk and to his work.

When the last child has sat down again, the teacher counts the cash and puts it in her class money bag, entering the amount upon the tag and sending bag and cash book to the principal's office.

NEW DEPOSITS.

When a child makes his first deposit, the teacher sends to the principal for an index card and a pass book bearing the same number. It is essential that the index card which identifies the child should be numbered to agree with his own pass book.

NOTICE OF WITHDRAWAL.

Notice must be given by any depositor wishing to withdraw more than one dollar. The proper form will be supplies and initialled by the teacher.

LOST PASS BOOKS.

Lost pass books must be reported at once to the teacher who will fill out the proper form and give the counterfoil to the child.

Index cards for new accounts, withdrawal notices and lost pass book forms should all go with the cash book and money bag to the principal's office.

INTEREST.

The children should be told that interest will be added only to those accounts which show any balance on the 30th of June. Sometimes children lose interest which might have been secured by leaving five cents to keep the account open.

On the last banking day of each month every child should produce his pass book so that the teacher may enter the balance in the cash book under the heading "Balance as it appears in pass book." Teachers should also make and enter in the cash book the cross additions of the individual deposits shown therein and see that the total amount for the month agrees with the sum of the weekly totals in order to discover errors which might otherwise get into the ledger.

2. What is done in the Principal's Office:

Before the first banking Monday of a school term the principal may select two boys or two girls who volunteer to act, and who in his judgment can afford to give the time each Monday for the sake of acquiring skill in the handling of cash and obtaining a little practice in business methods. These two pupils under the principal's supervision, can do the following work:

After all the returns from the various class rooms have reached the principal's office, count the cash in each bag and verify the total as entered upon the tag and in the corresponding cash book—any error being reported to the teacher concerned before the classes have dispersed. Prepare the principal's summary in duplicate. Place the index cards, the withdrawal notices, the lost pass book forms, and the transfer forms in an envelope with one copy of the principal's summary. This package goes with the money to the bank.

TRANSFERS.

A child who has come from another school in the same town and who had a banking account in that other school should make application to his new principal for a transfer form and should give up his old pass book. The principal will make out a new index card, give the child the corresponding new pass book into which he has transferred the old balance and attach both the old pass book and the new index card to the transfer form.

OLD PASS BOOKS AND INDEX CARDS

When these are returned by the bank it means that the child has drawn out all his money and that the account is closed. The old pass books should be kept in numerical order and the old index cards in alphabetical order for use in the event of the child wishing to re-open his account. They may be destroyed one year after the child has left school.

On the last banking day of each month the cash books, instead of being returned to the teachers, are sent to the bank in order that the total monthly deposits of each child may be posted to his account in the Ledger, and that account compared with the pass book balance as is shown in the cash book.

TO EVERY SCHOOL BOY AND EVERY SCHOOL GIRL.

You know that your country—Canada—is at war, and that thousands of Canadians are fighting for you.

That is why you gave so generously to Red Cross and Patriotic Funds.

Don't you want to help more and more?

You can help—Every one of you can help—week after week.

How? By saving your money and putting it into the Penny Bank.

How will that help? Every dollar put into the Penny Bank is a loan to Canada, and goes at once to the government.

Does the coutry need money? Yes, the government is asking all Canadians to lend it money so that it can buy more war supplies.

What can the savings of school children do?

The Penny Bank now has $395,000 on deposit in Ottawa. One senior room of 45 pupils in a poor district in Toronto now has over $650 on deposit.

Would it not be a fine thing for Canadian school children to lend a million dollars to help Canada win the war?

You can easily do it if you will all try.

You boys are too young to fight.

All of you, girls and boys, are too old to waste money.

Every one of you should have an account in the Penny Bank and deposit every cent that you can spare. You can get it again, whenever you want it, but do not draw it out until you need it more than your country does.

The Penny Bank exists by an act of the Dominion Parliament to help you to save. The Governor General of Canada is its patron. The Lieut.-Governor of Ontario is its Honorary President. Nobody can make a profit out of the Penny Bank. Nobody can own a share in the Penny Bank. No director of the Penny Bank can ever get a fee from it.

Serve by Saving.

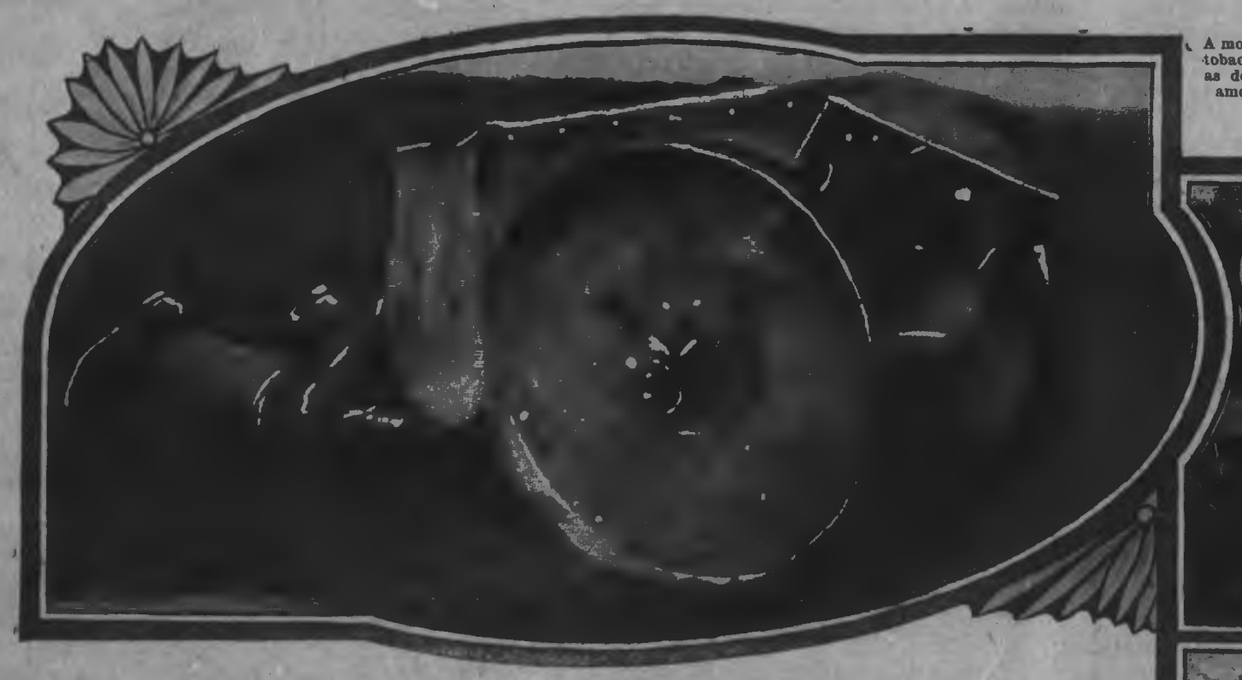
Behold the "War Bug," a Near Relation to the Famous Tank

The "Twelve Apostles," the famous battery on the walls of La Cabana, which, with Morro Castle, guards the entrance to Havana Harbor on the east. The guns, although long since out of date, were for many years of the Spanish occupation a formidable coast defence.

Columbus Cathedral, erected in 1724. In 1795 the bones of Columbus and his son, Diego, were removed thither from Haiti. In 1898 they were removed to the Cathedral at Seville, Spain.

The Harbor Entrance to Havana. Morro Castle, the harbor light, and the wireless tower are across the strait. In the foreground is a section of El Malecon, the beautiful drive running along the sea front. In Havana Harbor on Feb. 15, 1898, the U. S. Battleship Maine was blown up, with a loss of 266 officers and men.



French soldier, in an armored, man-power "Tank" advancing to cut base wire entanglements, said to be one of the most dangerous assignments in the war. This is supposed to be the first picture of the new "war-bug" to reach this country. (Photo above.) A 12-inch disappearing gun being fired. This is the type of gun that will soon be obsolete in America's coast defences. Already the guns of New York Harbor are outranged by those on ships of Britain's Queen Elizabeth class. (Picture below.)

Congress on Feb. 1 passed the $51,000,000 fortifications bill, the first item of the Administration's $300,000,000 defence budget to pass. Within eight days thereafter work was begun on a new fort at Rockaway Point to guard New York. It will cost $3,000,000, and will mount 16-inch rifles of the latest type. These will outrange the guns of any battleship now known to exist.

A modern Cuban tobacco farm. The finest grades of Cuban tobacco are grown under cheesecloth and the plants are as delicately nutured as orchids. Tobacco ranks second among Cuba's products, sugar leading, with a production in 1915 of 2,664,000 tons. (Photo below.)

An old fashioned farm in Cuba. This is the type of farming that obtained under Spanish rule, but is fast giving way to modern methods. The land in Cuba is wonderfully rich and agriculture is the principal industry. The island has an area of 40,000 square miles and a population of 2,500,000. Contrary to popular belief it is one of the healthiest places in this world to live in, its death rate being only 12.69.

El Prado, the most beautiful thoroughfare of Havana. It begins at the Castillo de la Punta at the harbor entrance and runs outside the old city wall to Colon Park, Havana's most important park. In the evening it is the resort of the wealth and fashion of the city.

Gibraltar, Malta and Port Said, Great Britain's Mediterranean Necklace

The Rock of Gibraltar is Britain's western command It was the northern of the Pillars of Hercules, marked with silver columns by the Phoenicians as the limit of navigation. The rock is 2¾ miles long, three-fourths of a mile wide and 1,439 feet high. It has been a fortress since the Arabs garrisoned it in 711 A.D.

Malta lies to the southeast coast of Sicily, and is Britain's naval and coaling station in the Mediterranean. It has a large and well protected harbor, able to accommodate the largest vessels of the navy and the mercantile marine. It is surrounded by powerful forts. The island fell into British hands after the Peace of Paris in 1814. Its present Governor is Field Marshal Lord Methuen, who is appointed by the Imperial Government, though the colony elects its own Legislature. The population of Malta and the two adjacent islands is about a quarter of a million, one in every ten being either a British soldier or marine.

The great event in the lives of the natives of Malta is the arrival and departure of the Indian and Australasian steamers. The passengers are given an opportunity to walk dry land again for a few hours, and they create an immense trade by buying native curios and souvenirs. The photograph shows the citadel from an anchored merchantman.

Port Said is at the western end of the Suez Canal, and a busy city as cities go in that region. It is a wildly exotic city, and harbors numerous races. The picture is of the Oriental section, and said to be "the most cosmopolitan highway in the world's wickedest city. The other view depicts the harbor, and the entrance to the canal. In the distance is the Mediterranean Sea.

Mr. George Baldwin, Superintendent of the Vacant Lots Cultivation Associates, is himself an enthusiastic gardener. He has won a silver cup, valued at $100, for three years in succession, forming the highest aggregate of prizes for flowers, fruit and vegetables grown in Toronto yards. He also won the Toronto Horticultural Society's medal. Picture No. 1 shows cucumbers 26 inches long growing in a greenhouse 14 feet by 9 feet, in the rear of 738 Dovercourt Rd. No less than 68 cucumbers were taken off 4 vines. No. 2 shows Mr. Baldwin with some of his trophies. Mr. Baldwin keeps the snow piled up on perennial borders. He says that it is as beneficial as a fertilizer. In Early Spring, is the title of No. 4, which shows Mr. Baldwin's garden. No. 5 gives an idea of the size of some of the potatoes grown on Toronto Vacant Lots. Seventeen potatoes of Rochester house variety filled the basket. No. 6 shows how Mr. Baldwin trims fruit trees in a small garden, so as to avoid causing an excess of shade. Two bushels of apples in "Warner King" variety were yielded by this tree in 1916.

BIG RECRUITING RALLY AT ARMOURIES

Fresh Progress Is Made By French Troops

French Have Made Further Progress In Champagne Fight

Hold All the Ground Won in Recent Drive and Gain More---Prisoners Taken at Other Points on the Line--German Sailors Sentenced to Year in Federal Prison For Sinking Their Vessel in Charleston Harbour---Canadians at Front Reviewed Before Premier.

A SUMMARY OF TO-DAY'S WAR CABLES

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

PARIS, March 10.—"Fresh progress," has been made by the French troops who on Thursday reconquered territory of over a mile in width in the Champagne from the Germans. The official War Office statement today said:

"The Germans were repulsed during the night after violent fighting and alternate advance and retirement, in the Champagne on the new French front between Butte de Mesnil and Maisons de Champagne.

"The French maintained all ground gained previously and made fresh progress.

"French raids penetrated to the third line of a German trench east of Armancourt. We brought back prisoners in the region of Crouy and northeast of Soissons."

NEW YORK, March 10.—The White Star liner Adriatic, believed to be bringing D. Henry Van Dyke and other Americans from Europe, is expected at quarantine early this afternoon. The Adriatic earlier in the week was rumoured to be in trouble at sea.

TORONTO, March 10.—A special cable from Stewart Lyon, representative of the Canadian Press in France, to-day says:

The event of the week at Canadian headquarters in the field was the visit of Sir Robert Borden and the Hon. Robt. Rogers, and J. D. Hazen.

In honour of Sir Robert Borden, whose last visit to the front took place in 1916, when Canada's troops held the Ypres salient under conditions that made this exploit history and brought them much praise, a review took place this (Friday) morning at headquarters.

The famous First Brigade of the original division marched past the Premier and Ministers. Relatively few men in the line were present at Ypres, but reinforcements bear the glorious tradition which they will maintain when the occasion serves.

Since the Somme battle, the Canadians have been treated with the greatest respect by the enemy and their losses have been relatively light. The men reviewed were splendidly fit and the entire corps is in a similar condition and look forward confidently to the end of the period of inactivity.

FLORENCE, S.C., March 10.—Eight under-officers of the German freighter Liebenfels were to-day sentenced to one year in the Federal Prison at Atlanta and $500 fine each on a charge of having sunk their vessel in the Charleston Harbour when diplomatic relations were broken with Germany. Notice of appeal was given immediately. They are out on bail of $6,000 each.

COPENHAGEN, March 10.—Former German Ambassador Count von Bernstorff arrived on board the Frederik VIII. at Christiana at 1:30 this morning, according to official word received here to-day.

LONDON, March 10. — The trial of the quartette charged with the poison plot against Premier Lloyd George and Minister Arthur Henderson, was expected to be concluded late this afternoon. The defense has offered a general denial plea of a "frame-up by the police." They say that police agents enticed them into furnishing the poison on the plea that it was wanted for killing off dogs.

FUNERAL TO BE HELD ON TUESDAY

Death of Mr. W. H. Staples Removes a Prominent Figure in The Community

The funeral of the late W. H. Staples will be held on Tuesday at 1 p. m. from his late residence on the 10th concession of Cavan, near the C.P.R. station, to the Little Lake cemetery.

William Henry Staples was the second son of the late Samuel Staples, and a pioneer resident of Cavan township. During his life he identified himself with many projects undertaken for the general welfare of the community in which he was recognized as a natural leader. In agricultural affairs he was especially prominent, and as a farmer was conspicuous in a township of efficient farmers. He had served the community as a member of the Cavan Council and for thirty years was superintendent of the Sunday school of the Cavanville Methodist church.

Mr. Staples was married to Miss Howden, daughter of the late Robert Howden and is survived by his wife, his son Melville Staples, who was a prisoner in Germany during the early months of the war, and two daughters, Muriel of Winnipeg and Elsie who is a student at the Lindsay Collegiate Institute; also by two brothers, Joseph of Cavan and Fred in Western Canada and two sisters, Mrs. Samuel Purser of Toronto and Mrs. M. Sutton, of Cavan.

Shamrock Day Next Saturday

Shamrocks to Be Sold—Proceeds as Usual For the Orphans

Nothing has happened since the last appeal was made to the generosity of the public of Peterborough a year ago on behalf of the orphans of St. Vincent's Orphanage to lessen the responsibility for the care of these poor children deprived of their parents. The fact is the need is greater.

The careful training and bringing up of every child is one of the great works that has to be done by those at home to make good living men and women to take the places of the fallen. The organization of St. Vincent's Orphanage is looking after the welfare of a great number of orphan children, and each year are most kindly helped by the citizens of Peterborough through the giving on Shamrock Day when mostly everyone buys a shamrock, the proceeds of which go to the fund for the care of the orphan children.

The committee in charge only ask that the young ladies selling the shamrocks are as courteously and generously received as on the Shamrock Days gone by.

COUNCIL FAILED TO RESPOND TO APPEAL FROM COL. ACKERMAN

He Asked For $1,400 Grant For Recruiting Expenses Because Government Had Cut Off the Allowance It Has Promised

VOTE RESULTED IN TIE

Owing to the action of the City Council in refusing to make a grant to the 247th Battalion, following upon the government failure to assume some of this expense, Lt.-Col. Ackerman has sent a wire to the Assistant Adjutant General notifying him that unless some assurance of financial support are forthcoming, he will be compelled to withdraw his recruiting staffs from the centres throughout the district.

In a frank statement that the Government had withdrawn the financial support it had promised to battalions now recruiting, Col. Ackerman asked the Council for a grant of $1,400 last night, adding that he hoped to receive $700 from the County Council. This would enable the work to be carried on until the end of April when the Militia Act would come into force or some other measure become effective. Col. Ackerman was accompanied by Major O'Flynn, who supported his appeal.

The Government had apportioned $5,000 to each battalion in process of recruiting. The money was to be paid in instalments of $1,000. On November 18th the 247th received its first $1,000 and three weeks ago had spent all but $200. Col. Ackerman said he had applied for a second installment, but was informed that under no circumstances would it be forwarded until all the first $1,000 had been spent. Col. Ackerman arranged with the Bank of Commerce for an overdraft of $300 or $400 to provide for expenses until the second installment was forwarded from Ottawa. Within the past few days he had learned through Major Campbell that the battalions now recruiting would receive no more financial assistance from the government, and that the responsibility of raising the money required was thrown upon the officers. This assurance was of a positive nature and the official notification was expected to follow.

Recruiting Expenses.

Most of the money had been expended in livery bills. There were from 9 to 12 officers and men in the country every day. There was also the railway fare to the city of prospective recruits coming in for medical examination and their board while here.

To Mayor Duffus, Col. Ackerman said he could ascribe no reason for the withdrawal of the financial assistance for recruiting.

It was costing the government from $150 to $175 for each recruit enrolled in comparison with $25 to $30 a year ago.

Major O'Flynn.

Belleville had given $2,580 to the 254th Battalion in addition to the government allowance. Major O'Flynn stated. The 247th had recruited between 150 to 175 men under Col. Ackerman's command at an expenditure

To the Citizens of Peterborough

At the meeting at the Armouries last week to discuss the recruiting situation in Peterborough with Major Campbell, the recruiting officer for this military district, a resolution was passed asking the executive of the Speakers' Patriotic League to be a committee to call a meeting of the manufacturers, store keepers, and business men generally for the purpose of settling ways and means for more efficient co-operation between the business men of the city and the officers of the 247th Battalion.

It has been decided to call this meeting for Monday, March the 12th at 8 p.m. in the Recreation Room at the Armouries and all manufacturers, storekeepers, business men generally, and all others interested in the share Peterborough should take in the defence of the Empire are urged to attend.

This is a matter of vital importance to the city. The military authorities have stated most emphatically that unless the people of Peterborough show more real interest in the local battalion it will be moved from the city. We have been given a few weeks to make good. It is up to us to do it.

The time has come for all patriotic people in the city to join hands in the common cause of upholding the honour of Peterborough and in the infinitely greater common cause of upholding the honour of the Empire. There are still fourteen hundred eligible young men in the city and the 247th Battalion needs nine hundred more to bring it to strength. Let us not wait for the Government to disgrace these young men of our city by forcing them into the ranks. Let us rather persuade them to join now as free men ready without coercion to do their bit and prepared without the ignominy of conscription to fight for King and Country.

Forestry Battalion.

Lieut. R. R. Sparks, of Ottawa, who has recently been authorized to raise a draft for Forestry reinforcements in Military District No. 3 will be in Peterborough on Monday in the interests of the unit being recruited under his command.

Owing to the decision of Premier Lloyd George to prohibit the importation of timber into Great Britain in an effort to solve the tonnage problem, an appeal has come to us for 5,000 Canadian bushmen to cut timber in the forests of England, Scotland and France. Many Canadians who have been rejected for combatant branches of the service are now given an opportunity to "do their bit" for the Empire for joining the Forestry Drafts. The physical requirements are much less rigid and the age limit is increased to 48 years.

Adjutant, 247th O. S. Battalion,
C. E. F.

Through the kindness of Mr. Thomas Barrie, who has most generously offered the use of two rooms in the Barrie building, the Otonabee Chapter, I.O.D.E. has been enabled to arrange most attractive and comfortable quarters for the Returned Soldiers' Club. The Regent and members wish to take this opportunity of expressing their warmest thanks to Mr. Barrie for his generosity and also to those who have so kindly sent gifts to assist in furnishing the rooms.

Mrs. W. J. Copp, 210 Antrim street, has received the following letter from her son, Signaller Howard Copp of the Headquarters Staff, 5th Brigade, C.F.A., France:

France, Feb. 20, 1917.

Dear Mother, Father, Harold and Willie — I received the letter from home that was written on Jan. 11th, the day before yesterday, and the one that was written on the 29th of January, yesterday. I was glad to know you are all well, and I hope by this time that Willie is all better again.

Well, mother, we are in action again. We came in four days ago.

TOTAL TAX RATE 28 MILLS THE SAME AS LAST YEAR'S

PTE. T. BAGNALL, of Peterborough, who went overseas with the 93rd Battalion and is now with the 6th Reserve Battalion at East Sandling Camp.

City General Rate Held at 26.30 Mills With War Tax and Garbage Collection Completing the 28 —Statement of Expenditures.

SURPLUS A PRESENT HELP

THE 1917 TAX RATE.

City General Rate	26.30 mills
War Tax	1.00 mills
Garbage Tax	.70 mills
	28.00 mills

This is the same rate as last year.

After weeks of groping around for the 1917 tax rate the Council in Committee of the Whole, last night, stumbled upon it and, bringing it into the light, discovered it unchanged for the new year.

In other words, the appropriations were compiled and totalled, the estimated revenue subtracted and net result is a general tax rate of 26.30 mills which with the war tax and garbage tax, make an even total of 28 mills—the same as last year.

The total estimated expenditure is $152,700.

The estimated revenue is $30,382.36.

This left $122,317.64 to be covered by the general rate.

But in the discussion last night, in which City Treasurer Adams assisted the Council, it was pointed out that a rate of 26.30 mills would produce $118,187.44. This figure appeared attractive for two reasons: it was a round number, easy to handle, and it was also last year's general rate. The rate of 10.86 mill would have produced $125,202.93. Other facile numbers were considered, but Mayor Duffus moved, seconded by Ald. Saunders that the city general rate be 26.30 this year. — Carried.

More Paring Needed.

Since 26.30 mills will produce $118,187.44, and the estimated expenditure for the year is at present $122,317.64, thre is $4,130.20 to be pared off somewhere. It was reduced by $1,200 last night, when the Mayor suggested that the sum of $1,200, forfeited by the Rapid Tool Co. be put in the city's current account. This leaves $2,930.20 to be lopped off and Mayor Duffus said he had no fears for this year's results. Ample allowances had been made in various departments, and there should be a slight surplus at the end.

The Finance Committee was instructed to adjust the estimates to the appropriation.

The Expenditure.

The expenditures for 1917 are estimated as follows:

Assessment and taxes	$3800.00
Administration of Justice	7500.00
Charity	6,600.00
Dog tax	25.00
Elections and by-laws	600.00
Fire Department	19,000.00
Health Department	2800.00
Heating	500.00
Interest	1000.00
Law and legislation	2500.00
Light	15,000.00
Loss on taxes	3500.00
Manufacturers' Committee	1500.00
Miscellaneous	1500.00
Market	100.00

ATTENTION CENTRED IN GREAT BRITAIN ON IRISH QUESTION

Never Since the Early Days of the War Has An Internal Political Problem So Greatly Puzzled the Thinking Men of the United Kingdom

SITUATION IS GRAVE

By T. P. O'Connor

LONDON, March 10.—The greater part of public attention has centred during the past few days on the Irish question. Never since the early days of the war has an internal political question so greatly puzzled the thinking men of the United Kingdom.

The uncertainty of the decision of the Government in regard to the Irish has kept the greater part of the English press dumb and this uncertainty has been prolonged by the illness of Premier Lloyd George, who, standing amid the cold blasts, alternating from sea and mountain, beside the grave of his old uncle, caught a bad chill and was confined to his bed for a couple of days.

Further uncertainty was caused by the visit of the Premier to France in preparation of the great new offensive on the Western front in the Spring and other overwhelming cares of government, which prevented Lloyd George from the serious tackling of the question.

Up to the last moment, the realization of the gravity of the situation and the uncertainty of its issue has compelled that almost unbroken reticence upon the part of the newspapers, which was so remarkable a fact in this phase of the Irish struggle for freedom.

Prolonged Silence.

However, a few days before the advent of the parliament debate on the question, liberal papers began to break their prolonged silence and with one accord pressed the Government for an immediate settlement of the problem.

The opinion of the House of Commons also steadily grew in favour of a settlement once and for all on this great question and even Unionist circles and Chief Secretary Duke was known to be strongly of the same opinion.

At a meeting of Mr. Asquith and his colleagues, the same view was expressed, Asquith holding strongly that without an immediate solution, things were bound to go from bad to worse, in Ireland's affairs as placed in relation to the welfare of the United Kingdom.

Irish members of the House of Commons, returning from Ireland, brought back the same tale of a country seething with discontent and for the moment chiefly concerned in hitting back at the Government in return for the horrors attending the executions of several of the leaders of the masses.

The situation has been further com-

POTATOES A-PLENTY.

...An official statement from Ottawa ...erts that there is no scarcity of po...toes in Canada—that there is "a ...bstantial surplus of potatoes over ...d above food and seed requirement, ... about two million bushels." The ...ly shortage is in Ontario. This in...rmation is very cheering on paper, ...t what about the extravagant prices ... $5 per bag, or 3.25 per bushel, or 80 ...ts per peck? If the government can ...sure us that we have plenty of ...toes, it might go a little further ...d explain why, with this asserted ...ndance, the prices are so exces...e. An explanation of the cause of ...h prices wouldn't make it any ...er to pay them, but it would be ...me satisfaction to know that we ...re not being robbed by some remed...le combination of conditions other ...n combination of dealers, which is ...haps the why of high prices.

...SORBED THE ATMOSPHERE.

...General Maude, who is bent upon ...rging, and bound to bag, Bagdad, ...s an interest to Canadians. He was ... "admirable Crichton" of Rideau ...ll drawing rooms in the vice regal ...ga of Lord Minto at the close of the ...t century. That he is not a mere ...rpet knight, however, is shown by ... brilliant work in the Mesopota...an campaign ready to respond to ... Tennyson invitation—"Come into ... garden Maude"—he is fighting in ... neighbourhood of the reported site ... the Garden of Eden, and may any ... be in possession of it. It is pos...le that General Maude owes some ...rt of his dash and success to the ...t that during his four or five years ...this country he absorbed the Can...an atmosphere—the spirit and re...sefulness of the Canadian soldiers ... France, equal in their way to ... achievement General Maude may ...ve accomplished in his larger way. ...re is little risk in saying that ... governor-general or member of ... entourage, has spent five ... in Canada without returning ... a better, and larger-visioned ...tesman or man of affairs.

AUDITORY "PEEPING TOMS" PENALIZED.

...The Ontario Legislature is busy ...on legislation to punish listeners ...n the telephone. This may seem a ...all matter to engage mighty intel...ts, especially as most of the listen...g done in rural districts concerns ...lf with matters of petty gossip; ...d it is doubtful if rural telephones ...ers would welcome the outlawry of ...e of the features that relieve the ...notony and isolation of country life. ...e chief evils that come from tele...one listening would imply revela...n of business secrets, whose de...gement would imperil important ...ancial or business interests. This ...gests that it would be a measure ...prudence not to run such risks. But ... value of the telephone largely lies ... its convenience of communication ... saving of time. There is another ... a more radical and effective rem...y than little law restrictions or ...alties.

...We need more training in our ...mes and schools on the principles ... honour. No honourable man will ...d a letter not intended for his ...ing, nor listen, willingly, or make ...e of, telephone conversation intend...to be confidential. If we had a peo...with a high standard of honour, ...re would be no need for blue laws ...personaline curiosity. All business ...uld be honest and honourable; so ...uld all business service. Employes ...business offices, banks and similar ...titutions, should be absolutely ...tworthy. They are as distinctly ...lty of dishonesty—dishonourable ...ach of confidence in gossiping of ...siness matters or relating business ...crets outside as they would be in ...bbing the till.

...It would be an ideal condition of ...ety, if everybody were honest and ...nourable—if the saying, "his word ... as good as his hand" applied to ...erybody. A man or woman that can ...be trusted is of gold; a man or wo...man whose word can be taken, "on ...sight," so to speak, is a treasure.

...What is the reason that we find so ...much laxness of morals in the matter ...of simple honesty and truthfulness? ...We don't set up high enough stand...ards in our home training, our school ...training, our church training or our ...business training. A business man who ...practices questionable methods cannot ...complain if his employees mould their ...morals upon his model. When in poli...tics, a larger part of the national busi...ness, we retain in office ministers of ...the crown, whose oats a judge on the ...bench cannot believe; when we tole...rate in office a minister of the crown, ...who will publicly equivocate in offi...cial statements—in other words be ...guilty of lying—we need not be sur...prised that a government will such ...membership finds it necessary to make ...a criminal of a listener to a telephone ...conversation.

WORTHY OF THEIR HIRE.

...Ottawa is truly conservative — it ...stands still. The salary of Ottawa's ...Assessment Commissioner has stood ...for twenty years at $2,000, though ...his work and responsibility have as ...greatly increased as the cost of liv...ing. Economy in municipal expendi...ture is a good thing, but it should ...not be exercised at the expense of ...injustice. The rate of wages in ...Canada was never before higher ...than it is to-day, nor the purchasing ...powe of an income so limited as it ...is to-day; and it seems an injustice ...to a civic servant to require him ...not only to give greater service as a ...city grows, at a relatively lower ...rate of remuneration.

...The true economy in city or other ...management consists in the effective ...expenditure of money in satisfactory ...service, service that cannot be ob...tained, or rather, retained, by ina...dequate remuneration.

...There is a proposal to re-establish ...an Ontario teacher's pension sys...tem. This is made necessary and ...justifiable by the inadequate salaries ...generally paid good teachers. The ...worst form of false economy is cheap ...teachers for schools, which are like...ly to be cheap in a double sense. ...Insufficient salaries won't attract ...the best teachers, nor, which is the ...important point, induce them to ...make teaching a profession—a seri...ous undertaking, not a financial ...make-shift, to gain money to prepare ...for some—not higher—but better ...paid profession. We don't put ap...prentices at apprentices' wages to ...the management of factories, but, ...in a sense, we put apprentice teach...ers — temporary teachers — at ap...prentice salaries, in charge of the ...factories for making educated men ...and women. When our schools cost ...so much; when we have everything ...of the best in buildings and equip...ment, we do not economize, but ...waste money in giving salaries that ...cannot attract the best teachers; ...salaries adequate to induce the ...adoption of teaching as a profession ...—with the heart of the teacher in ...his work. It is not hinted that be...cause teachers' salaries are, espec...ially in country places, inadequate ...that teachers are inferior. They are ...not, and in that lies the injustice, ...with a natural result that, being ...human, they have not their hearts ...in the work, and may be tempted to ...earn only the pay they receive, with ...retirement at a time when they have ...become effective, to be followed by ...others to go through the same ap...prenticeship. It is obvious that if ...teachers are not financially encour...aged to make teaching a profession ...we cannot get the best educational ...results. Ratepayers may rebel ...against the idea of decent living sal...aries for teachers. They should re...flect that the taxes they pay are ...largely wasted, unless the best edu...cational results are achieved. If ...they set a little additional ...taxation above the proper edu...cation and equipment for life's work ...of their children, then the objection ...to adequate expenditure will be jus...tified.

Special to The Examiner:

TORONTO, March 9. — Every government seems to have some particular loves and one of the dearest affections of the Ontario Government seems to be the patronage system. Year after year the Opposition has been caling for the abolition of this system, but the government persistently rejects the proposal. Wm. Proudfoot, K.C., M.P.P., for Centre Huron, and Samuel Carter, M.P.P., for South Wellington, were the members this year to introduce the resolution and to lead the debate against the patronage evil, but the government once more rejected their advice.

Two specific examples of the bad results of the patronage system as carried on by the Ontario Government, developed in the debates on this and allied subjects.

First, there was the case recalled by Mr. Carter where a prominent worker for the Conservative party in Guelph at the time of the general election in 1914, swore that a certain applicant for a vote was properly eligible for registration, whereas in reality he was not. The man who had taken the affidavit was arrested and admitted before the judge that he had been "reckless" in his affidavit. That very man not long after was appointed by the government to a position in the Civil Service and is now drawing a salary of $95 a week, which Mr. Carter says is an illuminating example of reward for party service.

Mr. Carter also told of some guards at the Guelph Prison Farm who tried illegally to vote in the election of 1914; when the matter came out they were dismissed by the government but were re-employed soon after.

Scott Davidson, M.P.P., for North Brant, told of a fire-ranger employed and paid by the Ontario Government who spent the whole month of June, when he should have been up North on his work, in electioneering for the Conservative party in Paris. The government in answer to questions, had denied this, but Mr. Davidson from first-hand experience and from the mere use of his eyes, knew that this government employee had been absent from his work and had been electioneering in Paris during the period specified by him.

Women Preparing For New Responsibilities

The Vice-President of the National Council of Women, has issued the following notice to the presidents of the local councils in Ontario:

Dear Madam,—There seems to be a general feeling abroad among women that there is need for conference and mutual advice as to our new rights and duties. It seems right that the National Council of Women, through its local Councils and affiliated Societies, should endeavour to meet this need, and, therefore, at the request of Mrs. Torrington President of the National Council of Women, I am calling an informal conference on Tuesday next, March 13th, at 3 o'clock, at St. James' Cathedral Parish House, 65 Church street, Toronto, to which you and any of your officers or members of your affiliated Societies are cordially invited. I know the difficulties of travel and how busy everyone is but we don't want this invitation to be confined to Toronto women, and if you are not able to come or send representatives we should like to have a letter from you giving your ideas as to the best use to which women can put their votes and what our attitude should be with regard to existing political parties.

Please see that your Council is represented either by a member or by such a letter as I have asked for.

Yours sincerely
A. M. Plumptre.
Vice-President for Ontario.

TOWN PLANNING AS A FACTOR IN PROMOTING CIVIC FORESIGHT

And Helping Seize in Time Vanishing Advantages

That the possession of a good Town Planning Act is of little use to a province, if that act is merely permissive instead of mandatory, is shown by the experience of Manitoba. Some time ago the Provincial Legislature passed such an act, but as no provision was made of a mandatory nature, the people of the Province are declared to be unaware of the act and the authorities indifferent to it. This Act is on the lines of the draft Act submitted at the Town Planning Conference in Toronto in 1914. In its mandatory form it has been enacted in Nova Scotia as the most advanced legislation in town planning in any country. It has been under consideration by Quebec, Ontario, Saskatchewan, British Columbia and Prince Edward Island. New Brunswick and Alberta have good acts, but they are optional in form, and little advantage has been taken of them.

The act is one well worth studying, for it will no doubt figure largely in civic reforms in Canada. Briefly, it authorizes the procedure for making and carrying out schemes and bestows very extensive powers on cities, towns and municipalities by which they may enact sets of town planning by-laws, called a "partial scheme," which enable them to devise and carry out small or large projects of planning or replanning—powers almost unlimited, except by the supervisory control of the provincial authority. A town planning scheme, when once approved by the municipal commissioner, has the force of a special act.

The act frees the small as well as the large municipal units from the impotence in which scarcely any improvement can be made without a special act, and puts them in a position of independence. It imposes no authority, except as stated. Winnipeg now enjoys some of these powers, but not by any means all. It is the only city in the province, however, with charter rights comparable to the provisions of the act. A difficulty aways experienced in the past in acquiring property for public use has been the power that individual owners and speculators have had to block a scheme by rendering it too costly to be undertaken or themselves reaping all the financial advantage, the community itself being powerless to secure the necessary property at a reasonable price or to control adjoining rights or retain the benefits created by its own work of improvement. This situation is now completely altered, in that the price to be paid for land shall be its market value at the date of the application for authority to prepare the scheme. Any person who is injuriously affected by the execution of a scheme may be reimbursed, but one half of the increase in value, due to an improvement may be claimed by the municipal authority. Any land within 300 feet of the boundary line of any improvement—street park public building site— may be purchased in like manner and may be resold at an appreciated value, due to the improvement, restricted, and the proceeds used to defray the expense. In many cases where this method of "excess expropriation" has been employed a large part of the cost of public works has been met.

There is a provision for replanning a faulty sub-division by exchange of properties between the several owners or a reallocation of land to them, under proper safeguards against injustice. The lieutenant-governor-in-council may prescribe a set of general provisions for carrying out the general objects of town planning schemes or by-laws, especially in regard to such matters as the following, which are likewise the subject of the town planning by-laws which may be enacted by any local authority and included in its scheme—fixing building lines 60 feet from the centre of the street for main thoroughfares and 40 feet for others; reserving land unbuilt upon for new main thoroughfares; providing for variation in the width of streets, making short or local ones narrower than 66 feet, and important ones wider; limiting the number of houses per acre to secure proper sanitary conditions; prescribing zones or districts and determining for each the limit of height of buildings, the maximum area of lot to be covered, and the nature of the occupation; prohibiting noxious trades, unsanitary conditions or nuisances injurious to the amenity or natural beauty of an area.—Montreal Herald.

GERMAN MONEY IS POURING INTO THE COFFERS OF VILLA

Special to The Examiner.

HOPED TO INVOLVE DE FACTO GOVERNMENT INTO NEW COMPLICATIONS WITH THE U. S.

(By Webb Miller of the United Press)

LAREDO, Texas, March 9.—Germany is playing Villa against Carranza. Great sums of German money are pouring into the bandit leader's coffers, inciting him to activity against the United States, and against Carranza, while at the same time German agents work through officials of the Carranza Governments seeking to align that side against the United States.

BACK FROM MEXICO

Just back from a trip into the interior of Mexico, I can state these facts on the highest authority:

Agents of the German Government in Mexico approached Francisco Villa at his headquarters at Bustillo's ranch about February 12, with a proposition to renew his raids on the border in case of a declaration of war between the United States and Germany. Two German agents reached the bandit leader. The conference extended over two days.

TO HARASS TROOPS.

At first Villa demurred against any attack on the border in force under any circumstances. At length an agreement was reached that in case of war Villa would send small bands, as unattached bandits, to operate at widely separated points along the international line and to make sporadic forays to harass American troops.

WANTED MONEY FIRST.

Under the terms of agreement, the German agents promised to pay Villa 500,000 pesos ($250,000) in gold at once to seal the compact. He refused to enter into the plot until the first payment was handed over. They agreed to pay a large amount each month thereafter in case of war to enable Villa to pay his men, secure ammunition and build up his shattered forces for a campaign.

After orders from Secretary Zimmermann reached Mexico City for an attempt to arrange an alliance with Mexico and Japan, the Villa scheme was one of the first moves. One secret agent was sent north from the capital to San Luis Potosi, where he met another. From Parral, both travelled by horseback to Bustillo's ranch, about forty miles west of Chihuahua City. At this point Villa was making his headquarters at that time.

IN EVENT OF FAILURE.

The Villa plan was to be used chiefly in the event of failure to induce Carranza to enter an intrigue against the United States and as a possible means of bringing pressure to bear on Carranza. It was hoped to involve the de facto government and the United States in new, serious complications, making the retention of a large part of the army along the border necessary.

That friction between Carranza and the United States would tend to weaken the de facto power, was pointed out to Villa by the German agents.

ENGINEERED BY GERMANS

Already the German cabal in the Mexican capital had set active underground influences to work upon the first chief and his advisers to induce them to consent to an alliance. The famous note sent by Carranza to the neutral powers, asking them to unite in refusing to furnish supplies to belligerent countries was engineered by German propagandists. It was the original intention to lead the first chief to order the oil fields of Tampico to be closed to export. This was later modified to the form in which it was sent because most of the fields are owned by English companies and a large amount of the oil is used by the English fleets, and such action, therefore, would have brought complications between England and Mexico.

FROM GERMAN ANGLE.

Among officials in Mexico City stories are afloat that two Government officials in the first chief's immediate circle of influential men, were co-operating directly with German agents. One of the newspapers in the Capital is said to be under subsidy to the Germans to print news from the German angle. In other ways German money and influence are at work to sway the actions of the de facto Government. Such efforts are rendered comparatively easy by the cross currents of jealousy and ambition of the different military and political leaders.

Stringent military censorship at all the cable and telegraphic offices in Mexico prevents the sending of any despatches not approved by the Government.

Do You Know

Do you know that throughout all ages love has ever been, as now, and that in Babylon Ishtar was the Goddess of love?

That with the Babylonians the art of love and laughter was practiced as a philosophy and a religion?

That the religious belief of the Babylonians was much the same as ours today?

That a clear comparison would be to call Bel a denomination, similar to that of the Baptists of the present day. By this same comparison, the worshippers of Ishtar might be compared to the Methodists?

That the battles in the play between Ishtar and Bel is merely a religious war on the same plane as those of more modern times, such as have harassed, tortured and destroyed many millions of human beings?

That 145 ostrich plumes, each dyed by hand, in the variegated tints of the Orient, were worn in the Princess costume in the play "INTOLERANCE," or Love's Struggle throughout the Ages?

That ropes of exquisite imitation pearls, sapphires, rubies and emeralds were on the costume, and in order to get the proper effect from the bracelets, wristlets, anklets, necklaces and head pieces, they were plated with gold, in some places solid silver?

That there were over 5,000 of these jewels on this costume, the total cost of the costume being over $7,000?

That in the siege of Babylon by Cyrus enormous towers were built as high as the city walls, against which they were moved by elephants and men, and that from the tops of these towers the besiegers fought against the defenders of the city? Sheres of these towers are seen in action in the play "INTOLERANCE."

That the soldiers of those days made use of liquid fire, battering rams, bows and arrows and huge catapults or stone throwers?

TRY A LITTLE SALTS IF KIDNEYS AND BLADDER ARE TROUBLING YOU

SALTS FLUSHES KIDNEYS WITHOUT INJURY; ALSO NEUTRALIZES URIC ACID, ENDING IN BLADDER IRRITATION.

Kidney and Bladder weakness result from uric acid, says a noted authority. The kidneys filter this acid from the blood and pass it on to the bladder where it often remains to irritate and inflame, causing a burning, scalding sensation, or setting up an irritation at the neck of the bladder, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night. The sufferer is in constant dread, the water passes sometimes with a scalding sensation and is very profuse; again, there is difficulty in voiding it.

Bladder weakness, most folks call it because they can't control urination. While it is extremely annoying and sometimes very painful this is really one of the most simple ailments to overcome. Get about four ounces of Jad Salts from your pharmacist and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast; continue this for two or three days. This will neutralise the acids in the urine so it no longer is a source of irritation to the bladder and urinary organs, which then act normally again.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, harmless, and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is used by thousands of folks who are subject to urinary troubles caused by uric acid irritation. Jad Salts is splendid for the kidneys and causes no bad effects whatever.

MIRACLE OF SURGERY

Dead Hand of Teamster Made Alive by Skill

When a teamster, who had come into Montreal to work in a machine shop, stumbled against a steel-cutting, circular saw, that perfect piece of machinery obediently bit through every fraction of bone and flesh presented to its iron teeth, and the man's hand, cut through the back at the wrist, hung limp and helpless. The superintendent bound stout cord above the worker's wrist, made a rough tourniquet of a pen holder, and 'phoned up the general hospital. Within seven minutes, the ambulance pulled up at the factory doors, and five minutes later the teamster was in the big outpatient hall of the general, where some 400 men, women, and children, all poor people, patiently waited attention. He was summoned at once—for there was urgency in his case—into a bright room of wondrous order and cleanliness, where a white-robed surgeon examined the wound with eyes in which the teamster could divine nothing but quiet, critical observation.

What followed was in the nature of a jig-saw puzzle of flesh and sinews. A nurse assisting, the teamster's hand and half his arm were put into an artificial swoon, so to speak, all pain and feeling evicted like bad tenants. Followed a series of most delicate operations. One half of the severed tendons, elastic as rubber, had leaped up the teamster's arm; the other half had been drawn towards the finger tips. Like cables that have snapped in deep-sea water, these tendons had first to be located, then joined together and sutured. To pull these elastic fibres into position, sharp incisions were made in the arm and hand, so that the pincers could enter, grip them and stretch them out. It was a splendid feat of surgery, by which a man's right hand, dead and useless, was reimbued with life, restored to action, rescued from total inanition.

WASTE OF LOBSTERS

Pacific and Atlantic Fisheries Need More Careful Methods

The profitable utilization of the immense quantities of waste material which characterise practically every branch of the fisheries presents one of the chief problems in securing efficient conduct of the Canadian fishing industry. As a result of investigations on the Pacific coast, it has been estimated that the sheer waste of the fisheries of Alaska amounts to 70,000 tons per annum and of those of British Columbia to from 15,000 to 20,000 tons. The proportion of waste material in the lobster canning industry is extremely high. Mr. R. H. Williams of Halifax makes the startling assertion that of 32,000,000 pounds of lobsters required for an average Canadian season's pack of 160,000 cases only 6,500,000 pounds are utilized, 25,500,000 pounds being absolutely wasted. In other words, the lobster industry as now conducted uses only 20 per cent. of the raw material. Even under such conditions, the annual value of this industry to the Dominion is normally around $4,000,000. From the foregoing figures it will readily be appreciated that few industrial improvements could render more substantial aid to the fishing interests than the perfection of practical methods of converting the offal to economic use.

ROMANCE OF A LORD

Once Lodged Over a Stable, But Made Millions

Lord Lyveden sold for nearly $1,250,000 property in the U.S.A. which he bought thirty years previously for a small sum. This is well in accordance with his lordship's motto—"A Vernon always flourishes." But there were times when Lord Lyveden must often have doubted the sincerity of his family motto. For many years he courted fickle fortune in several capacities—soldier, sailor, purser, actor, steward, and nurseryman.

"Once," recalls Lord Lyveden, "I arrived in North Carolina with only 75c in my pocket. Like a young fool, I went to a first class hotel and stayed there several days. When the bill was put in front of me I had no money. I was turned out, but as I was leaving the door the clerk pressed fifty cents into my hand, saying, 'I guess you'll want a bed to-night, old man.' I lodged over a stable that night, and in the morning got to work driving a cab. As soon as I was in funds again I went and settled my bill like a Briton."

First Self-Government

The first attempt of government by the people begun in America was in 1619, when Sir George Yeardley was sent from England as Governor of the Jamestown colony. His charter provided that he should call a few chosen men, two from each of the eleven boroughs that constituted the colony. The meeting, which was known as the assembly, was held at the church, with the Governor and his Council presiding. Those who came from the boroughs were called burgesses, and the assembly, which met every year, was styled the House of Burgesses. At this period this was the only English colony in America.

HERO FLYING BUT DEAD

Air Wonder of Briton in Fight With Boelcke

Captain Boelcke, the famous German airman who was killed, described an amazing occurrence in the air in a letter which is published in the book of his Field Reports issued in Germany. He describes an encounter between English and German air squadrons near Bapaume. "My antagonist," he says, "tried to get away, but I stuck to him (apparently firing all the time at point-blank range). But I couldn't help admiring his endurance.

"I must have settled him long ago, but round and round he kept on flying as well as ever. It was too much to stomach. I said to myself, 'The fellow's dead long ago, but the plane keeps on the level because he's got rubber bands keeping the steering gear right.' So I flew close in and there I saw the Englishman slightly toppled over to the side sitting at his wheel stone dead." The number of the machine, says Boelcke, was 7,495.

7,000 LEFT HOMELESS BY TENNESSEE FLOOD

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., March 10—Seven thousand persons are homeless here as the result of the Tennessee Rivr floods which Wednesday had reached a crest of forty-eight feet, sixteen feet above the official flood stage. Every school building in the city except one is either surrounded by water or filled with refugees being fed and sheltered through the cooperation of all county and city agencies and a multitude of other citizens.

Hundreds of other men, women, and children are being cared for in the County Court House and other public buildings and churches. In the last two days more than a thousand families have been rescued in boats, and trucks have been brought with part of their household belongings. Many factories and business houses have been shut down, some of them now standing deep in the water.

Railroad communications have been seriously interrupted, several lines entering the city being either entirely cut off and having to make wild detours. Street railway lines so practically every suburb have partly suspended operations. On lower Market Street office buildings and department stores, basements have been flooded, and heavy loss there has been averted only by the unceasing use of pumps.

Scores of relief committees are working under the direction of the city government, every department of which has suhspnded the usual operations and is giving entire attention to the problem of caring for the homeless and rescuing families that waited too long before moving.

More Cases Reported Right Here in Peterboro'

In Which Dr. Chase's Nerve Food Has Made Complete Cure of Nervousness and Sleeplessness

PETEBRORO', Ont., March 10.—There is much talk these days about Dr. Chase's Nerve Food and what it is doing for people who are nervous, sleepless and run down in health. Almost every issue of the Examiner contains reports of cures effected by this great restorative treatment.

If you are in need of something to enrich the blood and invigorate tired, exhausted nerves, you will be interested in these letters, because they tell exactly what was accomplished by this food cure in two cases, which you investigate, because these people live right here, and may even be your neighbors.

Mrs. Elisabeth Collins, 555 Romaine St., Peterborough, Ont., writes:

"About ten years ago I suffered from nervousness, I could not sleep well, had frequent headaches and pains in my back—in fact my system was in a generally run down condition. I tried different preparations and also doctors' medicines and finally resorted to Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. This gave splendid results. I have found them the best restorative for a run down condition; they built up my nervous system, and made me eat and sleep well. I would recommend the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food to all suffering from nervousness or run down system."

Mrs. W. Middleton, 635 Water St., Peterborough, Ont., writes:

"About a year ago I was troubled with nervousness, sleeplessness, and loss of appetite. At night when I would lie down my heart would throb heavily. Through reading of the good it had done others, I decided to try Dr. Chase's Nerve Food; so I purchased some and commenced using them. I soon found my heart action improved; I could sleep well and my appetite returned. I have recommended Dr. Chase's Nerve Food to many who have obtained good results from its use."

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food cures sleeplessness, nervousness, and other symptoms of nervous exhaustion by building up the system. For this reason the benefits are lasting. 50 cents a box, a full treatment of 6 boxes for $2.50, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Ltd., Toronto. Do not be talked into accepting a substitute. Imitations disappoint.

OPENS JAPANESE EYES.

Of all the sights a Japanese student at Missouri University has seen in this country the one most wonderful to him is skating and to the list of things he intends learning while in the United States is the art of gliding over real ice. In Japan, he told the Missourian, he never had seen any ice thick enough to skate on though in the mountain regions there is does form on the lakes in sufficient strength to afford a chance for skaters.—Kansas City Times.

RICHARD HALL & SON LIMITED

and we were kept busy while off duty, building a dugout. Our Brigade wireless operator and myself just finished our's last night, and when we got up this morning it was pouring rain. We have no fire in it yet, because wood cannot be got within two or three miles. We are not in a very good position here, because we are just like being shut off from the rest of the world. I don't think our stop here is very long. I saw a lot of Peterborough fellows when we were coming up here, Manley Peever and a lot of other 33rd fellows. I saw the battalion Bill Carruthers belongs to, but they moved away before I got a chance to go and try to find him. I am going to write to his mother, in Sudbury, thanking her for that parcel at Christmas. I got those socks, gloves, etc., that you mentioned, and they sure came in handy here, because we have to change every night, and that keeps three pairs on the go all the time. We put our socks in bed with us to get them dry. As soon as dry weather comes again, though, we will be able to have a fire. I got that "snap" you sent. Dad sure is getting fat by the look of that picture. I also got the clippings from the paper. Our snow has all gone now, and I hope it dries up. We have high rubber boots that come up to our waists, besides our Field Service boots that are knee-high, but still for all that we get our feet wet. Harold said something in his letter and I am writing to Leo to-night. They do not censor any incoming mail; it is just the mail that we send out. I got a letter from Bert. He's O.K.

Well, mother, I guess I had better quit if I want this censored this afternoon. With love to all.

Your loving son,
HOWARD.

Mrs. Howden, Romaine street, has received the following letter in connection with the death of her son, Pte. Leslie Howden, formerly of the 93rd Battalion:

France, Feb. 12.

I now write these few lines to you which I am sure, on a different occasion, would be a great pleasure. But now it is a task I am doing with the deepest sorrow and sympathy, to let you know how your son met death on the battlefield of France, like lots more brave fellows, doing his duty for the great cause of freedom and justice. It might comfort you to know that he suffered no pain, and he died from a rifle shot in the head and lived only forty-eight hours and never regained consciousness. All the best medical attention proved of no avail. It is also a comfort to let you know he was prepared to meet his Judge as he was at Church service the morning before. Your son was a friend with us all and his kindness and manly ways will live long in our memory. But it was the will of God and Scripture says: "Thy will must be done." We all join in sending our most heartfelt sorrow and sincere sympathy to you and your family in your sad bereavement.

(Signed)

Port Hope boys — Pte. Cavanagh, Pte. Smith, Pte. Tournley, Pte. Jordin, Pte. Clark, Pte. Bryan, Pte. Staples, Pte. Curry, Pte. Johnston, Pte. Emrie, Pte. Humphreys.

Peterborough boys—Pte. W. Ebbs, Pte. B. F. Robertson, Pte. E. Benstead, Pte. B. Wattley, Pte. J. W. Herron, Pte. C. Gorman.

Lieut. H. O. Ross of the 4th Canadian Entrenching Battalion who conned the above letter, has written on it:

"Mrs. Howden,—My deepest sympathy goes out to you in the loss of your son.

"Yours sincerely,
H. O. ROSS, Lieut.

Mrs. Howden wishes to express her thanks to all the friends in the city and county, especially to the citizens of Apsley for their kindness in connection with her bereavement.

Sergt. Clayton Promoted.

Mrs. H. Clayton has just received a letter from the front stating that her husband has been promoted by the Imperial forces to Staff Sergeant-Major, and is at present in the trenches.

Staff Sergeant Clayton is now in charge of the 10lst Infantry Brigade bayonet fighters and physical training class, and is to be congratulated on his further promotion.

Mr. H. P. Kennedy received a letter some time ago from his brother, Pte. M. S. Kennedy, 800 Water street, who is in the trenches, stating that a number of the boys with whom he was associated, had hard tack and canned beef for Christmas, as the Christmas parcels had not arrived until later. As a consequence the parcel containing the cooked ham and a quantity of bacon was despatched, reached its destination and evidently was enjoyed. It would be interesting to know the value placed on these products by the boys when they were received and in these days of record prices in this country, it is safe to say all previous quotations would be shattered.

Somewhere in France Feb. 17 '17.

Dear Perc,—There was a parcel of cooked ham and bacon came to me to-day, and a letter from mother stating that you had sent it. It is the finest thing in the parcel line that I have seen come to France, and I wish to thank you, and appreciate your thoughtfulness. The boys said, "Who ever sent that must have been through the mill himself here."

Well I am learning all about what active service is like. I had a fair idea of what it was like before I left Canada but in Canada the war is like a story, and we wondered if it were all true. Well it is true, and very real. Things have been quiet of late, but they say we are in for lively times before long. There are no reinforcements companies here now. We moved up with the rest of the battalion this week. My address is "C Company," 1st Mounted Rifles.

Mother's letters come quite frequently. Always glad to hear from home, and hope all are well. As ever,

Your brother,
MARVE.

OTTAWA, Ont., March 10.—Figures just compiled by the Military Hospitals Commission, show that on Feb. 28th the Commission had under its care 4,055 invalided members of the Canadian expeditionary force. Of these 3,149 had been overseas the remaining 906 being 'camp' men. On the date mentioned, there were 1,998 in the convalescent hospitals, besides 1,222 out patients. Totals 2,816 "in" patients, and 1,239 "out" patients.

The county council of Victoria, at its meeting Thursday, voted $1,000 for the 252nd battalion for recruiting purposes. Major Thompson, who was one of the speakers, said that though 1,000 men in the counties of Victoria and Haliburton had been interviewed only one recruit per day had been secured. Since the battalion had been allowed to recruit in the whole district 108 men had joined in February. But to continue this good work funds were required.

Private Herbert Rush, of Peterborough, who has been with the Mechanical Transport Service in France for the past twenty-four months, arrived in the city by the 3.47 C.P.R. express this afternoon. Pte. Rush enlisted in Peterborough with the 24th Field Battery's first contingent quota and was transferred to the mechanical transport.

Another Peterborough soldier who has arrived home from overseas is Pte. Wm. Wade, who enlisted here in August, 1915, and went to Barriefield with a draft to join the 50th Battalion. Pte. Wade has seen considerable fighting at the front.

A Guaranteed Cure For Kidney Trouble

On Sept. 1st, 1916, Dr. Banta's Kidney and Rheumatic Pills were first introduced to the people of Central Ontaro, and they are now the recognized cure for kidney ailments, backache and rheumatism and lumbago. While the first demand for Dr. Banta's Kidney Pills was due to advertising, the numerous people who have received benefits from them and who have been informing their friends of their virtues, are in all probability their best advertisers.

To give you one instance, Mr. J. Jackson, 232 Perry street, states that he would give $100.00 per box for these pills, if necessary, to secure them. He had tried different remedies for years, but he received no benefit until he had taken Dr. Banta's Kidney Pills.

People who are suffering from rheumatism or kidney ailments are sometimes in doubt what remedy to try, but you can make no mistake in taking Dr. Banta's Kidney and Rheumatic Pills, for they are guaranteed by the manufacturers to cure, and if they should fail to do what we claim for them, your dealer will refund your money.

plicated by the prolonged illness of Leader Redmond, who has suffered a serious relapse from an attack of influenza and only managed to return to London from Brighton, with great difficulty. He insisted upon being present at the debate on the Irish question in spite of the remonstrances of his friends.

A Suggestion.

In the meantime there has sprung up a suggestion which emanated from a member of the ministry some months which intimates that the question is impossible of solution in Parliament owing to the insuperable division of opinion between the Irish parties and the aggravated temper displayed upon both sides.

In Ireland itself, it is proposed to overcome this difficulty by lifting it out of Parliament and transferring the decison to a strong body of men, consisting of the great figures in the British Empire, including some of the Colonial Prime Ministers and men like Lord Shaughnessy.

To put the Home Rule Act into immediate operation, after making such modifications, apart from the Ulster difficulty, as required to meet the present conditions, is now necessary because of the entire change in the financial situation, which has been created by the great sums spent by Ireland since the outbreak of the war, which has transformed her deficit of peace time into several millions, contributed to the Imperial taxation above the cost of the services of the Imperial Government in Ireland.

This idea has caught on with extraordinary rapidity, and after days of secret consideration by various groups, has begun to be circulated by the newspapers.

The Irish party, however, has remained entirely outside of these conversations and has refused to take any responsibility for such a course, or, indeed, for any policy, except that of immediately putting into operation the Home Rule Act.

A Strong Negative.

It is reported that the Carson group has adopted a similar policy, and that some of their party gave a strong negative to the question, so that finally it proved an obstacle to the settlement of the problem at this moment.

Every party has become so discredited by the abject failure of the late ministry and especially of Asquith and Lloyd-George to carry through the settlement last July, that this failure was regarded justly by Ireland as another example of the refusal, so often repeated in the history of England, to fulfil her pledges.

This has added to the feeling of exasperation which is felt all through Ireland and the executions which have recently occurred have added fuel to the smouldering flames of discontent, and the Irish party, though it has carried out its pledges at great personal political risk, against overwhelming odds, has shared in the general loss of prestige that comes from failure, even though that failure has been created by others.

In fact the whole policy of partition has become more and more discredited and thus has made it impossible for any Irish Nationalist to accept the terms which were made last July. Indeed, those terms were killed and buried by Asquith's and Lloyd George's failure to carry them through to completion, last year.

This is an attempt to explain the extraordinary tangle into which the vicissitudes of the British parties, and the weaknesses of the successive British ministries, as well as unrest in Ireland have brought the Irish problem.

A Difficulty.

These entanglements have rendered difficult, if not impossible, the settlement of the problem at this moment, but still I do not give up the hope of reconciling Ireland and strengthening the position of this country in the peace conference which will come after the close of the great war, in which, with the assistance of the President of the United States, the map of Europe will be so changed as to recognise the rights of the weaker nations.

And, in the meantime, two other great problems, which are gradually solving themselves, are being watched with the closest interest by all the United Kingdom.

Of these two, the one in which Great Britain, and through her, the others of the British Isles, is more closely concerned in the immediate present, is the gradually weakening of the German U-boat panic. Despite all of the assurances of the Admiralty that Germany would not succeed in her threat to "starve" England, the masses were fearful.

This feeling, however, is being dissipated through the reports of the sinking and capturing of the enemy's submarines by England's navy, and by the great number of vessels carrying both supplies and passengers, which daily enter and depart from British and Irish harbours.

Feeling of Confidence.

Then, too, the feeling of confidence that the threat of a blockade was mostly "bluff" has been increased by the remarkably small average of vessels destroyed by the heralded great fleet of German U-boats, all of which leads one to believe that the number of submarines possessed by Germany was far less than thought at first.

The second great question here is when will the actual opening of hostilities between the United States and Germany occur. Everywhere one hears this question brought up as a topic of the liveliest interest.

The failure of the United States Senate to pass the "armed ship bill" is viewed by thinking people in Great Britain as an almost unbelievable thing. Astonished and dumbfounded, we can only wait, trusting in the ability of the President of the United States to steer his country clear of the obstructions thrown into its way by a few men-

DOCTORS ADVISE IRON FOR THE BLOOD

Anaemia, pale faces, nervousness, stomach troubles, watery blood, etc., are sure signs of thin blood. Dr. Meinzrine says he can take any of these cases and cure any one of them in ten days by giving Iron for the blood, and Phosphorus for the nerves, "called Bonized Phosphorus with Iron." I have found that 99 per cent. of all stomach, liver, kidney, bowel, nerve, etc., troubles are traced right back to the blood. Just as soon as Bonized Phosphorus with Iron is given it is almost immediately absorbed by the system the blood taking the iron while the nerves are soothed by the phosphorus, making you eat better, feel better, look better, digest better, and finally you will be made 100 per cent. stronger. Do not be taking all sorts of patent medicines and laxatives which only ruin your system; go to the root of the trouble and start taking Iron and strengthen your blood, restore your nerves, and your digestion and will recharge your whole system with new life. Bonized Phosphorus with Iron is dispensed by one druggist in each city. F. G. Weber dispenses it for Peterboro

WOMEN SHOULD BE GIVEN PLACE IN THE LEGISLATURE

That is the Opinion Reflected in a Number of Interviews Concerning Recent Action of Premier Hearst—Mr. G. N. Gordon Would Go the Whole Way—"Peculiar Legislation" Says Dr. Jessie Birnie—"The Dim End."

Local opinion concerning the action of Premier Hearst of Ontario in denying women the right to run as candidates for the Legislature for a year at least, is reflected in the accompanying interviews.

"DIFFICULTY NOW RISING"

The first is from Mr. J. H. Burnham, M.P., who said:—

"Regarding the refusal of Sir William Hearst to adopt the Rowell Bill admitting women to seats in the Legislature." Probably Sir William proposes to bring in a Bill of his own next year. He is a very broad-minded and very sincere man. Of course, we must all admit that it would be wholly illogical to acknowledge the right of women to the franchise and then to deprive them of the fruits of it and women, of course, on their side must be prepared to take up the activities and responsibilities of political life. Women will never have freedom in perfection until they have full and sole control of their own affairs away from the controlling influence of men, and men in the last analysis will not suffer themselves to be controlled or out-voted in crucial matters wholly affecting men by women. We see difficulty now rising in the States, in even a more general case, where the preponderating vote of peaceful women elected Wilson but has been over-borne by the determination of the men over there to prepare for war. The difficulty that has thus arisen between the sexes is considered in the United States very ominous indeed. A separate system of government from start to finish for women would have obviated all that. A separate and distinct system of franchise and administration will alone prevent that clash between the sexes which is otherwise sooner or later bound to supervene. The refusal you refer to may be the first sign of it. It will be a great pity if the fundamental principle of women's liberty should receive a set-back instead of a push forward through the determination of some women to act and think as if there was no difference between them and men in the great social arena of life, using the word 'social' in its indest sense. However, if women are content with the franchise without distinction they should certainly have it that way, and it may be left to time to work out the rest:"

GO THE WHOLE WAY.

Mr. G. N. Gordon, when asked for his views regarding the refusal of Premier Hearst to allow women to become candidates for the Legislature, and if elected to become members, said that it seemed to him if women were permitted to vote they should be given the whole franchise and rights of citizenship also, and be allowed to become members of Parliament if elected. He said he thought this was the view generally of the Liberals, and he failed to see why any limitations should be placed upon the women now they were given partial rights of citizenship.

NOT IN FAVOUR.

"I don't think I would be in favour of admitting women to the Legislature," said Mr. J. J. Hartley.

"NOT WARRANTED"

"The action of the Hearst Government is not warranted especially in view of the fact that the Government has recognised the principle and given women the franchise. That very fact warrants the application of the principle in a larger measure."—Rev. R. G. Peever.

"PECULIAR LEGISLATION"

"If a woman should be elected to Parliament she certainly would not have been the nominee of grafters of packed conventions, but would have been chosen for unusual ability and high character and her services would be of value to the country. To prevent such a one from entering our parliament, merely on the ground that she is a woman is to say the lease, peculiar legislation, and encroaches upon the right of the people to choose their own representative."—Jessie Birnie.

"THE DIM END"

"The Premier endorses the principle of admitting women to the legislature. He waits for the insistent demand of the women of Ontario for this right. The dim end will come."—Mrs. W. R. Morris.

"WHY?"

"Why should not a woman of superior mentality, chosen by the people, be allowed a seat in the Legislature equally with a man of mediocre intelligence?"—Alice Sanderson.

ADDRESS AND PRESENTATION

Last night the members of the Peterborough Milkmen's Association honoured one of their members, Mr. Edward Butler, who recently assumed the responsibilities of matrimony. They visited Mr. and Mrs. Butler at their residence, the Lilico farm, 12th concession North Monaghan. They were cordially welcomed by their young hosts, and the manner in which Mr. and Mrs. Butler dispensed their hospitality, showed they were fitted for the responsibilities of society. There was a varied programme of entertainment, speeches, recitations and music and dainty refreshments, and a delightful evening was spent, the most interesting feature being the presentation of the following address, accompanied by the gift of an easy chair:

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Butler,

Dear Friends,—We take this opportunity to most heartily congratulate you upon the happy circumstance that has united your lives in the intimacy of matrimony, and to wish you both a long and prosperous life of wedded happiness.

We have long been associated with Mr. Butler and learned to esteem him for his high character as a man of business and as a citizen, who only needed the life-partnership of a good woman and worthy helpmate, such as he secured, to round out his good qualities and make a complete man of him.

In token of our good wishes we ask your acceptance of this easy chair with the hope that, substantial and enduring as it may be, it will not outlast the happy and harmonious life of those who will use it.

Signed on behalf of the Peterborough Milkman's Association.

J. Albert Hunter, President.
F. Darling, Secretary.

(Monoghan, March 9th, 1917.

Mr. Butler on his on behalf and that of his wife, made a neat speech of acknowledgment. It has been the practice of the Milkmen's Association to make practical demonstration of the friendly spirit prevailing by honouring in a similar manner every member who becomes a benedict; and it would not be surprising if before long not a bachelor will belong to the Association.

NEW YORK, March 10.—J. P. Morgan, it was learned yesterday, has made application for $2,500,000 life insurance, which would be the largest policy ever written on one person.

It was understood the risk would be distributed among several companies and that the insurance was intended to protect Mr. Morgan's partners in their mutual business interests, as well as for the banker's personal protection.

Council Decides Against Public Bathing Places As Unnecessary At The Present

Public bathing places may be regarded by their advocates as one of the sacrifices of the war. That was the Council's attitude last night when the 1917 apropriations were under consideration and the swimming enthusiasts might as well accept the decision in the spirit that they did not expect results this year anyway. Citizens who do not go near the water and are really more than neutral will probably be relieved that the impending expenditure has been stayed for a year or two.

Blame the Germans.

When the Mayor asked the Committee of the Whole last night what they proposed to do with the "reel" petition supporting public bathing places, Alderman Saunders struck the keynote when he remarked tentatively: "This might well wait until the end of the war."

The Council immediately tuned up with precision.

"We might ask the National Council of Women to supervise the vegetable grounds we hope to have this year," said Alderman Stratton, who is finding considerable incidental amusement in the movement. "The boys could annex themselves with a hoe for a change," he added.

Mayor Duffus reminded the Council that the petition was not for a grant but for the Council's assumption of the responsibilities of construction, locations and other details.

It was 10:30 when the bathing places subject was introduced, a fact that bears an evident suggestion.

Alderman Langford—I'm in favour of this idea in ordinary times. This is no time for fads.

Alderman Smith—It is not a fad.

Alderman Smith—I suppose it is but it shouldn't be.

Aldermen Weir, Dobbin and Duncan agreed that the bathing places could be held up for a year or more without any serious inconvenience to many citizens.

Alderman Stratton—To get an expression of opinion I will move that $2,000 be appropriated.

Alderman Smith seconded the motion.

Alderman McIntyre with a seeming uneasy uncertainty said he felt like supporting the petition.

Alderman Langford seconded it.

The amendment carried.

Romance of the Marriageable Man

When a man has paddled his own canoe along life's stream as far as the marriageable age, it is amusing the pastime many a woman has thus he can be built all over again to suit her fancy. When a man is born he has within his make-up all the tendencies which crop out in after years. Some die at the root, others flourish, and still others are retarded from blossoming. A man may be on his good behaviour in trying to win the love of a fair maid. But after becoming victorious in love's race he relaxes his efforts to conform to the ideal she has in mind.

After wedlock a man is sure to settle down to his natural gait, if he is not polite by nature his suave, endearing words soon peter out. So do his caresses. If he has been assuming a liberality which was far from his real nature he soon begins to drawy in the purse strings. He grumbles about the household bills, raises a hue and cry about the extravagance of women, his wife in particular. If he has been in the habit of admiring every young girl on the sly he's not going to change his tune because the marriage binds him to some one woman. If he is given to indulging in periodical sprees all the wives in the harm wouldn't stop him from doing his bit in that way. If he's a man who shirks work a wife who was a veritable angel couldn't find a job for him and force him to stick to it.

A man is already made with his faults and his virtues at the time he meets a woman. If he appeals to her and she falls in love with him and accepts his proposal of marriage, she must be prepared to take him just as she finds him. Love makes a certain change in every life. If it is a lasting affection the wife has sufficient influence over a man to sway his tendencies in the direction she wills. If it is affection of the tallow candle sort, blown out by the first ill wind that sweeps across it, all her attempts to relight it keep it in a flame result in failure. Acquire habits a man may overcome. But those he brings into the world with him he cannot be separated from. It is for a wife to make the most of the man she marries, to help him hide his faults and polish up his virtues. Yet how many men there are who vow that with their marriage they will chang their habits to suit their wives. It's good to live in hope.

ROMAN-GOTHIC STRIFE STIRS GERMAN EDITORS

Bitter Controversy Over Proposal to Abandon So-Called German Printing Characters

BERLIN, March 10.—In the midst of the world war the German papers have a war of their own which does not lack ferocity if, instead of blood, only ink is shed. The casus belli is the charge that one of the chief reasons for Germany's being so misunderstood by all the rest of the world is to be found in the German characters used in printing and handwriting.

This cry was first raised by a Rhenish manufacturer of pens, but was soon taken up by many newspapers, while other newspapers, mostly Conservative Party organs, intrenched themselves behind tradition to fight off the onslaught of the iconoclasts. The latter, led by the Berliner Tageblatt, sought to prove that many foreigners would not take the trouble of learning German for the mere reason that they would not only have to learn to speak a new language, but also to write a new alphabet. If Roman characters were used instead of the German, the Tageblatt urged, there would be many more students of German literature, and German ideas would become better known and more appreciated by the rest of the world. It was also contended by the modernists that the so-called German characters had been developed from the Gothic, which would give them a French origin, and that, therefore, the enemies of the proposed reform were really fighting for something that was not German at all. Lastly, it was argued that Roman characters were more easily read and less trying to the eyes than the somewhat twisted German characters.

These were the three principal salients from which the attack on the German characters was conducted. Meanwhile their defenders had brought their heavy artillery into position, and the battle now rages with great bitterness. The defenders, being hard pressed, looked about for allies, and found one in a Paris newspaper which in 1911 requested competent Frenchmen to express their opinions as to what style of printing was most suitable for the German language. Eigthy-one per cent. voted for the retention of the present German characters.

Not content with this French support, the Conservatives sought allies in other countries, and formed a regular entente against the supporters of Roman characters. One of their biggest guns was Professor Dr. Achmed Emin of Constantinople University, who declared it "unthinkable that German should be written or printed in any other characters than those used at present."

As further proof that foreigners were not prevented from learning German by German characters, it was pointed out that in certain German cities which were particularly frequented by foreigners, like Leipsic, Nuremberg, Stuggart, and Darmstadt, all public directions, names of streets, and even directions on street cars were in German characters, which would not be the case if foreigners found them too difficult. The first-page titles of newspapers printed in Gothic in France, England, and America were also mentioned as proof of the beauty of the German characters.

Whereas on one side opticians, doctors, and professors have done their best to show that Roman was less trying to the eyes, the defenders of Gothic now bring forth Dr. Schackwits of the Physiological Institute of Kiel to gain-say them. He has made experiments which, he says, prove that while for the reading of a fixed amount of printed matter the Roman characters require 24,500 movements of the eyes, the same document in German characters can be read with only 17,000 movements.

As to the contention that the German characters are of French origin, the conservatives quote whole libraries as proof that they are absolutely home-grown, and that Gothic is only a somewhat independently developed branch of German.

The battle is by no means ended, but the conservatives received a severe blow recently when in both the Turkish and Bulgarian Parliaments the adoption of Roman characters was advocated.

THE ECLIPSE OF THE OTHER MAN.

It is the old principle of Jesus that he who would find himself and keep himself, his soul, his life must be content to lose them all. The weakness and the peril of the man in the street is that he has never learned this lesson, or has forgotten it. His life gathers round himself. Save only for the necessary intimacies of business, and possibly for a small circle of friends he cuts himself away from the common life of his fellows. When Jeremiah lamented the evil case of his captive people and sang their sorrows, he cried: "Is it nothing to you, all ye that pass by?" And hundreds and thousands of average men virtually answer, "Nothing."

Perhaps not the least tragical aspect of this matter is the amount of vital force that is lost in the narrow, selfish life. The crust of selfishness conducts neither light, nor heart. Suppose all the light and heat suppressed in a million average men of to-day were to be liberated! We should begin to see the rising walls of the new Jerusalem to-morrow. But the causes of God and humanity are languishing because of the selfishness of the average man. We sometimes hear of the unused energy of nature, of the tides, water-falls, and the like; power that might be harnessed to industrial uses. But what of the wasted, unused power of mind and heart, of speech and sympathy, of love and hope and faith, that might be harnessed to the chariot of God (which is also the chariot of man), and which is wasting away while the world is calling aloud for it, just because the average man has lost sight of the other man?

The great causes of God and humanity are not defeated by the hot assaults of the devil, but by the slow, crushing, glacier-like weight of thousands and thousands of indifferent passers-by."

Council Failed To Respond To Appeal

of only $1,400. This was much less than other places.

Ald. Dobbin—The government is not as economical about a great many other things as it appears to be about this.

Ald. Dobbin moved, that no action be taken, that it be left to the government.

Ald. Smith said he was not in favour of paying $175 a man for getting recruits.

Ald. Stratton suggested that a sum be set aside for military purposes. This would prepare for contingencies. It was not necessary that it be used.

Ald. Stratton—I'm not providing it for the 247th but for military matters. When we set aside this sum we can then consider Col. Ackerman's request.

Ald. Dobbin—Let us face the question squarely. If we do anything for him let us do it now; if not he can turn to the government.

Ald. Stratton said the $2500 could be set aside for unforseen demands no necessary military.

Ald. Stratton moved seconded by Ald. Smith that $2315 be set aside for unforseen demands.

Ald. Dobbin moved that no grant be made to the 247th to defray recruiting expenses.

Ald. Stratton urged that the question be deferred for maturer action.

Ald. McIntyre suggested that the Council play a waiting game for a time.

Ald. Stratton moved, seconded by Ald. McIntyre, that $1,000 be granted the 247th.

Ald. Dobbin changed his motion providing that $500 be granted the Battalion to cover their overdraft. The government would have to provide the remaining money needed.

This was virtually an amendment and was seconded by Ald. Saunders.

The vote was 4 to 3 in favour of the amendment.

Ald. Langford did not vote stating that it was apparently not definitely decided that the government has refused assistance to the Battalion.

Mayor Duffus urged every alderman to vote.

The result was as follows for the amendment:

Ayes — Aldermen Dobbin, Smith, Duncan and Langford.

Nays— Aldermen Weir, McIntyre Taylor, Stratton and Mayor Duffus.

Ald. Worth was absent.

The deadlock continued on both motions and resulted in no action whatever.

PELL IN A FAINT.

Mrs. Edwin Martin, Ayer's Cliff, Que., writes: "Before using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food I was in a terrible condition. Dizzy spells would come over me and I would fall on the floor. I could not sweep without fainting. Dr. Chase's Nerve Food has so built up my system that I can wash and do my housework. Your Nerve Food cured me when doctors had failed."

COUNCIL GIVES $3,000 TO BRITISH SAILORS RELIEF FUND, $6,000. WAS EXPECTED FROM CITY

GRANTS MADE BY COUNCIL.

British Sailors' Fund	$ 3,000
Peterborough Health Assoc.	1,000
Children's Aid Soc.	600
Horticultural Soc.	850
Industrial Exhibition	600
Speakers' Patriotic League.	300
Poultry Association	75
Band Purposes	600

The Committee of the Whole Council provided a round sum of $10,000, approximately representing one mill on the rate, for special grants this year.

The Peterborough Health Association received $1,000. Their grant last year was $600 and they had asked for $1,200 this year.

The Children's Aid Society's grant of $300 last year was increased to $600.

Ald. Dobbin moved, seconded by Ald. Weir, that this grant be $700, but Ald. Saunders' amendment, seconded by Ald. Duncan, for $600, carried.

The Horticultural Society asked for $1,200 and received $850.

Ald. Dobbin claimed that the $125 paid in damages for an accident in one of the tap boxes in Central Park was due to the carelessness of the Society.

Ald. Saunders moved, seconded by Ald. Dobbin, that the Horticultural Society receive $750. Ald. McIntyre moved an amendment, seconded by Ald. Smith, that the grant be $850. The amendment carried. Mayor Duffus remarked that the members of the Society were working voluntarily in the interests of the city and should be encouraged.

The appropriation for band purposes remains at $600, to be used as the Council deems advisable.

The Poultry Association received $75, the same as last year.

The Speakers' Patriotic League were granted $300.

$3,000 For Sailors' Relief.

The Peterborough branch of the British Sailors' Relief Fund had asked for a contribution of $6,000. The County Council had donated $4,000 and it was hoped that a total of $10,000 would be the combined share from the entire county.

Ald. Langford remarked that since there had been few public appeals for patriotic purposes this year the Council could give $3,000 and the remaining $3,000 might be raised by public subscription.

Ald. Langford moved, seconded by Ald. Saunders, that the Council contribute $3,000 to the Sailors' Relief Fund committee.

Unforseen Demands.

Ald. Stratton moved seconded by Ald. Smith that $2,315 be set aside for unforseen requests.—Carried.

Other grants were as follows:

Honorarium to the Mayor	$ 500
Sick Children's Hospital	50
Teachers' Institute	25

Peterborough Deputation Visited Toronto

Local Educational Fraternity Well Represented—Deputation Was Present in Connection With the Teachers' Pension Bill

Mr. V. Eastwood, chairman of the Board of Education; Mr. H. R. H. Kenner, principal of the Collegiate Institute; Mr. A. Mowat, Inspector of Public School; Mr. R. F. Downey, principal of the Central School; Mr. R. Lees, Public School Inspector for Eastern Peterborough and Miss Ross, Miss Rush and Miss Thomlinson, representing the Teachers' Guild of this city, made up the deputation that went to Toronto yesterday in connection with the superannuation bill for teachers. The Peterborough deputation was augmented by a number of representative deputations from various cities through the province.

A week ago, when the deputation was organized, it was intended to be a demonstration in force to convince the Government that the Superannuation Bill should be adopted. Two days ago, however, Hon. Dr. Pyne, Minister of Education, forestalled the demand by bringing down the legislation and foreshadowing its final adoption this session. The result was that yesterday's deputation used up its surplus energy in endorsing the action of the Government and in cheering the Prime Minister and his colleagues.

Sir William, after listening to a number of speakers endorse the Government's course, spoke to the deputation, assuring them that not only had the Government brought in the bill, but that it was going to see it through. He admitted that there were some who opposed the scheme, particularly some of the younger teachers, who looked forward to giving up a class and devoting themselves to teaching one person, but the Government was so satisfied that the legislation was in the interest of the teaching profession that they were prepared to disregard this opposition and to make the act compulsory. Hon. Dr. Pyne also spoke, remarking that now that the moment for which they had been striving had come, both teachers and the Government were entitled to congratulations.

The deputation was introduced by Sir Adam Beck. One distinguished spokesman was Archbishop MacNeil, who endorsed the bill thoroughly, although the payments might be something of a burden upon the teachers in the Separate Schools, who were drawing small salaries. In this connection he intimated that the Government might consider the revision of the assessment law, to give Separate Schools a more generous share of taxes from corporations.

COMPULSORY MILITARY TRAINING

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

TORONTO, March 10.—A deputation of the Canadian Defence League supported by representatives of educational and patriotic organizations, waited upon Premier Hearst and the Cabinet this forenoon and asked that military training be made compulsory in the higher grades of the Public Schools and in the high schools of the Province. The Premier promised careful consideration of the request.

Editor of The Examiner:

Dear Sir,—I wish to draw your attention to an item in the Voice of the People. The writer signed himself householder in last night's issue of the Examiner.

In the first place which has, the City Council or householder, the less brains? Or who gave the City Council permission to raise the poll tax to $10. If the men who work on munition work make money they earn it by the sweat of their brow, and with the high cost of living, their sorely begrudged money hardly has time to warm in their pockets. Is that stupid householder, or Council, aware of the fact that the managers of the munition plants are doing all in their power to keep up the production. In the name of common sense is the idea of raising the poll-tax going to better matters. In my idea it is worth $50 to live in a burg like this, with no street car service the high cost of living and collections every day. If the truth was known, it is very little that householder is doing for any one. It it no surprise to me that more men don't enlist after been insulted by beings like householder.

The Council should have heard the vengeance and resentful feelings expressed to-day. Are they aware that in many cases they are taking the bread from the very mouths of the widows and orphans? Or does the Council care? Down with the poll tax! Our young men are no fools.

Sincerely,
Outraged Orphan.

Special Services Bethany Tabernacle On Sunday

Rev. Oswald J. Smith, of Dale church, Toronto, will speak in Bethany Tabernacle (D.V.) on Sunday morning at 11 a.m., March 11th.

Mr. Smith is in charge of Dale church during the absence of Mr. Morrow, who is at the front.

Come and hear this burning question answered from the Scriptures.

Laugh When People Step On Your Feet

Try this yourself then pass it along to others. It works!

Ouch ! ? ! ? ! ! This kind of rough talk will be heard less here in town if people troubled with corns will follow and simple advice of this Cincinnati authority, who claims that a few drops of a drug called freezone when applied to a tender, aching corn stops the soreness at once and soon the corn dries up and lifts right out without pain.

He says freezone is an ether compound which dries immediately and never inflames or even irritates the surrounding tissue or skin. A quarter of an ounce of freezone will cost very little at any drug store but is sufficient to remove every hard or soft corn or callus from one's feet. Millions of American women will welcome this announcement since the inauguration of the high heels.

HAMILTON CHAMPIONS OF INTERMEDIATE SERIES

KITCHENER, Ont., March 9.—Kitchener won the game here to-night by 3 to 1, but were unable to overcome the lead of five goals stacked up by Hamilton on Tuesday night; they therefore lost the O.H.A. intermediate championship by 9 goals to 6 in the fastest game played here this season. About 3,000 people saw Hamilton defeated.

Kitchener had easily the better of the game throughout, but the defence of Hamilton, coupled with the splendid work of Sloan in goal, was the stumbling block in the way to the silverware.

At the end of the second period, during which Kitchener scored their three counts, it looked pretty dark for the Hamilton seven, but in the final period the latter aggregation played entirely a defensive game, and were able to keep the disc away from their net.

On the larger sheet of ice in the auditorium here the Hamilton team did not seem at home, and did not get away as fast as they were able to in Hamilton. On numerous occasions the Kitchener team bombarded the Hamilton goal without results.

Both teams back checked fast, and there was considerable hard body checking, but both teams seemed able to stand the pace, and a couple of slight casualties only resulted.

All the Hamilton players worked a hard game. Reid especially was all over the ice, and in spite of some hard checking was still going fast at the finish. Reise was the most effective man in the first two periods, although even he was unable to pierce the local defence.

There was no score in the first frame. The play was all Kitchener's but the locals were unable to get close in, and Sloan in goal was a bear on all long shots.

In the second frame the Kitchener team got going early, and after about a minute and a half of play Karges carried the disc the length of the ice, shot, rushed in on the rebound, and the first count of the game was chalked up for Kitchener. Klaehn scored the second tally when he picked the puck up in middle ice and took a long shot scoring into the corner of the Hamilton nets. Twenty seconds later Shirk rushed into a scrimmage and pushed in the third, and Kitchener's final count.

In the third period Hamilton started fast and two minutes after the opening of the round McEwen scored Hamilton's only tally on a shot from about ten yards out. The remainder of the period was purely defensive on the part of Hamilton, with Kitchener rushing the rubber back up the ice time after time, but unable to get in close to score. The defensive tactics of the Hamilton team, although good hockey, slowed up the game.

The teams:

First Period—
No score.
Second period.
Kitchener, Karges, 1.40.
Kitchener, Klaehn, 5.20.
Kitchener, Shirk, .20.
Third Period—
Hamilton, McEwen, 2.00.

Summaries of penalties—First period—Kitchener, 6 minutes—Klaehn, Shirk and Krug. Hamilton, 4 minutes—Parker and Reise. Second period—Hamilton 4 minutes—Coir and Parker. Third period—Kitchener, 2 minutes—Coir.

FRENCH LEGION GAINS PRESTIGE IN EUROPE'S WAR

WASHINGTON, D.C., March 10.—An intimate study of the spirit which dominates the famous French Foreign legion in the present world war is given by Lieut. Zinovi Pechkoff in a communication to the National Geographical society.

Lieut. Pechkoff, who was one of the first volunteers to proffer his services to France at the outbreak of the war in August, 1914, is a Russian subject who was unable to return to his own country from Italy in the first few days of the great struggle.

He joined the Foreign legion as a private and after taking part in three thrilling bayonet charges was promoted to the rank of lieutenant, in which capacity he was leading a platoon against an intrenched machine gun position when he received a wound which cost him his right arm.

For his exploit in this charge, which resulted in the capture of four lines of German trenches in forty-seven minutes—the general staff had estimated it would require two and a half hours—Lieut. Pechkoff received the War cross with palms (the highest of the four classes of this order) and the Military Medal for Valour.

Picturesque and Thrilling.

The society's bulletin based on Lieut. Pechkoff's communication, follows:

"The romance and the adventurous exploits associated with the name of the Foreign Legion of France constitute some of the most picturesque and thrilling episodes in the history of that nation during a period extending over the greater portion of the nineteenth century.

"It is not surprising therefore, that when the hour of France's greatest trial arrived in August, 1914, this notable organization, then in service in Morocco and Algeria, should have been among the first bodies of troops to be rushed to the front, nor is it to be wondered at that the legion should have formed the nucleus to which gravitated thousands of eager spirits of other nationalities who felt that the cause of France and French liberties was their own cause.

"The French government was quick to realize the potency in the appeal of the glorious past achievements of the Foreign Legion, and each battalion of the four regiments was made the central unit of a new volunteer regiment.

Totals Over 60,000 Men.

"It should be explained to American laymen that the French regiment is a much larger unit than the regiment of the American army. In France the strength of a company is 250 men; there are four companies to the battalion, four battalions to the regiment. So, with each battalion of the four regiments as a recruiting centre for a new regiment, th strength of the Foreign legion when its sixteen regiments were completed reached a total in excess of 60,000 men.

"When the Legionnaires first reached the firing line trench warfare was in its infancy. No one could then imagine into what it would develop. In the early days of September those lines which afterward grew into the vast labyrinth of ditches and communicating galleries were nothing more than shallow individual holes in which each soldier sought to secure some protection from bursting shrapnel and the hail of steel messengers of disfigurement and death.

"But when the onrushing tide of the German invasion was finally stemmed and the process of rolling it back began then this revolutionary evolution of what is now known as 'trench warfare' was accomplished.

Men of all Nationalities

"When the history of this war comes to be written the foreign legion's share in its hardships, its achievements, and its glories will occupy a page all its own. And on that will appear the names of men of almost every nationality.

Eight American boys, for example, were in my company, and one of the bravest of these was Kiffin Rockwell, a comrade of the trenches, who subsequently joined the aviation corps, and whso tragic death I read just a few days after reaching America.

"The spirit which has dominated the foreign legion throughout this war is strikingly illustrated in the following incident: Upon my return to the front after six months in the American hospital in Paris I was talking with a colonel of the legionnaires, who was wearing a war cross with three branches of palms (having been mentioned in the dispatches of the whole army on three different occasions).

"He seemed to be greatly depressed, and when I asked the cause he explained that the general commanding his division had informed him he was to have the privilege of naming a number of men of his regiment for decoration, following a recent brilliant engagement.

"'How can I choose a number of my men for special honours,' said the colonel, 'when my regiment is composed of 4,000 heroes?'"

IN FOREIGN FIELDS.

In a far and foreign graveyard,
Where the trees their branches wave,
Lies a loving son and brother
In his cold and silent grave.

We think of him in silence,
And his name we often call,
But there's nothing left to answer

We could not stand beside him,
To hear his last farewell;
And not a word of comfort
From those who loved him well.

Often we pause and think of him,
And think of how he died;
To think we could not say good-bye,
Before he closed his eyes.

MARKET TOLLS SYSTEM REMAINS FOR A YEAR

No change in the market tolls system will be made by the Council this year. The simple reason is that the city needs the money. This was the decision arrived at last night. There would not only be the loss of $650 from the market clerk, but a man would have to be engaged to do the work.

VANCOUVER, B. C., March 7.—Mayor McBeath initiated a moral clean-up crusade to-day when the police, at his instructions, issued summonses against a number of hotels and up-town cafes for breaking the regulations by selling liquor after hours, and to girls and youths. BRITISH FORCES ON THE ANCRE ARE TAKING NO CHANCES

Every Step Forward is Systematically Organized and Are Taking Precautions to Avoid Disaster That Overtook the Russians

EVERYTHING LINKED UP

(By William Philip Simms.)

With the British Armies Afield, March 10.—The British, pressing forward after the retreating Germans, do not intend to be trapped. That is patent to anyone noting the systematic organization of every step forward. Everything is linked up. Nothing is left to chance. Hindenburg lured the Russians beyond the Mazurian marshes and then counter attacked, throwing his pursuers back into the roadless swamps of that ground.

The country on the Acre abandoned by the Germans is comparable to the Mazurian Lakes district. The British guns have annihilated every vestige of a road. A goat would have difficulty in negotiating the waste of hillocks, craters and pools made by high explosive shells.

Were the British to pursue the opponents impetuously beyond this trackless loblolly, they might face a disaster similar to that sustained by the Russians around the Mazurian Lakes.

But there is no danger of this. While slowly pressing the Germans backward the Tommies are organizing the country behind them though the task is truly hurculean.

Although the German withdrawal to-day was practically at a standstill, there were a number of indications of considerable activity in the back areas of their lines.

REPRESENTING 26,000 READERS

The Markets At a Glance

"Hardware and Metal," March 10, will say:

There has been no diminution in the number of price advances in hardware lines during the week. Wholesalers express some degree of surprise at the steadily upward trend in so many lines. Wrought iron pipe has advanced again to the extent of $4 per ton. Wire products have been moved upward 25c per 100 lbs. following an advance as recent as last week. One manufacturer has also increased the price of wire nails. Canadian buyers have been endeavouring to place orders for nails in the United States, but without success, and, consequently, must depend on the Canadian source of supply. Cutlery manufacturers in the United States have announced big advances during the week and wholesalers have moved their prices up in conformity. Stocks of cutlery are very low, with little prospect of being replenished in sufficient quantity to meet equirements. Numerous lines of shelf hardware have been marked higher, including thumb latches, axle pulleys, sash weights, box chisels, meat choppers, builders' hardware, wrenches, door checks, nail claws, petroleum faucets. Some manufacturers of screen doors and windows have announced that they will take no further orders this season, as their output is booked up. An advance in galvanized sheets has been recorded. Bathtubs and sinks and other enamelware supplies have been increased in price. Valves of various kinds have also been moved higher in price.

Five Hundred Prisoners Captured In British Advance Towards Bapaume

Village of Irles Was Taken After Sharp Fighting---Latest Achievement Brings British Forces to the Main German Defense Line

POSITIONS WELL DEFENDED

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

LONDON, March 12.—In an advance on a three-mile front, British troops captured the Village of Irles, northeast of Grandcourt and the neighbouring defences. More than five hundred prisoners, fifteen machine guns, and four trench mortars captured. British casualties were slight.

(By William Phillips Simms.)

WITH THE BRITISH AFIELD, March 12.—The capture of Irles by the British forces, brings England's fighting men to the main German defense line between Loupart Wood and Achiet Le Petit. This latest victory achieved by Field Marshal Sir Douglas Haig's troops was cited to-day as an ideal illustration of the curious fighting on the Somme which has entered brand new phase, with the beginning of the German retirement. The once cosy Village of Irles sat almost at the top of the slope leading to the plateau on which is Loupart Wood. There were quarries east and north of the village, with a sunken road on both sides. It was this feature of the ground surrounding the town that made is defense by small units easy.

Here the Germans posted many defenders in groups of eight in charge of a non-commissioned officer. They were armed at machine guns. Each group had orders to stick until specifically told to retire. After the hurricane of the bombardment the British attacked from the west and south, converting their lines. They swept over the ground killing or taking prisoners every German in the pockets thus formed. The fighting was crisp and sharp while it lasted.

SMITH TOWNSHIP HOME DESTROYED

The home of Thomas Spencer on the 11th Concession of Smith Township was destroyed Friday. Mr. Spencer was ill in bed but was removed to safety and is now at the home of a neighbour. Some of the contents of the house were saved.

The fire was first noticed by Mr. Jacob Snelgrove, who was on his way to attend an auction sale. When he reached the house the upper rooms were in flames. A defective chimney is said to have been the cause.

The house was of brick construction and was on the property known as the John Rogers farm. It was the first brick house erected in Smith and at that time was considered the finest residence in the township. The loss is partly covered by insurance.

SOLDIERS WERE DUPED

German Privates Told They Had Participated In Capture of Calais

Writing to his home in London, England, a professional man, who is in Northern France, said:

I have just had a short talk with a group of German prisoners. They were men of an infantry regiment taken prisoner to the southeast of Ypres.

There were 28 altogether. The railway journey seemed to have put them in good humor. They preferred the third class wooden benches of the Northern Railway of France to the misery of the trenches, and no doubt found it more agreeable to receive a good ration of food from the enemy than bullets and shells.

Looking at them one could not help feeling that to these fellows capture was a relief. Meanwhile they have been taken to the south of France where they will find themselves fairly comfortable.

Their ignorance was incredible. They did not even know the name of the town near which they were made prisoners, they had no idea where they were. As for the battle itself, it was in the main an enigma to them. All that they could say was that the order to advance was given and that they had been assured two days before that the allies had been violently attacked to the south and had been obliged to weaken the front opposed to them, and that victory would be easy.

They started by invading one of our trenches, but towards evening they perceived that the allies had completely turned them. Surrounded on every side they gave themselves up, quite glad to have come out of the matter so cheaply.

Their appearance could not have been more neglected or wretched. The youngest prisoner was about 17. He learned that he was going into the fighting line only three days before he was put into the trenches.

The oldest of them professed to be 52. He was a typical peasant, dull and stupid. His ignorance was colossal. He insisted that he had taken part in the capture of Calais.

I tried to persuade him that the port he had entered was not Calais, but Ostend. For an instant his faith was shaken, but he soon recovered his tranquility of mind. "You are mistaken," he said to me. "It was Calais I went into. My officer told me so."

He asked me for tobacco, but I had none. With a disappointed look he climbed up into the compartment, and the train steamed off for the sunny skies of Southern France.

ECONOMY IN PAPER

It is not uncommon in an English shop to hear a customer say, "Never mind about wrapping that up in paper; I will take it as it is," and the paper economy will soon be as much a matter of course as the new practice of carrying all small parcels home. It is a great change, for good, strong brown paper has long been known in Great Britain and France, and always seemed typical of solid British methods, after the crackling yellow-brown wood pastes or gaudy tissues of some parts of the continent.

In Bulgaria, one of the poorer countries, where even cheap German wrapping paper is hardly known, parcels are carefully wrapped in a large square of printed cotton, called a bukhta. The bukhta is an institution. The bread is brought wrapped in check cotton; the shoemaker sends your boots home in a gay colored square; even the wedding presents for a bride are sent in a bukhta. It is returned to the sender by the messenger.

DEADLY GUNCOTTON

Raw Cotton Treated With Acids Becomes a Terrible Explosive

Cotton is an indispensable asset to high explosives. Guncotton is used in enormous quantities for charging torpedoes and mines. Its base is raw cotton or even cotton waste such as is used in cleaning machinery. This is soaked for several hours in baths of nitric and sulphuric acid, and it is then passed between massive steel rollers. These expel every trace of acid which has not been absorbed by the cotton. Through continual soakings in water the acid-charged cotton is reduced to a mass resembling paper pulp, and it is then ready to be moulded into various shapes and sizes. Discs, cylinders, squares, and tubes of guncotton are produced according to the shape of the implement in which it is to be used.

Intense shock or heat explodes guncotton, and its power can be gauged from the fact that it is the force which blows great holes in ships through the agency of mines and torpedoes. The advantages of guncotton for military purposes are that it can stay for any length of time in water without injury; and it ignites at a temperature half that required to explode gunpowder.

A peculiar characteristic of guncotton is that a brick of it, when wet, may be placed on a bed of hot coals, and as the moisture dries out, the cotton will flake and burn quietly. If dry originally, however, the guncotton will explode with terrible force at about 320 degrees of heat.

HINDENBERG'S HOBBIES

Dogs and tobacco are the two passions of General von Hindenburg, the German leader, who is finding the Russians such a hard nut to crack in Poland. His appearance is that of a fighter. He looks very fierce, and that is why he has been described as "terrible."

The best way to Hindenburg's good graces is to steal and present him with a fine dog, or to recommend to him a good cigar. Recently a convoy of choice dogs left the front for Hanover, where Hindenburg lives, under escort of an orderly with a special passport signed by the Field Marshal himself. He smokes incessantly, especially when he is sleepless. He smokes out his plans, and when he has beaten the Russians in thought he doses off.

He likes a grim joke, especially against the Prussian Ministers. Lately two under-secretaries arrived from Berlin, and after giving them an icy reception, he invited them for a drive in his motor car. He drove them right into the line of Russian fire. As they drew near the secretaries did not dare protest, but, as the bullets began to whistle round them they begged the General to stop the car. "Quite impossible," said von Hindenburg, and imperturbably drove on. In a little while, though, the situation became so extremely [illegible] that he had pity on his guests and returned to camp.

Bagdad Captured By The British

Large Stores and Many Prisoners Were Taken—Advance Has Proceeded With Great Rapidity

NATIVE TRIBES ASSIST

Special to the Examiner.

LONDON, March 12.—It is officially announced that British troops have captured Bagdad. Large stores and many prisoners were taken.

The British advance in Mesopotamia, which has covered more ground in a short period than almost any other movement of the war, has been assisted materially by extensive defections of the native tribes from the Turkish rule, according to private mail advices received in New York from Asiatic Turkey. Last month the Turks apparently were entrenched securely on the Tigris below Kutel-Amara, where they had held the British since the capture of General Townshend's army at Kut.

Bedouins are Unified.

A communication from the Irak states that as a result of the action of the Grand Sherif of Mecca several months ago in declaring independence of Ottoman rule various Bedoun tribes have put away their old enmities and united. Peace has been made between the Emir Arah or Rowieh from near Damascus and Hakim Ibn Mahid Hakim, Emir of the great Anseh tribe in the vicinity of Aleppo. These two powerful men have covenanted to unite in assembling for one thing a troop of horsemen to fight the Turks, and have issued a proclamation to their followers calling for men and equipment. In preparation for actual warfare, they were supplied with drill masters, presumably British, who effected the organization of an Arab fighting unit. They are possessed of a great quantity of arms and ammunition of the latest type. Their marching orders are sent from a convenient central base, somewhere in Mesopotamia."

DYSPEPSIA

MOST DIFFICULT TO CURE BUT B. B. B. DOES IT

Dyspepsia is one of the most difficult diseases of the stomach there is to cure.

You eat too much; drink too much; make the stomach work overtime. You make it perform more than it should be called on to do. The natural result is that it is going to rebel against the amount of work put on it. It is only a matter of time before dyspepsia follows.

That forty-year-old remedy, Burdock Blood Bitters, will cure the dyspepsia, and will cure it to stay cured as we can prove by the thousands of testimonials we receive from time to time.

Mr. Neil A. Cameron, Kiltarlity, N S., writes: "I am writing you a few lines to tell you what your great medicine Burdock Blood Bitters has done for me. I was troubled very much with dyspepsia for the past two years. I was recommended all kinds of medicines, but they did not help me any. At last a friend advised me to try a bottle of B.B.B. I took four bottles and was totally cured. I will gladly recommend it to all sufferers."

OUR SERIAL STORY

THE RED PAPER

By C. HOTCHKISS

In the first place, he is afraid of the girl; mistake number one, as she could only obtain that paper through a long and uncertain civil suit. In the second place he and Planet are not alone in this job; there is someone in Kerrsville awaiting them, someone essential to the success of the scheme, and that is why he is going there—that is his second mistake; in the third place you have upset his plans and rattled him, first by charging him with the murder of your father, and second by your knowledge of the value of the map. He knows that you have money and probably fears that you have made a duplicate of the map, as you have seemed to care little for it or have obtained sufficient knowledge from it to start an expedition of your own, stake out the claim yourself and render all this trouble useless. Do you see?"

"I see your point."

"Well to make my theory hold water I have found out that Bagshot has had many telegrams from Kerrsville but I don't know who from, if I did I would have him watched. I have already telegraphed to the sheriff there to hold the outfit when it appears, but the chances are that it will not appear as it left here. As you say, Bagshot is no fool."

"Our chance then is to overtake them?" asked Wentworth catching the shrewdness of Thorp's deductions.

"It seems to be our main chance," returned the officer. "I have much to think of," and drawing away his horse he relapsed into sombre silence.

At the start Wentworth had been amused. The smallness of the horses and the height of the cantle and the horn of the Mexican saddle excited his ridicule, but he had reason to acknowledge the staying powers of the animals and the comfort of the cradle like structure ere he again saw the ancient Texas city.

There was a strong smack of the romantic in his situation in the half-light of the moon, in the silence, in the nature of his errand; and these, with their novelty under the circumstances, had a strong effect on his spirits. Here was a dash of life the like of which he had never before known and he little realized that he was being lifted by the excitement of the greatest and most brutal of all games: the man hunt.

To him it seemed ages since he had left New York, ages since he had been beset by ennui. Ahead lay a glow that tinged the young man's mental horizon and caused his spirits to fly as wildly as sparks in a gale. It was high tide with him—the flooding of love, youth, imagination and perfect health. He was yet to need the sustaining power of each.

As the trio drew from the city limits and ambled over the "black-waxy" of the so-called State Road now turned to a grey powder by the dryness of the season, Wentworth could have lifted his voice and sung from an excess of animal spirits, only there was something grim in the bearing of the young sheriff—a something that repressed any outburst.

In round numbers Leon Springs is twenty-five miles north of San Antonio; and as they had not pushed their pace, it was nearly eleven o'clock when they reached it. They drew rein before an unlighted house with a corral behind it, and by then both Wentworth and Harper were fagged out by the unusual ride. "Stay on your cayuses, gentlemen," said the sheriff, as he swung from his own piebald horse.

"Don't we stop heer?" asked Harper, who was saddle-galled.

"Can't tell yet. Played out?"

"I don't know what you call it but if we have to go farther to-night I am afraid that I will have to walk."

"I think not," was the short reply. "I gave you fair warning."

"You are the boss," said Harper, shifting his big body in the saddle, "but that means eating from a mantle piece and sleeping on my stomach for a month to come. I'm glad that I came."

Thorp smiled grimly. "And this is nothing to what you will have to come to, unless I lose my guess. Never mind, sir, so's you are game. You will get used to it." He left the two in the road, knocked on the door of the house and after a few moments of whispered conversation with the man who answered his summons he came back and got into his saddle. "Gentlemen," he said, "I am a bit puzzled. Our friends have not passed through Leon Springs, but it is likely they flunked it. We will get on to Boerne. My father will know more than we can learn here."

The others groaned inwardly; but the sheriff and his tired posse started again. Five miles beyond Leon Springs they climbed the rampart which stretches across central Texas—an ancient beach to the shallow sea that ages before covered the plain below. From there the character of the country changed to a rolling plateau, covered with clumps of live-oak and patches of woodland broken by lovely savannas. By this the moon was low but it still gave sufficient light to expose the beauty of the new land—the "God's Country" to those who have once known it, and which, after it is left, forever beckons.

But neither of the city men were in condition to appreciate the glory of the prospect nor the beauties of nature; in fact neither was more than half-alive, and the party moved on in dead silence, so far as words were concerned. It was after one o'clock when they forded the Cibola and entered the silent hamlet of Boerne. In an hour more their horses were corraled, and Wentworth and Harper were asleep in the house of the sheriff's father, too exhausted to think. For aught they knew, or cared, Bagshot might have been in the next room.

But the following morning found them in a better shape though suffering from that species of rheumatism which springs from the overtaxed muscles of those who, though horsemen, have not had late practise. When they woke the sun was high and they were startled by the lateness of the hour, wondering why they had been allowed to rest so long. They learned soon enough.

On meeting the sheriff, who showed no signs of either fatigue or haste—though he had not slept at all—their inquiries were met by disappointment.

"They haven't been through Boerne, either and they would likely stop here, if they came this way. They've got to outfit somewhere. Honest Injun, I feel something like a fool about this! I felt sure we would get more than a trace of them here, but you needn't think we have lost them though we have lost the scent for a while. I've been consulting the guv'nor. He wants to see you gentlemen before he starts on his stage trip."

Bud Thorp, the driver of the stage from Boerne to Johnson City in Blanco County, was a man who might have been a well-to-do New England farmer, from appearances. He was clean-shaven, tanned to a deep leather colour, and had his son's eyes—black, piercing, and shrewd. Apparently, he was as open as the day; but for sound sense no one in Kendall County was his superior.

"Harper! Glad to know ye, sir. An' Wentworth—sure, by thunder! Glad to know ye both! Now, Cave," he said, turning to the sheriff, "I'll just naturally con that story again, an' take hearin's. All I can say is no such party has run a course on this settlement — not in no ambulance! Nothin' but cedar-post waggons has gone through Boerne 'sides what goes through on that railroad. I uster drive to San Antonio, gents, but that one-hoss concern made me change my route. Gentlemen, we're just a little off soundin's here, an' not many craft sails by, but what we speak 'em all. What will ye have before we gets to work?"

Both Wentworth and Harper were struck by the marine flavour of the old fellow's words, and wondered at the brine found so far from the ocean. It was evident that the stage-driver had once been a sailor. They were sitting on the veranda of the house; and the sheriff, always with an eye to business, pulled out the warrant, read it, and stated what he knew.

"Good Lord!" said the old man, straightening himself and pushing his spectacles up to his forehead. "Bagshot! Simeon Bagshot! I don't savvy no Planet, but I'm on to Bagshot with both feet from keel to truck. Why, he came from these parts! An' suspected o' killin' a man named Wentworth! Your relation, son?" He swung around to John.

"My father, sir. He was in Texas for some time twelve years ago. Did you ever know him?"

The old man drew his shaggy brows together and pondered. "Did I know your father, san? Well, I dunno as I did; but I knew a Wentworth some thirty-odd years ago. You bet I did; here's what he gave me."

The stage-driver pulled off his Stetson and showed a glistening bald head, across the top of which was a deep, sunken welt—the mark of a terrific scar. He laughed.

"Hearin' that old name seems funny!" he exclaimed. "Well, I hadn't got nothin' ag'in him. Hain't seen him since. I wonder now if that Wentworth could 'a' been your dad, son? We was boys at sea together, an' got inter a row over some money. We was lyin' in Havana Harbour that time, me a hulk of a cabin-boy, an' him a sort o' midshipman-like. Anyhow, we got into a fight—guess it was my fault, I was pretty tough—an' in the thick of it Went fetches me a crack on the knob with a belayin'-pin, an' it nigh finished me for good. Guess he thought he killed me. Anyway, when I got sense again, two days after, Bagshot—he was there, sort o' supercargo — told me he thought I was dead and had told Wentworth so. Went got plumb scared—didn't wait to find out—just skipped right then — jumped overboard and swum ashore. As I said I didn't see him again but I did hear as how he got to be skipper of his own ship, years after, an' got rich. He got away with me, anyhow; and Bagshot he told me as how he got away with the money, too — money that didn't belong to him. But on that last p'int I found out later that Simeon lied—he certainly wa'n't above lyin'. I know for sure that though Went was some high spirted he wasn't no thief. We was just boys together, an'— What's up, sir?"

For John Wentworth had risen slowly to his feet, his face gray. "As heaven is above me?" he fairly groaned. "My father has been fighting a shadow for over thirty years—a shadow—a hideous ghost held up to him by the man we are after! Bagshot is twice a murderer!"

Harper looked stunned; the stage-driver appeared puzzled. "What d'ye mean?" he asked, pausing in the act of lighting the pipe he had been filling. Wentworth turned to him, his face becoming radiant. "I thank God for this meeting, sir! It has been more than chance! You may laugh at me when I tell you I think it is God's justice. The man who struck you was my father. He always thought he had killed you, and Simeon Bagshot held him to that belief, on the strength of it blackmailing him before he killed him—and killed him because he would not betray his trust and clear the paper, the value of which both knew. The fancy that he was a criminal worried the joy from my father's life. Why did he not investigate? The ghost would have been easily laid!"

"Be you his son—sure?" shouted the old man, droping his pipe and getting to his feet.

"Yes, without a doubt! My father was Captain Wentworth—was commander of his own ship — and did make fortunate voyages and investments. He told me of some crime he had committed when a boy at sea and while in a passion."

And Wentworth, hurriedly and with some pardonable incoherence, retailed the story of the night his father died.

Old Thorp stood bareheaded, listening eagerly; then he dashed his hat to the floor of the veranda, and grasped the young man's hand.

"Hain't got the least feelin's agin' ye, son—nor yer father, either. But I savvy Bagshot like readin' his log. I know him though I hain't seen him for more'n five year. Ye got to get him, Cave, you just got to get him! Tell me what you've done, an' why ye think he's come this way."

The sheriff explained the course of his reasoning, and the old man laughed in derision.

"You hain't been wonderful smart for an officer, Cave! I see the hull thing!"

SUGGESTIONS TO SICK WOMEN

How Many Are Restored To Health.

First.—Almost every operation in our hospitals performed upon women becomes necessary through neglect of such symptoms as backache, irregular and painful periods, displacements, pain in the side, burning sensation in the stomach, bearing down pains, nervousness, dizziness and sleeplessness.

Second.—The medicine most successful in relieving female ills is Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It regulates and strengthens the organism; it overcomes disease.

For forty years it has been making women strong and well, relieving backache, nervousness, ulceration and inflammation, weakness, displacements, irregularity and periodic pains. It has also proved invaluable in preparing for childbirth and the Change of Life.

Third.—The great number of unsolicited testimonials on file at the Pinkham Laboratory at Lynn, Mass., many of which are from time to time published by permission, are proof of the value of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, in the treatment of female ills.

FEW FOLKS HAVE GRAY HAIR NOW

Druggist Says Ladies Are Using Recipe of Sage Tea and Sulphur

Hair that loses its colour and lustre, or when it fades, turns gray, dull and lifeless, is caused by a lack of sulphur in the hair. Our grandmother made up a mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur to keep her locks dark and beautiful, and thousands of women and men who value that even colour, that beautiful dark shade of hair, which is so attractive, use only this old time recipe.

Nowadays we get this famous mixture improved by the addition of other ingredients by asking at any drug store for a 50-cent bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," which darkens the hair so naturally, so evenly, that nobody can possibly tell it has been applied. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; but what delights the ladies with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, is that, besides beautifully darkening the hair after a few applications, it also brings back the gloss and lustre and gives it an appearance of abundance.

Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is a delightful toilet requisite to impart colour and a youthful appearance to the hair. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

An Exchange of Tokens

It Was Made on New Year's Eve.

By F. A. MITCHEL

A convivial party had assembled to see the old year out and the new year in. Among them were Lena Wadsworth and Frank Andrews. The company had not yet passed into the supper room, and these two were sitting apart from the others.

"Come, Lena," said Frank, "you have put me off long enough. Give me my answer."

"You know very well why I have put you off, Frank. You are captivated by every pretty girl you meet. If I said yes, before three months had elapsed you would wish to be released. I have no fancy for such an engagement."

"Try me."

Miss Wadsworth toyed with a flower she held in her hand and remained silent. Finally she said:

"I will not consent to an engagement, but I will say this: If one year from tonight you can assure me that you have not made love to another girl you can ask me again to be your wife, and I will accept you."

"That's assuming all the constancy is on your side."

"I think it is."

The party was as gay as the supper was excellent. The guests sat down at the table at 10 o'clock and left it at 3 a. m. A great deal of wine was drunk, and doubtless a great many things were said that were not well considered before the saying. The party broke up singing "Auld Lang Syne," and half an hour later the banquet hall, deserted, bespoke the evanescence of all worldly pleasures.

At 11 o'clock the next morning Frank Andrews awoke. On a table beside his bed were his eyeglasses, his watch and a gold locket in the shape of a heart. The eyeglasses and the watch were familiar objects in a familiar place. But the gold heart? Frank looked at it earnestly, then thoughtfully. How it had come to be with the other articles he could not imagine.

That which had deepest root within him first showed itself above a confusion of happenings pertaining to last night's conviviality. He remembered one thing perfectly. He had persuaded Lena Wadsworth to be his wife on condition that he remained true to her for one year. But he had no remembrance of her giving him this bauble in token of the agreement.

Whence then had it come? Had some one dropped it, and had he found it? Had some one given it to him as a token of something now forgotten? Up to the present moment his connection with it was a blank.

Pushing an electric button, he called the butler.

"James," he said, "when you were here last did you notice that—that gold locket?"

"No, sir; I didn't see it, sir."

"Did you observe this table especially?"

"Yes, sir; I did. There was a glass on it, and I removed it, sir."

"Nothing else?"

"No, sir."

Frank thought for awhile, the butler waiting. Finally Frank asked:

"Any mail this morning?"

"Yes, sir. One delivery about half an hour ago."

"Bring it up."

There were several inclosures of bills and a scented missive addressed in a delicate feminine hand. Frank opened it and read:

Dearest—I cannot sleep without saying to you that you have made me, oh, ever so happy. And I am going to step out to the letter box right before the door and post this, so that you'll get it tomorrow morning and have a pleasant New Year

WHEN YOU CAN'T SLEEP

YOU SHOULD USE MILBURN'S HEART and NERVE PILLS

Sleeplessness is caused by the nervous system becoming deranged.

Perhaps too much worry has gotten on your nerves, perhaps you have overworked yourself, or have been excessive in your use of tobacco, but whatever the cause, the nervous system must be built up again before restful sleep can be assured.

Those whose rest is broken into by frightful dreams, nightmares, sinking and smothering sensations, who wake up in the morning as tired as they went to bed can have their old, peaceful, undisturbed, refreshing sleep back again by using Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills.

Mrs. John Sloan, Haley Station, Ont., writes: "Over a year ago I was very nervous. I could not sleep at night, and I would faint at the slightest fright. I tried several doctors, but they did me practically no good. I noticed your advertisement, and immediately tried Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, and I am proud to say they cured me."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50c a box or three for $1.25, at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

day afternoon. How can I wait till I see you again? Come as soon as you can and tell me again, tell me a thousand times, that you love me. I have your gold pencil, and you have my heart. May the pledges they stand for be sacredly kept. Your loving GWEN.

P. S.—A million kisses.

"Oh, my good"—

Frank finished the exclamation with a groan. He must have fallen again, and this was the longest fall he had ever made. Who was Gwen? Most of the girls present at the New Year's party he knew by their family names, but not their Christian names. There were Miss Willis, Miss Exerhart and Miss Worthington, whom he knew quite well, but which one, if any, of them was Gwen? He looked for a heading to the note, but there was not even a date. The postmark was no guide at all.

What deepened the mystery was that Frank had not immoderately indulged in the potent cup. There was no time during the evening that he indulged in lovemaking with an exchange of pledges that he would not have been conscious of the fact. But here was indisputable evidence that he had. There was no other explanation. He went over every episode, so far as he could recall them, that had occurred during the evening without result. Both five hours at an exhilarating supper party embraced a good deal.

"All I've got to say," remarked Mr. Andrews to himself, "is that if I'm to be made happy every New Year's morning in this way I trust I shall end my earthly career on the 31st of December next."

There were two horns to the trouble. One was a fear that Lena would learn that he had fallen from grace within a few hours after he had assured her of his constancy, the other his ignorance as to who was the girl he had exchanged pledges with. Getting out of bed, he took up his dress vest and felt in the pocket where he carried his gold pencil. It was gone. Oh, how he tried to remember where it had gone! Of all his horrible entanglements—and he had passed through a number of them—this was the worst.

There would have been something like comfort in his not remembering the girl he had made love to had it not been that he shrank from doing a dishonorable act. The girl, not receiving a visit from him, would suppose that he intended to jilt her and would be too proud to trouble him again. But, from such a position he shrank. And would she not tell some friend who would tell another and the matter finally get to Lena?

There were so many awful things that might grow out of his relapse that he resolved to banish them all. With one kick he removed the bedclothes and in a few minutes was driving the blood out of his head with a shower bath. Then when dressed he sallied forth for breakfast.

Time was when New Year's day was devoted to calls. This custom having passed away it is a holiday without any especial object. Andrews wished that he could relieve his mind by work. During the afternoon he received by messenger a note from Lena. A new shock greeted him when he read it:

Mr. Andrews—After what occurred last night I do not consider it necessary to keep you waiting a year for an answer, which may as well be given now in the negative. I am aware of what passed between you and my new rival. I regret that I am not indifferent as to your action, but it is better that I should suffer now than as your wife. Trusting that you may be happy with the girl with whom you exchanged tokens, I am yours wellwisher. LENA.

Frank rested his elbows on his knees and his head in his palms and groaned. He saw no hope anywhere. The night before on account of his constitutional failing he had been required to wait a year before being accepted by the girl he loved; now he had to wait forever. In his position with regard to Lena he forgot his position to this Gwen, whoever she might be. What should he do to palliate his offense to Lena? He did not see that he could do anything.

It is questionable if there was ever a lover who was without hope till the lady of his love had passed to another, and Frank Andrews was no exception. About 8 o'clock in the evening he called Lena on the telephone.

"Will you be at home this evening?" he asked.

"Yes."

"May I call?"

"I shall be pleased to see you."

There was nothing in the replies or the tone of voice in which they were spoken either to reassure or discourage him as to an ultimate forgiveness. He would go to Lena and see what he could do.

Lena kept him waiting a few minutes, then entered the room where he was with neither vindictiveness nor encouragement. He judged that it was indifference.

"I received your note," he said gloomily. "I thought I would come to at least say goodby."

"You began your trial at 10 o'clock on Dec. 31 and proved your inconstancy at 1 o'clock on Jan. 1 of the next year. You were true to me just three hours."

"You remember how much champagne"—

"You can't plead that you didn't know what you were doing. You did not drink wine enough to mar your memory of me. Besides, if true, that would be no excuse."

"You see, Gwen and I were playmates when we were children. I used to carry her books to and from school. I had no idea then and have never had since that she thought any more of me than any other fellow. I presume something I said last night sounded to her like lovemaking, and she—well, she, thinking that I— Of course I couldn't turn her down in a brutal fashion, you know"—

Lena burst into a laugh.

"Frank Andrews, you are the biggest humbug I have ever known in the whole course of my life!"

"I swear"—

"Don't commit perjury."

"Then you will not permit me to explain?"

"There is no need of an explanation from you. It must come from me."

Frank looked at her in bewilderment.

"There is no such person as Gwen. Last night it occurred to me to play a joke on you. I have for years worn a sort of amulet around my neck—a gold locket. I saw Charlie Hartwell ask you for a pencil, and you handed him your gold pencil case. I took it from Charlie and didn't give it back to him. Here it is."

A relieved smile began to break out on Frank's face.

"Handing Charlie my gold heart, I asked him to slip it into your vest pocket. He did so while you were engaged in an animated discussion with Alma Wardswell. You forgot your pencil and did not know about the heart being put in your pocket. The rest is easy for you to understand without my saying anything more."

Frank made one bound for her.

And that's the end of the story. He made a bluff himself later on, telling Lena that she should either marry him as soon as she could get her trousseau together or she could not marry him at all. The matter was compromised by a six months' trial period, during which Frank behaved himself very well, and the nuptials were duly celebrated.

Amended.

Thackeray tells of a peasant woman begging alms from him, who, seeing him putting his hands in his pockets, said:

"May the blessings of Providence follow you," but when he only pulled out his snuffbox she immediately added, "and never overtake you."

An Inside Bath Makes You Look and Feel Fresh

Physicians the world over recommend the inside bath, claiming this is of vastly more importance than outside cleanliness, because the skin pores do not absorb impurities into the blood, causing ill health, while the pores in the ten yards of bowels do.

Men and women are urged to drink each morning, before breakfast a glass of hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it, as a harmless means of helping to wash from the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels the previous day's indigestible material, poisons, sour bile and toxins; thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach.

Just as soap and hot water cleanse and freshen the skin, so hot water and limestone phosphate act on the eliminative organs.

Those who wake up with bad breath coated tongue, nasty taste or have a dull, aching head, sallow complexion, acid stomach; others who are subject to bilious attacks or constipation, should obtain a quarter pound of lime stone phosphate at the drug store. This will cost very little but is sufficient to demonstrate the value of inside bathing. Those who continue it each morning are assured of pronounced results, both in regard to health and appearance.

CANADIAN MUSIC AS VIEWED BY DR. VOGT

Former Head of Mendelssohn Choir Desired to See Big Permanent Orchestra in Toronto

The music-loving citizen of Toronto and of the country generally learned with very great regret that Dr. A. S. Vogt had discontinued his work as conductor of the Toronto Mendelssohn Choir. During its twenty years of active existence under his baton the choir appeared in seventy-eight concerts, sixty-two of which were given in Massey Music Hall, four in Carnegie Hall, New York, one in Symphony Hall, Boston, six in Elmwood Music Hall, Buffalo, two in Gray's Armory, Cleveland, and three in Orchestra Hall, Chicago. Dr. Vogt was accorded one year's leave of absence in 1912-13 in order to visit the great music centres of Europe preparatory to the proposed but deferred visit of the Mendelssohn Choir to Great Britain and the continent.

Leaders Should Specialize

In withdrawing from choral work, Dr. Vogt was influenced by a firm conviction that the musical life of Canada's larger cities had developed to a point which demanded concentration on the part of some of the city's prominent musicians along special lines of activity, rather than by a weakening of their influence through attention to a number of sometimes conflicting spheres of work. The remarkable growth of the Toronto Conservatory of Music, with the marked expansion of its examinations throughout the Dominion, and the plans adopted by the musical director governing the public recitals of the institution, required, for their proper development Dr. Vogt's undivided attention.

It was his intention to take an active part in a serious movement to interest the citizens of Toronto in the local orchestral situation. In the opinion of many patrons of music an effort worthy of the importance of the cause should result in the establishment of a permanent Symphony Orchestra in Toronto on a scale inviting comparison with the great orchestras of New York, Boston, Chicago, Minneapolis, rendering it unnecessary to seek American orchestral assistance for any of Canada's most important concerts.

Great National Body

In giving up his connection with the Mendelssohn Choir, Dr. Vogt withdrew from a creation of his own which had brought great honor to himself and his native Province and Canada. As a practical indication of the high artistic standing of the choir in Boston and New York it may be mentioned that when the organization was perfecting its plans for the proposed European tour of 1915, which was abandoned because of the war, amongst the propositions then laid before the choir was one from the Boston Symphony Orchestra for the co-operation en route of the choir in two concerts, for a performing fee of $6,000.

ECZEMA ON THE HEAD.

Mr. Peterson, South Bay, Ont., writes: For years I suffered a sort of eczema on the head. I tried four different doctors, giving each a fair trial, but the disease grew worse and spread to my arms. I got Dr. Chase's Ointment, and it has entirely cured me. I give you my name because I want other sufferers to know about this splendid Ointment.

WORKER, HOME-LOVER IS SIR EDWARD KEMP

Reserved, Shy Public Man—Masterful Character—A Lover of Flowers and Toil

Sir Edward Kemp is a man of very considerable native and natural dignity. "A strong-willed, masterful man is Kemp," one who knows him well said of him. "He is nothing out of the way as a speaker, but he makes a splendid administrator, and has remarkable executive ability. He is a man of great reticence and reserve. But this reticence and reserve have their origin rather in shyness than in unsociability. He is the last man in the world to court publicity. Nor is he any popularity-hunter."

Not Easy to Talk to

Sir Edward Kemp has not a particularly good manner with strangers. He is not an easy man to talk to. And though not devoid of humor, he is on the serious side. He takes himself seriously, as he takes his politics and takes his business. He is a prodigious worker, and quite unsparing of himself. It is his habit to go to Ottawa on Sunday night and to return to Toronto for the week-end on the Saturday morning following. All the Saturday he spends at his business. Then when Sunday comes he is a pretty tired man.

His Beautiful Home

His beautiful house, Castle Frank, overlooking the Don Valley, is considered by many people to be the loveliest house in Toronto. It is a big house of some twenty-five rooms or so, with fine gardens of about thirteen acres in extent. Everything about the house—all the appointments and arrangements—is the very acme of comfort. It is, in fact, a house which has been designed for comfort, and resembles an English country house more perhaps than does any other dwelling in Toronto. There is plenty of glass, and an abundance of flowers, of which Sir Edward Kemp is extremely fond.

"Gassed" Neighbors Children

Sentence of three months' hard labor was passed at Warwickshire Quarter Sessions on a Coventry tool maker named Ernest Lord, charged with causing acetylene gas to be taken by two children so as to do them bodily harm. The prisoner was alleged to have made a hole through the wall from his bedroom to the next door house and passed the gas into a room where two children were in bed. There was stated to be some trouble between the prisoner and his neighbor.

Climbing Fish

The curious climbing fish of Brazil actually climbs trees, so that frequently, when a hunter shoots at a bird in a tree he may find that he has also brought down a fish.

BILL SIKES' GRIEVANCE

"Holiday Thief" Was Caught For Trying Lucky Too Often

A certain prominent British prison official used to take his annual holiday regularly during the first weeks in September, when he would lock up his house and hand the key to a local agent. For two years in succession the holiday burglar had paid the premises a visit, and when his third year's holiday became due, knowing something of the rogue's fondness for returning constantly to the same spot, he decided to remain and see whether he could lay a trap for the intruder.

His house was, as usual, shut up and deserted, but he returned home stealthily. On the fourth day, when he should, in the ordinary course of events, have been well out of town, he discovered two men entering his premises through a back window. He waited until they were busily engaged indoors, and then, summoning help, he caught them redhanded.

When the rascals were brought before the magistrate, one of them remarked in surly tones that "it was jolly hard lines that Government officials did not take their holidays at the same time every year!"

CHRISTMAS IS IMPERIAL

Australians Share Great Festival as Link and Holiday

During Christmas week the Australian railways are working at full pressure. One of the earliest signs of the approaching festival which the bush people notice is a long double-engined train racing past at an unusual time of the day. This is the "special" taking people home for their holidays, and runs through about 500 miles of bush.

In the interior of the continent where the communities are very small and very scattered, the Christmas traditions are just as strong. Two or three drovers, travelling stock down to the coast, will halt and spend Christmas day with as much luxury as their supplies will allow. The men who live on the distant boundaries of the big sheep stations will ride into the homestead for Christmas. Here the owner, or manager, will give special orders for a feast of some kind, and a Chinese cook will struggle with time-honored British bill of fare.

But one little thing, and a very important thing, too, is always absent from the Christmas feast, and that is the sprig of holly with red berries to put in the Christmas pudding. Some people are fortunate enough to have friends in England who post them a bit.

One thing is certain, that Christmas will never die out in Australia. There will not even be a chance for another day to share the grandeur of Christmas day. It is a link with the old country; it is one of those bonds of empire; the Australian feels that it is a day he shares with the homeland and likes to know that he is carrying out the traditions of the great and beloved mother country.

For the Motorist

If the marks on the positive and negative terminals of your storage battery become obscure it is an easy matter to identify them. Take a glass of water and add a pinch of salt, or about a teaspoonful of electrolyte. Run a wire from each battery terminal into the water, being careful that the wires do not touch each other. Bubbles will appear on the negative wire. Then mark a deep plug sign in the case near the positive terminal.

Still the Nation's Hope

It is as a community centre that the little old red school house is to attain again its high place in the national life of any agricultural country. In it the teacher of the Three R's can also be the teacher of husbandry and patriotism and co-operation. The rural public school belongs increasingly to old and young.

Child Exchange With Russia

An exchange of children was suggested by Mr. Pardoe Thomas, president of the Newport, England, Chamber of Commerce, at a meeting of the Chamber as a solution of the language and other difficulties in promoting commercial relations and good feeling between England and Russia. "Let a hundred thousand British children be sent annually to live in Russia, and vice versa," he said.

ARE BATHS NECESSARY?

This looks like a foolish question in this enlightened age, but there are nearly a million Americans who knew nothing of Internal Bathing a few years ago and are now eager to testify that they are fully as essential to health as External Baths.

By a purely natural process of nature—by using warm water, the "J. B. L. Cascade" removes All the poisonous waste from the Lower Intestine, which physicians agree is the cause of 95 per cent. of all human ailments.

It instantly removes constipation, properly regulates the bowels and prevents all the drooping-down which Fibbermen and Liver Troubles always create.

E. W. Southall, M.D., of Geneseo, N.Y., writes:—

"I challenged the doctors in this town last week in regard to what I can do with your 'Cascade.' I can say for a truth that I know the reason for my success with many serious illnesses was due to having the bowels washed out once and sometimes twice a day. I only wish I could make the people in general believe in the efficiency of a good bowel washing. Sincerely yours."

The Warren Drug Company, Peterborough have filled a tremendous demand for "J. B. L. Cascades" in the past few years, and will show and explain it to you on request. A fresh and interesting booklet on Internal Bathing, "Why Men of To-day Is Only 60 Per Cent. Efficient," can also be obtained for the asking. If you prefer, write to Dr. Chas. A. Tyrrell, 151 College street, Toronto, for same.

STORM WINDOWS VITAL

Fuel Economy Depends Upon Radiation Losses—Saving One-half

The cost of fuel is a large item of expense to the householder. Anything that can be done to reduce this cost without suffering inconvenience from the cold should be welcomed by all. The average householder has but little knowledge of the principles and application of heating, and there are many portions of Canada where the saving of fuel by the use of storm windows (commonly known as double windows) is not fully appreciated.

Heat is lost from a building in two ways, by (1) radiation, that is, that transferred through walls, windows and other exposed surfaces by conduction and lost, and (2) convection currents, or leakage, namely the losses through the openings around windows, doors, etc. By the opening of outside doors much heat is lost. This, to a great extent, can be overcome by the use of storm or outside doors. Better still is the storm porch, which allows of one door being closed before the other is opened. This porch may be removable, to permit of the use of all verandah space in summer.

The radiation losses are usually of greater importance than the convection. As losses due to radiation from walls, floor, ceiling and doors are determined by the structural features of the house, they are largely unavoidable. The most serious radiation losses are from windows and the saving of heat resulting from the use of storm windows is largely due to the layer of dead air—one of the best non-conductors—between the inner and the storm sashes. Storm windows also prevent uncomfortable drafts.

The great heat loss from single windows is demonstrable. A square foot of window surface radiates as much heat as 1½ square feet of an 8-inch brick wall surface. Storm windows reduce the loss to nearly one-half of this amount. In addition, they reduce the loss due to leakage and save from 10 to 15 per cent. of the fuel bill.

The National Anthem

Dr. F. G. Bons, one of London Council's inspectors, reports that a form of the anthem, in Latin and in English, probably existed in the time of James II. and perhaps of Charles II. Its authorship is unknown. The earliest extant form of the anthem, with music was published about 1719, the opening line being "God Save our Lord the King." Dr. Bons concludes that there is no original version. The anthem has grown like a folk ballad. Dr. J. E. Borland, L.C.C., musical adviser, says we probably owe the germ idea of the tune to Dr. John Bull (1563-1628), the first Gresham Professor of Music.

HEADS OR TAILS?

By ESTHER VANDEVEER

"Excuse me, Tom," she said one day, "but if I am to be your wife I think I have a right to know whether it is to be months or years before the wedding."

"I wish I could tell you, but I can't. I'm afraid you'll have to wait till I am in a position to say 'Name the day.'"

"Why can't I know what contributes to or detracts from your ability to say that?"

"Well, you had better not know the many drawbacks that continually come up before me. Naturally they are discouraging. If I told you about them they would fret you. That would react on me, and instead of having only myself to bolster up I would have you also."

There the matter dropped.

One evening when he called on her she was not at home. He called again several times during the week and she was always away. Sunday evening he found her in. He mentioned having called without seeing her and expected her to give a reason for not being at home. She went on talking about other matters without doing so. He did not ask for an explanation, but when the next week he again found her out every evening that he called he expressed surprise at the change in her habits.

"I presume you consider," she said, "that you have a right to know everything that I do. I don't admit that you have. We are not married and may never be married. Even when married you will only have a right to know what I am doing provided I know the same of you."

This was a view of the matter he had not considered. He was aware that it was intended as retaliation for his own refusal to give her his confidence, and he had nothing further to say.

Not long after this he took a partner in his business. Quite likely had not this withdrawal of confidence on both sides taken place he might have mentioned the fact of this addition to the firm and given the reason for it. It would certainly have been a pleasant matter to communicate, for the additional capital brought him almost certainly insured his success. But the struggle was on between the lovers, and one withholding of confidence brought another. She heard of the change in her lover's firm, but not from him.

It had scarcely occurred when he informed her that his affairs were now in such condition that he would be pleased to have her name the day. She named one year from the next first of January, in all about fifteen months.

By this time he was ready for any counterstroke she might make in this battle of denied confidences and did not ask her why she proposed to make him wait so long. But it did not suit her purpose to leave him in ignorance. She had accepted the position of assistant to a wealthy woman who was president of a society of suffragists and in consideration of certain advances made by her employer had agreed to serve eighteen months. She was busy most of the day and in the evening wrote a great many letters in the president's name.

She had hoped that he would show some disappointment in having to wait so long for her, but if he felt it he controlled its expression. He merely said that, such being the case, they would have to wait, but since a great deal might happen in a year and a half, perhaps it would be better to leave the matter of the wedding day open. She didn't like this; her idea was to tie him down to a fixed day and make him wait for it.

He did not call so often as formerly, giving as a reason that he did not care to draw her away from her duties. She said that the correspondence had been delegated to another, and her evenings would be free. Nevertheless he confined his visits to Sunday nights.

This status was maintained till the period of her engagement with the president was about to expire, when her lover informed her that his business would require a six months' trip abroad, and the wedding had better be postponed till after his return. This was a home thrust, but she had a counterstroke ready. She told him that she concurred heartily. She had been offered the position of secretary to a wealthy bachelor and would like to try it for awhile. It would therefore suit her to postpone the day for a year instead of six months.

This was playing the joker. He cursed inwardly, but not outwardly. He said that a year's interval before the marriage would suit him very well. He was to leave on his trip in a week and would call the day before sailing to say goodby.

She went up to her room, locked the door and had a good cry.

The day before he was to sail he called. The hour was 4 in the afternoon. The ship was to be pulled out at 2 the next morning.

"I am going to flip a coin," he said.

She abated her pride so far as to ask him what for, and he said he would tell her if it came down heads up. If it came down tails there would be nothing to tell.

It came down heads.

"I flipped," he said, "to determine whether we should contiue this nonsense longer or that we be married this evening, go aboard the ship by midnight and take the trip together. It was heads that we do."

She flew upstairs to do her packing They were on board by 11 p.m.

Taking Her Down.

"My farewell appearance was an occasion of the greatest enthusiasm," said one prima donna.

"Yes," replied the other. "Isn't it remarkable that such a large number of people should have seemed so delighted to hear you for the last time?" —Washington Star.

For Grandma's Feelings.

Little Marion had been sharply reprimanded by her mother for saying things that hurt her grandmother's feelings. Later the youngster was found at the medicine cabinet, and when questioned she replied, "I'm looking for the arnica to rub on grandma."

Thoughtfulness.

Little Maud was suffering from an aching tooth. She called her mother to the sofa on which she was lying and said:

"Mamma, if I should die please don't forget to put my dolls in mourning."—Chicago News.

EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE

MISSES' AND SMALL WOMEN'S DRESS.

By Anabel Worthington.

A frock for the senior girl that has much artistic merit is shown by this illustration. The collar gives a note of individuality and smartness, and one does not have to look long to see that other style features of the season are cleverly blended.

The waist of the dress is cut quite full and gathered at the lower edge after a tuck has been made in the front and turned toward the armhole to achieve the panel effect. In each half of the front gore of a two gore gathered skirt a plait is introduced and this treatment also gives panel front, so that the straight line idea is carried out the full length of the frock in the approved style. The sleeve may be long or short; the picture shows how attractive the long sleeve is with fulness below the elbow that is gathered at the wrist under a strap cuff, to which a frill of contrasting goods is added for effectiveness, and to bring the collar note into the sleeve.

A wide belt of the collar material holds the fulness of the garment, which has been drawn to the sides and back; with a buttoned strap at centre front the belt is quite decorative. There is plenty of opportunity for employing braid or trimming with hand embroidery.

Serge, silk, satin, poplin, linen in two colors and similar weaves are suitable for developing. For style and economy in dress you should copy this design from the pattern.

The dress pattern, No. 8148, cuts in sizes 14 to 20. To make in size 16 requires 4¼ yards of 36 inch material; ⅝ of a yard of contrasting goods.

To obtain the pattern send 12 cents to the office of this publication.

When ordering remember to give your name and address as well as the number and size of pattern required, and age of a child.

Price 10 cents, or 2 for 25 cents.

An Original Expedient

By ALAN HINSDALE

"Father," said Johnnie, "tell me a story."

"All right; I'll tell you a story about an elopement.

"When I was a young man I secured a position with a maker of artificial limbs. I traveled through the country selling legs and arms and other surgical contrivances to the small dealers.

"One day I was driving along a road with my wagon load of samples when I overtook a pretty girl walking the same way I was going. I asked her if I couldn't give her a lift. She accepted the offer and got in on the vacant seat beside me.

"Her name was—let me see, what was her name? Well, we'll call her Susie. That was the first girl who ever snuggled up to me, and I tell you I stuck to her like a kitten to a foot warmer. In truth, it was one of those cases of love at first sight, and I couldn't tell you which fell in love with the other first. She was going to town to do some shopping, and I arranged with her to drive her back the same afternoon.

"I didn't go into the house with her when we reached her home. You see, it wouldn't look right that I had picked up Susie on the road. But the next time I went over the route I called with a letter of introduction"—

"Who from?" interrupted Eva.

"Well, I didn't intend to say anything about that, but since you want to know Susie gave me the name of a friend of hers, and I wrote the letter myself, signing the friend's name. I called on Susie, presented the letter, and she received me as a stranger. Of course that wasn't a nice thing to do, but Susie had told me that her father was a cranky old man and she couldn't make a young man's acquaintance without his asking innumerable questions about how, when and where she had met him."

"When does the elopement begin?" asked Johnnie.

"It begins right here. I visited Susie and courted her. From the first her father opposed me, and when I asked him for his daughter he refused me point blank. Susie wouldn't give me up, and there was nothing for it but to run away and be married. By this time winter had come on, and that winter there was a great deal of snow. After a big storm I started on a business trip in a sleigh. Susie had written me that her father had been called on to serve on a jury and was away most of the time. Her mother sympathized with Susie and me, so she didn't count against us. I drove up to the house one afternoon, and the father being at the county seat, Susie and I concluded that it was as good a time as any to go off and get married. Susie's mother didn't object, and we started.

"We hadn't been gone long when Susie's father came home. He asked her mother where she was, and the poor woman looked guilty. He forced her to admit that Susie and I had gone off to be married and to tell him which way. Then he got into the sleigh he had come home in, and away he went lickety split after us to head us off before we could get married.

"Susie was looking back all the while, and presently, when we were on a rise, she saw her father coming some two or three miles away. Then I knew I was in for a chase."

"Did you lick your horse?" asked Johnnie.

"You bet I did, my boy. But he had no speed in him. I used him simply to jog through the country, carrying me and my samples, stopping here and there, and for this I didn't need a fast horse. The consequence was that Susie's father, having the best animal in his stable, gained on us.

"I was full of expedients, and as I drove on racked my brain for one to delay our pursuer. I remembered that there was a bridge ahead, a small, rickety affair. If I could have time to ruin that bridge behind me I could keep my pursuer from getting over it and in that way I might escape. Then an idea struck me how to cause the delay.

"Passing from a rise down into a place where there was a deep snowdrift beside the road, I pulled up, took a couple of artificial legs from my samples and asked Susie for her shoes. She took them off, and I put them on the wooden feet, got out of the sleigh and stuck the legs in the snowdrift, leaving only the feet and ankles exposed. Then I got back into the sleigh and started on again.

"'What's that for?' asked Susie.

"'He'll see the feet sticking out o the snow, think you're buried head down and stop to pull you out. If he takes enough time doing it I'll be able to send that bridge sailing down with the current.'

"The bridge was beyond the next hill and, after crossing it, I got out and worked like a beaver till I had loosened the supports and dropped them into the stream. Of course they couldn't be replaced in a hurry, and when I had completed the wreck I breathed easy. I was driving away when I saw our pursuer on the rise behind us. But the race was over. He couldn't get across the stream, and I took my time in driving to a parson's, where Susie and I were married."

"John," said the wife and mother who had come in in time to hear the climax of the story, "you ought to be ashamed of yourself to make up such stuff for the children."

A KING CAN HELP HIMSELF

By M. QUAD

Copyright, 1916, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

His royal nibs of Persia, finding that his treasury was empty again and that a prima donna would soon visit his capital to sing for him and would expect a sunburst as big as a dinner plate, called Murphy, his royal treasurer, to him and said:

"Murphy, thus far you have been a flat failure. Your suggestions about how to raise money have not been worth peanut shucks."

"Your highness, can a man make money out of nothing at all?" replied Murphy. "When I came here you had a full treasury; you had horses and carriages; you had a few diamonds left. Where have they gone? Excuse my plain speech, but you have wasted them in spite of all I could do. If they are gone, is it my fault?"

"Of course it is your fault," said the king. "It was your business as treasurer to keep my coffers supplied as fast as I emptied them. I am a king and must live as a king, and my treasurer must be constantly planning new ways to uphold my dignity. As a king who is almost dead broke can I have dignity? You know I can't. You don't seem to care a red cent whether I am humiliated or not."

"But I do care, O king. I care so much and have planned so much that my head is buzzing all the time. Just now it would be a relief to part with it."

"But I rather like you, after all, Mr. Murphy, and I shall let you keep your head on your shoulders for awhile and try to teach you something about finance. It is true that I spend large sums of money and that I have the reputation of being a waster, but I know how to financier and get the rhino back. For instance, bring hither a poker deck."

Murphy disappeared for two minutes and then came back, bringing a pack of cards and a face that showed dejection and despair. He had had that trick worked on him before, and it was coming again.

"Now, then, Murphy, I owe you about $5,000 back salary, don't I?" asked the king.

"It's all of that, your majesty," was the reply.

"Well, I'll give you a chance to win some more. Cut for deal. I take the first deal. How many cards do you want?"

"None, O king."

"Ah-ah! You have got a pat hand, eh? Well, what is your bet?"

Murphy replied that he would go $10, and when the king saw him and raised him $10 more he had to keep it up. It finally came to a showdown with $500 in the pot, and the king showed a straight, while Murphy showed a flush.

"I take the pot!" exclaimed the king.

"Not on that hand, your majesty. I have a flush here, and a flush beats a straight every time."

"It used to, but I changed it some time ago, Mr. Murphy, don't look so amazed."

"Now, then, I have got a scheme to work. You ought to have thought of it long ago, but haven't enough wit to. I want you to issue a royal edict that on next Sunday evening all my subjects who can gather here will witness a strange phenomenon. At the time the moon rises a second moon will rise also and there will be two moons in plain sight at one and the same time."

"But how can you make a second moon?" asked Murphy.

"I can't," replied the king.

"Then the people who come to see it will call you a faker, won't they?"

"They may call me anything they feel like, but they will have to pay cash for it. My little scheme is like this: The next day after the moonlight excursion I will notify all who were here to let it be known whether they saw one moon or two. They will be divided. While all will have seen only one moon, a part of them to flatter me will claim to have seen two."

"And I shall be right about other things, my old has been. I want you to see about bottling up about 5,000 bottles of clear water and labeling each bottle 'King's Eyewater.' I will proclaim to those who didn't see but one moon that something is wrong with their eyes and that they must use this eye water. The price will be $5 per bottle. I will also proclaim to those who say they saw two moons that something is also wrong with their eyes, and they must buy a bottle and pay the same price. Now, then, can you see the point after I have thrown it at you?"

"By George, but it is great!" exclaimed Murphy.

"Well, not so very great, but it will do—it will do," said the king. "If it don't bring in at least $10,000 then I will admit that I don't rule the sun, the moon, the stars and the seven seas. Now, Murphy, we will have another hand at poker. Poker is a very pleasant and instructive amusement. You may win back all you have lost and $5,000 with it. I sincerely hope you will, for you are good hearted even if you don't understand finance. I will take a deal, and I hope you get a straight flush the very first hand."

But Murphy said he heard riot going on in the street and that his presence was badly needed out there, or if a palace itself might be attacked, and he hurried away and thus saved the balance of the little fortune that he kept locked up in his trunk.

WOUNDED IN LONDON

How Ambulances Meet Trains and Make Men Comfortable

The entire ambulance transport of the London district is in the hands of the London Ambulance Column, a body of volunteers, and this not only includes meeting the trains from the front, but also removing patients from the various hospitals and taking them for special treatment, as well as running them to the various specialist hospitals outside the London district proper. When a train is expected a selection of cars and ambulances from those on the books is made, so that there shall be enough—but no more than enough—vehicles to meet the train and deal with the stated number of cases.

As soon as the decision is made the owners of cars have to be rung up, the cars brought round to headquarters to receive pillows and blankets and sisters, and then they make their way to the station, arriving half an hour before the train is due.

The stretchers are lined up on the platform, so that the wounded can be handled as gently and expeditiously as possible. Surgical hampers, with everything inside which will be required in emergencies, accompany the column. The number of calls per day average seven, and the usual number of patients handled is about 200. Each patient receives individual handling in transport, and each ambulance carries a nurse, who does all she can for the sufferers to make them comfortable.

ENOS AN ANCIENT TOWN

The rocky ridge of Enos where the allies landed troops in the course of their operations against the Dardanelles, is a backdoor way to the ancient city on the Golden Horn. It lies about 155 miles west of Constantinople, upon the Gulf of Enos, in the northeast Aegean Sea. Thirty miles away is the northern shore of the Gallipoli Peninsula.

Enos, insignificant, built on a rock ledge, and surrounded by broad marshes, becomes of unusual interest to the world in its new character as a base of land operations against the physical heart of the Ottoman Empire. The respectable antiquity of the town is attested by mention in Homer's "Iliad." Formerly, Enos was a trading port of some importance, but it has lately lost much of its export to the adjacent seaport of Dedeagatch. Its export which it retains today is due to its position on the Maritza River, the great water highway from Adrianople, eighty miles inland, to the sea.

The population of Enos is largely Greek seafarers, commission dealers and merchants. It numbered in 1905 about 8,000. The first part of the way from Enos toward Constantinople is through a level country, but the broken, mountainous regions begin long before the Bosphorus is reached.

Smokeless Guns

Ordinary powder produces smoke when fired because of the quantity of fine particles formed from the breaking up of the saltpetre and from some of the charcoal which is not completely burned. To get rid of smoke (so long a handicap in the use of guns) it was necessary to produce a substance that would explode without leaving any solid residue. This was accomplished by the use of gun-cotton or nitro-cellulose, from which the most satisfactory smokeless powder is made. The substance is a chemical compound, not a mixture like gun-cotton with a mixture of nitric acid and sulphuric acids. When exploded it is all converted into gases. Burning is not necessary to cause an explosion, a mere shock or jar being sufficient. It is too violent an explosive to use in small arms or in cannon, but gun-cotton can be made for use in guns, and most brands of smokeless powders are made in this way.

Surprised the Dignitaries

A motor car, with a khaki-clad girl, a member of one of the woman's corps, at the wheel, was standing outside the War Office while its occupant was making a call there, when a group of Cabinet Ministers emerged from the building. The fair chauffeur sprang from the car and, to the astonishment of his companions, affectionately embraced the leading Minister. It was his niece, who was using her skill at driving as her share towards the war effort.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

INFANT WELFARE—ARTICLE No. 6.

WET-NURSE. If for any good reason the baby cannot be nursed by his own mother, milk should be secured from a wet-nurse. The most important requisite in an otherwise satisfactory wet-nurse is that she is well, and especially that she has no disease such as syphilis. To be certain of this a blood test should be made in every case. The wet-nurse's baby must be well and near the same age as the new baby to be nursed.

Weaning the Baby. The period of weaning should occupy two or three weeks. It must not be carried out suddenly. A bottle feeding should be substituted for a nursing every third or fourth day until all the feedings are from the bottle. Thus the baby has gradually become accustomed to the change, and the mother's breasts will not give any trouble if she is careful to limit the quantity of food she has been taking. Every baby should be weaned by ten months, and in no case should a baby be nursed longer than a year. It is best not to wean the baby in the hot summer weather.

Proprietary Foods. The writer has little use for the numerous so-called baby foods on the market. They are of two kinds, those to be added to cow's milk and those without. The former simply add greatly to the expense of cow's milk without increasing its value as a food, and those made without milk are not satisfactory. Some of the proprietary foods are exceedingly expensive. If they are used at all it should only be in cases where the baby cannot digest cow's milk, and then only on the advice of a competent and responsible physician. Just here I might remark that for some reason or other, (perhaps indifference or a lazy mind), some doctors are too ready to advise the use of these patent foods. They should think twice or three times before doing so.

Substitutes for Cow's Milk.

Condensed Milk. Condensed milk is milk from which the water and often some of the cream has been removed. In many cases sugar has been added and the condensed product is frequently made from an inferior grade of milk. It should not be used as infants' food except in travelling or in countries where it is impossible to obtain fresh cow's milk.

Goat's Milk. The milk of goats and asses may be used where cow's milk cannot be obtained, but strictly under the advice of a physician.

Feeding for Hot Days. On very hot days, etc., baby should not be urged to take too much. Give him cooled boiled water frequently. Dilute the feeding by replacing one ounce of the formula with one ounce of boiled water in each bottle.

Hours of Feeding. The hours of feeding for a bottle-fed baby are the same as for a breast-fed baby. By the end of the third day he should be fed every two hours in the day time and every four hours at night, ten feedings in the twenty-four hours. At one or one and a half months he should be fed every two and a half hours, or nine feedings in the twenty-four hours. At about five or six weeks or as soon as possible the time should be changed to every three hours. The feedings will then be at 6, 9, 12, 3, 6, 10, and 2 a.m. The latter feeding should be omitted as soon as the baby will go from 10 at night to 6 in the morning. After nine or ten months the baby will usually sleep through the whole night. Then the 10 p.m. feeding will be omitted.

Things to Remember.

Buy for the baby the freshest milk you can get, but not necessarily the richest milk.

If your town has not a Milk By-Law, or if it is not enforced, have the mothers unite and get after the town council about it.

Endeavor to have milk delivered in bottles. Bulk milk is not safe. Dirt and flies are sure to get into it. When milk is received put it on ice at once and keep it there until used. Warm milk soon spoils, and spoiled milk is sure to make the baby sick.

Never leave an open pitcher out of doors for the milkman to pour the milk into, and never allow milk to stand about the house in open vessels or on the steps in the sun.

If you must feed your baby on other than breast milk don't use a bottle with a tube. Use rubber nipples and go to the greatest trouble to see that nipples, bottles, and all utensils used are absolutely clean.

A SUMMARY OF TO-DAY'S WAR CABLES

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

NEW YORK, March 12.—An announcement posted to-day in the offices of the International Mercantile Marine here carried the information that the American Line passenger and freight vessels will resume sailings. No date for resumption of business was given. The four passenger ships, New York, Philadelphia, St. Paul and St. Louis, are already filled with superstructure and deck plates for the mounting of guns.

WASHINGTON, March 12.—Members of Ambassador Gerrard's party, arriving at Havana to-day, were authority for these statements as to Germany's present situation: The food is very scarce. Infants and aged persons are particularly susceptible to lack of proper nourishment and their mortality is increasing. Insufficiency of nitrates and metals is interfering with the output of munitions. The Empire is close to bankruptcy, and this is one of the most ominous signs of a possible breakdown. War loans already made require in interest almost the whole of Germany's income. The confiscation of private property, to an extent at least, has been considered by the Government. Either this will be necessary or Germany must repudiate her war debits.

WASHINGTON, March 12.—An "armed guard" for the protection of vessels and the lives of persons aboard will be placed on all American merchant ships sailing through Germany's barred area, the State Department to-day officially notified all foreign diplomats in this city.

PARIS, March 12.—(French Official).—Further gains were reported by the War Office statement to-day, as achieved by the French forces in the region of Maisons Champagne during the night. The statement also told of raids and encounters of patrols in different parts of the front, which resulted in the capture of a number of German prisoners.

LONDON, March 12. — Replying to a question by Winston Churchill, formerly Lord of the Admiralty and Chancellor of the Exchequer Bonar Law declared in the House of Commons to-day that the Lloyd-George Cabinet was responsible for certain excisions in the recently published report of the Commission appointed to investigate the Dardanelles campaign. Churchill was one of those on whom the Commission laid blame for some of the mistakes of the Dandanelles operations.

NEW YORK, March 12.—Wolf Von Igel, indicted Welland Canal plotter, distributed at least $100,000 to be used for plot and propaganda purposes before he sailed for Germany with Count Von Bernstorff, according to information in the hands of the District Attorney. The District Attorney Office, which made this announcement this afternoon, asked the day before the Frederick VIII. sailed, that the $25,000 bond under which Von Igel was held be released.

WASHINGTON, March 12.—President Wilson has been ordered back to bed and must deny himself to all but most important visitors.

FORMAL OPENING OF NEW CLUB ROOMS ON TUESDAY NIGHT

Returned Soldiers Delighted With Their Quarters in Barrie Building —Entertainment at Tiz-It Theatre on Thursday

A TAG DAY IS PLANNED

The Executive of the Peterborough Returned Soldiers' Club held a busy meeting in their new club rooms in the Barrie Building on Saturday afternoon, with the President, Sergt. Victor, 2nd Battalion, in the chair. A number of important matters were discussed and arranged, and the next few weeks are to be busy ones for Peterborough's veterans of the great war.

To-morrow (Tuesday) night the formal opening of the new rooms provided by the Otonabee Chapter of the I.O.D.E. will take place. The returned men are delighted with their new quarters which are bright and cosy, and which the ladies are furnishing comfortably. The rooms are a great improvement over those formerly occupied by the Club, and the men will endeavour to show their appreciation to-morrow evening. The ladies of the Otonabee chapter have arranged an enjoyable programme for the opening and every member of the Returned Soldiers Club is urged to be present. The rooms are on the third floor of the Barrie Building.

On Thursday, through the kindness of Mrs. Jones, the Returned Soldiers will hold an entertainment in the Tiz-It Theatre, with afternoon and evening performances, the proceeds to go to the funds of the club. There will be three or four vaudeville numbers in addition to the usual excellent bill of pictures, while a special orchestra will provide music. The public are asked to keep Thursday open and remember the Returned Soldiers' entertainment at the Tiz-It theatre.

On the second anniversary of the Battle of Ypres it is likely that a Tag Day for the benefit of the Club will be held and it is expected that the citizens will respond readily. This will be held on Saturday, April 21, while on the following day it is probable that a special church parade of all the great war veterans, of which there are already over 100 in Peterborough, will take place.

SKATING AGAIN TO-NIGHT

Ice is Good—No Band To-night —Admission 10c.

There will be good ice at the Brock Street Rink to-night. There is no band and the admission is only 10c with war tax.

To-morrow night there will be a band as usual. This week may see the finish of the skating season.

PIANO RECITAL AT THE CONSERVATORY

At the usual Saturday afternoon recital eighteen small tots took part, three of them playing double numbers, to give variety to the programme. Fred Morrison played a violin solo, pupil of Miss Logan, and Margaret Eaton sang "Somewhere a Voice is Calling" pupil of Miss McLaren. The following pupils took part: Court and Grant Miller, Donald Jordan, Dorothy Stilson, Jean Kidd, Irene Breckenridge, Mary Mulholland, Edyth Killaly, Helen McFarlane, Edna Barbidge, Harry Westbrook, Dorothy Moir, Ted Cheverill, Lorette Galvin, Gerardine Gordon, Louise Letellier, and Margaret Denne. The teachers represented were: Miss Killmaster, Miss Elcome, Miss McLaren, Miss Florence Scott, Miss Stuart, Miss Pierce and Miss Sullivan.

247th BATTALION APPEALS TO CITIZENS MONEY NEEDED NOW

The 247th Battalion is appealing to the citizens of Peterborough for financial support in its recruiting campaign. On Friday night the City Council, in the face of similar grants being made to battalions all over the province, refused a grant to the Peterborough unit. The result is that the battalion is forced to ask the citizens for help. Money is urgently needed or the efforts of the officers and men will have to be curtailed. One patriotic citizen has already contributed $100 to the battalion to assist in the recruiting work. Several others have promised to do so. The need is great. If you will help call up Col. Ackerman and tell him so. Remember the need is great and act promptly.

BOMBARDIER FINNIE OF PETERBORO' DIES IN ENGLISH CAMP

Well Known Peterboro' Boy Who Went Overseas With the 52nd Battery Succumbs to Attack of Pneumonia—More Peterboro' Veterans of the Great War Have Arrived From Overseas—To-day's Orders and General Military News.

Another Peterborough soldier has given his life for the Empire—not on the battlefield but in England on his way to the front. Yesterday morning Mr. Edward Finnie, Peterborough's well-known night watchman, was officially notified from Ottawa that his son, Bombardier George Finnie, of the Canadian Field Artillery, had passed away in the Military Hospital, Bramshott Camp, Eng., from an attack of pneumonia. A cable last Wednesday stated that Bombardier Finnie had been admitted to hospital on March 6 dangerously ill. No further news was received until yesterday's sad message. Bombardier Finnie was born in Peterborough, and was a fine specimen of young Canadian manhood. Before enlisting he was assistant to his father, and was widely known and popular in the city. He joined the 52nd Battery here last year, and after training at Petawawa Camp went overseas with a draft from the 58nd. He was completing his training in England when he was seized with pneumonia. The bereaved relatives will have the sympathy of the community.

Lieuts. Johnston, Moore and Leach, Sergt. W. Jones, Sergt. Bernard, Corp. A. E. Cole, Corp. H. Blunt, Lance-Corp. Willis, Pte. Stanley and Pte. W. A. Primeau, of the 247th Battalion, left this morning for Kingston to attend the I. S. of I., while Sergt. R. F. McMahon, Corp. Heath, Lance-Corp. Bristow, Pte. Kettle, and Pte. A. G. Taylor, left on the same train to take the Bayonet Fighting and Physical Training course. Corp. Spencer left this afternoon to take the same course. The exodus will be continued to-morrow when Corp. Pilkey and Pte. Rae leave to attend the School of Signalling at Kingston.

Has Trench Fever.

Mrs. D. Babbs, 245 London street, has received the following letter from the Canadian Red Cross

Canadian Red Cross Society,
14116 Cockspur Street,
London, S.W.
Information Bureau.
12-2-17.

Dear Madam,—I beg to inform you that Pte. D. Babbs, 193528, 5th C.M.R. (formerly of the 93rd), who is now at East Leeds War Hospital, Leeds, Yorks, England, is suffering from a slight attack of trench fever.

Since being admitted to the above he has been called upon by one of our society's authorized vistors, Mrs. Hart, who I am pleased to tell you reported that he was feeling much better and seemed fairly well.

As long as he remains in the hospital he will be visited regularly and reports of his condition forwarded to you from time to time.

You may rest assured he is being well cared for, and anything he may require such as small comforts not supplied by hospital, Canadian papers, cigarettes, etc., we are always pleased to send from here.

Hoping he may continue to make satisfactory progress.

Yours truly.

To-day's Orders.

Peterborough, Ont., March 10, '17.

Orders for Sunday and Monday, March 11th and 12th, 1917:

1. Duties.— Orderly officer for Sunday, March 11th, 1917: Lieut. J. M. Shook.

Orderly officer for Monday, March 12th, 1917: Lieut. C. G. Shaw. Next for duty, Tuesday, March 13th, 1917: Lieut. T. W. Quinn.

A. E. Brittain, Lieut.,
Adjutant 247th O.S. Battalion, C.E.F.

Pte. Herbert Rush, son of Mrs. T. O. Rush, Aylmer street, who has been overseas for over two years, returned to Peterborough on Saturday, reaching the city on the 3.43 C.P.R. train. He was met at the station by the members of his family and a number of friends and by Mayor Duffus and several aldermen. Pte. Rush left Peterborough early in August, 1914 going overseas with the 24th Field Battery's quota to the first contingent, and afterwards being transferred to the mechanical transport.

Gunner King Home.

Another Peterborough veteran of the great war arrived home this morning in the person of Gunner W. (Boxer) King, London street, who reached the city on the morning G.T.R. train today. Gunner King has seen many months of service, as he left Peterborough with the first artillery draft for the 1st continent and has been in uniform since the second week in August, 1914. He was badly wounded last year on the Somme front.

Rev. Sidney E. Lambert, who was stationed at Parkland, Alberta, prior to the war and enlisted as a private in the 50th Battalion at Calgary, is a patient at the College street Convalescent Hospital, Toronto. He served in the trenches and was severely wounded by a shell, losing one leg. Rev. Mr. Lambert will resume his pastoral duties at Parkland, Alberta, as soon as he has sufficiently recovered.

Rev. John Laycock, Methodist minister at Welwyn, Sask., has five sons in khaki, and the Rev. J. H. L. Joslyn, pastor of the Methodist church at Sintaluta, Sask., also has five sons fighting.

Pte. Jas. Houghton, Cameron street, who left Peterborough in the autumn of 1914, with the 21st Battalion, and has been at the front for many months, returned home on Friday on ten weeks' sick furlough. Pte. Houghton was a son of Pte. Geo Houghton of Peterborough, who was killed on the Somme front last autumn. He, himself, was dangerously wounded about the same time, the word of her husband's death and son's injury reaching Mrs. Houghton almost simultaneously. Pte. Houghton, who was one of the Scouts of the 21st Battalion, has seen much hard fighting. He will return to England on the expiration of his furlough.

Mrs. Drain, Stoney Lake, has received the following letter from her son, Pte. Thomas Drain, who went overseas with the 93rd Battalion, and was wounded some time ago while fighting with the 21st Battalion:

C. Ward,
Endell St. Hospital,
London.

Dear Mother,—Just a few lines to say I am in hospital and getting on fine. I have got my left shoulder hurt and am grand. This is the best place I have struck yet. Don't think that because I am in hospital I am dead, because I am very much alive. I am in London. I expect to be in here quite a while. I like it a lot better than I do France. You must ex-

ROUSING APPEALS ARE MADE FOR RECRUITS

Needs of the 2nd Battalion Reinforcing Draft and the 247th Battalion Emphasized at Meeting in the Armouries Last Night.

FEW ELIGIBLES THERE

The recruiting meeting held in the Armouries last night with the twofold purpose of filling up the ranks of the 2nd Canadian Battalion and the 247th Peterborough Battalion was very largely attended, and in many ways was a great success. In the first place there were a large number present, and every one demonstrated their feelings of patriotism in a way that is unusual for the ordinarily diffident audiences of this city. In the second place there were excellent speeches and equally praiseworthy programme. The same old absence of men of military age and fitness was, however, in as much evidence as it ever has been, and the fervent appeals of the speakers and the soloists fell mostly on the ears of girls and women, or men outside of the military age or physically unfit for overseas service.

The speakers were Col. Ackerman, Major O'Flynn and Captain Dancey. Miss Etta Kemp rendered a beautiful patriotic solo and was forced to respond to a hearty encore. Miss Johnston of Montreal, sang with a remarkably pleasing voice, "Laddie in Khaki" and "Under the Same Old flag." Both times the plaudits of the audience brought Miss Johnston again to the platform. The music of the programme was nicely rounded out by the numbers of the 247th Battalion Band.

It was noticed that Captain Dancey in his address was considerably harder on the young men of physical age and fitness who do not enlist than any previous speaker who has talked at any authorized recruiting gathering here. And it was quite as evident that his words met with the unqualified approval of the gathering for more than any other address, his was interrupted by the repeated applause of his listeners. Captain Dancey is recruiting a draft of two hundred ment to take overseas to reinforce the 2nd Canadian Battalion. This is the "Iron Battalion" with which the first Peterborough contingent was identified, and with which so many Peterborough boys suffered in the fighting around St. Julien.

Lieut.-Col. Ackerman announced the purpose of the meeting. A great many eligible young men had said that the reason they did not get into khaki was because they did not want to hang around Canada for a year trainin. If there was any truth in the words of these men their chance had come now for the draft which Captain Dancey represented, and which he was taking overseas, was leaving very shortly for England.

Doubtless many had heard of the obstacles that had impeded the 247th Battalion. Each day, said the Colonel, brought more obstacles when it should bring more assistance. There had been considerable talk about conscription in Canada. It is coming now. Each day brings new criticism. Criticism of the Government and military authorities and even of the eligible young men will not win the war. If the same feeling of apathy as we have in Peterborough existed all over the British Empire we would lose this war very quickly. Just what is the cause of this indifference is not certain. Even the relatives and friends of the men at the front were not giving assistance in the way they should. Then there was the financial difficulty. The City Council had been appealed to and had not given any aid. "We must have money," said Colonel Ackerman. "We have got to get it."

"The Iron Second."

Major O'Flynn explained that he had been asked by Captain Dancey

PROPERTY OWNERS ASKED TO GIVE FREE USE OF LOTS

Trades and Labour Council and Finance Committee Meet to Discuss the Question of Greater Production in Peterborough

NOTIFY THE CITY CLERK

On Saturday evening members of the local Trades and Labour Council held a conference with the Finance Committee of the City Council in the matter of what was practical and what could and might be done to encourage and develop the use of ground, in the city, by all who cared to set to work.

It was decided that, under the auspices of the Council, some appeal should be made in the press for both individual and united effort. It was not thought wise that municipal aid be given in a general way, prepared land for use. For that would entail a possibility of friction when the allotment of such land came to be made, after having been prepared.

The Council decided, and the deputation agreed, that an appeal should be made to property owners to give the free use of lots or portions of lots for the purpose. Those who will do so will please notify the City Clerk's Office, where a record will be kept. It is hoped that by the end of this week a fair number will have sent in word. Those so doing will be so good as to describe the lots, giving the street and number, area, if accessible without going through private premises, etc. If any conditions are to be made for use, state such.

It was thought by the Conference that one of the best ways to gain the object in view would be for a man to arrange with a friend for use of a part of his garden, if the friend have one. A number present said they intended so to do.

The point was discussed of taking, for instance, a part of the King Edward Park, now in poor condition, and needing cultivation, to bring it to a level, plow this ground, harrow, and leave in shape to be planted. That the area could be divided into sections and on application given to those without land or permission to use the land of others. The objection to doing as outlined came up in the liability of the plots to be rifled and plundered, if growing anything but some root crop, such as potatoes, that a watchman might have to be employed to protect the crop. This would be entirely outside the purview of the Council.

It is known that certain sections of the city, even in which there may be vacant ground, are not adapted to cultivation. Vacant lands, in the blocks bounded by Aylmer and Water streets, from Charlotte to above Smith, are mostly a bed of gravel. Work put on plots in this section could only result in disappointment. Things can be grown, but only by assiduous watering. South in the city the land will be more productive. East City offers a much better prospect, while the West has excellent soil. At the same time it will be an onerous thing for a man, living, say near the corner of Reid and McDonnel streets, to work a plot in the south of East City. Even persistence and industry will tire of the incessant journeys to the scene of work.

At the same time there will be men, whose wage and income is limited. To these the use of a plot would be most helpful. It is quite

ALDERMANIC HYDROPHOBIA.

The City Councillors in rejecting the largely signed petition asking them to assume responsibilty for public bathing places may think they have gained popularity in keeping down the rate, by keeping the citizens dirty, but there will be difference of opinion. The people don't like taxation, but many of them like to get what they want, what is necessary t for health and comfort and decency even if they have to pay a little for it. People may not like to pay taxes; but they don't mind it so much if they get value for the expenditure. This they would do in the matter of public bathing places—as much of a necessity as the meals we have three times a day. One alderman called them a "fad." This suggests the inference that he considers washing his face in the morning, or keeping civic or general politics clean, a "fad." If saving the ratepayers' pocket is the aldermanic idea, abolition of the bath-tub "fad" in their homes, would save them a god deal more money than bathing places would cost. Such an idea is absurd; but little less absurd than a body of theoretically representative men denying the people what they greatly want and are willing to pay for. It seems to be argued that after keeping the public dirty fifty or seventy-five years it won't do much harm to keep up the condition two or three years longer. When women come to their own and get the right to sit in our councils, the champions of dirt, the enemies of soap, clean skins and personal comfort won't have everything their own way—be free to give hundreds of petitioners and representative deputations "dirt." Hydrophobia is a bad thing.

THE CURSE OF PATRONAGE.

One of the greatest evils of our party form of government is the patronage system. Its operation and abuse—cause and effect—will on a little consideration, be regarded as responsible for a tremendous waste of public funds, to the extent of perhaps twenty-five or thirty per cent of the money nominally devoted to public service purposes. It appears that governments can't, or won't — the word nearer the truth — free themselves from the evil or its exercise for party advantage, which is the only advantage connected with the patronage evil. In the Ontario Legislature the government shows, again this session, its determination to resist any encroachment upon the sacred principle of party patronage, and a cynical indifference to revelations of its evil manifestations and results.

A responsible member of the Opposition in moving a resolution against the patronage evil, which was of course, obediently and promptly voted down, cited several instances of the abuses arising from party patronage. One was when a man guilty of perjury in party interest—in connection with the registration of voters—not long afterwards was appointed to an office in the public service — in the service of the honest and unperjured public—at a salary of $35 per week, and still holds the position. Another instance was where a government employee deserted his work to "electioneer" in the government interest in an election. This outrageous scandal is so lightly thought of that in a recent bye-election a Major in the Canadian forces who should have been fighting at the front, while wearing the king's uniform and drawing the king's pay—the money of the people of Canada—took the stump and, not content with outraging the king's regulations, outraged the decency of public discussion by slandering a political opponent. Yet so dead is the official conscience to complaisant its attitude to the grossest offences, so long as they are committed in the party's interests, that no disciplining was done in either case; the offending major was not courtmartialled.

With this monstrous evil—when one comes to think it out—exercising so malign and corrupting an influence in the public life of the country governments, cling to it and refuse to consider the removal of patronage as an instrument of party advantage, wielded at the expense of the people whose interests are injured, from the government, and intrusting it to an independent commission. Such a commission would make public service appointments on merit and prevent the waste of the public funds for the reward of party heelers. Then the public service, and not party profit, would be the first and sole consideration.

The evil of the patronage system is gigantic, its operation pernicious and its example infectious of demoralization. Its evil spirit also invades municipal administration and excludes one class of citizens, with claims to equal treatment, from all civic offices of emolument.

THE GOVERNMENT AND RECRUITING.

It seems absurd to bracket the government and recruiting because there is no real connection—the government "isn't in it." As the Examiner has often pointed out, the government from the beginning has done mighty little officially to help recruit the splendid contingents of Canadians we have in the fighting lines and in training. The magnificent response that has been made has been almost entirely due to the voluntary spirit, stimulated and directed by private organizations like the Speakers' Patriotic League, financed out of their own pockets and by the help of municipal grants.

Long since the voluntary spirit had spent its force and the government grudgingly extended itself, to contribute $5,000 each to the new battalions, now in process of formation. This money was doled out in monthly instalments and so grugdgingly that the commanding officer of the 247th has had to beg the banks fos advances. Now he is told that even this aid has been withdrawn; officers are told that they must raise money for recruiting any way they can.

This is adding insult to injury. Recruiting officers have not only to contend with official indifference, the indifference of eligibles and the almost utter exhaustion of the voluntary spirit; but they must waste energy and precious time to skirmish for the money necessary in their work.

More than a year ago the Patriotic Leagues begged the government to systematize recruiting—to take a census of our man power to develop the eligibles. After much delay a postcard registration was attempted; but it has been useless as far as recruiting is concerned. It only reached the willing who had otherwise done or were doing their bit, or had been medically disqualified. The real men wanted, the young and robust, didn't sign the cards. After the Premier had promised the Trades and Labour interests that the cards would not be used for recruiting purposes, the military authorities sent a list of 90 odd card signatories to Col. Ackerman — to whom they were useless—most of them had been rejected or were doing their bit otherwise, while there were actually 400 or 500 young men in the city fit for the service who had not filled in their cards.

On top of this official child's play comes the intimation that the government decides to withdraw financial assistance to recruiting at the critical moment—when every dollar is needed for this purpose. By tying the government purse strings, the government ties the hands of recruiting officers. If it isn't indifference that prompts the government's inaction it isn't lack of money. The government has only to ask and parliament unanimously votes millions for war purposes; the government asks the people for a 100 million dollar loan and the demand is doubled. The government can find money to rebuild Parliament buildings that can wait, but refuses a paltry sum to help recruiting that can't wait. The government could find millions to spend on Sir Sam's Sahara desert, Camp Borden, but refuses a few thousands to help recruiting. The Ontario government diverted large sums to purchasing machine guns, which the Dominion government should have paid for, and was spared the expense. This money was the outcome of direct taxes paid, (their share), by the people of Peterborough, and now local officers local members of the Patriotic League, have to put their hands in their pockets to pay, what the government should pay—patriotic chivalry must compensate government cheese-paring.

Thirteen Fractious Men Defy The United States Government

Once more the United States Government has felt the grip of the dead hand of 140 years ago in the perfectly constitutional procedure of thirteen men holding up the will of the vast majority of the nation. The very devices that were intended by the Fathers of their Country to guard democracy from encroachment have become the means of a tyranny as oppressive in its way as the autocracy of Prussia. This, of course, is not the fault of democracy. The theory of democracy is that every individual in the state shall be represented in the government. But just as soon as the individual delegates his authority to another the ideal democracy has passed into latency. It has once more to be revived, freed from its encumberances, and relieved of the obstructions that prevent a free expression of the will of the people. Whether this will occur in America in our time is a question everyone will answer according to his predictions, but we are inclined to think that the democracy of America is essentially more conservative and devoted to form than that of Great Britain. The elastic and vital methods of the British House of Commons in which a Prime Minister or a government can be displaced at the will of the people in a few weeks would probably shock the filibusters of Washington as much as those against whom they filibust, were it proposed that the same freedom of action be adopted in the United States. In Canada we are not yet as free in our governmental operations as the democracy of Great Britain, because we have enslaved ourselves to party tradition and have not the independence of action which comes of a free public opinion. The varying degrees of efficiency of the war machine in Britain, Canada and the United States illustrates the comparative advantages of the several systems.—Toronto Sunday World.

WOMEN WIN IN ARKANSAS.

Governor Signs Bill Which Permits Them to Vote at Primaries.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., March 10. — The Arkansas House of Representatives to-day, by a vote of 54 to 27, finally passed the Riggs Suffrage bill, which gives women the right to vote in primary elections. Governor Brough signed the bill to-night at a suffrage mass meeting.

The bill empowers women to vote at party primaries, after paying poll tax and swearing to support candidates of their party. It also provides that women meet all suffrage qualifications required of male voters. Proponents of the bill say it is the next step to full equal suffrage, as nominations in this State at the Democratic primaries always mean election.

THE LIFE OF A BELGIAN SLAVE

"We Pick Bones off Rubbish Heaps to Gnaw and Make Soup of" He Writes

A letter to his mother, written by a young Belgian workman forcibly deported into Germany, was smuggled across the Belgian border, and came into the hands of the Relief Commission in London.

"You ask how it is that I went to work. Listen, and then decide for yourself. We have not signed anything, but are compelled to work. When we come to the barbed wire of the camp, there are the guards with their bayonets fixed, and from time to time, one or the other of us is beaten with the butt of the rifle. Those who refuse to work here are forced to go and do so in the marshes for 0 cents a day, under the supervision of a German soldier.

"Our food consists of quarter of a bread, about 250 grammes, and at noon a liter of soup. We endeavour to get potato peels in order to boil and eat them. Some look for the bones on the rubbish heaps. They wash them, boil them, to make soup and gnaw them. We sleep on straw, soiled by everybody and reduced to dust."

Canadians are asked to redouble their efforts to keep from starvation the wives and mothers of these men. The Relief Commission, though no longer under the American flag, is carrying on its work as actively as ever. Relief ships are granted immunity by the German Government from submarine attacks. At the moment, supplies are failing, and your support is vitally needed. Send your contribution to the nearest Relief Committee, or direct to the Belgian Relief Fund, 58 St. Peter street, Montreal.

ORDER TO ARM SHIPS

Has Effect in Strengthening the Market.

CHICAGO, March 12.—Orders to arm American merchant ships had a moderately strengthening effect Saturday on wheat prices. News that Great Britain was negotiating for all the wheat in Canada counted also as a bullish influence. The market, however, had an overbought appearance and there were plenty of offerings on every upturn in quotations. Taken as a whole, trading was not heavy and price changes were of a shifting, nervous character, though mainly upgrade. Opening figures, which ranged from three-quarters to one and half higher, with May at 188 1-2 to 189, and July at 157 1-2 to 157 7-8, were followed by a material reaction, but then by fresh rallies.

How Brave Men Die

Scene in a Tent of Suffering at the Front Described by a Chaplain.

Under the caption "How Brave Men Die," the British Official Press Bureau issued recently the following article written by the Rev. Lauchlan Maclean Watt, a Scotch Presbyterian minister, now serving as a chaplain with the British Armies in France. The chaplain writes:

"One day I was going through a tent of suffering men just after a big 'stunt.' It was a day of much and great agony for those who were in actual bodily pain and for those of us who had to try to help them to endure it. I saw two men carried in and laid on beds side by side with each other. One was obviously very severely wounded. The other was swathed in bandages over his head and down over his face, apparently blinded. For a moment I hesitated, thinking it might be better to come back when, perhaps, the agonies of the one might be somewhat abated. But I put my hesitation aside. I found that the two men were brothers, who, fighting in the same trench had been struck down by the same shell. Late that evening an ambulance came for me, as a man was dying, and I found it was the soldier I had spoken to earlier in the day.

"The camp lay beautifully still, for the clouds were heavy and the stars were veiled. I stepped into the tent, into the breathing dark. The beds were swathed in shadow, only one red lamp hanging from a central post.

They had brought the brothers quite closely together, and the man with the bandaged eyes had a hand of the other in his own. The dying man took mine in a grip of ice. 'Padre,' he whispered, 'I am going home. And I wanted you to come again to me. Write tenderly to my people. This will break their hearts. And pray that my brother may be spared.' There is no ritual for a moment like that. One could but ask Him who was broken also for others to be near this broken man whose body was pierced unto dying, for the sake of those he loved. We whispered together there a few lines of 'Jesus, Lover of My Soul,' and a verse of the immortally wonderful 'Lead, Kindly Light.' And then he put his arms about my neck, and drew me closer. 'I tried to do what was right,' said he. 'O Christ, receive my soul. Have mercy upon me.' I heard a man near me, in the dark, say 'Amen!' And I knew the fellows were not sleeping. They were lying there, in their own pain, unthinking of him who was passing, that night, into the great beyond. Then I said, very quietly, the last verse of he hymn he had whispered:

So long Thy power hath blessed me,
sure it still will lead me on,
O'er moor and fen, o'er crag and torrent, till the night is gone,
And with the morn those angel faces smile,
Which I have loved long since and lost awhile.

"The silence lay between us for a little, till the dying man asked, 'What o'clock is it?' And I told him. 'I'm so sorry for disturbing you so late,' said he. 'Good-bye, padre, till we meet again.' And with a sigh he passed away."

Convoy of Belgian Exiles

Scenes in Villages as the Trains Rumbled Through to Germany.

Twenty thousand Belgians deported to Germany passed through Luxemburg a few weeks ago, their transportation taking place in the night time so as to attract as little attention as possible. The following account of the impression it made upon the people along the line of the railroad has gone the round of the French newspapers and of the Belgian papers published in Holland and England:

"For a whole week in the wild valleys of Quarreux and Remouchamp, the slopes of which have been denuded of their high copses by the Germans and now lie bare and unrecognizable, we heard the exiles passing in the darkness, train load after train load, bound—whither? Before the first train could be heard there came to our ears a distant sound, a strange, confused murmur of distress, which as it drew nearer swelled into a volume of moans, shouts, and snatches of song—of the 'Brabanconne,' 'King, law, and liberty,' of the 'Marseillaise,' 'To arms, citizens. Form your battalions,' and fierce, hoarse cries from hundreds of throats, 'Death to the Boches!' 'Down with the Kaiser!' 'Long live Belgium!' 'Long live France!' 'Death to the torturers!' And punctuating this wrathful patriotic fervor was a dismal, harrowing wailing of men in physical pain.

"The long convoy of human cattle rumbled on, the lugubrious cacophany now subdued as the train wended its way slowly behind a group of houses along the bank of the Ourthe River or rounded a hill, now rising in loud appeal to heaven and echoing back from the bald slopes as the open was reached again until it died away out of hearing.

"To begin with, the villagers crowded to the bridges, grade crossings, and embankments to hearten the victims with waving handkerchiefs and words of encouragement; but as train succeeded train a great sadness invaded all hearts and the people straggled back to their homes, the women weeping and the men giving expression to their feelings in deep imprecations, more discouraged than the sufferers from this unspeakable cruelty of the conqueror.

"In a couple of days came severe orders prohibiting all demonstrations and threatening with imprisonment any persons who waved to passing trains, or who picked up any message thrown from them or who sought to communicate with the captives in any way. And so there must have passed on feeling that they were abandoned of God and of man."

Educational Anniversary of The George Street Methodist Church

Rev. A. H. Going, B.A., of Lindsay, Occupied the Pulpit Morning and Evening—Work of the Educational Institutions of the Methodist Church in Canada.

The educational anniversary of the George street Methodist church was observed yesterday. The Rev. A. H. Going, B.A., preached at both services, and Rev. R. G. Peever gave a brief resume of the splendid work the educational institutions of the Methodist church are doing.

In the evening the Rev. Mr. Going took his text from the 33rd verse of the 11th chapter of St. Luke, which reads: "He that is not with Me is against Me; and he that gathereth not with Me scattereth." Some little time ago the speaker heard the statement made, which seemed startling at the time, that the world had no use for neutrality. At the time he did not catch the deeper meaning of the assertion. But now it seemed to him that the truth of that fact lies in this—that in reality there is no such thing as neutrality. Neutrality, strictly speaking, is an impossibility.

Different Classes.

In every community, according to the ordinary methods of computation there are, religiously speaking, three different classes of people: (a) Friends of Christianity, (b) Enemies of Christianity, and (c) Neutrals. This is the ordinary method of computation, and of the three, the third class seems the largest. How then can we, in the face of that, claim there is no neutrality.

"He that is not with Me is against Me." So said Christ. So we are driven to one of two conclusions. Either the Lord Jesus made a mistake or we have made a mistake. The world says there are three classes. Jesus says there are only two. Very often there is a distinct line of cleavage between the opinions of the world and of the Bible. But when the matter was sifted out, it was always found that the Bible was right. This was because the world, looking out upon society, sees only its surface, and knows it only as it appears. God on the other hand, looking down at society, sees right into it, as gives us the record of it as it is. So many a man who to all appearances is a neutral, has in reality, in his inner consciousness, already taken sides. Christ only divided humanity into two classes—the good and the bad; the sheep and the goats.

What It Means.

What does it mean to be with Christ? First we are taught that there are two great forces, righteousness and iniquity, the Power of Good and the Power of Evil, the Kingdom of God and the Kingdom of the Devil. To be with Christ is to be in sympathy with Him and the things for which He stands. In this great conflict that is going on, the United States may be neutral as a country, and the government may be neutral as a government. But this cannot be said of her citizens. The sympathy of those who remember what is going on across the seas must have sides one way or the other.

Lots of people tell you they are in sympathy with religion and all that it means, and yet their whole life and conduct would lead you to a directly opposite conclusion. The man who says he is in sympathy with Christianity and Christian principles but who constantly violates the laws of both, may have a certain kind of sympathy, but it is that sort that is only skin deep.

To be with Christ means the alliance of ourselves with those great principles for which He stands. There is a great difference in being "with" Christ and "for" Him. There are thousands of men who are for Christ, but are not "with" Him. There are those who say that the Church of Christ is a good institution and that Christianity is doing a good work in the world, but who never lift a finger to help on the work of the Lord Jesus Christ. There were some who believed that if the United States had lined up on the side of the allies at the beginning of the war that the Germans and Austrians would have been frightened, that the crucifixion of Belgium would have been avoided, and that the United States would not have lost her soul, as she stands perilously close to doing at the present time. And when the reward of this great struggle comes, it will not be unto those who have stood aloof and shouted "Go ahead, I am with you," but to the nations who stepped into the line and took their places. Let us be with Christ in the sense that we take our place and part in the great work being carried on.

The Great Conflict.

A person who is not helping the Church of Christ is a dead weight, and a dead weight is always a hindrance. Some one has said that the church carries too much lumber. But one thing is certain. That the church whose whole interest is absorbed in running its own affairs cannot fulfil the cause for which the Lord designed it.

In order to be with Christ we must have a living faith in Him that rises above the world. In the great conflict of life there is room for the onlooker. Some of us believe that in this great conflict overseas there is no place for the nation who is but a disinterested spectator. If that is the case, how much more so is it true of the unceasing clash of the forces of good and evil. In every purpose which has as its aim the establishment of righteousness and the overthrowing of wrong simply to be an onlooker is criminal.

"There are slackers in the religion of Jesus Christ to-day," said the speaker. "Men who are standing off from the call of Jesus." The man who hasn't his shirt sleeves rolled up and in the conflict for all he is worth on the side of Jesus is a slacker. One may say, "It does not make much difference to the cause whether I am in it or not. I can do so little. Perhaps you are right. It does not make much difference whether you are in it or not. I am not questioning the triumph of truth. But what about the slacker? What place will he take when the record is taken and the whole thing summed up. This is what is agitating me to-night. I pray that God may give us help to take our place, and our proper place, in the things of life.

TO-DAY'S WAR NEWS

LONDON, March 12.—In the House of Commons to-day Bonar Law said he understood that two-thirds of the enemy's total artillery had either been captured or had been thrown into the Tigris by the retreating Turks around Bagdad. "Bagdad's fall is the sequel of a series of brilliant performances," Bonar Law asserted. "General Maude's troops pursued the enemy 110 miles in fifteen days, thrice crossing the Tigris."

"The Diala River, which was tackled on Wednesday, proved a formidable obstacle," Bonar Law continued. "The Turks, strongly reinforced from Bagdad, stubbornly resisted, but General Maude withdrew his cavalry, bringing up infantry instead. The safety of the Turks in Mesopotamia is now imperilled."

OTTAWA, March 12.—Negotiations are now in progress for the placing of orders for a number of large steel steamers in Canadian shipyards. It is said to be part of the British Government scheme to cope with the existing ship shortage.

TORONTO, March 12.—Among the heaviest subscribers to the new Canadian 150 million victory loan, announced to-day, is that of the Sun Life Assurance Company for ten million dollars. Reports from all points promise success for loan.

OTTAWA, March 12.—A London cable states that serious complications have resulted from an attack of bronchial-pneumonia from which the Duchess of Connaught is suffering, and her heart action is reported weaker.

"MUTT AND JEFF'S WEDDING"—The big Fun Show at "The Grand" next Thursday, March 15, for Matinee and Evening performances.

A little nonsense now and then is relished by the best of men. And women too. The old adage is proven over and over again by the continued and most extraordinary success of Gus Hill's productions, of Mutt and Jeff. New York's best citizens, butchers, bakers and undertakers all turn to the funny pictures in the morning newspapers to see those two funny fellows, Mutt and Jeff and what they are up to. Nor is the habit confined to any class, creed or status of life's success. The banker, the lawyer and the judge enjoy the daily cartoons as well as their less fortunate brothers and applaud Bud Fisher's satirical humour. Millions of the best people in America have laughed at Gus Hill's Company presenting Mutt and Jeff in their various plays and will continue to do so as long as Bud Fisher and Gus Hill can keep up the pace. Mutt and Jeff have made five complete tours of the United States and Canada, with absolutely no sign of diminishing popularity, and will continue to do so for years innumerable. "Mutt and Jeff's Wedding" will not only live up to past records of phenominal business, but will prove to be the crowning triumph of Mr. Hill's long business career. All known box office records have been hopelessly shattered by the enormous business and popularity of this Sure Fire success and has been known as the mortgage lifter for house managers and theatre managers all over the country.

"Mutt and Jeff's Wedding" will come to "The Grand" next Thursday, March 15. It was designed for laughing purposes only. There isn't a serious thought in it, or a suggestion in the entire show. It's mission on earth is simply to banish all cares and stifle the hook worm and the grouch. Get seats early as "Mutt and Jeff's Wedding" is playing to capacity houses and the early bird catches the worm, or the best seat.

Address On Citizenship By Bishop O'Brien

OBLIGATIONS OF CITIZENSHIP

The Red Cross rooms at the Public Library were crowded to hear His Lordship Bishop OBrien's address on citizenship on Saturday afternoon.

Mr. Mowatt, chairman of the meeting spoke of good fortune of the Society in having his Lordship speak on such a subject at so opportune a time, when the responsibility of citizenship is so heavy under war time conditions and the extension of the franchise.

In opening his address the Bishop paid a great tribute to the Otonabee Chapter and all kindred societies in the splendid work they have done in the war, standing practically side by side with men in discharging their duties to the Empire. He said that when the history of the war is written there will be no more glorious page than that of how the colonies had responded to the call of the motherland and that the magnificent part played by women would also be recorded.

In speaking of citizenship he said there were too duties of a citizen—that of an individual and that of a member of some organized society. The duty of an individual is ideally discharged when he lives up to the divine law. He said that besides individual obligations everyone has obligations towards the state and towards his fellowman. Likewise the state has. There are justice and charity in its obligations towards the citizens, making of laws and general dealing with the people.

Among the many obligations that the individual must discharge towards the state, he dwelt on the general interest everyone should take towards the welfare of the state, also the duty of obedience towards the laws of the state. Sometimes laws for the general good imply a certain amount of sacrifice in an individual, but this should be readily made for the general good.

With reference to relationship of citizen to citizen, he referred to the spirit of toleration as regards nationality, race and religion that should animate everyone if the success and best interest of the state are to be attained.

Referring to honesty, which should animate every citizen, the speaker said this should show itself in voting. He referred to the six hundred and twenty nine thousand women who would shortly vote, a vote greater than entire male vote, and the responsibility devolving on women. He strongly advised women to use the new privilege advisedly and without reference to party—to vote where their conscience told them. To be honest to the country, we must vote honestly. If women show themselves as sensible in voting as in petitioning the government, they will, as voters, be a success.

He summed up the whole duty of citizenship as Christ did in the words, "love God and love your neighbour."

A vote of thanks moved by Mrs. R. R. Hall and seconded by Mrs. Robert Harstone was passed.

RECRUITING CONFERENCE

Don't Forget To-night's Big Conference at the Armouries

All citizens are reminded of the meeting of Citizens, and the officers of the 247th Battalion, at eight o'clock in the Recreation Room, at the Armouries. (Entrance from Murray St., west entrance), to-night.

The object is that a consultation may be had to further the recruiting for the Battalion, which the City and County of Peterborough have undertaken to complete.

Major Campbell particularly wishes to meet the manufacturers of the city and to obtain their co-operation in the movement.

It is imperative that as many as possible be present at this meeting, and all other things should be laid aside for this evening. A most critical point in the raising of the Battalion has been reached and the emergency must be met.

Your advice and counsel will be valued. Do not fail to attend.

Special Service of Prayer Wed. Night

Brigadier Morehen, Division Commander of Eastern Ontario for the Salvation Army will visit Peterborough on Wednesday next and will conduct a special old-time half night of prayer. This service, which will commence at 8 o'clock, is not only for Salvationists, but for all Christians who desire to pray. The service will be held at the Simcoe street Temple.

AN AGED COUPLE

Tell How They Regained Strength and Vigor.

Steubnvill, Ohio, —"My husband is 79 years old and I am 78 years of age and we owe our good health to Vinol, the greatest strength creator and medicine there is. When either one of us get into a weakened, run-down condition, Vinol has never failed to build us up and restore strength. We have often said we would not be living now were it not for Vinol."—Mary A. Lee.

The reason Vinol is so efficient in building up strength for weakened, feeble, old people is because it contains beef and cod liver peptones, iron and manganese peptonates and glycerophosphates, the most successful tonics known.

We wish every person in Peterborough who is suffering from a weakened, run-down, devitalized condition would try Vinol on our guarantee to return their money if it fails to benefit.

A WAR SHRINE

Issued by the War Office Through the Press Bureau

Our dead lie in France, but there is not a village church in England that has not its Roll of Honour hanging in its porch, with the names of those men of the village who have died and of those who still serve, and the names of their regiments or ships. There are streets of London that have put up their shrines in honour of their own dead, and there are shops and railway stations where the same rolls hang, each with the names of the men who left that place to go to war. They, too, are shrines, in the middle of commerce and the busy streets; for, like the wayside crosses of France, they speak to whoever stops to read their names of a great sacrifice.

And already other shrines, more permanent, are being built to remind the men and women who will follow us of those from their own towns and villages whose graves they will not find in their own churchyards, and who will never lie in English earth.

There is such a shrine in the Church of St. Olave, in Exeter. It is a full-size cross made from an old beam of the church, with a metal crucidix. Above it are the words: "Pray for the men of St. Olave." Beneath it is a place for flowers. It stands on the south side of the Church and faces the busy main street of the town. Round it are the old graves of French Huguenots whose church for years this was. French and English lie together in that churchyard, as they lie in Northern France.

This old English town is full of the memories of the French who lived in it. There are many entries about them in its records. There are industries still carried on that they brought with them from France. There are French names among the people that daily recall these times. So that in this town, where the shrine now stands by its main street to the memory of Englishmen whose bodies are in France, the past is still living in the present to remind you of that ancient hospitality of England to Frenchmen.

There are other old towns, too, in England, where the Belgians, coming in the autumn two years ago would find, as they grew familiar with the place, memories of earlier refugees from the Lowlands, those who came four hundred years ago to find escape in England from the same military oppression and cruelty and intolerance which had driven them also from their homes. That past also lives on in the present, recalling another ancient hospitality.

We value these memories now in a peculiar way, because when we speak in these times of tolerance and hospitality towards other nations of free belief, and freedom to live, of those things for which we fight (not only for ourselves but for others) because Germany has denied them, we use no phrases made for the occasion. Our past rises up to make sure our present beliefs, and to give substance to our words. If we declare that we fight to see Belgium restored to a whole and independent life and to see France secure and free with her ancient frontiers given back to her, we declare it feeling more sure that the world will believe, because we remember that Belgians and Frenchmen in the past did find in England these things, the freedom and the security, for which we now fight. It is there in the record of those old towns of England whose names and industries and speech still preserve the memory of those distant refugees.

As you go through the streets of that one town of Exeter you follow the steps of our ancient and honourable tradition. By way of the old French names on the shops you come down the centuries to this present time, to the Belgians whom you pass in the street, and that shrine, with its hundred names of Englishmen in France, and reading those names you see that this ancient tradition is still a living faith.

Weak, Nervous, Anaemic School Children

Are Quickly Restored to Health and Vigour by the Upbuilding Influence of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food

PETERBOROUGH, Ont., March 12. —It is only necessary to watch the children coming out of school in order to learn what a large proportion of them are weak, anaemic and nervous. One indication of exhausted nerves is the large number who wear glasses.

The school age is a most trying time because of rapid growth and development both mentally and physically and the added strain of examinations and class rivalry.

Because of its gentle action and great blood forming qualities, Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is admirably suited as a restorative for anaemic, nervous school children.

Mrs. M. E. Robson, 170 Dublin street, Peterborough, Ont., writes: "When about the age of 14 or 15, my daughter was on the verge of a nervous breakdown. She had a very poor appetite, lost all her colour, and at times had a twitching of the nerves in her limbs. I secured some of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food and gave her a treatment, using five or six boxes. The results were splendid, entirely curing her of her nervous trouble and restoring her appetite. I find Dr. Chases Nerve Food a splendid spring tonic, and best results to be found by taking some of the Kidney-Liver Pills at the same time."

Mrs. James Boyce, 230 Dublin street, Peterborough, Ont., writes: "Three years ago I noticed that our children seemed to be suffering from bad nerves and poor appetites, and were inclined to be anaemic. Knowing the good of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, I started to give them a treatment of this medicine. I found it built them right up, made them bright and cheery and restored their usual good health. I have also used the Nerve Food myself, and found it very beneficial for nerves and heart. In fact, I have found Dr. Chase's Nerve Food to be such a valuable medicine for general family use that I have recommended it to many of our friends and acquaintances."

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, 50 cents a box, a full treatment of 6 boxes for $2.50, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto. Do not be talked into accepting a substitute. Imitations only disappoint.

Corp. Grant Potter Former Peterborough Boy Invalided Home

MONTREAL, March 10. — Corp. Grant Potter, son of Rev. James G. Potter, M.A., pastor of the MacVicar Memorial church, was one of the party of returned soldiers who reached the city on Thursday. "I should say we are glad to get home," he said, "we have been waiting so long it is certainly good to get here." Corp. Potter went overseas with the 87th Battalion, which left last April, going with the unit to France. He was wounded on September 8th at St. Eloi, at the Ypres salient, losing his left leg and received many other wounds in his arm and chest. The "coal box" which wounded him, killed five and wounded sixteen others. It was a stray shell which, unfortunately, fell amongst three or four ration parties coming from the firing line, one of which was in charge of Corp. Potter.

He spent 10 days in hospital in France, going from there direct to England, where he was cared for in a London hospital until just recently, when he was transferred to a convalescent home while awaiting the ship home.

Corp. Potter is in Montreal on a few days' furlough and will go to Toronto, where he will be fitted out with an artificial limb. All of his wounds have healed nicely. He was one of the guests of honour last night at a lecture in the MacVicar Church Hall, and responded to a request by speaking a few words on his experiences.

Mother Gives Husband And Seven Sons To Fight For The Empire

The following from the Dauphin, Man., Press, will be of much interest to Examiner readers, inasmuch as Mrs. Meader, the patriotic woman mentioned, is a sister of Mrs. Wm. Rose, Manvers P. O., and originally came from Frontenac. The Dauphin exchange says:

"The Free Press of Winnipeg, in the Monday issue, has an article on the Stibbard boys, seven of whom are at present wearing the King's uniform.

Mrs. J. H. Meader, of Dauphin, can make the same boast, and in addition, her husband is now with the colours. Their names are given below:

James Henry Meader joined in 1915 and is now in Europe, though latest news says that he is sick in hospital.

W. Arthur Hicks, Mrs. Meader's eldest son, joined the 43rd in April, 1915, and saw service at the front, but owing to ill-health, is at present running a light engine in France.

Fred Hicks is a member of the 226th Battalion, at present in England.

Elmer Hicks joined the 31st Battalion and was in the trenches for over eight months, and is still well, and from his latest photo, quite happy.

Frank Meader was a member of the 45th and was wounded on the 6th of December last.

James Meader is another son of Mrs. Meader who is serving his country and amongst the bunch, not one of them is other than true and loyal to his king and country.

The saying of one to his mother on enlisting is characteristic of the others: "I don't know mother, whether I am doing the right thing in going, but I do not wish that any one else should be allowed to fight for my darling mother."

Mrs. Meader has great reason to be proud of her husband and her gallant boys, and it is to be hoped that they will be spared to return to her. What a lesson to slackers!

Chatham Man Is Slain in Detroit By Chance "Friend"

DETROIT, March 12.—Shot twice in the head by a chance acquaintance who attempted to rob him, Gene Martin, 50 years old, of Chatham, died in the receiving hospital. John Sloat, a watchman at the American Car and Foundry Company, where the dead man was employed, was badly wounded when he pursued the slayer.

Martin and a companion, Alpheus Lucier, also employed at the foundry, met the slayer in a Russell street restaurant. According to Lucier, the man offered to find a room for Martin. On Ferry Avenue the stranger suddenly drew a revolver, and pointing it at Martin, said:

"Hands up. Produce."

Before Martin could comply, Lucier says, the man shot him twice, and then ran across the street towards the railroad tracks. Sloat, a guard at the foundry on duty at Riopelle street and Ferry avenue, heard the two shots and pursued the vaguely seen figure. The man turned and fired a bullet, hitting Sloat's jaw, passing through into his neck, and barely missing his juglar vein.

Lucier, who was unarmed, notified the police and gave a good description of the man who did the shooting.

Martin was married and lived on Dover street, Chatham.

BLOODLESS WOMEN

It is an unfortunate fact that nine women out of ten are victims of bloodlessness in one form or another. The girl in her teens, the wife and mother, the matron of middle age, all know its miseries. To be anaemic means that you are breathless after any slight exertion—you feel depressed and worn out all day. You turn against food and cannot digest what little you do eat. At night you do not sleep well and in the morning you wake up tired and feeling unfit for the days duties. Perhaps there are splitting headaches, or pains in the back or side. Often a feeling of dizziness and despondency. These are the signs of anaemia, or bloodlessness. There may be only one or two of these signs noticeable, but the more there are the greater are the ravages of the trouble. There is only one way to cure anaemia, and that is by increasing and enriching the blood supply, and there is only one medicine can do this speedily and effectively—Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. These pills purify the blood. It is in this way that thousands and thousands of weak, ailing girls and women have been restored to the joy of energy and good health through their use. Give these pills a fair trial and you will enjoy that health and strength that is the birthright of every woman.

You can get Dr. Williams' Pink Pills from any dealer in medicines, or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Lost Track Of Their Employer

LINDSAY, March 12.—When the C. P.R. train pulled into the station Friday night two small boys stepped to the platform and took in the surroundings. They had been hired in the Queen City by a man who told them that he wished them to go to Lindsay as messenger boys. He purchased their railway tickets and also new hats and boarded the same train with them. When Burketon was reached the boys missed their employer and they came on to Lindsay without him.

They told their story to Chief Short who got them a night's lodging in the Children's Shelter. The boys have no money and unless the man employing them turns up and makes enquiries for them, it looks as if the town will be called upon to pay their fare back to the Queen City.

Editor of the Examiner:

Peterborough, March 10, 1917.

Mr. Editor:

Dear Sir,—In support of Mayor Duffus' slogan, 'A Greater Peterborough,' I would like to make a suggestion for the consideration of the new organization of the Peterborough Industrial Association whom I take it are a Ways and Means committee of a plan that may assist to advertise our city, and yet fill a long felt want on some of our local holidays. That is to organize an amateur athletic sports championship for the county, then championships for the province, have all open events, don't turn down any would-be competitor because he lives in Toronto or elsewhere outside of Peterborough, for that is where we want them from. The Council I notice have grants to make to agricultural and horticultural shows; if the amateur athletic sports were a doubtful issue, could they be made as a means to draw the public interest to these organizations? I am sure plenty of people would attend the sports, who from lack of interest would not attend the shows. The sporting element would get interested in a good one mile or five mile cycle race, or similar flat race, a tug of war, city vs. country, etc. (not particularly motor cycle racing.) The Y.M.C.A. should be able to supply a great many competitors and also boost the sports by sending the challenge of local members to other cities' Y.M.C.A. athletes, if the Council could see clear to put up the necessary attraction. Something of this sort is also a long felt need on holidays, such as Civic, Dominion and Labour Days. All people are not baseball enthusiasts. It would keep a lot of people in Peterborough on holidays who feel obliged to take a trip elsewhere to put in those days, which of course are a necessary break to the worker.

This, of course, is an after-war idea, athletes are now in France.

Peterborough Workingman.

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Sir,—The City Council and the County Council have very wisely invited our new Governor-General to visit Peterborough this spring, and we want to put our best foot foremost when we receive them. Now, we all know that what we admire most when we go to other places is paint and soap and water, and a town that is clean and smart-looking is a good advertisement. Now, it is up to the Mayor to see that some of the dirty buildings on our principal streets and also on other streets, are painted, or tuck-pointed, and some of our shops are pretty tough looking propositions above the waist-line. A bright, snappy, smart looking town is what we want for the crowds who will come, and I hope you will write some more of your good articles on beautifying Peterborough.

Do You Know

That the Babylonians used a mighty instrument of destruction very much like the land war boats of the present European conflict

That their horses were harnessed to chariots without traces, working from a yoke?

That the god Bel, worshipped in the time of the Babylon story told in "INTOLERANCE," was that Bel Marduk, who destroyed the chief of the rebellious angels?

That in the great banquet hall of Belshazzar, which is a mile in length, the design between the two eagle-headed figures is the emblem of the tree of life which corresponds in its significance to the tree of life spoken of in the Scriptures?

That the feasts, a shown in "INTOLERANCE," often lasted for weeks and months, and that dainties and delicacies were gathered from the ends of the earth?

That Babylonian historians claim an existence for their pepole of some 300,000 years?

That more people worked or took part in this picture than are in the united armies of Mexico and the United States combined?

That as there was not enough armour in the world to supply the armies used in this picture, Mr. Griffith was forced to have them made to order. These were made from ancient tablets, of copper, the material used by the warriors of those days, there were 470,000 copper clips used in the making of the jackets alone, each clip being bevelled, carved and stamped. Some of this armour was full length, and when complete weighed 95 pounds. The scenes in "INTOLERANCE" scintillate with these flashing costumes?

That the orthodox held the science of medicine under the ban for many hundreds of years during the Christian era?

That it was considered a sin for any one to attempt to be cured by any other means than the laying on of hands or faith?

FRANK L. JENNE, 337 George Street

to give a resume of the career of the 2nd Battalion up to six months ago, when as the speaker modestly put it, "he left it." Captain O'Flynn recounted the fortunes of that Battalion of which the Peterborough boys constituted the majority of the first company from Valcartier, Salisbury Plains to the trenches. He told of the Wiltshire mud and the English rain, neither of which could depress the spirit of the men of the iron Battalion. He told of the embarkment at Avonmouth and the voyage to the Bay of Biscay, where the disembarkment was effected.

The trip up through France was made in cattle cars. Captain O'Flynn's account of the fighting near St. Julien was lucid and interesting. He told of the flying French and Belgians and the advance of the Canadians against overwhelming odds, and the holding of impossible positions in the face of every disadvantage in numbers of men and guns and ammunition. Then the story of the 2nd Battalion brought it down to the trenches at Festubert, where in one attack 21 officers went over the parapet in an attack and only one came back. He succumbed to cancer of the stomach in England later. After Festubert the 22nd went back to the old Ypres salient again. This was the most costly part of the line ever held. Some 200,000 corpses lie buried there. Later the Battalion continued its glorious work by going to the Somme front. While there they earned the praises of General Haig who gave them credit for making a big Somme offensive possible.

Captain Dancey.

Captain Dancey esteemed it a privilege to make an appeal in Peterborough for recruits for what Col. Ackerman had rightly styled the finest Canadian Battalion that has been sent to France. One would think that the casualty lists alone would form an appeal to the young men of his country that they could not ignore. One would feel that the recitation of the deeds of their comrades in France and Flanders would make the blood course a little faster through their frames. But these examples of heroism do not seem to have any such effect.

The speaker had been informed that there were still 1,400 eligible men in Peterborough, and it mattered not whether they were in munition works or behind counters. If they can go they are not playing a fair game with this Canada of theirs they boast they love. This war is in the interests of a cause that goes beyond the bounds of the British Isles, that goes beyond the confines of even the British Empire. In it is wrapped up the security of humanity and the civilization of the world. "At times I visit the pool rooms and the skating rinks and see the hundreds of thousands of young men who will not take their part in the war, I wonder if those who have given up their lives have, after all, died in vain. But then my mind takes me back and I see the spirit that prevails in the old country, and I say to myself, No, No, they have not fallen in vain. England will win and see this thing through in spite of us."

The Women's Part.

"If there is one class who can save the honour of Canada it is the women. They have done nobly it is true, but they must do more. The mothers who are holding back their sons should ask themselves if they are doing the fair thing when their neighbours' sons are fighting to protect their own boys in their shame. As Col. Ackerman had said, criticism will never win the war. The arm chair critics should remember that talk as they may it is the men who are fighting who are protecting even the critic's lives. It was not nice to remember that only 37 per cent. of the Canadian army is Canadian born. "Oh, if Canada is worth saving is she not worth saving by those of her sons who are Canadian born?" was the Captain's appeal. We criticize Quebec, but we should not open our lips to criticize until we have given all that we can give, and done all that we ourselves can do. The Captain had always abhorred conscription. He had always hoped that it would never invade Canada. But without it Canada's pledge of 500,000 men could not be kept. So conscription was coming to this country. "If you can dance, and revel in the spirit of pleasure while our brothers and sisters are dying on the fields of France, you are not worthy of the name Canadian."

If we go to England we will not find a home but knows the sorrow and pathos of this war. Women, even those of high and exalted station in life, are taking their places in the industrial work of the country and freeing the men. England has given one out of every six of her population. Scotland has done as well, and Ireland is far ahead of Canada. "I have more respect for the German soldier out there fighting for what he believes to be right than the young man in Canada who can go but will not."

Captain Dancey had seen the day when the Canadians with not a cartridge in their rifles were forced to meet the Hun advance with only the bayonet. Those days were past. To-day guns and ammunition are in abundance and the British soldier fights with superior support from these weapons. Why then do we not advance? The answer was this. The Allies had established a wall of steel from the Vosges to the very sea which could never be beaten back. But they will not advance until that advance can be made at the minimum sacrifice of human life. And when the war is over the British can say, "We have won. But thank God we have won with the smallest sacrifice of human life that could be made consistent with victory."

Continuing, the speaker told of the marvellous work of England. How her doctors and nurses had gone into France and Serbia at the very outbreak of war because these countries had no Red Cross organization. How England not only cared for a million refugees from Belgium, but financed the Belgian Government, and how she had sent ammunition by the ton to Russia and men and guns into Roumania. At the same time she has raised an army of 7,000,000 men herself. Germany made war. Germany struck the first blow. But England would close the war. It would be England who would strike the final blow. And one of the biggest reasons of it all would be because the women of England had risen to the occasion. Scarcely a shell leaves the shore of England to-day but what has been made by the hands of women. They have done their duty in every branch of industrial and social life. And as a brilliant Frenchman said not long ago, when the record of this war is taken the brightest chapter of it all will have been written by the women of the British Isles.

Y. M. C. A. NEWS

The Mother's Club will meet Wednesday, March 14th at 2 o'clock for Red Cross work. At 3 o'clock the monthly business meeting will be held and at 4 o'clock tea will be served and a social hour conducted. Every member of the club should be present.

Fifty-three men and older boys enjoyed the special programme of music at the meeting. Sunday afternoon. The Association is indebted to Mr. J. M. Greene, for the loan of an Edison Diamond Disc phonograph and a number of religious and patriotic selections. Boys' Work Secretary Galley presented the Y.M.C.A. international, "Join the church" effort being conducted during Lent and Mr. Meserve suggested the Association Secretaryship and Physical Directorship as a life vocation for young men who wish to serve their fellows. Recent Association conventions have shown that the real problem before the Y.M.C.A. to-day is to find qualified young men to enter the ranks as leaders. A letter received from the International Committee, March 12th states that schools, social service movements, etc., are claiming many men which have been thought available for Association employees. That a recent law in New York State opens up two hundred positions for physical directors which must be filled this year in connection with the schools of that state.

The war has caused a more serious condition in Canada in relation to filling Association positions this year and this is one of the problems to be considered at a special conference of Y.M.C.A. workers to be held in Hamilton, March 22, 23. The local Association has in the past sent out fifteen young men who have made good as secretaries and physical directors and desires to hold up before the young men of Peterborough that the Y.M.C.A. movement offers great opportunities to which Canadian young men of the right type may turn after the war.

KING Hot Water Boiler

It's economical. The King Hot Water Boiler, with King Radiators really and truly SAVES YOU MONEY. Here's why. The "water wall" surrounding the fire-pot and fire-travel, carries only about half the quantity of water in ordinary boilers, and you know that half the quantity heats twice as quick. This means your fire needs to burn a shorter time to give the water the desired heat and the shorter time your fire is at "full" the less coal you use and that SAVES MONEY. The water heats so much quicker in a King Boiler that it circulates faster and heats the house sooner. That's just what everybody wants in a boiler and that's what the King Boiler gives you. ASK YOUR ARCHITECT, YOUR HEATING ENGINEER or YOUR STEAMFITTER for prices on an installation of a "King" Hot Water Heating System in your house--or write direct to us.

The KING has the following Advantages

1. The Dustless Ash Shifting Device
2. The Tight Fitting Doors.
3. The Easily Cleaned Flues.
4. The Fire-pot with a real Corrugation, and extended Heating Surface.
5. The Ample Combustion space in Fire-pot and Flues.
6. The Large Area of Heating Surfaces, Direct, Intense and Effective.
7. The Thin Waterways and Rapid Circulation.
8. The even Metal Line, the result of using Iron patterns.
9. The Quality and Weight of Iron.
10. The Simple Method of Erection. Economical, Safe, Durable and Easy to Manage.
11. The Guaranteed Ratings.
12. Double Shaker.
13. Boltless Grates.

$242.25 FOR GRENFELL MISSION

The treasurer of the Peterborough branch of the Labrador Medical Mission desires to thank the evening papers and all who helped in making this year's contribution better than that of any previous year. This surely proves that the church has not "fallen down," and it is to the credit of the citizens of Peterborough that when so many pressing calls have to be met, they have so generously responded to the needs of Dr. Grenfell's worthy work.

The amount received is $242.25, of which $50.00 goes to maintain the Peterborough cot.

A bale of clothing will be sent later, and any who are willing to contribute warm clothing for men, women or children are asked to communicate with Mrs. James Wood, (Box 990 or telephone No. 1), who will send for parcels.

possible that for such, on application being made, and having secured the use of ground, that arrangement could be made by the use of a small sum set aside for the purpose, to plough and get ready for cultivation the land. But in general each one proposing to use the land will have to arrange for its preparation. If public preparation was entered on where should we stop? And who would determine how far the benefit should extend?

It is hoped that in offering the use of ground that no reservations will be made, such as that the user should pay the taxes, or such provisions. That would tend to defeat the object in view, to get people who have not land to use to work. If you can give the use of the land do so freely and helpfully. It is probably unproductive now. You will be none the poorer for some one using it. In fact the land will be benefitted by use instead of remaining idl.

Take the matter of potatoes, which most of us are taking by the grace of the grocer at about $4.50 the bag. Almost any arable land will produce a crop. While it is not likely that the price will be ever so high again, fair attention to cultivation needed for this edible will bring returns. The land will not call for incessant weeding and the minute attention called for in other crops, so any one can raise potatoes. Then, should there be a scarcity the owner of the crop will be in clover. And if all set to and raise potatoes, that is the very best assurance we could have that potatoes will not be offered at excessive prices.

Talk the matter over. Secure, if you can, the use of a piece of ground. If not, wait for a week or two and see if one cannot be found and placed at your disposal.

PETERBORO' PLAYERS SCORED ALL THE GOALS

Jack Adams and Grover Halpin, of the 247th Battalion team, were the whole works in the City League game in Toronto on Saturday night between the St. Patrick's of Toronto and the Riversides. The St. Patrick's for whom the two local players were playing, won by 7 goals to 5, and the Peterborough players were responsible for all seven goals, Adams scoring six, and Halpin the other one. They were sued as substitutes, St. Pat's starting with their regular senior line-up.

The Globe says: Maintaining a fast clip from opening to closing gong, the St. Pats and their reinforcements from the Peterborough-247th aggregations, outstepped the lads from the east. St. Pat's strengthened their team with Jack Adams and Halpin of Peterborough's intermediate team. Adams was the best man on the ice, scoring six of the seven goals. He combined nicely with Halpin, who scored the remaining goal.

The Mail says: Adams is as good on the line as his brother is on the defence. He was responsible for six of the seven counters. Halpin, who combined with him nicely, got the other. Both have speed and can handle their sticks with any of the average senior O.H.A. players of this region.

ALEX. KAY'S RINK WON FINAL IN THE CONSOLATION ROUND

Alex. Kay's rink won the consolation finals of the local bonspiel from Harry Foote on Saturday night by the score of 15 to 12.

The rinks were composed as follows:

A. L. Killaly	J. Copstock
A. J. Grant	W. R. Turner
E. G. Patterson	R. L. Dobbin
A. C. Kay	H. F. Foote
Skip 15	Skip 12

Score by ends:

Kay . . . . . 3040000230023—15
Foote . . . . . 0102111300200—12

Kay's strong finish, counting four on the last two ends, clinched the game. Getting away to a comfortable lead, he was overhauled by Foote, and then went in front again with two two-ends. The next two ends left Foote one up, but Kay finished strong. His rink gave him fine support. It is perhaps worthy of note that both the primary and consolation rounds of the club bonspiel were won by skips who have only recently been raised to that estate. Alex. Archibald defeated Dr. Wightman in the primary, and Alex. Kay takes the consolation. Both the runners-up were first string skips.

Won in Semi-Finals.

To qualify for the finals Kay defeated J. H. Ferguson on Saturday afternoon by 13 to 10. The President's rink played with only three men, Manson Comstock being absent. J. H. Ferguson was skip, Percy Fitzgerald vice-skip, and G. Copping lead.

BILL O'HARA.

You all remember half a dozen years or so ago
The Giants had a fielder out in left
Who was fast between the bases and could field as well as throw,
But when it came to hitting wasn't deft.

He was noted as a waiter and he led the batting list,
But he couldn't pat the apple with his club,
And so it came to pass one spring his stocky form was missed
And fans classed Bill O'Hara as a dub.

But though Bill went to the bushes, still he kept a-sawing wood,
Still lined the ball in when 'twas hit his way;
And then last year the sergeant said he'd make good cannon food,
Although for baseball just a Bit passe.

Instead of cutting off ambitious runners at the plate,
Or those who hooked at third base on a fly,
Bill heard the call for keener work, and war despatches state
That's he starring with the brightest in the sky.

They say he's got a medal and a ribbon and a cross,
That honours like ripe plums upon him fall
For deftly hurling hand grenades, and giving bombs a toss,
The way he used to throw that blooming ball.

So hre's to Bill O'Hara, who when canned by John McGraw,
Didn't mope because cut short off in his fling.
Or rant, as men will often, that the deal he got was raw,
But instead became star hurler for the King.

—Maurice Morris in New York Sun.

HORSE FAIR FOR PETERBOROUGH

Messrs. Coulter and Williams, representing the Ontario Horse Shippers' Association, are in the city today with a view of establishing a monthly horse fair in Peterborough. Should the proposal meet with the approval of the Council the first fair will open on the twenty-eighth of this month. Farmers will bring their horses to the city on the fourth Wednesday of each month, when buyers from the Association will be on hand to buy them. Any kind of a horse will be purchased, including army horses. If satisfactory arrangements can be made the Market Square will be used as an arena or fair ground. Similar fairs are held in other parts of Ontario, including Owen Sound and Orangeville. A horse fair is being established in London, Ontario.

Estimates Cut By $2,950.00

Finance Committee Perform the Dire Deed on Saturday Night

A cut of twenty-nine hundred and fifty dollars in the city's estimated expenditure for the current year was recommended at a meeting of the Finance Committee, held on Saturday evening. This reduction in the estimates will enable the Council to hold the tax rate to its present level, namely twenty-eight mills, including Provincial war tax and garbage collection. The Committee's recommendation will have to be ratified by the Council. The following amounts were clipped from the departments named:

Administration of Justice	$100.00
Charity	400.00
Fire Department	500.00
Health	100.00
Interest	200.00
Light	200.00
Loss on taxes	100.00
Miscellaneous	200.00
Parks	50.00
Queen Mary Hospital	200.00
Streets and bridges	400.00
Special grants	500.00
Total	$2,950.00

Would Raise Rate.

A number of the aldermen are of the opinion that it would be much better business to add two-thirds of a mill to the rate than destroy the work of the Committee of the Whole Council, which met a few nights ago and decided on a twenty-eight mill rate. To obtain this rate it is necessary to reduce the estimates by about three thousand dollars. In other words, the Committee fix the rate and then cut the estimates of each department down to fit the rate. In other words, they make the dog fit the tail, instead of making the tail fit the dog.

cuse the short letter as I am pretty sleepy. They even bring my meals to me in bed. I came in hospital on the 25th. When I get out I shall have ten days' leave. If I can get three months' leave I shall come over and see you, but I don't think I shall. That cake that you sent I never got, but I had a good feed of turkey and rum to match it.

I guess I will close. Best wishes to all. THOMAS.

Lieut. J. A. New, who went overseas with a draft of about fifty officers, has been in the hospital for about two weeks suffering from influenza. Lieut. New was located in the same hospital as Lieut. J. A. McNabb.

At yesterday morning's service in St. Paul's Church, Mr. Pogue welcomed Corporal George Lightheart and Pte. Bruce Clarke, who returned lately from the front. Corp. Lightheart was a member for years of St. Paul's Church.

The Questions of the Child

Dr. Helen Webb, of London, England, believes parents will do well and rightly to answer, as fully and as truthfully as may be possible the questions asked by the children in the home. Dr. Webb says that one of the causes of ill-temper and ill-deeds in children is intellectual starvation—a condition easily relieved by judiciously imparted parental information. Dr. Webb might have amplified the discussion of this theme by adding that parents who make shift to answer the questions of their children establish a habit and a bond which can be made of the greatest use in retarding steps along the wrong path by the child. That child who is rewarded with, "Oh, shut up, will you?" or "Oh, stop your noise, can you?" soon learns to seek information from other than parental sources, you know—and there is a big risk that such a child will gather an unsavory mess of misinformation, don't you think? Of course, it may be a little difficult to reply to all the questions asked by a keen-minded child—but one ought to be proud of the child with such a mind, don't you fancy?

Some Useful Don'ts

Don't use the eyes when they are tired or weak from illness. Don't face the light when reading or sewing. Don't neglect to bathe the eyes before retiring, so as to remove any dust that may have gathered on the lids during the day.

Don't allow a cold, raw wind to strike the eyes. Don't try to get a cinder out of the eye by rubbing the injured orb; rub the other eye. Don't sleep too much or too little; too much sleep weakens the eyes, too little fatigues them.

Don't wear your hair always in the same style; a change of method is beneficial to the hair, and to let it fall loosely about the shoulders is an excellent plan at times.

Don't follow fashion blindly in regard to coiffure if you would have artistic proportions and bring out the best expressions of the face. Don't part the hair in the middle if you are round-faced and chubby; this only emphasizes the disc-like appearance.

Don't get into the habit (quite an easy one to fall into) of frowning. It causes the face to become wrinkled and lined.

NO EASTER EXCURSIONS OR SPECIAL RATES

Will Restrict Traffic and Keep Money in Canada—No Special Trains

OTTAWA, March 12.—There will be no Easter excursion or special Easter rates this year. The Eastern Canadian Passengers Association, after consultation with Sir Henry Drayton, in view of the general railway situation and the war conditions, has decided to cancel rates and excursions this year. This will help the railways in their fight against car shortage and freight congestion. It will greatly restrict travelling, which is usually very heavy in the Easter season. In addition, it will tend to keep money in Canada, as ordinarily thousands of Canadians from Montreal, Ottawa, Toronto and other cities visit New York at Easter time to participate in the Fifth Avenue parade. Last year four special trains from Ottawa, each with more than a dozen loaded Pullmans, went to New York at Easter.

The only special rates which will be permitted will be to students and commercial travellers.

In addition to prohibition of excursion trains the railways are not permitted to run any special trains except for the moving of troops. The Canadien Hockey Club of Montreal wished to run a special train to Ottawa for the final hockey championship game, on Saturday night, but found they were up against a regulation which the Railway Commission strongly insists upon.

BIG DROP IN EGG PRICES AND MARKET IS WEAK ON DECLINE

With eggs 26 cents a dozen in Chicago and about 35c in Montreal, the local wholesale price is scarcely more than 32 cents. In fact the range is from 30 to 32 cents and the market is uncertain and weak. On account of the tariff the Canadian wholesale price is almost ten cents above the United States market where further decreases are expected immediately. The drop is a sharp one and should affect local prices at once.

Firemen Received $15 Each From Mr. Denham of the Quaker Oats Co.

This was no blue Monday at the Fire Hall. The morning mail brought to each of the firemen a cheque for $15 from Mr. W. H. Denham of the Quaker Oats Company in recognition of their efforts against the fire that devastated the local plant on December 11. Not only were the men pleased by this remembrance; but they were delighted with the letter that accompanied the cheques. The appreciation expressed by Mr. Denham, deeply touched the men as it also moved them with a new encouragement in their work. The men are very grateful to Mr. Denham and the Quaker Oats Company and will not forget the kindliness behind this recognition of their work.

93rd BATTALION FUND BALANCE NOT AVILABLE FOR THE 247th

A recent suggestion that the balance of the 93rd Battalion fund might be diverted to the 247th for their present requirements did not take into consideration the terms under which the remainder of the fund is held. The trustees are Rev. Father Phelan, Adjutant McElhiney and Mr. Vincent Eastwood, who for the time being have complete control of the sum of from $1,000 to $1,200, of which they were appointed guardians. The money was forwarded from the Canadian authorities in London and will be retained for the sole use of the 93rd men or their dependents.

ENSLAVED.

Who is enslaved? Belgium? Never—
She who stood to her soul's endeavor!
The crown of her King is a light forever.

Who is enslaved? Beloved France,
With her steadfast heart and her upward glance?
Her very son has a man's high chance.

Who is enslaved? England? No!
With her mighty gesture, strong and slow,
And her face like flint to the savage foe.

What of America? Slaves are we!
Shackled on land and scorned at sea;
O God of hosts! Set Thy people free—

Free to choose and free to stand,
Free to answer our soul's demand—
To strike with a swift unfaltering hand!

Here is the sword keen as of old,
Straight as a beam of morning gold;
Shall it fall away from our listless hold?

Who but we should right the wrong?
Stand with the true, fight with the strong?
Come, my Land, with a cry and a song! America!

Wife Lived Month Unaware Body Of Husband In Cellar

TALES OF AWFUL BRUTALITY

CORNWALL, March 13. — The authorities decline to allow the body of Wm. St. Pierre to be buried in a public cemetery. Great revulsion here. The girl's story is doubted.

AULTSVILLE, Ont., March 13.—A dilapidated frame house, unpainted, weatherworn, and in a tumble-down condition, standing among a little group of other buildings, clustering together at the junction of two roads across a snow-swept country, trying to defy the awesome loneliness of the scene, intensified by the silent gloom of the bush forming its background. This was the scene of one of the most heinous crimes that has ever stirred the tranquil life of the peaceful neighborhood, and which has made the house a Mecca for the morbid in the district, who have journeyed out from the little Ontario village of Aultsville to see the place where William St. Pierre, one of the best known characters of this countryside, was shot to death and buried in the cellar of the house, over a month ago, and whose body was discovered last Friday.

The persons immediately concerned with the crime are Emerson St. Pierre, aged twenty-three years, the son of the murdered man, who was arrested on Thursday on suspicion of having been responsible for the disappearance of his father, William St. Pierre, the victim, fifty-three years of age, who lived in the neighborhood all his life, earning his livelihood by well-digging principally and by anything else he could find to do, and the girl in the case, Nettie Richmire aged seventeen years, whose home was at East Williamsburg, about seventeen miles from Aultsville, and who is reported to have come from a respectable family. She is the self-confessed slayer of St. Pierre.

FAMILY LIFE WRETCHED

The St. Pierre family have always resided in this district and according to the neighbors they lived a wretched existence, but nevertheless a very bold one. William St. Pierre eked out a bare living by his work at well digging, and for the rest depended upon the things he could get from other people in the district. St. Pierre, the neighbors claim, took what he wanted permission was given or not. So desperate was his character known to be that the countryside stood in awe of him and his wild ways and offered him little or no opposition in these depredations. He had served a long term in the penitentiary for stealing, but even this did not prove a deterrent when he had taken a fancy to some particular thing not his own.

In the low, tumble-down house in which the family lived there were signs of a very rude and primitive mode of existence. The downstairs apartment was the only one that was occupied, and it was divided into two parts by a small partition. The rooms were in a filthy condition, and littered with a conglomeration of rubbish, encrusted with dust and dirt. The floors were bare and walls were almost tottering, and the few shelves were piled high with apparently useless trinkets. On the walls and rafters hung seven guns, most of which were old-fashioned muzzle loaders, while in various parts of the house were several powder horns of different patterns and styles. Here is where William St. Pierre lived with his wife, his three daughters, his son and the girl Richmire.

A rickety stairway just outside the floor led to the upstair apartment, but it bore no signs of human habitation and was used as a chicken house. In one corner lay a heap of rags, covered over with a coil of rope, while old barrels and rotting vegetables, littered the rest of the floor space, and over it all the fowls had a clear run.

TALES OF AWFUL BRUTALITY.

The family life of William St. Pierre will scarcely bear description, if the neighbors' stories are to be credited at all. Periods of inhuman treatment of his children, fits of unrepressed brutality, the free license of a tower-ing passion, all this served to strike terror into his family, who were bullied into submitting to his will. The little girls bear evdence of cruelty that is beyond human comprehension, and which could only be conceived by a mentality of a very low calibre.

According to Mrs. St. Pierre, she has given birth to twenty-seven children, but only seven are living at present; the others, she claims, died through the brutality of her husband.

Previous to last August, Emerson St. Pierre, who is an illiterate, left the place he calls home and went to East Williamsburg, where he met Nettie Richmier. When he returned to his father's house he brought the girl with him, and she lived with the rest of the family.

It was said that the young couple made several attempts to get married but could not get anybody to perform the ceremony. All went as well as could be imagined until the girl Richmire went to Winchester early in February to visit her father, taking the three young girls with her, as she expected to be away for some time.

On about February 7 William St. Pierre suddenly disappeared, and search was instituted a month later which resulted in the finding of his body in the cellar of the house.

The story of the crime as pieced together from the confession of the Richmire girl, the stories from neighbors, and from the Coroner, and County Crown magistrate, make one of the most cold-blooded narratives in the history of crime. The mother being absent from home, the girl says she was left alone in the house with William St. Pierre, who attacked her. She says, "He used me brutally, and then I shot him." She then related how she dragged the body across the floor of the room and threw it down the cellar. Just at that time the lad Emerson returned to the house, and together they buried the body in the clay soil and covered it over with boards.

On Friday, February 9th the young couple drove out to Winchester and brought the mother and the three young children back home and they lived in the house, with the body buried in the cellar, for a month.

AUTHORITIES' SUSPICION AROUSED.

Constable Fetterly, of Aultsville, then noticed that preparations were being made to leave the house in which they were living, and another little barn was being fixed up. His suspicions being aroused he took the matter up with Mr. J. G. Harkness, County Attorney, who immediately communicated with the Provincial Detective Headquarters at Toronto and Detective Miller was sent down to investigate the case.

In the meantime a warrant had been taken out for the arrest of Emerson St. Pierre and he was taken into custody at the County Jail at Cornwall on Friday. Detective Miller searched the place and finally the girl Richmire confessed to the crime and showed him where the body was hidden in the cellar. She was arrested and taken to the jail on Saturday morning.

An inquest was opened by Dr. A. R. Alguire, and after the jury had been empanelled and the body viewed the case was postponed until next Friday, no evidence whatever being taken.

William St. Pierre was last seen alive on about the seventh of Februray, when he was seen with a considerable amount of money in his possession. When Mrs. St. Pierre returned to her home from Winchester she found a note on the table purporting to hae been left by her husband, which stated that he was going away to see his sisters in Syracuse and would not be back until spring. Twenty dollars were left in the envelope, which were to pay for the expenses during the remainder of the winter.

Mrs. St. Pierre thought nothing of this, as her husband had been planning on this trip to Syracuse for some time, and so her suspicions were not aroused by his absence, and she continued to live in the house quite innocent of the fact that her husband's body was in the cellar.

It was also observed that the young man and the girl had been spending money very freely during the past two weeks, and this had deepened the suspicions. The neighbours also say in explanation of the moving from the house to the other little shack that the boy had brought ten gallons of gasoline and apparently intended to burn the old place.

NATURE HELPED DISCOVERY

When the body was found it was lying covered over by about six inches of clay soil, and was in a remarkable state of preservation, decomposition not having set in. The charge of shot entered on the left side of the neck and came out on the other side. There were marks of shot over the face and scattered over the neck, and death must have been instantaneous. Every drop of blood had drained out from the body, and the flesh around the fingers had become slightly shrivelled where the hands had been lying in water.

There were no marks of the crime about the house, save in one corner of the room where the floor had been scraped, and a dirty matted piece of cloth, which was wrapped around the head of the victim before he was buried.

When the young man was taken into court on Friday and charged with causing the disappearance of his father, he did not seem in the least concerned, and showed utter indifference to the whole matter. The Richmire girl adopted a similar attitude while she was being questioned by Detective Miller, but finally she broke down and told her story. They are both in the county jail at Cornwall, and enquiries this morning elicited the information that they are eating and sleeping well.

The funeral of the victim was held this morning in a little country cemetery six miles north of where he lived.

Of the family, the three little girls at home are: Dorothy Helen, aged one year and nine months; Flossie, aged 9 years, and Leila, aged 11 years. There were three other boys who were sent to the Mimico Industrial School in Toronto, whence they went to western Canada and have not been heard from for the last nine years.

Evidence will be submitted at the inquest on Friday. Mr. C. A. Stiles, of Cornwall, has been retained as counsel for the defence.

A GOOD WINTER HABIT

Many people dread winter because the sudden climatic changes bring colds, grippe, rheumatism, tonsilitis or bronchitis. But thousands of well-informed men and women today avoid much sickness for themselves and their children by taking a few bottles of Scott's Emulsion to make richer blood, fortify the membranes of the throat and chest and create body-warmth to resist sickness. Soldiers at war receive cod liver oil; it will also strengthen you.

OUR SERIAL STORY

By C. HOTCHKISS

"How?" asked the sheriff, flushing under his tan.

"This way. Bagshot was bound to change his plans after the muss Planet had with our friend here. He was afraid the gal told what she knew. That's one thing. Next, he darsen't go nowhere far by railroad 'cause of the telegraph. Wel, what has he done? He's bound to come in this direction, final, if he's goin' to either Kersville or the mine. You can gamble that he drove that ambulance with the gal in it to Corbyn or New Brunfels—jest to throw you off the track—an' he done it.

"Cave, he's behind ye, not ahead o' ye. When he comes up outfitted from below he'll give Boerne a wide birth. He's a foxy cuss, and him an' the greaser make a strong team—a reg'lar Injun team."

While the sheriff was conversing with his father Wentworth had moved from the veranda, followed by Harper. His still growing emotion had become too great to allow him to remain with the others. The whole matter was plain to him; no reasoning, no further proof was necessary; events fitted too nicely for any but one conclusion to be drawn, and such conclusion came to the young man with the force of an absolute certainty. His father had been hounded, ruined, and, constructively at least, murdered by a liar. Now the captain's name was at last free from taint, and he, his son, might look the world in the fact. To the young man it was like a cloud passing from before the sun.

But Bagshot? It shook Wentworth even to think of him, and he could barely contain himself as Harper referred to the fugitives. The old man on the veranda looked at the two friends, then bent his mouth to the ear of his son.

"That young feller will shoot Simeon Bagshot on sight," said the stage-driver, in a whisper. "You ain't never goin' to take Simeon alive—or I can't read faces no more."

"I won't blame him," returned the sheriff. "But he won't kill him, nor we won't serve the warrant by setting down here. Those two fellows with me don't lack no sand, and I don't like the idea of turning back."

"Shore not, Cave! 'Cause that's what Bagshot looks for! He won't touch Boerne; an' he'll go round Comfort, likely, not hankerin' after no settlements. But he's got to cross the Guadaloupe unless he takes to the desert, which ain't understandable. Can't ye see?"

"You mean we got to lay for him at the Guadaloupe ford?"

"Percisely" said the driver, bringing his great hands togethed with the sound of a pistol-shot. "Camp right there until they come up—an' there ye have it! Bagshot on't lookin' for no trouble forward. I bet he's breakin' his neck lookin' for dust behind."

"It is the best way!" said the sheriff, nodding his head from sudden conviction. "We'll outfit for camping and go on to-night."

"Now yer talking!" said his father, rising and pulling out a silver watch. "An' I got to begin to hook up the stage, too. So long, son!"

CHAPTER XIX.
At the Ford.

Five miles or more south of the small settlement bearing the significant name of Comfort, the Guadaloupe River winds through soil black with natural richness, and at its single available ford the road leading northwest, here but a wide trail over the prairie, crosses the stream at the only point within miles where there is a falling away of the low but steep bluffs.

For many years the land has been safe against the roving Apache and the predatory Mexican, and is fairly safe from the lawlessness which once characterized the plains. But there are still sporadic cases of violence of the old order though Texas has become modernized. Life and property have more protection than the mere word of the law; yet even at the present day though men are not allowed to carry arms indiscriminately against their brothers it is done covertly, for a stranger met out on the llanos is very apt to prove an enemy. The adage that applies to the African desert might largely apply to-day to the great Western plains.

On the south bank of the Guadaloupe the river margin is overgrown with a thick tangle of chaparral, post-oaks, and low cedars; but on the north side a few live-oaks sprang from as fair a reach of grassland as the eye ever beheld. It is a rich country; the ranches are immense in size, and in the interval between Boerne and the old German settlement of Comfort there are but few houses to be seen by the traveller on the main trail.

It was in the shade of one of the great trees on the north side of the river, a little removed from the ford itself, that the pursuing party camped and waited. Save for the addition of a lead-horse carrying provisions their outfit was unchanged and they had none of the luxuries of a picnic camp. Thorp had been busy and thorough, yet the only additional news he had gleaned in a lone trip to Comfort was negative: no ambulance containing a lady had yet passed through the place.

The wait was a welcome rest; but to Wentworth, with yet another indictment against the man he hated with his whole soul, every hour of inactivity increased his nervous tension. The horses were picketed in a thicket, that a sight of them might not arouse the suspicion of the fugitives or tempt a stray desperado. And danger from the last character was not little.

So the party settled down. One day—two days—three days passed, and there had been no sign of Bagshot; indeed, there was hardly a sight of anyone. It was now early in October, but the land about gave no such evidence of the advancing season as might be noted in the North. In the sun the heat was yet severe, the sky a glorious expanse of blue; there was little or no wind nor were there the "gull-clouds" which are usually a feature of the Texas firmament.

Talk had languished among the three, but as Thorp stood looking over the broad expanse under his eye he turned to the two lying beneath the tree.

"This ain't exactly the weather I look for at this time of year," he said.

"What's the matter with it?" asked Wentworth, who had been smoking in gloomy silence.

"Nothing—in one way. It suits us all right, but there's a stillness about things that strikes me as meaning business later. The nights ain't cool enough, and the clouds don't form and fly like they ought to. Things seem to be holding their breath. Don't you notice it?"

"It's lovely weather—and if it is holding its breath it's doing about what I am. Taken with the rest of it, it is damned monotonous."

And it had become monotonous, this unrewarded waiting. Even the sheriff's face began to wear a less confident look; Harper was openly discontented though he always wore a good-natured countenance, and his growls were without venom or fault-finding. Wentworth fairly twitched from suppressed nervousness. He began to suspect that Bagshot had given them the slip and had not intended to cross the Guadaloupe at all. The thought was maddening. Each man held the same suspicion and each man concealed it from the others. Wentworth, now hardened and rested, had made no formal protest as yet, but he felt that he must surely cry out against another day of inaction.

For besides the disappointment and the dull passing of the hours there was little or nothing to be seen of life. Once in a while a man on horseback passed over the trail, but the small single track railroad had absorbed most of the travel and hauling; no wagons lumbered over the wide and shallow ford, and the faint whistle of the locomotive which once in a while drifted from the distance was like a cry of triumph. The old, wild days, the provincial, devil-may-care days, the days of makeshifts, seemed to be gone forever.

As the sheriff made his remark about the unusual weather he walked away. It had been on the tip of Wentworth's tongue to sound him as to his future plans, but he let the chance go by and the day for such inquiry never dawned.

At night the watchers had taken turns picketing the ford on horseback. The evening of the third day, which he swore to himself should be the last of his inactivity, Wentworth took the early watch from eight to twelve. Nothing broke the silence save the swish of the risen gulf-wind; nothing met his vision save the now familiar landscape lying broad and clear, drenched in the light of a full, southern moon.

At midnight he returned to camp in a decided ill humor, staked out his horse, and brought in Harper's, which was already saddled for instant mounting. Quietly routing out the deputy, he fell into his place and went instantly to sleep. Thorp did not stir; he was to go on at four o'clock.

Harper stretched himself, got his saddle and, riding over the moonlit ford, took his station on the rising ground beyond, and there sat motionless. He could see a mile or more to the south, and if anything came over the trail he would have ample time to ride in and arouse the others. An hour passed. Harper found he was nodding.

He pulled himself together, and determined to keep himself awake by smoking; but on feeling his pocket he discovered he had no cigars. Deciding to return to get a supply from the pack, he splashed back through the ford; then, thinking he might disturb the others by approaching on horseback, he tied his mount to a shin-oak near the bank of the river and walked silently into camp. Wentworth woke as Harper came in. "See anything?" he asked.

"Not a thing," was the whispered answer. "Came in to get some weeds." The young man swore and rolled over, composing himself for another nap.

CURIOUS COURTSHIP.

Chinese Girls Allowed No Choice In Picking a Husband.

As soon as the Chinese lady is old enough to be married her father chooses a husband for her. She is never allowed to see him herself. Her father carries on all the courtship for her. The poor Chinaman does not see his girl until the day of the wedding. He does not know whether she is pretty or whether she has a temper.

On the great day the bride is dressed in very gay clothes and placed in a sedan chair, and she is carried toward her husband. A crowd of people go with her, carrying torches which are lighted even if it be a noon wedding.

A band of drums and fifes precedes the chair, and, no matter how hard the bride tried to get away, she could not, as the chair is locked, and an old servant carries the key. The key is then given to the bridegroom, and he is the only one privileged to open it.

When he opens the doors of the sedan chair he lifts the veil the little Chinese lady wears over her face, and if he does not like the face of his future bride he orders the servants to take her back to her father's roof, and he pays the girl a sum of money to make up for the loss of his companionship. But if he thinks he is going to like the little lady he asks her to come in, and the chair is sent back empty. Then there is a grand feast and the Chinaman is married.

Queer, isn't it? Aren't you glad you live in America and are free to wed whom you love?—Cincinnati Commercial Tribune.

WASHING THE DISHES.

Doing This Job Only Once a Day, It Is Said, Saves Time.

"The careful housekeeper will always resent the suggestion that once a day is often enough to wash dishes," writes Dr. H. Barnard in "Table Talk" in the National Food Magazine. "She cannot train herself to allow soiled plates and silverware to stack up from one meal to the next, for she has been taught that such actions are evidence of shiftless, slovenly housekeeping. As a matter of fact, along with many other notions which are fixed in the operation of the home, both time and energy are saved by cutting out two of the three daily dishwashing jobs."

Dr. Barnard goes on to recite the experience of one housekeeper who actually dared study the homely work of dishwashing. One week she washed dishes three times a day; the next week she washed each day's dishes altogether. She used the same number of dishes each day in both weeks. She found that it took her fifty-one minutes a day to wash dishes after each meal and forty-one minutes a day to wash them once a day.

This took account only of time, but there was a considerable additional saving in gas or fuel consumed by heating water once instead of thrice a day, to say nothing of the saving in soap.

SALT IN THE FOOD.

Why Its Flavor at Times Is Too Weak or Too Strong.

The average housewife wonders why she often over or under salts her dishes when she "knows" that she salted them just right, as she always did and as the recipes called for.

The reason is just this: The seasoning value of different brands of salt varies widely. This is easily proved. Take five slices of ripe tomatoes; apply equal parts of five makes of salt upon the separate pieces. Eat as soon as salted. The difference in flavor, permeation, rapidity and equality of dissolution and seasoning value are readily detected.

A table salt should be fine, the crystals of equal size, quickly soluble and free from ingredients which absorb moisture from the air. Large and small crystals will not dissolve uniformly; consequently the full salting effect is not obtained until the large crystals are dissolved. The quickly soluble salt diffuses itself through the food at once and gives an equality of savor. Sticky salt is an intrusive nuisance.

Failures in salting are largely due to changing from one make of salt to another. Get the best grade, grow accustomed to its use and stick to it.

Had Violent Coughing Fits

Looked Like Consumptive

Mrs. Mary Whelen, North Forks, N.S., writes: "Having taken five bottles of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, during the past few weeks, to relieve a chronic cough and general throat trouble, allow me to express my unbounded satisfaction and thanks as to its sterling qualities. A short time ago I became subject to violent coughing fits at night and directly after rising in the morning. I began losing weight, and all my friends cheerfully informed me that I was going into consumption.

"After taking the 'Dr. Wood's' I am pleased to relate that the cough has entirely disappeared and I have since regained the lost weight. I have no hesitation in recommending Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup."

There are many imitations of "Dr. Wood's" on the market so see that none of these so-called "pine syrups" are handed out to you when you ask for "Dr. Wood's." It has been on the market for twenty-five years, is put up in a yellow wrapper, three pine trees the trade mark, price 25c and 50c.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

A COMPLICATED CASE

It Resulted From an Endeavor to Make a Match

By F. A. MITCHEL

Suits for breach of promise are not always the vulgar affairs to which we are accustomed, though I admit that many which are made public are not very sweet smelling.

Kate Devereaux was my chum in the woman's college, and I confess she fascinated me. Girls who have brothers are fond of picking out wives for them, and it usually happens that the brother doesn't see the matter in the same light as the sister at all. When I told Ralph that I proposed to make a match for him with my college chum he showed no interest in the proposition whatever.

"Wait till you see her," I said to him. "If she is as homely and uninteresting as most of the girls you have picked out for me," he replied, "I don't want to see her."

I invited Kate to spend the spring recess with me. I had been just as stupid in telling her that I had a brother for her as I had been in telling Ralph that I had a chum for him, though my plan was rather a fancy than a serious intention. I was quite curious to see how these two persons who had been thus informed would greet each other. Ralph and I went to the station to meet my guest, and I did not have a good opportunity to see how they were impressed with each other. After our return home I said to Ralph:

"Well, what do you think of her?"

"She's not so homely as the rest of your favorites," was his only reply.

I asked Kate if she did not think my brother a fine fellow, and she said, "Very nice," but in an indifferent tone.

We were all together for two weeks, with other young persons of our bunch, but I could not see that Ralph and Kate were especially interested in each other. Ralph seemed rather to favor another girl and Kate another man. It struck me that I had made a new failure in picking out a wife for Ralph, but, as I have said, my doing so was not a matter of great concern to me, and I thought no more about it.

Kate and I went back to college, and since we were to graduate in June, we were absorbed in our preparations for the final exams and commencement. Ralph came to see me graduate. Kate took part in the graduating exercises of the class, and I asked Ralph if she didn't look very sweet in her pure white costume. He replied indifferently that all girl graduates looked sweet.

Kate invited me to spend a few weeks with her after our graduation, and we left college together. The day after our arrival at her home Kate took me into her room and said to me:

"Estelle, I have a very unpleasant announcement to make to you."

"Do tell me what it is!" I said, catching my breath.

"I am going to bring a suit against your brother for breach of promise of marriage."

I looked at her with as much amazement as if she had drawn a pistol and ordered me to throw up my hands.

"When—how—where?"—I began, but got no further.

"You may remember what you said about Ralph to me before we met. Well, I had no sooner gone to your house for the spring recess than Ralph began to make love to me. Fortunately I did not trust him and showed little interest. When we returned to college he wrote me letters repeating what he had said to me. We met several times after that—without your knowledge—and I accepted him. I have no doubt now that he was simply desirous to make a conquest, for when he came on at commencement he treated me very coolly, not mentioning our engagement. Now, don't you think, dear, that such treatment merits punishment?"

"I certainly do, but"—

"But what?"

"I'm surprised that you should think of making the affair public."

"Estelle, you are barking back to a time when we women were expected to suffer any treatment from men they felt disposed to give us and hide our feelings of grief or resentment under a bushel. A time has come when such self abnegation has passed. I take this step not because I wish to—indeed, on your account especially I dread it—but because I deem it my duty to do so."

I could not but admit that in principle Kate was right, but in this particular instance something must be done to stop such a proceeding. I cut short my visit, returning home at once. I called Ralph into the library, where we were alone, and after telling him that I knew of his outrageous conduct I told him that Kate in justice to her sex was about to bring suit against him for breach of promise.

"How much damage does she claim?" he asked imperturbably.

"Ralph!" I cried. "What do you mean? You don't mean that you are going to let this disgraceful conduct stand; that you intend to keep up this dishonorable treatment?"

"What can I do? You tell me that you wish me to marry your college chum. You bring her home with you for vacation. She, having been informed by you that I am to make love to her and marry her, acts accordingly. I act accordingly too. She takes it all seriously, whereas we were both deferring to your wishes."

"Oh, Ralph!"

"Fortunately," he continued, "I am perfectly able to satisfy her claim if it is not unreasonable. My railway bonds will do that. I shall certainly do everything I can to keep the matter out of court. If your bosom friend does not shrink from publicity I do. There is no need for the lady to expose her lacerated feelings to a lawyer. Let her tell you what is the damage done, and I will pay."

Could this be my brother Ralph, whom I had always regarded the soul of honor? My astonishment was as great as at learning that Kate Devereaux, who, it had appeared to me, possessed the soul of a true woman, should make a money demand as compensation for having been trifled with. But Kate had justice as a motive. Ralph so far as I could see had no ground whatever to stand on.

"Ralph," I said, "this is the most awful thing that has ever happened to me. What can I do to stop it?"

"What can you do, Puss?"—Puss was his pet name for me—"you can get your friend's terms. I will pay and that will end the matter."

"But are you content to remain in such a position? Think how it will injure you. Kate showed me your letters, they are full of ardent love."

"She will not show them to any one else."

"How do you know?"

"Because she is not that kind of a girl."

This gave me a ray of hope. Ralph thus far had spoken no word of blame for Kate, and it was evident that he respected her. And his letters to her showed plainly that he had loved her.

"What brought about your change of feeling for her?" I asked.

"That would be telling. I am quite willing that you should pick out a wife for me, but after bringing about a complication I am not willing to be catechised by you as to my action or my feelings in the matter. But for any wrongdoing, I am willing to pay."

There was much more talk upon the matter between Ralph and me, but I got no more out of him than I have given here. There seemed nothing else for me to do but see Kate again and endeavor to placate her in some way and persuade her that it was not her duty to take the drastic measure she intended. She lived not more than fifty miles from me, and I left Ralph to take my car and run over for another conference.

She received me apparently with no great concern. She did not act like a woman whose heart had been broken or one who desired revenge. As to making money out of my brother, I knew that was absurd. I attributed her action merely to principle, to conscientious motives, the protection of her sex against unjust treatment from man. Since I had come back to her so soon, she evidently expected that I had something to tell her, and she waited—chatting upon unimportant matters—for me to do so.

"Kate," I said, "I have had a long talk with Ralph and have received no explanation of his treatment of you. The only thing I can get out of him is that he is ready to pay any reasonable amount within his capabilities that you may name. But I cannot conceive of your accepting a money consideration for such an injury."

"I can give the amount to charity," said Kate, it seemed to me rather severely.

"Are you sure," I said, "that there is nothing vindictive in your action?"

"Nothing of the kind. I simply wish to teach one man that he cannot treat one woman with impunity. What other women do under similar circumstances is their affair, not mine."

"Well, then, I suppose nothing remains but for you to name the sum you claim and for me to name the amount to Ralph."

Kate made no reply to this at once, but at last said:

"I think the matter can be settled between the principals better than through a third party."

I caught at this at once and asked if I should say to Ralph that she would consent to a conference with him. She consented to this with apparent reluctance. It occurred to me that I could as well communicate this over the telephone and, going to the instrument, I called Ralph.

"Kate thinks that it would be best for her to give you her terms of settlement personally. Come over and see her."

"I haven't time." And I heard a click that I knew shut me off.

When I informed Kate of this she looked troubled. After some deliberation she went to the telephone herself. There was no booth inclosing it, and I could not help hearing what she said, though of course I heard no replies. What seemed of greatest importance was:

"I didn't give that rose to Mr. Hathaway. He took it without my permission."

"Yes, I admit that it must have seemed very wrong to you for me to give away a rose that you had given me."

"Then you'll be over for luncheon?"

"For heaven's sake!" I exclaimed when Kate rejoined me. "Has all this racket been about so small a matter?"

"It wasn't a small matter at all. Ralph gave me a rose. Another man took it, and Ralph saw him wearing it. Ralph, instead of coming to me for an explanation, treated me shamefully."

I didn't wait for Ralph's coming. The lovers had no further use for me.

I wish it distinctly understood that I do not claim to have made this match. Indeed, I was as far from it as one could possibly be. Both Ralph and Kate fooled me completely. Just think of these two, who happened to fall in love with each other and were both desperately caught, talking about a monetary consideration for wounded affection! And the cause—could anything be more ridiculous?

MARKO'S DILEMMA.

An Old Servian Legend of a Prophecy and Its Fulfillment.

Prilep, in Servia, is dear to the hearts of all Servian peasants, for around it cluster countless stories of one of the nation's most popular legendary supermen—Marko Kraljevitch, otherwise King's Son Marko.

The ruins of the castle of King's Son Marko overlook the town, and if the visitor proves to be a sympathetic auditor the guide will no doubt point out to him in the slabs of rock which strew the approach to the stronghold the indelible hoof prints of the master's favorite steed, Sharatz. And if you should happen to be in Prilep on the anniversary of Marko's festival, or "slava," you can prove to your own satisfaction whether there is any truth in the widely credited peasant legend that at midnight the doors of the castle chapel burst open and the hero, fully armed, rides in on his piebald charger, although the Marko of the flesh has been dead for 500 years.

In an old Servian ballad called "Marko's Judgment" there is recited this prophecy: Kral (King) Vukashine, Marko's father, whose chief fortified city was Prilep, speaks first: "Son Marko, may God slay thee! Thou shalt have neither monument nor posterity, and ere thy spirit leaves thy body the Turkish sultan thou shalt serve." Then speaks the czar, Stephen Dushan: "Friend Marko, may God help thee! Bright be thy face in the senate, sharp thy sword in battle. Never shall here surpass thee. And thy name shall be remembered so long as sun and moon endure."

And here, according to peasant folklore, is how that prophecy was fulfilled: Upon the death of Vukashine, Lazar Hreblianovitch, Count of Stratium, was elected czar. Bitterly disappointed at the failure of his own candidacy, Marko threatened the life of Lazar and was forthwith deprived of his fief. Penniless and disheartened, Marko turned to the court of the hated sultan and enlisted in his army to fight the Moslems of Asia Minor. (It should be remembered that it was no disgrace for a Servian to fight with the Turks provided the opposing forces were other Turks, for a Turk less, in whatever cause slain, was a blessing in the eyes of the Servians.)

In time, however, Marko's command was brought west to wage war against the orthodox prince of the Roumans. Loyal to his Mohammedan sovereign, when he came upon the field of battle, Marko's heart failed him when he saw the men of his own faith drawn up against him, and, facing the dilemma of choosing between proving traitor to his chief or lifting his sword against those of his own faith, he cried out, "Oh, God, do thou this day destroy all those who fight against Christendom and foremost Marko!" Saying which, he threw his body on the Christian spears and died without striking a blow.—National Geographic Society Bulletin.

Beginning of the Drama.

The theater in the only sense that is worth considering was born in Athens. Both tragedy and comedy spring from feasts in honor of Bacchus, and as the jests and frolics were found to be out of place when introduced into graver scenes a separate province—the true drama—was formed and comedy arose. The father of the Greek comedy was Aristophanes, who had lots of fun lampooning the public men of Athens. The creator of Greek tragedy was Aeschylus, born B. C. 525. In sublimity Aeschylus has never been surpassed. He is to the drama what Phidias and Michelangelo are to art.

Was Anaemic
FOR OVER A YEAR

Anaemia, or blood turning to water, is caused by the heart becoming deranged, and if the heart becomes weakened it cannot pump the blood as it should. As a result the blood becomes impoverished, and it loses its nourishing qualities. The face becomes pale and thin, and the lips bloodless. There is a weakness, tiredness and loss of weight.

When those suffering from thin or watery blood start taking Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills they can see a change from the outset.

Every dose introduces into the blood those vital elements necessary to make it rich and red. The pale cheeks take on the rosy hue of health, the weight increases, and the whole being thrills with a new life.

Mrs. E. J. Grey, Fredericton, N. B., writes: "When I was a girl working at general house work I overtaxed my strength and became completely run down. For over a year I was very bad with anaemia. A friend told me to try Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills so I got a box and when it was done I decided to get six more. When I had taken them I gained not only in strength, but in flesh and colour, and best of all was good health."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50c. a box; three boxes for $1.25 at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

QUIET AND NEAR LONDON.

The Lonely Cotswolds Nearly Touch The World's Biggest City.

The Cotswolds are an example of the variety of natural scenery that England succeeds in packing away within her narrow sea barred boundaries. Here, within three hours of the largest city in the world, you can walk in complete loneliness over a grassy road that follows the route laid out by Roman engineers, with a tumbled sky line of real mountains on your right and a sweep of empty fields falling away to the left. You can take tea in an old Roman villa, where the tiled courtyard is still smooth and tight; you can sleep in an inn that has apparently not changed its habits or its bill of fare since the days of Richard the Crusader.

As mountains the Cotswolds cannot pretend to any great eminence or boldness. They have no attractions for the man who wishes to brave steep cliffs or for him who would travel for a week on end through a single pine dark valley. They are well bred little hills compared with the Alps or the Rockies, but they have the true mountain flavor of loneliness and sturdy charm. The occasional farmhouse enhances the peculiar feeling of isolation, for a single human dwelling only serves to set off loneliness.

And the roads are a perpetual delight. The King's highway winds through these hills—a public road that would cost the landed proprietor who owns the ground on either side of it half his fortune in legal expenses to close up.—Exchange.

POWER OF RADIUM

It May Be the Force Destined to Destroy the World.

TO DIE IN A BURST OF FLAME.

This Wonderful Element, It Is Claimed, Will First Emancipate Man and Then Later on Put an End to Him and All His Works In a Sea of Fire.

If we place a thermometer into a phial containing a minute quantity of radium bromide it will indicate a temperature 2.7 degrees hotter than the temperature outside of the phial.

What the temperature would be if we substituted radium for radium bromide we have no means of knowing, for science has not as yet produced pure radium, although the lay world prefers to think so. Our closest approach to radium so far has been radium bromide, which if pure consists roughly of three-fifths by weight of the element radium and two-fifths of the element bromine.

Turning back to our thermometer, we also make the discovery that the heat radiated from our speck of radium bromide does not grow less as the days and months—nay, years and centuries—roll by. The mysterious element continues to furnish prodigious amounts of energy, with never a let up or at least not until it has "worked" for 2,500 years, this being the present calculated age of radium.

In order to better comprehend what this means let us compare it with coal. This is what we find:

According to Professor Soddy, a gram of pure radium evolves 133 calories of heat an hour. In one year (8,760 hours) the same gram of radium evolves 1,160,000 calories. In 2,500 years—the length of time radium will evolve energy—2,900,000,000 calories will be developed. Now, one gram of coal when burned evolves 2,200 net calories of heat. Consequently the energy developed by radium is more than a million times that furnished from the combustion of coal.

Commercial radium salts are at present obtained by working the Austrian pitchblende and lately from the American carnotite found in Colorado. These are practically the only commercial sources known today.

But radium is by no means as scarce as most people believe. Radium emanations have been found in springs, in the air in rocks etc. and this has given rise to an extraordinary theory regarding the evolution of the worlds.

When the famous Swiss-Italian Simplon tunnel was constructed some years ago totally unforeseen circumstances arose which made the work most difficult. Although this tunnel is far above sea level, the heat became unendurable as the work progressed. Artificial cooling had to be resorted to in order to allow the workmen to proceed with their work. Professor Joly then made the astounding discovery that the rocks of the Simplon contained radium, which accounted for the unexpected high temperature within the mountain.

From this Joly has built up a new theory of evolution, and, while revolutionary in the extreme, it is most plausible and gains more adherents each year.

Lord Kelvin already deduced that if the earth contained only two parts of radium per million million—and a great deal more is actually found in the rocks and crust of our globe—this minute quantity would raise the temperature of the earth's core 1,800 degrees C. in 100,000,000 years. There being no escape for the imprisoned heat—the earth's crust being an exceedingly bad heat conductor—Professor Joly convinces us that as the ages roll by the interior of the earth must become hotter and hotter. Finally, after the end of millions of millions of years the crust must give way to this tremendous heat from within and the bursting earth must go up in flames, becoming a burning gas ball, just as we see our sun today.

This will be the "incandescent age," a title suggested by Professor Soddy. After another ten million years the incandescent earth will have expended all of its heat into space by radiation and it gradually will cool. A new crust then begins to form anew. This is what we see at present on the planets Jupiter and Saturn, worlds just beginning to cool after emerging from their incandescent age.

Thus we find that worlds do not die. They slowly pass from one stage to another, in a long and interminable cycle. It is more than probable from the above that the earth must have passed many times through this cycle. Probably every time the world went up in flames man was at his highest point of civilization, infinitely further advanced than we are today. In an instant every living soul had perished, and for millions of years his like was not to tread again on the hardened earth crust.

This is the new and greater gospel of radium, the element which will emancipate man and which will destroy him and his all later.—H. Gernsbach

One of Jerrold's Retorts.

Very tart was Douglas Jerrold's retort to a would be wit who, having fired off all his stale jokes with no effect, exclaimed:

"Why, you never laugh when I say a good thing!"

"Don't I?" said Jerrold. "Only try me with one!"

You cannot dream yourself into a character; you must hammer and forge yourself one.—James Anthony Froude.

Saving.

Some women formed a resolution to do something about the high cost of living. "Something," they insisted, with lofty courage, "that will count!"

Accordingly they banded together and so perfected themselves in the art of making up their minds that whereas it had hitherto taken a salesgirl an average of two hours to sell a yard of ribbon she could now turn the trick in twenty minutes flat.

The economic saving, of course, was in the aggregate enormous, making itself felt all down the line.

Mapping Our Country.

Although the geological survey has been busily at work for thirty-five years, only about 40 per cent of the land of the United States is yet accurately mapped. W. M. Davis of Harvard university remarks in Science that at the present rate it will take about a century to complete the map.

PEEL OFF CALLUSES WITH THE FINGERS

To painlessly and quickly remove any callus spots from the bottom of the feet apply a few drops of freezone directly upon the hardened skin and shortly it will peel right off without pain, soreness or bleeding.

This drug is an ether compound. It simply loosens the dead callused skin. It doesn't eat it away, but loosens it so it peels right off with the fingers.

A quarter ounce of this freezone costs little at any pharmacy, but is sufficient to remove every corn or callus from one's feet. This is the only way to free the feet from corns and calluses without soreness, danger or infection.

After the corn or callus is lifted away the skin beneath and surrounding, is found pink and healthy, and not inflamed, or even irritated. This is a good thing to know.

TRAPPED IN A STOKEHOLE.

The Fate That Firemen on a Warship Are Liable to Meet.

The soldiers who fight with least recognition in the battles at sea are the stokers of the destroyers running at full speed. Eight men work under the command of a stoker petty officer in a space so narrow that movement of any kind seems impossible. There is a furnace in front and one in the back. Sandwiched in between is a maze of levers, pipes, pumps and gear.

Yet within these close quarters the stokers find space to perform their heartbreaking toil in an atmosphere almost too hot to breathe, says the Popular Science Monthly. When the men are at their posts the iron hatch is closed down, and the air sucked in through a ventilator has to pass through the furnace before it gets to them.

So long as the pumps work well and the evaporated water is displaced with automatic regularity by fresh neither the tubes nor the boiler casting can get dangerously hot. But sometimes without apparent cause the water slowly descends below the level. Sometimes the cause of mischief is a leakage—a pipe broken or a joint strained that allows the water to escape.

If it can be remedied, well and good. But if not and the water continues to drop steadily the stoker petty officer has but one duty to perform—to keep the hatchway from being opened by the frenzied stokers, thus allowing the flames to escape and destroy the entire vessel. The heroes who perish in the stokeholds like so many rats caught in a fiery trap are not even listed.

WRITING FOR THE STAGE.

Sir W. S. Gilbert Was Not Overproud of His Own Work.

"No man," writes Mrs. Alec-Tweedie in her reminiscences, "My Tablecloths," "had stranger admirers or keener haters than W. S. Gilbert. Successful people always have, but then, added to his success, he had a pompous manner and a sarcastic tongue.

"He was in excellent form one May night in 1896 when he dined with me. We were talking about 'Lysbinne,' Sarah Bernhardt's new play, which I had just seen in Paris, and I said it was a poor play splendidly acted.

"'If it's a poor play it's sure to succeed,' he retorted. 'No good play is ever a success. Fine writing and high morals are hopeless on the stage.'

"'That is severe.'

"'Not any too severe. I have been scribbling twaddle for thirty-five years to suit the public taste and ought to know. And, after all, look at the theater. It contains some 1,500 persons. Now, if you serve up tripe and onions for the gallery it offends the stalls; if you dish up sweetbreads and truffles for the stalls it disgusts the pit. Therefore plain leg of mutton and boiled potato is the most suitable fare for all. Light flippery and amusing nonsense are what I have endeavored to write. But I can tell you that after thirty-five years of that sort of thing, which I am glad to say has brought grist to the mill, I am about sick of it, and I shouldn't mind if I never wrote another word.'"

FADS OF LITERARY MEN.

A Letter From His Wife Always Made Hawthorne Wash His Hands.

Keats liked red pepper on his toast.

Dickens was fond of wearing jewelry.

Daudet wore his eyeglasses when asleep.

Thackeray used to lift his hat whenever he passed the house in which he wrote "Vanity Fair."

Alexandre Dumas the younger bought a new painting every time he had a new book published.

Robert Louis Stevenson's favorite recreation was playing the flute, in order, as he said, to tune his ideas.

Robert Browning could not sit still. With the constant shuffling of his feet holes were worn in the carpet.

Longfellow enjoyed walking only at sunrise or sunset, as he said his sublimest moods came upon him at these times.

Hawthorne always washed his hands before reading a letter from his wife. He delighted in poring over old advertisements in the newspaper files.

Oliver Wendell Holmes used to carry a horse chestnut in one pocket and a potato in another to ward off rheumatism.

Horrors of Thirst.

There is no horror like the horror of thirst—no physical suffering comparable to it. A traveler over the desert in Egypt describes a man who had lost his way, wandering about for days without water, and finally came staggering into his camp. The man's eyes were bloodshot, his lips swollen to twice their natural size. His tongue, blue, parched and swollen, hung out of his mouth. To allow such a man to drink water at will would be like pumping cold water into a redhot steam boiler. It would kill him. This man required to be held forcibly by four men in his eagerness to get at drinking water, while a fifth man allowed a few drops to trickle down the throat of the sufferer at long intervals. He had to be cooled off little by little, like an overheated boiler.

An Unanswerable Argument.

The poor relation had not been invited to the formal function at the great house, but he went to the door in spite of that oversight.

"Where's your card?" inquired the first gentleman in waiting.

"Haven't got any," responded the poor relation meekly.

"Nobody can get in without a card."

"Well, I'm nobody," murmured the poor relation, but the first gentleman in waiting could not grasp the delicate humor of it, and the poor relation was turned away from the inhospitable door.—Exchange.

Where Men Wear Combs.

The traveler in India is surprised to see that men wear combs in their hair much more than women do. A Cingalese gentleman wears what we know as the circular comb and a very ornamental back comb of tortoise shell to gather his curly locks together. He wears a full beard also, but his servant must trim his own beard and is allowed to wear the circular comb only. —Exchange.

Shadows of History.

"William the Conqueror," read the small boy from his history, "landed in England in 1066 A. D."

"What does 'A. D.' stand for?" inquired the teacher.

The small boy pondered.

"I don't exactly know," he said. "Maybe it's after dark."

Insert Letter "E."

"So you were invited to participate in a profit sharing scheme?"

"Yes."

"How did you come out?"

"I discovered that the purpose of the scheme was not sharing, but shearing."

Irresponsible Spirit.

"Has your husband told you you must economize?"

"Yes," replied Mrs. Flimgilt, "but I'm not letting him bother me. He's one of those people who insist on taking up every fad that comes along."

It isn't a good plan to allow your regrets for yesterday to overshadow your hopes for tomorrow.

TRY THIS IF YOU HAVE DANDRUFF

There is one sure way that never fails to remove dandruff completely and that is to dissolve it. This destroys it entirely. To do this, just get about four ounces of plain, ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most if not all, of your dandruff will be gone and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop instantly and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive, and four ounces is all you will need. This simple remedy has never been known to fail.

Force of Light.

Light has an actual mechanical pressure and can be measured in the laboratory. It has been found that the sun's light in itself presses against the earth with a force something like 70,000 tons. As the surface of a sphere varies as the square of the radius, and as the volume or mass varies as the cube of the radius, and as the mechanical pressure of light on the whole surface varies as that surface, and as the force of gravity varies as the mass, if a sphere is made smaller and smaller it is easily seen that the pressure of light does not decrease so fast as the force of gravity, so bodies beyond a certain minuteness could not reach the sun, but would be repelled by the mechanical force of its light.

KEEP URIC ACID OUT OF JOINTS

Tells Rheumatism Sufferers to Eat Less Meat and Take Salts

Rheumatism is easier to avoid than to cure, states a well known authority. We are advised to dress warmly; keep the feet dry; avoid exposure; eat less meat, but drink plenty of good water.

Rheumatism is a direct result of eating too much meat, and other rich foods that produce uric acid which is absorbed into the blood. It is the function of the kidneys to filter this acid from the blood and cast it out in the urine; the pores of the skin are also a means of freeing the blood of this impurity. In damp and chilly cold weather the skin pores are closed, thus forcing the kidneys to do double work, they become weak and sluggish and fail to eliminate the uric acid, which keeps accumulating and circulating through the system, eventually settling in the joints and muscles causing stiffness, soreness and pain, called rheumatism.

At the first twinge of rheumatism get from any pharmacy about four ounces of Jad Salts; put a tablespoonful in a glass of water and drink before breakfast each morning for a week. This is said to eliminate the uric acid by stimulating the kidneys to normal action, thus ridding the blood of these impurities.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, harmless and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia and is used with excellent results by thousands of folks who are subject to rheumatism. Here you have a pleasant, effervescent lithia-water drink which helps overcome uric acid, and is beneficial to your kidneys as well.

More Enthusiastic Reports On Dr. Chase's Nerve Food

Peterboro' People Are Putting This Great Restorative to the Test—Two Interesting Letters To-day

Peterborough, Ont., March 13.—The people of this city were never so interested in any medical treatment as they are to-day in Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. The Examiner has been reporting cures daily, and this has kept the people talking about their experiences until everybody seems to know about Dr. Chase's Nerve Food as a most satisfactory restorative for a run-down system.

Almost everybody feels the need of restorative treatment at one time or another. The business man and school boy, as well as sister and mother at home join in praising this well-known medicine.

Mrs. Craig, 45 Macdonnell street, Peterborough, Ont., writes:

"Several years ago when my family was small, I became run down and weak and was bothered with palpitation of the heart. I commenced using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and found such good results that I continued the treatment until I had taken about four or five boxes. It helped me and made me feel better afterward.

Since then, when I feel that I need a tonic, I take two or three boxes of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, finding the same good results each time. I can also speak highly of your Kidney-Liver Pills. I have great confidence in the use of Dr. Chase's Medicines as family remedies, and we always keep some of them in the house."

Mrs. J. Freeman, 532 Patterson Street, Peterborough, Ont., writes:

"Last spring, my daughter, aged eleven years, had a serious attack of heart trouble. For three weeks she was in bed under the Doctor's care. After she got up and was going around, we found she did not sleep well at night. We decided to try Dr. Chase's Nerve Food with her, so I procured some and commenced giving it to her. We found it benefitted her greatly, and that she did no wake up frightened in the night, as she used to. I continued the treatment, and at present she is still taking them. She sleeps splendidly, and has not had any trouble with her heart since she commenced this treatment. I have recommended the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food to many of my friends.

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, 50 cents a box, a full treatment of 6 boxes for $2.50, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto. Do not be talked into accepting a substitute. Imitations only disappoint.

EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE

LADY'S SHIRT WAIST.

By Anabel Worthington.

The practical mind will take in at a glance all the details of this becoming blouse, which shows one of fashion's newest whims by its square cut neck. At the shoulder seams the fulness is gracefully caught in with gathers from neck edge to shoulder edge, giving a somewhat fitted effect. Sleeves may be short with a roll cuff or full length with a fitted cuff—and the fitted cuff has much to do in stamping a blouse up to the minute in style. The collar is of contrasting goods and braid has trimming honors, but the left front closing is adorned with many buttons also. Together these details make up the total of satisfaction in a waist for general utility wear.

One will choose the practical weaves if for wear in the house, linen being excellent, or silk, crepe, satin or wool batiste for a little better wear with a walking skirt. Carrying out the design will take about one hour and give you value plus style and fit. Try it.

It is not surprising that the separate blouse has such vogue this winter, for its beauty and usefulness have been well demonstrated in the past. As is true of other garments, the salient feature of the waists receiving the strongest indorsement is the simplicity of design.

The waist pattern No. 8,097 cuts in sizes 36 to 44. To make in size 36 requires 2½ yards 36 inch material, ¼ yard 36 inch contrasting goods and 2⅝ yards braid.

To obtain the pattern send 10 cents to the office of this publication.

When ordering remember to give your name and address as well as the number and size of pattern required, and age of a child.

Price 15 cents, or 2 for 25 cents.

Big Subscriptions For Canada's War Loan

The French Hammer Enemy Near Verdun

INCREASING ACTIVITY IS REPORTED AT MANY POINTS ON THE WESTERN FRONT

British, French and German Official Statements To-day All Indicate That Expected Spring Tactics Are Beginning to Develop--German Attacks Near Verdun Repulsed While British and French Score on Other Sectors---60 German Subs. Destroyed in Six Weeks.

A SUMMARY OF TO-DAY'S WAR CABLES

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

PARIS, March 13.—(French Official).—A strong German offensive on the Louvemont works of Verdun was easily repulsed by the French forces. Soissons was bombarded during the night. Between Avre and the Aisne the French successfully raided German trenches. The French forces also successfully repulsed two attacks, one on the Crouy Road and another near Beaulne and Chivy. It was stated that 150 German prisoners were taken yesterday in the fighting around Verdun.

WASHINGTON, March 13.—About sixty German submarines were raptured and destroyed between January 1 and February 15, according to reports reaching here to-day, the first authoritative word of the Entente success in coping with the underseas boats.

At this rate, an average of one and one-half submarines a day, the success of the Germans in the long run is doubtful, it is believed here. No information is available here as to the number of U boats Germany has available, though unofficial reports have claimed that she has from 300 to 500. Experts here think, however, that if the Entente can continue at the rate shown between January 1 and February 15, and can improve thereon, Germany will soon feel the strain upon this weapon, and that ultimately she will be forced to give up its use.

OTTAWA, March 13.—Approximately forty million dollars was subscribed in the first day towards the new 150 million dollar Canadian Victory War Loan, with many cities to hear from. Small investors are particularly urged to rush their subscriptions.

WASHINGTON, March 13.—President Wilson was still in bed to-day, and the Cabinet meeting was again called off. The President's condition is said to be gradually improving.

PARIS, March 13.—Premier Briand faced his crucial test of strength in the Chamber of Deputies to-day, and the general belief was that the session would be marked by the announcement of a reorganized Cabinet. Premier Briand is expected to-day to outline the Government's position on all general subjects, probably leading to a direct vote.

TOKIO, March 13.—China's decision to break with Germany is upon Japan's advice. Japan and China may therefore be regarded as completely in accord at the present time on China's future plans. The best information obtainable here is that China will not actually join the Entente. She will content herself with a formal disavowal of diplomatic relationship with Germany.

PHILADELPHIA, Penn., March 13.—The plot to smuggle goods aboard the German interned ships in the League Island Navy Yard, which so far has resulted in five arrests of prominent German-Americans, assumed more sinister aspects to-day, when it became known that Adelbert Fischer is not only a relative of the Kaiser himself, but is an official of one of the largest marine engineering companies situated in Hamburg. Fischer's daughter is the wife of the owner of the Hamburg firm. Adelbert Fischer, at liberty on bail, is a reserve officer in the German Navy. The company is equipped with machinery with which to make shells and other war munitions. The attempt to smuggle chronometers ashore from the liners was made by Fischer's wife. Federal agents express the belief that it was the intention to use them as time clocks to set off timed explosives in the event of war.

WINNIPEG, Man., March 13.—Brandon City has subscribed three hundred thousand towards the loan, the British Columbia Government four hundred thousand, Saskatoon City a hundred thousand, and the Manitoba Government six hundred thousand.

LONDON, March 13.—The official statements issued to-day from Paris and Berlin, coupled with last night's British official, report increasing activity in many parts of the Western front, from the northern side of the Arras salient to Verdun. General Haig's last report was that the German trenches south of Arras had been successfully raided, despite strong resistance, while the British position north of Bouchavesnes had been improved. To-day Berlin reports that the British attacked "over a wide front."

BERLIN, March 13.—The well-known German flyer, Hans Volmoter, was killed during a trial trip in an aeroplane, the Official Press Bureau announced to-day. In 1910 Volmotter distinguished himself as a constructor of a new aeroplane, which held several records.

WASHINGTON, March 13.—Relations between the State Department and Swiss Minister Ritter, acting for Germany, are again strained.

WOULDN'T ACCEPT RESIGNATION OF COL. WM. BEATTIE, C.M.G., D.D.

Has Been at Front Since the Outbreak of War But St. Andrew's Church, Cobourg, Are Satisfied With Present Arrangement

PRESBYTERY MEETING TO-DAY

The Presbytery of Peterborough refused to accept the resignation of Rev. Dr. Wm. Beattie of St. Andrew's Church, Cobourg, who as Lt.-Col. Beattie, C.M.G., D.D., has been a Chaplain with the Canadian forces since the outbreak of war. The meeting of the Presbytery was held this morning in St. Andrew's Sunday School with a large attendance of members.

Rev. George I. Craw of Springville presided with Rev. D. A. Thompson of Hastings, secretary.

Col. Beattie's resignation was tendered on the ground that he regarded it as unfair to the congregation of St. Andrew's Church, Cobourg, to be absent so long.

A deputation of five members of the Church presented a resolution by the congregation opposing the acceptance of the resignation.

It was stated that Rev. Mr. Horne has been pastor of the church during Col. Beattie's absence and that the work has not suffered in his hands.

Provides for Expenses.

A second resolution provided for the travelling expenses of members attending the regular meetings of the Presbytery.

The grants from each congregation for Presbytery purposes will be increased to cover this item.

Two Resignations.

On this afternoon's programme is a discussion of church union; also a call from Warsaw to Rev. Russell MacGillivray of Toronto, the resignations of Rev. Mr. Mahon of Pontypoole, and Rev. T. J. Robertson of Lakefield, the appointment of a commission to the General Assembly and of Missionaries for summer work in Harvey, Bethany, Chandos and other places.

THE PROBLEM OF THE RETURNED MAN

The following statement by the Secretary of the Soldiers' Aid Commission is very timely: Presently, if not now, we have to reach some definite status as to the claims of the returned man for consideration. Not the returned soldier. But the man who was taken into the ranks, held for a spell in the city, sent to England and returned, either as medically unfit or for reasons. The man who has seen service we can place. He is going to adapt himself to a change and tibes so willingly and helpfully. There is a state of mind there that is and will be helpful for himself.

But the other class is a perplexity. Taken into the ranks, held for a spell in the city, forwarded to Kingston and thence to England. Used in camp, and returned as medically unfit, or for reason. Never should have been accepted. Merely a stop-gap to close up the battalion. For the infirmity, no matter how willing he was to go and serve, has in cases been accentuated by the period of service. He is now back, and with, in many cases, an exaggerated idea of what he has done. This feeling is not improving him for civil life. Hence he is resentful.

Men are asked to go to work. Places are found for them. While stating they will go, they never do so. Employers ask for men to be sent. Are ready to take on and train. Men seem to be fed up on the idea that "making munitions" is something of a more or less perfunctory nature, but at whopping good pay. The work is hard, onerous, and exhausting, especially in the larger sizes. His illusion dissipated, the man quits work. He want's something easier. What is to be done?

An employer writes this morning and says:

"We can use bright young men, whom we can teach the simpler operations in our wood, tin and machine shop. We have hired five. They seemed eager to work. Have agreed to come in at a certain time, and, except in the case of one who advised us that he had secured a job elsewhere, that is the last we have heard of them. The men whom we have seen have been discharged as medically unfit, and have not been in France.

"If you have any bright young chaps we shall be glad to see them, but the men we have seen so far apparently amount to but little, and seemingly are not anxious to work."

Now, what is to be done? It is the same tale from other employers. It is apparently folly to claim that we can man our industrial shops with those who neglect and subsequently refuse to take up work. Any one who thinks that the men returning from across the ocean are tucking themselves back into civil life is badly mistaken. A minute record is kept of each man and each place he is sent to. Some have been sent to as many as nineteen places, and are not as yet at work.

How much consideration is to be continued to be given? Who will determine when placing shall cease? The problem is one that has to be faced. The conclusion is inevitable, that the brief period of drill, transition across the ocean, duty in England, and the trip home has wrought havoc with the habit and mode of life of men, nominally industrious, but who now plan to find a means of living less laborious, to their way of thinking, than the one they pursued before enlistment.

LIEUT. H. C. GILLHAM 93rd BATTALION OFFICER WINS MILITARY CROSS

Word Received That Former Platoon Commander in "B" Company of the 93rd Has Been Given Award For Gallantry in the Field—Pte. Geo. Moore, Formerly of the 93rd Battalion is Wounded—To-day's Orders and General Military News.

Word has been received in Peterborough that Lieut. H. C. Gillham, formerly signalling officer of the 93rd Battalion, and afterwards a platoon commander in B Company of the Peterborough unit, has won the Military Cross for conspicuous bravery in one of the recent raids made by the Canadian forces. The news will be heard with great pleasure by Lieut. Gillham's many friends. He was one of the most popular officers in the Peterborough battalion. Lieut. Gillham was one of the officers of the 93rd hockey team last winter.

Woodstock, Ont., March 12.—The names of all Woodstock men who have seen service in the present war will be inscribed on either a brass tablet or large silver loving cup, to be kept in or in front of the City Hall as a permanent record. A public reception will be held every month, or oftener if occasion arises, for men returning from overseas, and each of such men will be presented with a certificate and a small loving cup, suitably engraved. The City Council to-night unanimously approved of a suggestion by the Mayor to this effect. The details will be worked out later.

Toronto, March 13.—Hon. T. W. McGarry, Provincial Treasurer, was warmly applauded when he introduced an amendment to his bill for the enfranchisement of soldiers and sailors who were residents of Ontario at the time of enlistment. "The amendment," announced Mr. Mcarry, provides for the enfranchisement of Indians who joined the colours in Ontario, no matter whether they are old enough to fight they are old This legislation will put Indians who are serving with the forces on the same footing as other citizens of the Province who are on active service. Men of any age are given the right to vote, on the theory that if they ar old neough to fight they are old enough to vote.

Pte. Moore Wounded.

Miss Elsie Moore, 683 1-2 Stewart street, has received word from her brother, Pte. Geo. Moore, of the 5th Canadian Mounted Rifles, late of the 93rd Battalion, that he has been wounded in France and is now in hospital at Birmingham, Eng. Miss Moore was informed of this yesterday. No official word has been heard from Ottawa so far.

London, March 12.—Colonel Perry Goldsmith, Toronto, formerly of Peterborough, is appointed President of the Officers' Standing Medical Board.

TO-DAY'S ORDERS.

Ottawa, March 12.—Numerous applications have been received by the Naval Service Department in response to the call for cadets to train for positions as officers in the British navy. There appears to be some misconception as to the class of persons required, however, for many of the applicants are full grown men. Only boys of 17 and 18 years of age are wanted.

The practice of the navy has been to enrol as cadets boys of about 13 years of age and to train them at Osborne or Dartmouth. The naval authorities have now adopted a new plan in order to utilize the services of boys who are somewhat older and who have spent three or four years longer at Public Schools. This new system has been extended to include Canadians.

London, March 13.—Land cultivation with a view to increasing the home supply of food has been taken up at Canadian camps. All batmen and grooms are regularly employed several hours daily in cultivating

MANUFACTURERS URGE A FORM OF CONSCRIPTION

Passed Resolution to Be Forwarded to the Acting Premier Endorsing the Militia Act or Some Other Compulsory Service—Munitions Plants Also Need Fit Men.

DEPUTATION TO COUNCIL

Moved by T. F. Matthews, seconded by W. H. Dunsford:

That in view of the absolute failure of the voluntary system of recruiting at the present time, this meeting of the manufacturers and other business men of Peterborough resolve that the Government be strongly urged to put the Militia Act or some other compulsory measure into immediate operation, and that the Secretary of the Speakers' Patriotic League be instructed to forward to the Acting Premier a copy of this resolution.

This motion embodied the only solution to the present recruiting problem apparent to the manufacturers and business men of the city who met at the Armouries last night in a conference, with the Speakers' Patriotic League and Col. Ackerman. While they mentioned their particular difficulties of securing labour and producing various war materials the manufacturers expressed a desire to assist the 247th Battalion, but believed that the voluntary system of recruiting had lost its force and should be superseded by some form of conscription.

Mr. J. A. Aylmer presided and briefly reviewed the local situation and the possibility of the removal of the 247th Battalion if the enlistment is not quickened in the near future.

Mr. T. F. Matthews stated that in his travels up and down the country he had observed that conditions in other towns were not much different from those in Peterborough. All the young men who value their self respect and are moved by the spirit of loyalty were in khaki. Nothing else was apparent but to force those to go who should go. "Col. Ackerman and the members of the Patriotic League have worked hard but you see the results" said Mr. Matthews, adding that a horse can be lead to the trough but you can't make him drink.

"Fifty-eight per cent. of the men on our payroll when war broke out have enlisted," said Mr. Matthews. "We're busy on orders for the British government and are receiving cabled inquiries about them every day. It has taken one-third more men to get out the amount of work produced by the men who enlisted. They are older or younger and inefficient men."

Mr. Matthews intimated that there were some men in the employ of his company who appeared to be physically fit and should go. If some measure were put into force to take them he would be glad to release them.

"Some men get into factories under the cloak of wanting to do something for the country, but in many cases it is only a cloak to avoid enlisting. Such men as these should be brought out," Mr. Matthews said.

Willing Men Gone.

"The willing men have gone," was Col. Miller's opinion. Those at home admit that they do not intend to go, that they will not throw up a job of $4 or $5 a day for $1.10. What are you going to do with men like that? Let the government give us the machinery to bring them out. There is

MERCHANTS FAVOUR A FREE MARKET FOR THE FARMERS

Council Will Have an Opportunity of Abolishing the Toll System on the Local Market—Government By Commission

COMPETENT MEN WANTED

A proposal to abolish the toll system on the farmers' market was defeated last evening at a meeting of the Property Committee of the City Council. The question will likely be re-opened at the next meeting of the City Council, when it may receive more favourable consideration. The yeas were Aldermen Dobbin, Smith and Duncan, and the nays, Aldermen Langford, Taylor and Saunders.

A number of merchants were present at the meeting to strengthen the hands of the Aldermen in the matter of a free market for the farmers.

Increase Trade.

Mr. T. Barrie, speaking from the general attitude of the merchants, claimed that a free market would produce a larger volume of trade for the merchants, and also make the market more competitive. Mr. Barrie would also like to see an earlier market so as to enable the farmers to get through with their marketing earlier and get their shopping done in time to catch their respective trains. As it is now, the farmers often have to leave the city without having an opportunity to do their shopping.

Mr. Caldwell, of Turnbulls, was of a similar opinion. He thought that the city would derive considerable benefit from a free market. He predicted an increase of twenty-five per cent in merchandising.

Mr. Ross, of Richard Hall and Son, voiced a similar opinion.

Earlier Market.

Mr. R. G. Kingan favoured a free market, and also contended that the market should be open from six or seven o'clock in the morning.

Mr. T. C. Elliot recalled an effort that was made a number of years ago to ascertain the opinion of the farmers as to what changes should be made in local market conditions. Chief among the changes favoured was the removal from the market of a uniformed policeman and the substitution of a plainsclothesman capable of dealing with his duties on a broad basis and possessing sound judgment. "The great curse of Canada is that we have too many thousand legislators," said Mr. Elliot. "If we had less governing bodies we would be better off. A great writer once said that the country best governed was least governed." Mr. Elliot outlined a vision of a civic administration, headed by a capable man and a competent Board of Directors. Mr. Elliot said we would never have a

SEND ON ANOTHER $1,000.

We see by a despatch of the Canadian eye witness at the front that Premier Borden, who has been visiting the Canadian battle lines, was "deeply stirred by the sights of the day." One has no desire to be ungracious, but this war is a stern business and facts are what are to be faced. Sir Robert was right, and spoke the voice of Canada in lauding the valor of her sons now in the battle lines, but that very valour thins their ranks and calls for recruits from home to the fighting strength of Canadian regiments.

At the very moment almost that Sir Robert was praising our soldiers on the field, a recruiting commanding officer at the Armouries recruiting meeting was deploring in bitterness of spirit the financial stumbling block to recruiting—the government withdrawal of recruiting allowance, and exclaiming:

"We must have money; we've got to get it."

Why should patriotic citizens be bled for money to help recruiting? The government has abundance of money to help recruiting. Canada has loaned the government 200 million dollars to be used in part, at least, in raising the quota of 500,000 soldiers, Sir Robert Borden has pledged Canada's honour to raise. Why cut off the grant to hard working recruiting officers, under the discouraging conditions of popular indifference, the indifference of eligible young men, and the official apathy of the government? If Sir Robert Borden doesn't know of the action of his subordinates, he can't come home too soon. To save time he might cable the militia department at Ottawa to send another $1,000 to Col. Ackerman at once. Just think of withholding a "measly" 1,000 dollars, when the government is calling for a 150 million loan, with 10 millions "planked down" the first day — and other millions pouring into the country's treasury in a golden stream!

NEW WAR LOAN LAUNCHED.

The new Canadian war loan of 150 millions was announced yesterday, and got "off to a good start"—the the head office of the Sun Life Insurance Company, Montreal, setting the ball rolling by subscribing 10 million dollars. Judging by the past responses of the Canadian people to other war loan calls and by the start made in Montreal it seems certain that the loan will be speedily subscribed. Canada has already lent the Government 200 million dollars in two previous loans, and if, as is probable, the present loan is subscribed, Canada will have lent itself a total of 350 million dollars.

The first two loans were largely taken up by large corporations; and though there were a few smaller investors, yet, so far the popular pocket, so to speak, has not been tapped. This is a people's loan, and the call is to the investor of moderate means. There does not seem to be any necessity for frantic appeals. Two chief factors should influence our people with means to invest—first, the patriotic duty of helping win this war, and second, the tempting character of the investment.

The bonds are issued in denominations of $100, $500 and $1,000, at 96; that is, a $100 bond, drawing 5 4-10 per cent interest, can be bought for $96, or for cash, instead of instalments as low as $95.73. Then the other condition of a gilt-edge investment, besides earning power, is the absolutely good security. No better security in the world can be offered than the Dominion of Canada. Our credit is higher with the shrewd investors of the United States than that of even Great Britain or any other European country. There is no doubt in any Canadian mind of the ability of Canada to meet its obligations to the last cent. Apart from our potential wealth, which is magnificently inexhaustible, our developed wealth is shown by the figures of our production. In the year 1916 the value of the products of Canadian farms, fisheries and mines, was 2,304 million dollars. With the demand for increased production all round it is probable that from this on the value of Canada's production will amount every year to ten times the amount of the new loan of 150 millions.

Here is a chance for the people of Canada to show their patriotism and to what extent they have practised thrift and are thereby prepared to do an adequate share in contributing material for Lloyd George's "silver bullet." There are hundreds and thousands and millions of Canadians that can do their bit and in a splendidly effective way, by patriotic action that will not only cost nothing, but be a source of large profit and be the means of adding stability and conditions of greater and more enduring future prosperity, whose possibilities we cannot realize.

Canada has gained this much from her sacrifices and services in this war; she has learned, to a small extent, her strength. Canada has done and easily done, a hundred times more than the most optimistic would have thought possible five years ago. We have surprised the world with the ability of our warrior boys to fight; we have surprised ourselves with our ability to pay.

COLD WATER AND HOT.

The aldermen, by getting out of cold water, in the matter of the bathing places propaganda, are likely to get into hot water. There are indications that the matter has not been shelved.

As great many, especially ladies, are dreadfully hot, over the disdainful and disrespectful discourtesy accorded deputations representing every advance civic and social interest, and a mile or two, more or less, of petitions.

This discourtesy consisted in dismissing the matter without an attempt to consider its merits, though as to this there is little need for consideration — there is universal agreement on this point—but there might have been some consideration shown for the self-respect, feelings, wishes and interests of the public, who were thoroughly represented by the deputations and petitioners.

The working men, and others, of the city are to be deprived of bathing places on the plea of saving them taxation, which they are willing to pay, in consideration of the benefits involved in usable bathing places.

In this, the City Fathers have failed. Anxious to keep down the rate, they have robbed the ratepayers without result. It is not denied that landlords and agents have sharply advanced rentals in view of a possible increase of rate. This was financed on the expectation of a 30 mill rate.

The 30-mill rate did not come, but the increase of rent did; and one landlord was so anxious to guard against loss that he added a special "rider" to cover the war tax.

The situation comes to this, that the public are deprived of swimming and bathing places, and a large proportion of the public is saddled with extra high rents, far more burdensome than the extra one-sixth of a mill estimated as necessary to provide supervised bathing places.

The aldermen should have taken to heart one lesson they learned from precipitate action without mature consideration. Their death-bed repentance in the matter of economising by cutting down civic salaries, was all that saved some aldermen from defeat at the last elections.

It is probable that new franchise factors will enter into the next election, and the ladies whom the Council has flouted will not suffer from loss of memory.

If their requests and representations had been even "taken," as le Oliver Moyat, "into serious consideration," the disappointment, after so much hard work, after so much concentration of favourable public opinion, would have been keen; but to have the the matter dismissed without consideration, to be virtually snubbed and treated with contempt, is something that burns into the female memory, and recalls the couplet of Congreve:

Heaven has no rage like love to hatred turned,
Nor hell a fury like a woman scorned.

The aldermen very properly appropriated $1,000 for the Peterborough Health Association—whose object is promotion of the public health; yet it refuses to assume responsibility in the matter of a public convenience that is one of the most important and pleasant means of helping the objects of the Health Association — improvement of sanitary conditions.

This poor war is made the scape goat of a lot of popular and official dodging of duty. We must, however, keep things together, so that we may have them in good shape for service and use after the war is over. We must keep ourselves clean and healthy, both morally and physically, by doing our best to preserve our powers of body in the most effective condition for daily duty; morally, by doing the part of aggressive, all-round, effective and complete discharge of the duties of citizenship, representative or private.

Saving money is not always the best economy, unless it is saving to serve. The aldermen think they save money by robbing the poor man of his bath; yet the aldermen came within an ace of voting $1,000 for recruiting purposes, for meeting expenses the Government should meet.

The Government has "lashins" of money. They asked parliament for millions, and they got millions; they asked the people to loan the Government 200 millions—it was done. They now ask the people for 150 millions more, and they should get, and will get it; yet we are asked to devote our taxes to pay for doing Government work and can't get money to pay for regulated public bathing and swimming places.

WAR LOAN

The Calls of the Minister of Finance.

Since the war started the Minister of Finance has, after most careful consideration and after providing for our paying a percentage of the cost of war out of current revenues, found it necessary to make three calls upon the Canadian public, including the present.

Shall We Lower The Record?

The results of these three loans will be, in accordance with the response given to the present loan, either to the complete and lasting credit of the Canadian people (as we believe) or to the lessening of our prestige. The record of these calls will be:

	Asked for	Subscribed
November, 1915	$50,000,000	$104,000,000
September, 1916	100,000,000	206,000,000
March, 1917	150,000,000	.....?

Better Terms, Wider Market.

This loan is payable both as to principal and interest in New York as well as in the cities of Canada. It yields a little more on the sum invested than was yielded by the former loans, gives the advantage of a longer period of investment and will have a broad international market.

We shall forward your application and render all necessary services free of charge to you.

Canada Must Get Her Tea From East

British Authorities Refuse to Lift Embargo on Export From the U. K.

OTTAWA, March 12.—Tea for the Canadian market will no longer be obtainable from Great Britain, and supplies of that commodity will hereafter have to be sought elsewhere by the merchants of the country. Tea is included in the list of goods which can only be exported from the United Kingdom under license. At the request of dealers in this country the Department of Trade and Commerce here has been making inquiries as to the possibility of securing supplies. It has been informed that the British authorities cannot see their way to permit the exportation of tea to Canada. There is no prospect, says an official cablegram received at the department, of export licenses being granted.

Great Britain has been the chief source of supply for Canada and from Great Britain three-quarters of the tea imported into the Dominion has come. In 1916 fifteen million pounds valued at $3,270,000 were brought into Canada from England. In the same year tea was imported from Japan to the value of $752,000, from China to the value of $300,000, from Hong Kong to the amount of $10,000, from Ceylon to the value of $20,000, and from the United States to the amount of $42,000. A relatively small quantity came from India. Thus, far more tea came from Great Britain, which has been the centre of the tea blending and exporting business than from the countries where the tea is grown.

Music & Drama

IN WALKED JIMMY.

Geo. H. Summers, veteran comedian, added greatly to his Peterborough laurels last night, when he appeared at the Grand Opera House in the mile-a-minute comedy, "In Walked Jimmy." A large audience saw the presentation and enjoyed every minute of it. "Jimmy," whose doctrine of smiling as a remedy for every trouble, walked into a job, into the hearts of everyone into trouble, into love, almost into jail, and then into matrimony, it is presumed. The miracle man who revived a dying business and performed other wonders, was breezily played by Mr. Summers, who gave a capital performance. He was well supported by a capable caste, William McCrystal shining as "Bobby" Day, a talkative shipping clerk, and Florence Morrison was very funny as Delie Dunn, a forelady. "In Walked Jimmy" was one of the hits of the season.

A Modern Crusade Succeeding

Even more interesting than the probability that within a few days the British or the Russians, or both, will be in possession of Bagdad, are the announcements that the British are within forty miles of Jerusalem and the confident predictions that it will soon be in their hands. The city of the Caliphs, for those of us who are not specialists in the rather obscure politics and economics of that region, has hardly more than what may be called a literary importance and in our hearts we find it objectionable, because incongruous, that Bagdad should be held by anybody except its natural owners, the Turks. That is because of the certainty that anybody else will at once proceed to rob the ancient town of the Arabian Nights features and reminders still remaining there.

The case of Jerusalem, of course, is entirely different, and the grievance that so moved the Crusaders—the ruling of the city considered holy by more people than any other by a race whose members its association are subjects of scorn—would at last be removed if the Turks were expelled. As masters there, however the British would be confronted with the difficult and delicate task of keeping the peace between the various sects of Christians, some of them bitterly antagonistic to others, that in ordinary times gather at Jerusalem in annual pilgrimage.

For that task the Turks, though they have performed it with cynical and therefore offensive amusement, had in their impartial disdain for all the would-be monopolists of the sacred sites a special competence, when they chose to exercise it, and the British statesmen may well view with some apprehension the prospect of having permanently to allot rights and privileges to the rival factions. More than that, the question would arise—for them—whether Jerusalem should be a Christian or a Jewish city. Both contentions could, and doubtless would, be strongly argued, and perhaps not in the best of temper on either side.

And if the Turks are to be expelled from Europe, where are they to go except to Asia Minor, of which Palestine is a valuable and essential part? We in this country know the troubles of "reconstruction" after a war, but ours were as nothing to what those of Europe will be, and to discover the best disposition to make of Jerusalem will not be the least of them.—New York Times.

10 per cent on application;

30 " 15th May, 1917;
26 " 15th June, 1917.

The total allotment of bonds of this issue will be limited to one hundred and fifty million dollars, exclusive of the amount (if any) paid for by the surrender of bonds as the equivalent of cash under the terms of the War Loan prospectus of 22nd November, 1915.

The instalments may be paid in full on the 16th day of April, 1917, or on any instalment due date thereafter, under discount at the rate of four per cent per annum. All payments are to be made to a chartered bank for the credit of the Minister of Finance. Failure to pay any instalment when due will render previous payments liable to forfeiture and the allotment to cancellation.

Subscriptions, accompanied by a deposit of ten per cent of the amount subscribed, must be forwarded through the medium of a chartered bank. Any branch in Canada of any chartered bank will receive subscriptions and issue provisional receipts.

This loan is authorised under Act of the Parliament of Canada, and both principal and interest will be a charge upon the Consolidated Revenue Fund.

Forms of application may be obtained from any branch in Canada of any chartered bank and at the office of any Assistant Receiver General in Canada.

Subscriptions must be for even hundreds of dollars.

In case of partial allotments the surplus deposit will be applied towards payment of the amount due on the April instalment.

Scrip certificates, non-negotiable or payable to bearer in accordance with the choice of the applicant for registered or bearer bonds, will be issued, after allotment, in exchange for the provisional receipts.

When the scrip certificates have been paid in full and payment endorsed thereon by the bank receiving the money, they may be exchanged for bonds, when prepared, with coupons attached, payable to bearer or registered as to principal, or for fully registered bonds, when prepared, without coupons, in accordance with the application.

Delivery of scrip certificates and of bonds will be made through the chartered banks.

The issue will be exempt from taxes—including any income tax—imposed in pursuance of legislation enacted by the Parliament of Canada.

The bonds with coupons will be issued in denominations of $100, $500, $1,000. Fully registered bonds without coupons will be issued in denominations of $1,000, $5,000 or any authorized multiple of $5,000.

The bonds will be paid at maturity at par at the office of the Minister of Finance and Receiver General at Ottawa, or at the office of the Assistant Receiver General at Halifax, St. John, Charlottetown, Montreal, Toronto, Winnipeg, Regina, Calgary or Victoria, or at the Agency of the Bank of Montreal, New York City.

The interest on the fully registered bonds will be paid by cheque, which will be remitted by post. Interest on bonds with coupons will be paid on surrender of coupons. Both cheques and coupons, at the option of the holder, will be payable free of exchange at any branch in Canada of any chartered bank, or at the Agency of the Bank of Montreal, New York City.

Subject to the payment of twenty-five cents for each new bond issued, holders of fully registered bonds without coupons will have the right to convert into bonds of the denomination of $1,000 with coupons, and holders of bonds with coupons will have the right to convert into fully registered bonds of authorised denominations without coupons at any time on application to the Minister of Finance.

The books of the loan will be kept at the Department of Finance, Ottawa.

Application will be made in due course for the listing of the issue on the Montreal and Toronto Stock Exchanges.

Recognized bond and stock brokers having offices and carrying on business in Canada will be allowed a commission of three-eighths of one per cent on allotments made in respect of applications bearing their stamp, provided, however, that no commission will be allowed in respect of the amount of any allotment paid for by the surrender of bonds issued under the War Loan prospectus of 22nd November, 1915, or in respect of the amount of any allotment paid for by surrender of five per cent debenture stock maturing 1st October, 1919. No commission will be allowed in respect of applications on forms which have not been printed by the King's Printer.

SUBSCRIPTION LISTS WILL CLOSE ON OR BEFORE THE 23rd OF MARCH, 1917.

RICHARD HALL & SON LIMITED

Inspiring Sermon By The Rev. T. A. Chapman, B.A., In St. James' Methodist Church

Speaker Denounced the Conditions That Make Race Tracks Possible—"A Contemptible Disgrace," Says the Rev. Mr. Chapman—Rev. Mr. Greatrix Occupied a Cannington Pulpit.

"I think it is a contemptible disgrace," said the Rev. T. A. Chapman, B.A., of Cannington in St. Mark's Methodist church, "that we should sit here with our arms folded and vote "Grit" and "Tory" while these things go on. If it was a Chinaman with a few peanuts, some stalwart man would take him by the neck and push him into a dark corner. But because a man holds the office of Lieutenant-Governor of this province he is passed by. This race track menace in this country is the blackest spectacle in the world to-day, outside of what we find in the heart of China, where they have never heard of Christ, or in Mexico where they are but a lot of outlaws anyway."

Such was his denunciation of the race-track and the charges against the Lieut.-Governor of this Province, whose "rake-off" from the race-track was said to run into seven figures in a year. Rev. Mr. Chapman preached in St. Jame's church at both services yesterday, and his messages were impressive ones. He did not deal indirectly or purfunctorily with the problems of to-day as they confront Christian men and women, but fearlessly and courageously laid bare the evils that exist, and issued a stirring appeal to all his listeners to rise as one man to the attack. His sermons showed widened visions and judicial foresight with regard to the political, social and economic future of our Dominion, and he was outspoken in his position on all of these things that are entering into the fibre of the nation. He spoke as a man who had thought things out for himself on the same lines, measured them by true standards, and was prepared to stand or fall by the conclusions and convictions which inspired him to grapple with the public menaces of the present day.

In the morning Rev. Mr. Chapman expressed his pleasure at being present to address the congregation of St. Jame's church. He was glad, too, that the pastor of St. Jame's church was to-day occupying the pulpit in his (Rev. Chapman's) church in Cannington. It was during the pastorale of Rev. Greatrix that the speaker's church was built, and the congregation held Mr. Greatrix in the very highest esteem.

A STRENUOUS TIME.

In choosing a subject for his sermon the speaker had been moved to some extent by the unusual state of things in the world to-day. Within the last few days the Battalion in which were a large number of Cannington boys, (and a number of these from his own congregation) had taken up their position in the trenches. His congregation were anxious, as they had never been before, for the safety of their sons at the front. If the speaker was influenced by this in his sermon he trusted the congregation would understand.

The text of the sermon was Genesis 7:11, "The same day were all the fountains of the great deep broken up and the windows of heaven were opened." This cataclysm, at the time of Noah, was brought upon the earth, because of sin. It was a dark time. But in all the ages there was only one time darker than that through which we are now passing. He spoke of the dark days of Egypt, but these days are darker still. The speaker told of an old Scotchman living in the country who, before the war, used to wait calmly at home until the mail driver arrived. Afterwards he used to drive to the Post Office, and then home as soon as he could get the mail. One day he received not only a letter but a telegram. He did not return directly home but went out into the moor to pray for hours. The lonely wife at home knew what the delay meant. When the old man returned he was met at the gate by his wife, and together the hardy old couple wept over the unmeasurable loss they had suffered. "Truly these are awful days, these days through which we are passing. Never was there such a time as this. We speak of Luther's days, but they were as nothing to the days of our own times." The prophets of old, if with us to-day could tell us great things as to what this war meant. History shows that the world passes through epochs and eras in its march of civilisation. Only one era ever greater than that of to-day—that of the birth of Christ. Christ to-day stands the Great Character, the Mighty Power of all time. It is His step that is staking the nations.

SHAPING THE DESTINY.

It is one of the most appalling things to see young men in despair, for young men above all of God's being should be hopeful and confident, gripping the hand of Eternal Power. The speaker appealed to the young men to take an earnest part in the great work of righteousness and truth. He urged the parents, if possible, to train boys to enter the ministry. "I believe," said the speaker, "that the young man who stands in the pulpit twenty years from now will have the greatest power in shaping the destiny of the nation." As to the destiny of the British Empire, it was Mr. Chapman's conviction that she will emerge pure, consecrated, holy and triumphant, because she stands for righteousness, for, "righteousness exalteth a nation."

Some people to-day were very insistent about the old time revivals, and say that the day of revivals is past. I too, like to see the time when men and women throng to the altar and cry to Christ for forgiveness. "But never since Jesus has been sitting on the throne, have there been such revivals as are going on to-day. They may not be in the form we are used to, but nevertheless they are taking place. Greater movements are occurring to-day than ever before in the history of nations. In Russia were great upheavals as the result of which the Bible was going into almost every home, and the liquor traffic there had been dealt a death blow. In England we have the disestablishment of the National Church of England, and the abolition of the drink traffic is coming. "Oh, men," urged Mr. Chapman, "if you have ever prayed, pray these days as you never have for the Empire of which you are a part. We must rejoice in the grandeur of it, even while we mourn the weakness of it still. We are not here to sing ourselves away to everlasting bliss. We need to line up and bring this bliss to us here. As long as there is a boy or a girl weeping, or a man who hasn't a chance, I will still continue the fight to bring the Celestial Empire right down here."

A YEAR INDOORS.

"For thirteen months I was so bad with chronic indigestion that I could not go out of doors. Nerves were unstrung, the heart bad, and smothering feelings came on till I thought that I would choke. Doctors' treatment failed me so I began the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, which I thank for my present good health. I am now doing my housework and have a family of ten.

more work done now to get one man than should be necessary for one hundred men. Col. Miller felt that there were men in the country districts who could be spared.

Mr. B. F. Ackerman.

From 50 to 55 p.c. of the employees of B. F. Ackerman & Sons have enlisted. Others have been turned down, and only two or three unmarried men remain. "We are willing to give up any man to the government," Mr. Ackerman said.

Mr. C. H. Pennyfather.

Mr. C. H. Pennyfather agreed that conscription in some form seemed the only way out of the present difficulty. If men have not the spirit to go without being forced they should be obliged to go.

The Munitions Maker.

Mr. G. L. Young, of the Henry Hope Co. said that they employed about 225 men. There seemed to be a difference of opinion as to whether men on munitions were needed most. The Imperial Munitions Board had been pressing the company for more munitions, but, said Mr. Young, "we can't get enough able-bodied men now."

The Henry Hope Co. was one of the first munitions plants in Canada to engage women, but as far as the local experience went, they could not do men's work.

"We can't use a physically unfit man. He can't handle the work. The men we require are fit men. The more fit they are the better it is for our work. They need to be rugged men to stand up under the heavy work."

The company had not said anything one way or another, about enlisting. Col. Ackerman was welcome to get all he could out of the plant, but Mr. Young felt that Peterborough manufacturers could not give many more men without impairing the outputs of their plants. There are from 1,200 to 1,500 men on munitions work in Peterborough.

Mr. Aylmer felt that the government had failed to assign men to factories where they were really needed. Out of 300 applications to make ammunition at Trenton, 100 were from farmers' sons. It was not the men who were needed in the munitions works who should be taken away, but the idlers in pool rooms and theatres.

In seconding the resolution, Mr. Dunsford said the government should assist the battalion commanders in securing recruits now.

The system is an impossible one, said Mr. Vincent Eastwood, and it is long past the time when we should have told the government what this memorial tells them.

Mr. Joseph Wearing said he believed the city's heart was in the work, but that many felt they had done all they could under present conditions.

Messrs. Aylmer Wearing, Logie, Matthews, Ackerman, Dunsford and Dr. Greer were appointed to wait on the Council in respect to financial assistance for the 247th Battalion.

The Position of Sanitary Inspector

Twelve Applicants Eliminated From the Running—Meeting on Thursday Evening

The matter of appointing a sanitary inspector was discussed at last night's meeting of the Property committee of the City Council. Out of a field of eighteen candidates for the position, the following six applicants were chosen and will be asked to appear before a meeting to be held on Thursday evening of this week: Messrs. Mahood, Metcalfe, Stapleton, Smith, Powell and Henry.

Ald. Dobbin's motion to add new applications to the original list, was lost.

Do You Know

That only in the last few centuries has medicine escaped the opposition of orthodox Christianity?

That many laws of the Babylonian code are used this very day in your home town, when we in our law condemn a murderer to death for committing murder? An eye for an eye—a tooth for a tooth—a murder for a murder? You and I are following out the ancient barbaric code of 5,000 years ago.

That "INTOLERANCE" attempts to prove that the ideals of all mankind, from the past to the present, should be linked in one great brotherhood?—Breeding Universal love and sympathy.

That the Demonologists were very common in ancient times? They believed everyone was beset with demons except themselves. They raved and sang, exhorted over their supposed victims to relieve them of their demons of sin.

That you may see in the modern revivalist a descendant of this priestcraft?

That this descent into animalism has been decried by the prophets and thinkers of all ages?

That the gigantic figure of Ishtar, in the banquet hall in the last act has a baby at her breast; you get some idea of the size of the figure when you learn that the figure of the suckling baby is nine and one-half feet in height. You see this great image in "INTOLERANCE."

That every mode of transportation known to the world is used in the play? Many different kinds of chariots, from the chariots of state of Belshazzar and Cyrus, to the flower-wreathed one which the Mountain Girl rides at the head of Cyrus' army in attempting to save Belshazzar.

That in the distance are seen the sheepskin boats and barges on the river Euphrates? In the Judean scenes Mary of Magdala and a friend of Caesar's are borne in palanquins on the necks of men.

A Guaranteed Cure For Kidney Trouble

On Sept. 1st, 1916, Dr. Banta's Kidney and Rheumatic Pills were first introduced to the people of Central Ontaro, and they are now the recognised cure for kidney ailments, backache and rheumatism and lumbago. While the first demand for Dr. Banta's Kidney Pills was due to advertising, the numerous people who have received benefits from them and who have been informing their friends of their virtues, are in all probability their best advertisers.

To give you one instance, Mr. J. Jackson, 232 Perry street, states that he would give $100.00 per box for these pills, if necessary, to secure them. He had tried different remedies for years, but he received no benefit until he had taken Dr. Banta's Kidney Pills.

People who are suffering from rheumatism or kidney ailments are sometimes in doubt what remedy to try, but you can make no mistake in taking Dr. Banta's Kidney and Rheumatic Pills, for they are guaranteed by the manufacturers to cure, and if they should fail to do what we claim for them, your dealer will refund your money.

There is no better dress for early spring than one of serge.

There should be a touch of hand-work on your new blouse.

New hats are large and some of them have square crowns.

Oyster blue and orchid mauve is a spring colour combination.

Charity Board Were Loathe To Transfer Account

Action Was Taken at a Meeting Held Last Evening — Board Had No Option But to Move Over With the City

The Central Charity Board at a meeting held last evening authorised the transfer of their bank account from the Bank of Montreal to the Bank of Toronto. This was done in accordance with the recent unexplained action of the City Council. The Board had no alternative but to change, and last night's action was anything but unanimous. Ex-Mayor H. Rush, Chairman of the Board said he together with the Board was very loathe to make the change.

WHO WILL HELP?

A Chance For Enterprising Citizens to Do Something For Peterboro'

Most of the public work in this city, outside of the routine of the City Council, is done by about twenty men. They are the pack-horses of the municipality. When some public movement is struck out the general comment is when asked for help, "better get Murgetroyd. He's a horse at that sort of thing." Other men go home in the evening, eat supper, slip on the slippers and sit down by the hole in the wall, misnamed, a heating system, or by the fire place and thank their stars they are as other men.

So here is a chance for a number of new men, men new in municipal enterprise, to come out of the woods and do something. No more laudable and helpful movement could be crystalised than for a group of men to catch hold and lift in this Greater Production Movement. Who will volunteer. A few men to make this a distinct personal hobby. Every man is the better of a hobby, so long as he does not neglect the important things of life in its prosecution.

While an appeal has been made to citizens to advise the City Clerk's office of plots of land available for use by those who wish to raise food products, it will not be well to rely on that wholly. There will be the putting off. The some other day idea. What is wanted is information right now. It will help wonderfully. But what would be far better will be for about a dozen men to come forward and, grouped together, set about getting by personal search and contrast, the information. What is everybody's business is nobody's business.

The public registration needs to be supplemented by real research. To have a man walk into the Clerk's office and hand out a list of lots he has located, having gained the consent of the owner that they be used, will entitle that man to the order of Useful Service Medal. Each in his neighborhood can easily, and at the expenditure of a few evenings find out what is available. And if the information be accurate and reliable, not mere hearsay, the basis for a start will have been made.

If the movement is to amount to anything this should be done. Just who will do it is hard to say. If a sense of real helpfulness will inspire a few to get at the job, very much the better. In helping others one helps himself. And besides he is laying the first plank in the platform on which he may stand and aspire to be even that eminent and much abused individual, an alderman.

This Leaves the Skin Free From Hairy Growths

(Toilet Talks.)

A simple method for completely removing every trace of hair or fuzz is here given. This is painless and usually a single treatment will banish even stubborn growths. To remove hairs, make a thick paste with some powdered delatone and water, spread on hairy surface and after about 2 minutes rub off, wash the skin and the hairs are gone. This method will not mar the skin, but to avoid disappointment, be certain you get delatone.

PRESENTATION TO MR. D. WEIR

Is Given a Family Bible and Appreciative Address by Lakehurst Sunday School

Mr. David Weir, who, for many years has been a citizen of Lakehurst, and is moving to Omemee, was honoured on Sunday, March 4, when the Methodist Sunday School presented him with a family Bible. Rev. F. Johnston, Pastor of the Church, made a suitable address, praising Mr. Weir's services to the Sunday School and the following address was presented to Mr. Weir, who replied in a fitting manner:

The Address.

Dear Mr. Weir,—We, the members of the Lakehurst Methodist Sunday School, embrace this opportunity of expressing to you, at least in some degree, our appreciation of your services which you have rendered so efficiently as teacher in our school. You may have felt at times that your efforts were of little or no avail. But we wish to assure you that whatever you have taught has been a benefit and a help to inspire to a higher and nobler life. And we trust that the seed so carefully sown will mature and bring forth fruit.

To your scholars you have not only been a careful, painstaking teacher, but a wise counsellor, and a faithful friend. But we have been and are deeply impressed with the influence of your Christian character, and we rejoice in the fact that you are a Christian gentleman.

We have found you ever ready to assist in any worthy cause, and as we look back over the years you have been in our midst, we have pleasant recollections of your association with us, both as a worker in the Master's service and as a worthy citizen in all the walks of life.

The teachers all and scholars
Are filled with deep regret
By your absence from us,
For we do not forget.

That you were long our teacher
In this our Sunday School,
And that for many seasons
It was your faithful rule.

To lead us every Sunday.
Both prayerfully and well.
As many of us remember,
And all of us can tell.

No, not for one year only;
Nor yet for two or three,
But nigh a quarter of a century
You've proved your loyalty.

And, like a Christian soldier,
With "Jesus" on your shield,
Right manfully you've battled,
And held for him the field.

And if you grew discouraged,
And if you felt your work
Was overlooked, nor heeded,
And felt inclined to shirk.

Yet still you had the knowledge
Your task was but the "Lord's,"
And that His approbation
Exceeded earth's rewards.

As members of the School we have great pleasure in presenting you with this Bible, which we hope you will accept in the spirit in which it is given, as a slight token of our appreciation of services you have rendered. And as your family and you sever your connection with us, be assured you carry with you our best wishes for the prosperity, health, and happiness of you all. And in making new friends in your future sphere of life, we trust that you will not forget the old. We pray that God may ever prosper you and your's through the years to come, and that you may be blessed in all the work you undertake for advancement of Christ's kingdom.

Signed on behalf of the Sunday School.

F. Johnson,
Pastor.

Lillian Gish In Intolerance

Who Did Excellent Work In "The Birth of a Nation"—Is the "Woman Who Rocks the Cradle"

Lillian Gish, "The Woman Who Rocks the Cradle" in "Intolerance," D. W. Griffith's colossal spectacle which comes to The Grand, is a well known Griffith star. She will be remembered for her excellent work in "The Birth of a Nation."

Other well known stars in the cast are Mae Marsh, who plays the principal part of the girl in the modern story.

Robert Harron, who plays the boy in the same story, Tully Marshall who enacts the role of High Priest of Bel, Joseph Henabery, playing Belshazzar, and Seena Owen, who assumed the roles of the Princess Beloved, the favourite of Belshazzar. The costuming of these parts is on a scale of magnificence never before attempted in either stage or screen productions.

Merchants Favour A Free Market

well governed city until it was managed by wise men with judgment and ability. In conclusion, Mr. Elliot asked the city to dispense with all frivolous questions, protect the farmer instead of burdening him with unreasonable and unnecessary civic legislation and create a free market.

New Market Site.

Ald. Duncan thought that the present market was too small. He favoured a new market site on the east side of Louis Street, between Charlotte and King Streets.

Mr. Barrie intimated that there was too much law in connection with the administration of the market. Many women were afraid to attend the market for fear their produce would be found lacking in weight. It was not their intention to defraud, but it was difficult to always guard against shrinkage of a fraction of an ounce or so in butter and other produce. They feared not the law so much as the application of the law.

Ald. McIntyre—"We are standing in our own light when we don't have a free market and an earlier market."

Ald. Stratton expressed his approval of a free market.

Source of Revenue.

Ald. Weir suggested that the loafers be driven out of the market arcade and the space converted into store premises. This would produce a revenue to the city of possibly nine hundred dollars a year.

Fine Address By Mr. Morris

Enjoyable Meeting of St. John's A.B.C Club

A largely attended meeting of the A. B. C. Club was held in the Guild Room last evening the President, Miss G. Crowe being in the chair. The Rev. Canon Cornish opened with prayer, which was followed by a piano solo by Miss D. Stuart.

Mr. Morris of the Collegiate staff read a very interesting paper describing botanical life in Canada, and comparing it, in some instances, to that in England. A hearty vote of thanks was tendered the speaker at the conclusion of his address.

Miss G. Cuffe contributed a vocal solo, which was encored. Canon Cornish addressed the Club and the meeting closed with the singing of the National Anthem.

A business meeting then followed and it was decided to put on a play in the near future, in aid of the Red Cross. Watch for further announcements.

ANNUAL COUNTY CONFERENCE OPENED THIS AFTERNOON

Fifty-Seven Representatives Present —Session This Evening

The annual county conference of the Peterborought Sunday School Association opened this morning at the George Street Methodist Church at 10 o'clock.

There were fifty-seven representatives present, including those from the Townships of Belmont, Asphodel, Otonabee, Dummer and South Smith.

The report of the County Secretary, P. H. Roberts, showed that the county has reached an organized standard. The three standards striven to reach are organized, banner and front line. An endeavour will be made during the coming year to reach banner standard. This means one-third of the Protestant population of the city will be enrolled in the Sunday School. One-third of the schools have home departments at work.

Half of the schools have organized Bible classes in connection with them.

The report showed that Dummer Township gained the highest percentage of marks of last year, which is equal to 50 per cent. of possible marks.

Otonabee second place, Asphodel and South Smith tied for third, Belmont fourth and North Smith fifth.

The financial report by Mr. A. J. Johnson showed the county from receipts of $103.63, an expenditure of $88.40, leaving a balance of $16.23 on hand. An effort will be made to raise the contributions for this year $115.00 as the Council intends undertaking a more agressive work.

Four of the seven County Superintendents reported showing progress everywhere. Rev. Mr. Halpenny said it was the utmost importance the teacher training work should be taken up as a report of a Sunday School worker showed that Protestant children average. 24 hours religious instruction per year; Jewish children 128; Roman Catholic 400.

THE DIFFICULTY AT THE METAL PRODUCTS

The company has been seen, but it was impossible to see Mr. Harper, the organizer for the men, to-day, as he is in Port Hope, and will not be in the city until 5.35 o'clock this afternoon.

A STATEMENT FROM MUNITIONS AND METAL PRODUCTS LIMITED

To the Editor of The Examiner:
Peterborough, Ont.

Dear Sir,—The Munitions and Metal Products thinks it owes the public an explanation regarding the article published in the Review of yesterday.

It is to be regretted that this paper saw fit to publish this article without even extending us the courtesy of enquiring from us as to the foundation of its accusation.

Apparently the Review thinks we do not deserve the exemption of taxes that the town has granted our predecessor, and of which the present company is now the beneficiary.

It is well that the town should know that the present company has been operating for two months, and during that period while not quite tripling the output, it has more than tripled its payroll, which is now in the neighbourhood of $50,000 per month. This certainly does not indicate that this company has been trying to take advantage of its employees or of the town's courtesy.

Most of our tool makers who saw fit to quit work without notice on Saturday noon were paid at the rate of 60c. per hour, and some were earning as much as $50.00 per week. We leave the public to judge if this is unfair treatment. Not only is it untrue that we do not pay as much as similar plants, but as a matter of fact we pay about 20 p.c. more than any other plant we know of. The rates of 45 to 50c. per hour for tool makers, at plants mentioned by the Review does not begin to compare with our schedule of 60 and 65c.

The overtime work is regular nowhere, but merely accidental, and therefore of secondary importance. Until recently we have, however, paid time and a quarter for all overtime except Sunday, when the rate was time and a half.

Regarding the accusation of broken agreement, the facts are these:

We were asked to consider closing our tool room on Saturday afternoon or else pay our tool-makers time and a half, meaning 90c. per hour.

At the time of this demand we were considering either reducing the tool-makers' staff or a reduction in hours, and we chose the latter policy, but left in abeyance the question of overtime, and notified our staff accordingly.

However, we found that good operation of our tool-room on Saturday afternoon to maintain a maximum production and we notified the tool-makers accordingly. Instead of notifying us of their disagreement, our tool-makers chose to stay out Saturday afternoon, crippling us materially.

This unpatriotic action at the behest of a paid alien organizer, necessitated drastic action to maintain discipline. The output of munitions being the paramount issue, if we want our boys protected in the trenches, the company has decided after teaching the staff a lesson, to supply for them the amount of patriotism that their selfishness clouds from their vision, and therefore new prices and schedule are announced in another section of this paper.

Munitions and Metal Products, Limited.
Louis A. Gosselin, President.

DENTALS HAVE TWO GOAL LEAD IN FIRST GAME FOR ALLAN CUP

WINNIPEG, March 12.—The Dentals of Toronto, senior champions of the O.H.A., will carry a two-goal lead with them when they meet the Pilgrims of Saskatoon in the second of the Allan Cup elimination games on Wednesday night. The Ontario champions defeated the Saskatchewan League winners here to-night 6 to 4, and are favourites for the series, the winners of which will meet the Victorias of Winnipeg for the Allan cup and the Canadian championship.

Beaten at Their Own Game.

The game was played in three twenty-minute periods, under the Saskatchewan rules, which do not permit a player to skate a team-mate on side. Wednesday's game will be played under the O.H.A. regulations.

Warm weather for the last three days made the ice soft, and took most of the brilliancy out of the play. It was pretty much hard plugging all the time, with the Toronto team showing a little more finish all the way through. Lighter and younger than the Saskatoon players, they showed more ginger on the soft ice. The ascendancy of the easterners was becoming more marked in the closing stages of the game.

Dentals Tire Their Opponents.

The Pilgrims started off the second period with whirlwind rushing tactics, but they quickly tired, and failed to make an impression. The Dentals showed more speed than any of the Toronto teams that have appeared here in recent years, and are conceded by Winnipeg fans to have a fair chance of lifting the cup. They are hardly as fast as the Winnipeg Victorias, but may have an edge in checking and combination.

Dashing Play by Box.

To-night's game was handled by Fred Bawlf and Bell Nobel, both of Winnipeg, as referee and umpire respectively. They gave satisfaction. Fifteen hundred saw the game.

Jerry Laflamme and Milan played brilliantly and effectively for Toronto, while Klasson was the bright star of the Pilgrims. Box pulled off the most dashing play of the game when he scored the sixth goal, after eluding four Pilgrims. He drove in a sizzling shot from thirty feet out.

Shots stopped:

By Morgan—First period 4, second period 4, third period 3; total 11.

By Stewart—First period 3, second period 9, third period 3; total 15.

JACK ADAMS MADE BIG HIT IN TORONTO

Jack Adams and Grover Halpin, especially the former, made a great hit in Toronto Saturday, according to the Toronto sporting writers. Charlie Querrie says in the Toronto News: If the game did nothing else it allowed the fans to look over a "cracker-jack" in Jack Adams, of Peterborough. He is a brother of "Soldier" Bill, the defence player of St. Patrick's, and between the two of them they occupied most of the spotlight. "Bill," the defence man, was right at home with twelve men on the ice, and featured the game all the way with clever rushes. His brother Jack is a stout built boy, who handles a stick in great style, and has a great shot. He just scored six of the seven goals for the Irish, and in the second period gave the greatest display of how to beat the defence, and get right in the nets of any player seen here this season.

The News adds: The Irish had their regular players and two Peterborough experts in Halpin and J. Adams, and Green, of Hamilton. One could write a book about this J. Adams, who is a brother of "Bill," the speedy defence player of the team. He flashed on the ice after about five minutes had been played in the first period and immediately scored, and scoring goals seems to be his hobby, for he only annexed six of the seven, and gave one of the greatest displays ever seen at the Arena.

If Eddie Livingstone is going to have a professional hockey team next year we advise him to look over one Jack Adams, of Peterborough, who played for St. Patrick's on Saturday night.

LES DARCY IS A WEALTHY MAN

NEW YORK.—Uneasy—oh! uneasy—is the head that wears a crown and the head of J. Leslie Darcy is ever so heavy. Upon the dome of J. Leslie three crowns rest more or less unsteadily.

He is the Austrian middleweight champion, he is the light heavyweight title-holder and he is the king of the heavies, and for each crown that he wears J. Leslie has a considerable headache.

Just now he is persona non grata with Gov. Whitman. His bouts with Al McCoy and Jack Dillon have withered away to nothingness, and in a sense he is a man without a country.

Yesterday, in the wake of his rumpus with Gov. Whitman and the Governor's attendant action in prohibiting his appearance in the ring, the Australian papers arrived.

J. Leslie, of course, is very much in bad in his native land. Everybody knows that. But the journals of that dear and faraway Australia shed some additional light upon a matter which had a soothing effect upon J. Leslie's friends in this country.

Darcy, it will be recalled, told all the world on his arrival in this country that he would return to that dear and faraway Australia as soon as he had 'acquired some American money' for his folks. He stated that he was the sole support of an enlarged family; that his first duty was to himself and these people; that his country came next. The impression became current that J. Leslie was plunged into a state of pitiable poverty.

Yesterday the papers arrived, and it now appears that instead of being impoverished he has $100,000 invested in the land of his birth.

This is what a Sydney newspaper has to say of the matter:

"The story that has come here from across the waters that Darcy has had to go to America to box so as to be able to support his aged parents and crippled brothers and sisters, is creating a sporting laugh in Sydney. Darcy comes from a hefty stock, all well and able to support themselves. Not only that, but he leaves behind him in Australia, in real estate and other solid investments, about $100,000. Any way we expect him to make 'cat's meat' of the American fighters, unless the journey across the Pacific has changed his fighting genius."

The match with Al McCoy is derided as a huge joke as per the following:

"The story received here that Les Darcy is to be matched with Al McCoy, Darcy to get $30,000, is treated as a joke. Australians believe that if Darcy could stop George Chip good and early, McCoy will be no reasonable match for him at all, and that if Les is in anything like true form on the night of the contest, Al will not stay four rounds with him, if he even gets that far. In speculating over the coming match, we on this side have come to the conclusion that Darcy is the only fighter who will meet him and take a small purse to make the fight a paying proposition to the promoters and to our boy."

WITH THE CURLERS

"MAC" WINS ANOTHER

J. W. McDermid copped the runners-up game of the scheduled series from Alex. Kay, last night, by the score of 12 to 6. The rinks were as follows:

J. E. Colson	G. Walter Green
R. Dobie	S. Brownscombe
E. G. Patterson	J. Metheral
A. C. Kay	J. W. McDermid
Skip—8	Skip—12

By ends:

Kay . . . . . 2xxx1112xxxx1x—8

McDermid . . x121xxxx3121x1—12

The game went fourteen ends, thereby vindicating the committee in the face of a contention that only twelve ends were required.

This is a second win for McDermid. He took the final game in the open bonspiel.

DAVE EASSON STRONG.

By the score of 21 to 7 Dave Easson retained the patriotic cup last night, after playing a whale of a game against Jack Wiley. The rinks were as follows:

T. O. Donaldson	H. Dearle
C. S. Browne	A. H. Webb
T. Brightman	Dr. Wightman
D. Easson	J. Wiley
Skip—21	Skip—7

The Hunter Street curlers will play any other four rinks in the city. The sooner, the better.

The Princess Patricia's are also included as an eastern Ontario unit.

Mrs. A. Stanley, 146 Charlotte street, a member of the Soldiers' Wives' and Mothers' Club, has received the following letter from Pte. H. Clare, formerly of the 93rd Battalion.

France, Feb. 8th.

Dear Friend,— In acknowledgment of a parcel of socks received this day, the 8th of February, I am very glad to say that the boys will be able to enjoy putting on such lovely socks. Although in hospital here I have taken the liberty of extracting one pair for myself. The others, I am forwarding on to Pte. F. Panter, late of the 93rd, asking him to give the rest of the boys as far as they will go, a pair. Hoping this will meet with your approval, and that it will find you all in good health. Meanwhile let me express my heartfelt gratitude to you and your co-workers of the Soldiers' Wives' and Mothers' Club.

Thanking you and them for the kind thoughts and wishes for our welfare expressed in the parcel of socks, I am, believe me,

BRITISH TROOPS WITHIN A MILE OF BAPAUME

15,000 TURKS ARE SAID TO BE ENTRAPPED

Fifteen Thousand Turks In Danger of Capture By the British Forces

British Cavalry and Gun Boats Still Pursuing the Turks Up the Tigris River—Gen. Maude's Forces Given a Warm Welcome in Bagdad —Complete Order Restored.

BRITISH ADVANCE CONTINUES

WASHINGTON, March 14.—It is reported her that fifteen thousand Turks have been trapped by the capture of Bagdad. British cavalry and gunboats still pursue the Turks up the Tigris River.

LONDON, March 14.—British forces pressing beyond Bagdad, have occupied Kadhimain, taking 100 Turks prisoner, an official Mesopotamian statement declared. Pursuit of the retreating enemy continues, gunboats assisting.

"Although the Turks industriously sacked the city of Bagdad, nevertheless British forces captured much ammunition," declared the statement, further describing occupation of the city of the Caliphs.

"Since Feb. 23,00 says the official statement, "the Turks had been busy destroying and removing everything of value in Bagdad.

"A considerable amount of booty has nevertheless fallen into our hands, including large quantities of equipment, arms and ammunition. Five hundred Turkish wounded also were abandoned by the enemy.

"On the left bank of the Tigris between 200 and 300 Turkish dead were counted on Saturday, and 300 prisoners were taken.

"On entering the city of Bagdad the local inhabitants gave us a warm welcome.

"Slight disturbances occurred in the city consequent upon the Turkish evacuation, but complete order was restored when our troops entered."

BRITISH TROOPS ARE ADVANCING IN BAPAUME

Citadel is Doomed to Fall Into British Hands Within the Next Few Days

Special to the Examiner.

(By William Philip Simms.)
(United Press Staff Correspondent.)

With the British Armies Afield, March 14.—Bapaume seems doomed. If this citadel—which Hindenburg has called "another Gibraltar"—does not fall before the end of the week, it will be because the British plans have been laid otherwise. It would not be surprising if the German retirement spread over a far greater territory. Meanwhile the country is being laid bare as it progresses. Grevillers and Achiet le Petit are now directly menaced. The famous Loupart wood was given up by the Germans without a struggle. The British are now before the Bapaume line. After this there is an open, undulating country back to the German defense line—a country on which the Germans have long forced civilians to work. The German claim of 127 prisoners in two raids south of Ypres, in the region of Wytschate, recently, is a curious example. Upon request of the United Press correspondent, the official report of these raids was dug out. It showed only 37 men missing on the day in question. It was obviously impossible for the Germans to have captured 127 on that date.

If a man knows it all he is never content to keep it to himself.

BELGIAN FOREIGN MINISTER SHOWS UP GERMANY'S SCHEME

To Pave Way for Peace Plan That Would Leave Belgium Only an Illusory Independence.

Havre March 13.—Baron Beyens, Belgian Minister of Foreign Affairs, has taken note of the publication in the semi-official "Norddeutsche Allgemeine Zeitung" of Berlin of documents purporting to have been taken from the Belgian archives in Brussels, tending to show that Belgium in 1906 was in negotiations with the British Government for the entrance of British troops in the eventuality of Belgium being attacked by Germany and for an invasion of Germany through Belgium. These documents, say Baron Beyens, were not new, but were annexed to memoranda of conversations between British and Belgian officers as to measures to resist a violation of Belgian neutrality by Germany.

"The real object of Germany in trying to obtain credence for the fable of a secret Anglo-Belgian alliance," says the Belgian Foreign Minister, "is to prepare public opinion for the revelation of a peace plan that would leave Belgium nothing but an illusory independence. It is sought to pass off pan-Germanic covetousness for a simple programme of new guarantees dictated by requirements for the security of the empire."

According to international law the Belgian Government had every right to make an agreement with one or another of the Powers that guarantee its neutrality the moment it thought itself menaced. Belgium never wished to exercise that right, careful as it was to maintain the same traditional attitude toward all the guaranteeing Powers and to accord invariably the same confidence to their signatories and to their honour.

Germany, added the baron, continues her absurdity in setting the contention that she was in danger of invasion from Belgium, from a military establishment so weak and insufficient as scarcely to be able to defend itself for a few days against a sudden attack from one of its powerful neighbours.

British Raise Issue

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

LONDON, March 14.— The experience of the defensively armed British steamer Princess Melita, which was forced by the Dutch Government to leave the Hook of Holland because of her armament, has raised an issue which it is believed will assume the nature of a test case.

It is stated that the British Government will insist upon defensively armed ships being permitted to enter Dutch ports.

Negotiations between Great Britain and Holland regarding the retention of ships in Dutch harbours are still proceeding. The British Government is unbending in its determination not to acquiesce in the policy of the Dutch in keeping their ships in their harbours because of the German threat.

It is hoped that a compromise may be reached under which Holland can procure guarantees from both belligerents for a safe route for her vessels.

TRAILED BY GERMAN SPIES MR. GERARD LEAVES HAVANA ON HIS WAY TO WASHINGTON

Secret Agent Occupies Stateroom Near That of Returning Ambassador Aboard Steamship Bound For Key West —American Detectives on Close Guard Over the Party

BERLIN FFARS EFFECT OF REVELATIONS WHICH ARE TO BE LAID BEFORE PRESIDENT

HAVANA, March 14.—Secret agents of Germany trailed James W. Gerard from the moment he landed at Havana until the time of his leaving here on board the steamship Governor Cobb, of the Peninsular and Occidental service. When the vessel started one of the German agents occupied a stateroom near that of the returning American diplomatist. A high official of the steamship company said that this agent will be turned over to the authorities at Key West when the Governor Cobb arrives there.

While talking with a reporter in the lobby of the Plaza Hotel Mr. Gerard saw one of the German agents, who had been most obstrusive and persistent in his efforts to shadow him. Mr. Gerard hastened up to the man, who was a typical German. The spy, taking alarm, fled.

Mr. Gerard's trail was taken up immediately by another German, who followed him to the steamship, aboard which the spy had reserved a stateroom.

An authority close to Mr. Gerard referred to the persistent efforts made by Germany to stop the American diplomatist from reaching Washington. He stated that Mr. Gerard carries papers containing information which will place Germany in a more unfavourable position than she has yet occupied.

According to men close to Mr. Gerard, important developments are expected in the German situation soon after his conference with President Wilson.

When he left here Mr. Gerard was closely guarded against danger by government detectives.

KEY WEST, Fla., March 14.—When James W. Gerard arrived here aboard the Governor Cobb, he refused to talk except to say that he was glad to return and wished to express thanks to the Cuban government on behalf of himself and his party for the many courtesies extended to them.

F. C. Routto, with passports showing that he is a Dutch subject and in the army of Holland, was taken from the Governor Cobb by immigration officials, who had been instructed to watch for German spies trailing Mr. Gerard. Boutto said he was a tobacco merchant and was making a business trip to the United States.

Three other passengers, who were said to have been armed, were detained. One was a Spaniard and the other two were Portuguese.

Verdict Against Patrolman for $500 Damages in Widow's Suit.

NEW YORK, March 13.—A verdict for $500 was returned against George A. Lehnhoff, a patrolman, in the Queen's County Supreme Court in the $25,000 suit of Mrs. Jennie Michaels of Forty-Seventh Street and Jackson Amenue, Corona, who sought to recover for the death of her husband, Allen Michaels, shot and killed by Lehnhoff July 24, 1915.

Lennhoff had arrested Michaels on a charge of disorderly conduct and was taking him to the station when he broke away. The policeman fired at the feet of the fleeing man. The bullet struck a stone and, glancing up, penetrated Michael's back.

Lehnhoff was indicted for manslaughter in the first degree, but was acquitted. Later he was fined fifteen days' pay by the Police Commissioner. The Court of Appeals sustained this fine, holding that Lennhoff had shown recklessness in firing.

SAGE TEA KEEPS YOUR HAIR DARK

When Mixed With Sulphur It Brings Back its Beautiful Lustre at Once

Gray hair, however handsome, denotes advancing age. We all know the advantages of a youthful appearance. Your hair is your charm. It makes or mars the face. When it fades, turns gray and looks streaked, just a few applications of Sage Tea and Sulphur enhances its appearance a hundredfold.

Don't stay gray! Look young! Either prepare the recipe at home or get from any drug store a 50-cent bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," which is merely the old-time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients. Thousands of folks recommend this ready-to-use preparation, because it darkens the hair beautifully, besides, no one can possibly tell, as it darkens so naturally and evenly. You moisten a sponge or soft brush with it, drawing this through the hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two, its natural colour is restored and it becomes thick, glossy and lustrous, and you appear years younger.

OUR SERIAL STORY

THE RED PAPER

By C. HOTCHKISS

Harper had been away from his post twenty minutes. Obtaining the cigars he started back to his horse, and, as he came to within a hundred feet of where he had tied the animal, he saw a mounted man halted beside it, a black figure silhouetted against the bright sky.

"Stop where ye be, stranger!" said the horseman in a low voice; and a revolver glistened in the moonlight.

Harper halted abruptly.

"Who are you?" he demanded, letting his hand go to his hip.

"Quit that, friend! I only wants to know if you have seen an ambulance with two men and a woman cross the ford to-day. I'm Deputy Sheriff Folger, of Kendall County. Stand just where ye be, an' answer."

At that moment Wentworth, alert to anything unusual, thought he heard voices. He sat up and rubbed his eyes, then throwing aside his blanket got to his feet and walked out toward the ford. As he caught sight of the two men he quickened his pace; he was probably a third of his way from camp as Harper answered the man on horseback.

"If you are an officer you needn't fear me. I'm a deputy, myself," returned Harper. "I'm looking for that same ambulance."

"Oh! Ye be, hey? Come up closer. Be ye alone?"

"You see I am alone!" said Harper, stepping toward the man, his suspicions allayed. "But I have—" He never finished the sentence, for at that moment the stranger caught sight of Wentworth coming rapidly toward them.

"Alone, be ye? Ye liar!" he shouted, half-turning his horse. With that exclamation he leveled his revolver and fired.

Harper's right arm jerked straight out; he spun around and, with a bubbling groan, fell to the grass. As he went down the horsemen raised his weapon and fired a shot at Wentworth, but without effect; then he jerked free the rein of Harper's horse, and, wheeling, drove back through the ford with the captured animal.

All this happened in an instant, and all fell under the eye of Wentworth. Not knowing the conditions beyond the fact that his friend was shot and himself fired at, he drew his own revolver and deliberately kneeling on the dew-covered prairie leveled at the retreating figure, holding the weapon with both hands as though it were a gun, and fired.

In the clear light he saw the man sway in his saddle, but the fellow did not lose his seat; instead, he turned and fired again at Wentworth, that shot, like the former, going wild. Harper's horse, now cast loose, went tearing back over the plain. The stranger fled down the trail and disappeared.

Aroused by the shots, Thorp came hurrying up, swearing as he ran, and was beside Harper almost as soon as Wentworth. Together they lifted the wounded man, who looked up perfectly conscious.

"Where are you hit?" cried John in a frenzy of fear.

"Through the lung— right lung — high up! The shock of the slug knocked me over. I ought to have had it through the head for being such a forsaken idiot!"

He spoke without great distress, though weak from shock. "Thank God it's no worse!" said the sheriff. "A clean shot through the right lung isn't the onseedness thing that could happen, though that's bad enough! We must get you somewhere at once! Abercrombie's ranch is two miles back and one up the river. There's no doctor at Comfort, but there is in Boerne —a northern man with a sick wife. Abercrombie's is the best point! I'll fetch the horses. Can you ride?"

"I'll ride all right, I reckon," said Harper doggedly, struggling to his feet with the help of Wentworth while the sheriff started off on a run. In a few minutes Thorp returned with three horses; Harper, his face pale in the moonlight, leaned heavily on his friend.

"I found your animal standing with the others," said the sheriff. "We'll come back for the pack-horse to-morrow. Can you get up? Yes? Now, then!"

Together they lifted the wounded man to the saddle. Harper sat without help, and was losing but little blood.

"Can you tell me what happened?" asked the sheriff as they crossed the ford and moved slowly along. Harper briefly detailed the adventure.

"Looks queer!" said the other. "No tellin what it means! Horse-rustler, perhaps—except about the ambulance! No! By the Devil in Hell! I see!" he suddenly exclaimed, bringing his hand to his thigh with a resounding slap. "By the Lord, it's Bagshot! He shied at the ford! The fellow was a scout—an outrider sent ahead! They were close behind him, and he has turned them aside! I'm on to him! Keep straight ahead—I'll see you later."

With that the sheriff put spurs to his horse and dashed off into the moonlit space; the others followed slowly.

Nearly an hour went by, the wounded man bearing up well though Wentworth was beginning to worry over the long absence of Thorp and the lack of a sign of the ranch-house. He was wondering if by chance he had not become bewildered and taken a wrong direction when he heard the sheriff's shout, and finally saw him, a dark spot on the bright prairie. He was dismounted, and bending over the body of a man stretched on the ground.

"You potted your game!" said the sheriff quietly as the two rode up. "I am right! He was their outrider. I went on until I found their wheel tracks, and followed them until I crossed up with this. I know him! He's Rail Tucker, an old-time rustler and a jail-bird." The man on the ground opened his eyes. "Which way did they go?" demanded the sheriff, bending until his mouth was at the ear of the prostrate outlaw.

"Up th' river— round the head," came plainly but feebly from the lips of the man. He was clearly dying. "Curse his soul!" he broke out with fierceness. "He wouldn't let me in the wagon when he knowed I was pitched for fair! He's a coward!"

"Is there a woman with them?" asked John, who had dropped from his horse.

The man nodded.

"Good gal—wanted to help me—but —oh— I'll tell all! They were goin' to Kerrsville—then to Fort Terrel—then —oh—gimme whiskey!"

The stimulant was given, and the man revived. "Did—did I kill the other fellow?" he asked weakly.

"No—only wounded him. He's with us," answered the sheriff; then to Wentworth he said: "Better go on and get Harper along; he can't stand much more. Abercrombie is only a mile further. You can't miss it. I'll stay till this is over. He's shot through the body, near the heart."

"Ye are a gentleman, Cave. Ye always was," said the wounded man, rolling his eyes. "Treated me white, Cave! I hain't got nothin' to say. No prayers nor cuddlin'. I've been tough, but I'm all in now!"

His head drooped. In less than a minute more his whole body seemed suddenly to turn to water, and he slipped through the grasp of the sheriff, who had been supporting him. When they turned him over he was dead.

As nothing could be done with him they left his body lying where it had fallen, his face to the moonlight.

Capturing his grazing horse, the three went on, Harper still bearing up. As they rode, Thorp pointed to the ground. Here and there on the dew-laden grass could be plainly distinguished the tracks of wheels.

"By the Lord!" said the sheriff, "we know that the villains are not behind us now. The chase has just begun."

Soon after they were thundering at the door of the Abercrombie ranch.

CHAPTER XX.
THE DESERT.

Not until the doctor had been brought from Boerne, thirty miles away, the hardy Scotch ranch-owner volunteering for the ride, would Wentworth listen to Thorp's importunities to push on after Bagshot. The heart of the sheriff was now in his professional work, while Wentworth's loyalty to his friend kept him from at once continuing the pursuit. It was when the desperate sheriff at last reminded the young man of his oath as a deputy, and Harper himself had urged him that Wentworth finally consented to go.

But then the surgeon had dressed the wound and pronounced it trivial to a man of Harper's constitution and physique, the ball having passed clean through his body at the apex of the lung. The patient would be up in ten days, he said, if he obeyed orders, and no complications set in. And Abercrombie promised the best of nursing.

But it was fourteen hours before the pursuit was again taken up by Thorp and Wentworth. It was growing toward evening and the shadows lay long upon the ground when they cleared the limits of the ranch and plunged into what, to the northerner, was an unchartered sea of prairie. So sure was the sheriff that Bagshot would be found in Kerrsville that they travelled with only scanty provision for the future; there was no lead horse now; they were flying light in both possessions and spirits.

Even though hours had passed the track of the ambulance had not become entirely obliterated, but led on into a wilderness of space. On the grass the marks of the wheels had disappeared, but they were plain on the patches of sand and where the verdure thinned out — patches that grew more and more frequent—which were the advance guard of the partial desert away to the west. There had been no rain or sufficient wind to disturb the lightly seen ruts.

Children Like It

"It is not an easy matter to get a medicine that children like, or to force them to take one they don't like. Most mothers know that a cough medicine, while palatable, should contain no drug injurious to the child. The great popularity of is explained by the fact that it contains no opium or narcotic of any kind, and at the same time is so pleasant and agreeable to the taste that children like it. For this reason it is a favorite with the mothers of young children.

EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE

LADY'S SHIRT WAIST.

By Anabel Worthington.

Here is a waist that completely satisfies the longing for a smart blouse with tailored effect, yet so fashioned that it lacks the severity of the tailored model and is one having that rare charm—individuality.

The vest effect is the very newest thing in dresses for spring and the centre front of this blouse certainly has vest suggestion. The yokes back and front are "cut-out" and so shaped that one does not notice at first glance that the blouse is collarless—another new idea that is being fostered. The side fronts and the back have their fullness gathered where the yokes join, giving a pretty line over the bust. The centre front may be of another material or of the goods in the remainder of the waist. The sleeve is full length and smartly cuffed with contrasting goods. A plentiful trimming of silk soutache braid is effective.

This is an excellent design for two materials; silk, satin, linen, voile and like fabrics may be employed in reproducing the design.

The waist pattern, No. 8,151, cuts in sizes 34 to 42 bust. To make in size 36 requires 1⅛ yards 36 inch goods for the waist and ¾ yard 27 inch contrasting goods for the vest and cuffs with 3¾ yards braid.

To obtain the pattern send ... to the office of this publication.

When ordering remember to give your name and address as well as the number and size of pattern required, and age of a child.

FOR some time we have been advertising the need of Life Insurance in general. NOW we propose to show you WHY you should place your insurance with the Sun Life of Canada.

Fifteen years ago a parent in this City placed a ten pay 15 year Endowment Policy (No. 209916) in the Sun Life of Canada, on his son who was then 11 years of age.

On the 1st of February, inst. he was offered any of the following Options:—

First, a fully paid up Policy of $4045.00 payable at death.

Where can a man take $89.30 per year for 10 years and invest it in ANY OTHER WAY and produce an immediate estate of $4045.00 in case of death?

Or he could withdraw $905.55 which you will notice is more than he paid in, ALL TOLD, and still retain a FREE paid up participating policy of $1000.00, payable at death; thus his dollars did two things at the same time,—carried the risk, and gave a FREE POLICY and he saved his money for himself too.

Or he could have drawn $1266.80 in cash, which was $373.80 more than he paid in, or a return of over $141 for every hundred he paid, besides having had free protection for the past fifteen years.

PIMPLES and BOILS
ALL OVER FACE AND BODY

When the blood becomes impure you will find that pimples and boils will break out all over the body, and although they are not dangerous trouble, they make you appear unsightly both to your friends and yourself.

Burdock Blood Bitters will cleanse the blood of all the impurities and poisons which cause the skin to break out in these eruptions.

Miss Sylvia Swanson, Theodore, Sask., writes: "I am letting you know what great value your B.B.B. has been to me. A year ago I started to grow pale and weak, the cause being bad blood. I got so many pimples and boils all over my face and body that I would not let strangers see me, and I used to avoid company. I tried many remedies but all caused a failure. I read about how good your B.B.B. had been to thousands of people so I got a bottle and after I had finished the second one my pimples and boils had all disappeared. People thought it a miracle how well I looked.

"Your grand old remedy sure has been as good as gold and better, to me".

ACID STOMACHS ARE DANGEROUS

Nine-tenths of all Stomach Trouble, said to be Due to Acidity

A Physician's Advice on Cause and Cure.

A famous physician whose successful researches into the cause and cure of stomach and intestinal diseases have earned for him an international reputation, said in the course of a recent lecture that nearly all intestinal troubles, as well as many diseases of the vital organs, were directly traceable to a deranged condition of the stomach which in turn was due nine times out of ten to excessive acidity, commonly termed sour stomach or heartburn, which not only irritated and inflamed the delicate lining of the stomach, but also set up gastritis and stomach ulcers. It is interesting to note that he condemned the use of patent medicines as well as of medical treatment for the stomach, stating that he and his colleagues have secured remarkable results by the use of a powder, which, by neutralizing the acidity of the food, removes the cause of the trouble. He contends that after all it is useless to treat the stomach itself as it would be like a man who stopped on a tack to rub liniment on the foot without first removing the tack. Remove the tack and the foot will heal itself—neutralize the acid and the stomach troubles will disappear. Irritating medicines and medical treatments are useless, so long as the contents of the stomach remain acid; remove the acidity, and there will be no need for medicine—the inflamed lining of the stomach will then heal itself. Anyone suffering from acidity, sour stomach or heartburn should get a small bottle of bisurated magnesia, which, by neutralizing the acidity

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

A MYSTERIOUS DISAPPEARANCE

A Pioneer Story

By WALTER WILCOX

One hundred years ago a young couple left Virginia, crossed the Allegheny mountains and settled in Henderson county, Ky. It was a wild country in those days, but very beautiful, nature seeming to tempt the pioneer with its virgin scenery, its immense trees, its profusion of wild flowers. And such temptation was necessary. The settler never knew at what moment the yell of the savage would break the stillness of the wilderness or when he and his family might be cut down by a tomahawk without even a whisper of warning. These were the inducements and the drawbacks to settlers in the new country, though there is a fascination in danger that drew the fearless.

John Aborn and his wife Mary journeyed to their new home down the Ohio river on the only means of inland navigation known at that time, a flatboat, and on reaching their destination went ashore, "entered" a quarter section of land, built a log cabin and proceeded to make a living by the cultivation of the soil and hunting. Children were born to them. As more room was needed their cabin was extended, and within a few years the location assumed the semblance of civilization.

Aborn brought with him to Kentucky a few slaves and bought others from time to time, for we must remember that in those days the only hands a farmer could obtain were his own negroes. The community lived on game, of which there was abundance near at hand; the grain they raised and nuts and berries, which grew plentifully on tree and bush. Each family was a unit bound together by the strongest ties.

But after a time the game was not so plentiful about the settlements on the river bank, and the hunters were obliged to go farther inland to provide meat for their families. Then it was that the Aborns' troubles commenced. In the wilderness still inhabited by the deer and the wild turkey were many dangers. Besides the Indian, there was the wolf, and there were desperadoes, who, whenever a new country is settled, on account of the absence of government find it a fine field for their lawless operations. Nevertheless every autumn John Aborn was obliged to go into the unsettled regions in order to bring back a supply of meat for the winter consumption. Sometimes he would go with a party of his neighbors, sometimes with a single friend and sometimes alone.

One October morning he set out on his annual hunting tour in company with Alexander Swift, the neighbor with whom he was most intimate. When Aborn embraced his wife and children before departing they clung to him with unusual reluctance to let him go. Whether this was due to a presentiment that evil might happen to him or that he must now go farther and remain longer than ever before, the fact remains that he and his family were loath to part. Finally, tearing himself away from them, he sprang into the wilderness with his friend.

When it came time for the husband and father's return his wife and children watched for him eagerly. He had usually been away two weeks, but on this trip he supposed to be gone three. This was because with the settling of the country he was obliged to go farther from home. He had set out on a Monday and had promised to be back on Saturday, two days before the third Monday following. All that day his wife and children watched for him, but he did not come. The next and the next day they felt sure would bring him, but he disappointed them. The wife and mother began to be troubled, but concealed her anxiety as well as she was able from her children. When another week had passed and neither Aborn nor his companion returned Mrs. Aborn felt sure that both had met with misfortune. The most reasonable supposition was that they had been killed by Indians.

A month passed, and still neither Aborn nor his companion returned. Then the other hunters of that region organized a band to go and look for the missing men. A week later they returned, reporting that they had come upon the body of Alexander Swift pierced with arrows and scalped. They had found no trace whatever of Aborn. It seemed probable that the two men had been attacked by Indians; that Swift had been killed and Aborn captured, in which event he must have met a worse fate than his companion. The rains had washed out the trail of the redskins as well as that of their captive.

The party before their return debated what report to make to Mrs. Aborn as to the probable fate of her husband and agreed that it would be best to tell her that her husband had doubtless been killed by the Indians, not mentioning that he had been first tortured.

As the Aborn family had increased the father, who at times had been troubled with insomnia, had slept in a room by himself. Mrs. Aborn, who did not relinquish all hope that he would return, kept this room always ready for him. But she kept it locked and never mentioned it or to whom it had belonged. After her husband's capture by the Indians she sold most of her negroes, feeling that she could not afford to keep them, buying a strong woman who would serve all domestic purposes. To this woman the bedroom that was never opened was a mystery. She once mentioned the room to her mistress, asking why it was kept locked, but received no satisfaction. After that she speculated a great deal about the room, telling the field hands that she "'spected Missy Aborn had a ha'nt locked up in dat room." The settlers, or, rather, their wives, who knew of the closing of this room pitied the poor woman, whose husband had doubtless been tortured and burned at the stake by the savages and would never return. They assumed that she hoped her husband would come back to her and she wished him to find his room ready for his occupation.

Two years passed, during which Mrs. Aborn worked her farm as well as she could, and her neighbors on their return from their hunting expeditions always supplied her with meat for the coming winter and spring. But it was a forlorn country in which to bring up children, and she was often tempted to remove to Indiana or Ohio, where she would have facilities for giving them an education. Finally she resolved one autumn that if no tidings came from her husband during the winter she would sell her plantation and her negroes, keeping her horses, and, mounting her children and herself on them, would go to some point on the river bank opposite Ohio, cross the river and make a home in one of the villages of that state.

The winter passed without the return of her husband or any news of him. Friendly Indians came and went to and from the settlement, and the widow never failed to inquire if any of them had knowledge of a white man she described to them. But none of them could give her any news of him. In the spring she began her preparations for removal.

One night when she had put her children to bed she concluded to ride over to the house of a neighbor to whom she hoped to sell her plantation. It was a stormy night, but she was anxious to get an offer for the property and was not deterred by the weather. During the evening a band of friendly Indians came into the settlement and were seen wandering about in search of what they could steal. One of them appeared at the kitchen, where Martha, Mrs. Aborn's maid of all work, was at work, and, turning, she saw him standing in the doorway. She was wiping a plate, which she straightway dropped on the floor, and it broke in pieces. The savage in a guttural tone peculiar to the Indian said:

"Me want bed. Me good Indian. Me no hurt anybody."

Martha got up enough courage to tell the redskin that every room but one was occupied by the children and that was locked. The Indian horrified her by walking into the kitchen, taking up a tallow dip and proceeding to examine the house. Seeing the children sound asleep in their beds, he held the candle over each one of them in turn, giving a grunt of satisfaction at the sight of their rosy faces. Martha followed him at a distance, her complexion wearing the sickly light yellow of a frightened negro. She saw him go into her mistress' bedroom, and when he came out he had a key in his hand. Going to the empty chamber, he unlocked the door and said to the woman:

"Me sleep here. You no tell."

He accompanied his words with a savage look that tied her tongue completely. She wished to tell of the Indian who had gone into the only vacant room, but did not dare. He would surely know that she had told and would tomahawk her. When her mistress returned it was evident that the negro had experienced a great scare; but, though Mrs. Aborn tried to induce her to tell what had frightened her, her efforts resulted in failure. As soon as Mrs. Aborn had gone to her room Martha went out and reported the Indian's presence in the house. But she was either not believed or those she told, considering that the group of red men who had come to the village were friendly, did not think the matter worthy of their attention, especially as the Aborn house was closed for the night.

Slumber finally reigned over the settlement. Martha slept in one of the negro cabins and early in the morning returned to the mother's abode, dreading to find both her and her children murdered. Entering the kitchen, she went from there into the other portions of the house, and, finding everything quiet, the other children asleep in their beds and her mistress stumbering with the smaller ones, she made up her mind that the savage was less murderous than she had supposed him to be and set about getting breakfast.

Presently she heard a cry. Terrified lest the Indian, after all, was about to tomahawk her mistress, she ran out of the kitchen into a passageway. There she saw Mrs. Aborn in the arms of the Indian, whose face had lost its coppery hue during the night. Mrs. Aborn's head was hanging limp on the Indian's arm, it being evident that she had fainted. Martha, supposing it to have been from fright, sought support against the wall to avoid collapsing herself.

The Indian was none other than John Aborn. And this was his story: He and his companion Kentuckian had been set upon by Indians. Swift had been killed and Aborn made a prisoner. He was taken far to the south and adopted into the tribe. No opportunity had occurred for home time to return north, and even then he had been obliged to delay going to his home. Those with whom he had entered the settlement were ignorant that he was a white man, and he did not wish them to know it. He remained contented till they had left.

DYSPEPSIA OF WOMEN

Special Treatment Required.

Many women suffer from a form of indigestion or dyspepsia which does not yield to ordinary treatment. While the symptoms are similar to those of ordinary indigestion, yet the medicines usually prescribed do not restore the patient's normal condition.

There seems to be a kind of dyspepsia caused by derangement of the female organism. While this appears to be the same as ordinary indigestion it can be relieved only by a medicine which, besides acting as a stomach tonic, is good for female ailments. Read what such a medicine did for Mrs. Williams:—

She says:—"Before I began taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I was troubled with dyspepsia and bearing down pains in my back and sides, and after my meals my stomach would bloat up till I could scarcely get my breath. At times I was so weak I could hardly stand on my feet and I looked hollow-eyed and my skin was yellow. Now I have a good color, have gained in every way and can do my work without any pains. I think it is the best medicine on earth for stomach troubles of women."—Mrs. NELLIE WILLIAMS, 31 West 3d Street, New Albany, Ind.

HAD AWFUL ATTACKS OF HEART TROUBLE

For 5 or 6 Years

Diseases and disorders of the heart and nervous system have become frightfully prevalent of late years.

One can scarcely pick up a paper but he will find recorded instances of sudden deaths through heart failure, or of prominent men and women unable to prosecute their ordinary business or profession on account of a breaking down of the nervous system.

We do not desire to unnecessarily alarm anyone, but to sound a word of warning.

When the heart begins to beat irregularly, palpitates and throbs, has shooting pains through it, it is time to stop and think.

To all sufferers from heart and nerve troubles Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills can give prompt and permanent relief.

Mrs. Frank Arseneau, Newcastle, N. B., writes: "I had awful attacks of heart trouble for the past five or six years, and as I had tried many kinds of medicine without getting any better I decided to give Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills a trial, and to my surprise I found ease from the second dose. I continued taking them until I had used six boxes, and now I feel as well as can be.

"At the present time my sister is using them for nervousness and finds great comfort by their use."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50c or three boxes for $1.25 at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

MIKADO SENDS GREETINGS ON PRESIDENT'S INAUGURATION.

WASHINGTON, March 12. — The Japanese Ambassador presented the following message from the Japanese Emperor to President Wilson, which is taken to be Japan's answer to the proposal in the Zimmermann letter for a German-Japanese-Mexican alliance against the United States.

"On the occasion of your inauguration as President of the United States of America we desire to offer our sincere congratulations and to express our ardent wishes that your administration may be attended by brilliant successes in the future as it has been in the past, and that the United States may grow more and more in prosperity."

STOP CATARRH! OPEN NOSTRILS AND HEAD

Says Cream Applied in Nostrils Relieves Head-Colds at Once.

If your nostrils are clogged and your head is stuffed and you can't breathe freely because of a cold or catarrh, just get a small bottle of Ely's Cream Balm at any drug store. Apply a little of this fragrant, antiseptic cream into your nostrils and let it penetrate through every pair passage of your head, soothing and healing the inflamed, swollen mucous membrane and you get instant relief.

Ah! how good it feels. Your nostrils are open, your head is clear, no more hawking, snuffling, blowing; no more headache, dryness or struggling for breath. Ely's Cream Balm is just what sufferers from head colds and catarrh need. It's a delight.

HE KNEW THE TURK.

So He Boldly Proceeded to Take the Law Into His Own Hands.

In his book, "Forty Years In Constantinople," Sir Edwin Pears tells the following story to illustrate the Turk's attitude toward foreigners:

I knew the Englishman of whom the story was told, and I persuaded him one day to give me his own version. He sued a man in the chief Turkish court that has jurisdiction over cases between Europeans and Turkish subjects. When the Turkish defendant came to tell his tale he spoke of the Englishman as a giaour, or infidel. The Englishman objected. Although the judges knew perfectly well that it is contrary to Turkish law to use such an epithet, they did not interfere, whereupon the Englishman said, "If you call me a giaour again I shall take the law into my own hands."

The Englishman stepped across the floor three or four paces and gave the Turk a blow on the nose that startled him and the court. As the blood flowed freely, there was a great hubbub, and orders were given to arrest the Englishman. He was a big, powerful fellow, and fortunately he smashed the pistol on which he was seized and cried out that he would brain the first man who laid hands upon him.

Alischan, the dragoman who first told me the story, said that every one hesitated to attack the Englishman, and he, Alischan, was asked by the president to tell the aggressor that if he would apologize there would be an end of the matter.

"Apologize!" said the Englishman. "Not a bit of it. He insulted me, and I let him have it."

Alischan went back to the president and said, "This is the kind of an Englishman who won't stand an insult, and I can do nothing with him."

Thereupon the court ordered the proceedings to go on as if nothing had happened.

A Rousing Welcome.

"Anyhow," said the small man with the big set of books, over which he figured from early morn till late at night, "anyhow, there is one faithful friend at home that never fails to give me a rousing welcome."

"What friend is that?" asked the filling clerk, pausing to eat a sandwich while the boss wasn't looking.

"My old alarm clock," replied the small man dreamily.

RIDING ON BUBBLES OF AIR.

Motoring Would Be Ideal If Tires Could Be Made Thinner.

In the whole mechanism of modern transportation there is nothing so paradoxical, nothing so daring in conception as these bubbles of air which we call tires. They are at once strangely nonsensical and strangely practical—nonsensical because they must endure great strains and yet are necessarily made of unendurable material; practical because nothing can match air as a shock absorber. From all the tales that we hear of tire costs and tire repairs, let it not be forgotten that motoring as we know it became possible because of the art of riding on bubbles of air had been discovered.

What happens when the old fashioned iron tired, wooden hubby wheel strikes a small stone in the road? It simply rises and the entire load resting on the wheel is lifted. There is loss of power—more work for the horse, for whenever you or a horse lifts a weight energy must be expended. What happens when an air tube strikes a stone? The tube is simply punched in; as it were, momentarily! The wheel need not be lifted over the obstruction.

In order to secure this extraordinary result the air must have a chance to compress. If it were possible to build a tire with a wall as thin as a soap bubble's and yet so tough and elastic that it would both yield to blows and resist punctures and blowouts the ideal would be attained. One of the hardest technical tasks ever set was that of demanding from the rubber industry a tube which would hold air and which would also be resilient.

'Air tires serve not only to make motoring luxuriously comfortable, but to protect the car itself. Were it not for them engines would not perform their work so efficiently; gasoline would not be so economically consumed; high speed would be unattainable; steering would not be so easy; shock would not be completely absorbed.—Waldemar Kaempffert in McClure's Magazine.

WIFE CUT OFF IN WILL.

Charles G. Moller Leaves $35,000 to Housekeeper and Rest to Son.

NEW YORK, March 12.—The will of Charles G. Moller, who died at his home, 280 Madison Avenue, and who was the son of the late Peter Moller, sugar refiner and associate of Henry O. Havemeyer, directs that his second wife, Mrs. Jane Sommer Moller, of 2,024 Grand Concourse, the Bronx, shall have no part of his estate. He leaves $35,000 to his housekeeper, Gertrude A. Cooper, and the remainder of his estate of more than $200,000 in trust to his son, Charles G. Moller, Jr., of 54 East Fifty-fifth street, for life. On the latter's death his children, Charles G. Moller 3d and Ruth H. Moller will divide the estate.

The widow is cut off on the ground that Mr. Moller had executed a separation agreement with her in 1913 and had made a financial statement which she accepted in lieu of all interest in the estate.

Hair Often Ruined By Careless Washing

If you want to keep your hair looking its best, be careful what you wash it with. Don't use prepared shampoos or anything else, that contains too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and ruins it.

The best thing for steady use is just ordinary mulsified cocoanut oil (which is pure and greaseless), and is better than anything else you can use.

One or two teaspoonfuls will cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, which rinses out easily, removing every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves the scalp soft, and the hair fine and silky, bright, lustrous, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get mulsified cocoanut oil at any pharmacy, it's very cheap, and a few ounces will supply every member of the family for months.

Baked bananas can frequently be eaten by people who cannot assimilate bananas raw.

Studebaker
Established 1852

THINGS YOU FORGET

The Studebaker Series "18" car is an evolution and perfected piece of mechanism. That is why you can FORGET many little things about Studebaker that you have to REMEMBER and care for on other cars not so highly developed.

For instance: the cooling system of the Studebaker car will work in any climate, at any temperature, providing you keep water in the radiator.

The lubrication system of a Studebaker car will work unfailingly in absolutely all conditions, if you will remember to put oil in the crank case occasionally.

The electric lights, and the electric starter will never fail you if a little distilled water is put in the battery from time to time.

You will not have to paint your body frequently to keep it looking nice, because Studebaker's finishing work is the sum of years of experience.

You won't have to renew the leather on your cushions, because experience has taught Studebaker how to select and buy the highest quality of leather.

You won't need to worry about making a grade with a Studebaker car, because the Studebaker motor has been perfected into the most powerful motor in the world in ratio to gasoline consumption.

You won't have to continually worry about lubrication, about oil and greasing parts of your car, because every part is equipped with ample capacity grease cups.

These are the things that make it a delight to own and run a Studebaker car, and cause you to say, "I never have any trouble with it."

Blood Thin and Watery And Circulation Bad

Nerves Become Starved and Depleted—But Dr. Chase's Nerve Food Enriched the Blood and Restored the Strength

PETERBOROUGH, March 14.—The nervous system requires an abundance of rich, red blood in order to replace the daily waste and generate the energy consumed in the activities of life. When you fail to obtain the necessary nourishment from the food you eat you must seek such assistance as is afforded by the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

By going directly to the formation of rich, red blood this great food cure brings strength and vigor to person, who are weak and run down. Here is the evidence:

Mrs. W. Grieves, 610½ Bethune street, Peterboro', Ont., writes: "Last fall my system was in a run-down condition, and I suffered from nervous debility and sleeplessness. At times I was troubled with hizzy headaches. My blood was weak and watery, and consequently I suffered from cold hands and feet. Many times at night I would waken up from sleep with a start, and then it would be a long time before I could quiet down and go to sleep again. Finally I became so bad that I could not do my own housework. I tried different remedies and preparations, as well as taking doctors' medicine, without any good results. Knowing Dr. Chase's Nerve Food to be good and very reliable, I secured some and took them. As they began to help me, I continued the treatment until I was helped a great deal. Now I can eat and sleep well at night, and am able to go about and do my own work. I also found good results from using the Kidney-Liver Pills in connection with the Nerve Food. I might also mention that I have used Dr. Chase's Ointment for a rash on my baby, and found it very beneficial. We always find Dr. Chase's medicines good, and are pleased to be able to recommend them."

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, 50 cents a box, a full treatment of 6 boxes for $2.50 at all dealers, or Edmanson Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto. Do not be talked into accepting a substitute. Imitations only disappoint.

A MEMORABLE ECLIPSE.

When the Sun Was Totally Obscured In This Country in 1806.

The most remarkable eclipse of the sun witnessed in the United States in the centuries since its discovery took place on June 16, 1806. There were eclipses previous and since then, but that of 1806 is regarded by astronomers as the most memorable of all, that of Aug. 7, 1869, being the next in grandeur and interest.

The eclipse of 1806 was to be seen over all parts of North America. Fortunately the day was a remarkably fine one, scarcely a cloud being visible in any part of the heavens. The sun's entire surface was covered at twenty-seven minutes and thirty seconds past 11 o'clock.

James Fenimore Cooper, the novelist, though but a youth at the time of the eclipse, was so enthusiastic an observer of the spectacle that twenty-five years after the event he wrote a minute account of what he saw and how he felt during the wonderful occurrence.

Mr. Cooper states that as he and other spectators in his company first discerned through their glasses the oval form of the moon darkening the sun's light an exclamation of delight, almost triumphant, burst involuntarily from the lips of all. The people began gathering into the street. Their usual labors were abandoned, and all faces were turned upward.

The noonday heat began to lessen, and there was something of the coolness of early morning. Mr. Cooper further states that "all living creatures seemed thrown into a state of agitation. The birds were fluttering to and fro in great excitement. They seemed to mistrust that this was not the gradual approach of evening and were undecided in their movements. Even the dogs became uneasy and drew nearer to their masters.

"Every house now gave up its tenants. As the light failed more and more with every passing second the children came flocking about their mothers in terror. The sun appeared like a young moon of three or four days old. One after the other the stars came into view, which filled the spirit with singular sensations."

The general phenomena at all the places where the eclipse was complete or nearly so were the vacillation of the wind, the deep, strange shadow, the yellowish pink of the atmosphere in the west, the flickering and wavy appearance of the sun's rays when the eclipse was at its height, the chilly feeling, the disturbance among the birds and fowls and the sight of certain planets with the naked eye.

WHERE MANKIND WAS REBORN

The Story of Florence Epitomizes the Story of Humanity.

The story of Florence is the story of humanity; the bread, deep, moving epic of the awakening of man to his own divine power; the story of wonderful self made men who had but one idea in common—the thirst for free activity of soul.

So the tale of the new birth, the renaissance, is the record of individual spirit so free, so subtle and elastic, so profoundly penetrating to the springs of human purpose, that it has furnished the motive power of the world ever since, and Florence, as its source and focus, because of the conditions then obtaining in the city and throughout Italy, was the one spot in the world capable of producing such an epoch making upheaval of human consciousness.

And all this astonishing genius grew directly out of—business! The city was peopled by men who manufactured the necessaries of life, by merchants, speculators, bankers, tradesmen, artisans, handicraftsmen of every type. Business, work, was a condition of active participation in the life of the state, and because they did not work the nobles were debarred from this.

It was the burghers, the people, who ruled, and even when evil chance laid the state under the heavy hand of a despot he was forced to develop his own character to the uttermost, because his rule depended entirely upon his capacity as a man. The aristocracy accordingly was that of intelligence, of men who became eminent because, first of all, they were the best in their own individual work.

Under the practical inspiration of these mental giants Florence was recreated and learned to view life from within instead of superficially. She learned that the individual is the soul of the state and that the state can succeed only when it is true to the best interests of its individuals.—A. S. Riggs in National Geographic Magazine.

INTERNATIONAL PEACE.

Plans to Secure It Have Been Tried For Three Centuries.

Admirable and farsighted plans for securing a peaceful international order have been before the world for 300 years. M. Emeric Cruce submitted his plan, which included liberty of commerce throughout all the world, as early as 1623. Following the peace of Utrecht, the Abbe de St. Pierre developed his plan, which included mediation, arbitration and an interesting addition to the effect that any sovereign who took up arms before the union of nations had declared war or who refused to execute a regulation of the union or a judgment of the senate was to be declared an enemy of European society. The union was then to make war upon him until he should be disarmed or until the regulation or judgment should be executed.

Some twenty years earlier William Penn had produced his quaint and really extraordinary plan for the peace of Europe, in which he, too, proposed to proceed by military power against any sovereign who refused to submit his claims to a proposed diet, or parliament, of Europe or who refused to abide by and to perform any judgment of such a body.

All these plans, like those of Rousseau, Bentham and Kant, which came later, as well as William Ladd's elaborate and carefully considered essay on a congress of nations, published in 1840, were brought into the world too soon. They were the fine and noble dreams of seers which it is taking civilized men three centuries and more to begin effectively to realize.

DOCTORS ADVISE IRON FOR THE BLOOD

Anaemia, pale faces, nervousness, stomach troubles, watery blood, etc., are sure signs of thin blood. Dr. Mainorise says he can take any of these cases and cure any one of them in ten days by giving Iron for the blood, and Phosphorus for the nerves, "called Bonised Phosphorus with Iron." I have found that 99 per cent. of all stomach, liver, kidney, bowel, nerve, etc., troubles are traced right back to the blood. Just as soon as Bonised Phosphorus with Iron is given it is almost immediately absorbed by the system the blood taking the iron while the nerves are soothed by the phosphorus, making you eat better, feel better, look better, digest better, and finally you will be made 100 per cent. stronger. Do not be taking all sorts of patent medicines and laxatives which only ruin your system; go to the root of the trouble and start taking Iron and strengthen your blood, restore your nerves, and your digestion and will recharge your whole system with new life. Bonised Phosphorus with Iron is dispensed by one druggist in each city. F. C. Weber dispenses it for Peterboro.

NEW YORK'S DOWNTOWN

Where Those "Tired Business Men" Earn Their Daily Bread.

There is a region of mystery into which the metropolitan husband and father vanishes between 7:30 and 8:45 a. m. six days in the week and from which he emerges in the late afternoon. He is welcomed, after the manner of all returning warriors, with a tender solicitude.

Downtown is the trackless jungle into which father plunges to stalk the family's living. After 10,000 years of civilization it is still the game. Anxious eyes follow him from the wigwam till he turns the corner to the railroad station, and fond eyes greet him as he staggers out of the elevator door in his apartment house home with his prey, so to speak, on his shoulder.

Wives will never be reconciled to downtown. It swallows up the man of the house when he would much rather stay at home and play with the children—so he pretends—and it sends him home at night too tired to be agreeable—as he asserts. Thus the little game goes on.

The primitive hunter, I imagine, made believe that he hated to leave the family and go off into the dark forest, and on his return he threw himself before the fire too tired to speak. Actually, I believe, the primitive hunter as soon as he was out of sight of home broke into a cheerful whistle.—Simeon Strunsky in Harper's Magazine.

Primogeniture.

The law of primogeniture sends back its roots to the most ancient times. Away back in the patriarchal ages the firstborn son had a superiority over all his brethren and in the absence of his father was in every important sense the head of the house. Upon the death of the father he became by the unwritten law, which could not be questioned, the priest and lord of the family, and naturally to him fell the property as well as the honors of the household. Primogeniture wherever it is found today is the lingering remnant of the ancient custom.

VINDICATED THE MULE.

A Legal Case Where the Honor of the Animal Was Involved.

One of the most famous cases reported in the Missouri Law Reports is that of Lyman versus Dale, known as the "celebrated mule case."

It seems that Dale's hired hand, Parker, after a day's work supplying water to a clover huller, was passing through the city of Springfield, riding one mule and leading another. He met Lyman just opposite a pile of bricks in the street, capped by a red lantern. The mule being led became frightened at the bricks and lantern and, jumping aside, broke a wheel out of Lyman's buggy.

This laid the foundation of the case. Lyman sued Dale for a damage of $5, charging him with "negligence in handling a wild and unruly mule."

The case was first tried in a justice of the peace court at Springfield, Mo., and was appealed to the circuit court. From there it was taken to the court of appeals, which court, failing to agree, sent it to the supreme court of the state.

This court held that Lyman could not recover damages unless he proved that the mule was "wild and unruly."

Judge Henry Lamm said that, while the amount involved in the case was small, the value of the case was great for the sake of the doctrine and also because it involved the "honor of the Missouri mule."—Exchange.

Who Owns the Falkland Islands?

Few people are aware to this day that the Falkland islands are marked in all Argentine maps and geographies as "unlawfully retained by Great Britain." The origin of the dispute was that England after abandoning the islands in 1774 resumed possession in 1820. The Argentine government protested and, as A. Stuart Pennington points out in his book on the country, is even today "careful to do nothing which could even apparently recognise the rights of the present possessors." It was for that reason that it declined a proposal a few years ago to run a line of Argentine ships to the islands.

SAYS WE BECOME CRANKS ON HOT WATER DRINKING

Hopes Every Man and Woman Adopts This Splendid Morning Habit

Why is man and woman, half the time, feeling nervous, despondent, worried; some days headachy, dull and unstrung; some days really incapacitated by illness?

If we all would practice inside-bathing, what a gratifying change would take place. Instead of thousands of half-sick, anaemic-looking souls with pasty, muddy complexions we should see crowds of happy, healthy, rosy-cheeked people everywhere. The reason is that the human system does not rid itself each day of all the waste which it accumulates under our present mode of living. For every ounce of food and drink taken into the system nearly an ounce of waste material must be carried out, else it ferments and forms ptomaine-like poisons which are absorbed into the blood.

Just as necessary as it is to clean the ashes from the furnace each day, before the fire will burn bright and hot, so we must each morning clear the inside organs of the previous day's accumulation of indigestible waste and body toxins. Men and women, whether sick or well, are advised to drink each morning, before breakfast, a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it, as a harmless means of washing out of the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels the indigestible material, waste, sour bile and toxins; thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach.

Millions of people who had their turn at constipation, bilious attacks, acid stomach, nervous days and sleepless nights have become real cranks about the morning inside-bath. A quarter pound of limestone phosphate will not cost much at the drug store, but is sufficient to demonstrate to anyone, its cleansing, sweetening and freshening effect upon the system.

AMERICAN STEAMER SUNK BY HUNS

German Retirement on Large Scale Expected

Bavarian Troops Failed To Penetrate Canadian Trenches

Were Twice Driven Off When They Attempted a Raid Leaving Their Dead on the Field---China Has Broken Off Diplomatic Relations and Seized All German Merchant Vessels in Shanghai Harbour---Sinking of American Ship Algonquin Will Not Alter General Situation.

A SUMMARY OF TO-DAY'S WAR CABLES

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

TORONTO, March 14.—Stewart Lyon, correspondent of the Canadian Press with the British Armies in France, cables to-day that German Bavarian troops, who are good fighting men, attempted twice to penetrate Canadian trenches in raids last night and this morning, but were driven off leaving their dead on the field.

Dull misty weather prevails with occasional rain.

LONDON, March 14.—The American steamer Algonquin, bound for London and laden with foodstuffs, was torpedoed without warning on Monday morning. All of the crew of twenty-seven were saved. The submarine refused to assist the survivors in lifeboats. The Algonquin was built in 1890 at Philadelphia and owned by The Clyde S.S. Co., and registered at New York. She was of 2,833 tons.

China Breaks Off Relations With Huns

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

WASHINGTON, March 14.—Diplomatic relations between China and Germany were broken by China to-day. The Chinese Government has seized all German merchant vessels in Shanghai Harbour.

China is expected to help supply the Allies from her enormous store of metals and five big munition factories. The German vessels seized were small boats which had been interned for many months.

Makes No Change in General Situation

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

(By Carl D. Groat, United Press Staff Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, March 14.—The sinking of the ship Algonquin flying the Stars and Stripes of the United States of America, unwarned, by a submarine, confirmed to-day the expressed Administration belief that Germany would carry out her ruthlessness against American shipping, but for the moment did not alter the general situation. Armed ships will venture forth and for the time being at least, will constitute America's defense against Germany's illegal sea methods.

The sinking convinced the authorities that they have nothing to hope for in the way of modified procedure on Germany's part.

The Algonquin sailed from New Lork unarmed when the American ship Rochester started. Her arrival abroad had never been reported, and there was considerable anxiety here concerning her.

Turks Say They Have Taken Up New Positions

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

CONSTANTINOPLE, March 14.—"The Turkish troops have taken up a new position between Bagdad and Samara," says an official War Office statement to-day.

Samara is seventy miles distant from Bagdad. Although the Constantinople statement purposely is vague as to the new positions, it may be significant that a point so far distant is mentioned. All statements from the British Mesopotamian expeditionary force have indicated the utter rout of the Turks at Bagdad and hot pursuit by the British which would make the reformoing of Turkish lines necessary at a considerable distance from the present battle line—possibly even seventy miles.

WASHINGTON, March 14.—President Wilson's message to the 6th Congress in extraordinary session April 16, will be sharply militant.

Defense measures such as the country has not been called upon to furnish since the Spanish war, will be urged by the President for immediate consideration and prompt action.

WASHINGTON, March 14.—American Ambassador James W. Gerard was due here about 12:33 to-day to report on German conditions as he sees them—a report that will doubtless have much to do with America's future course toward Germany. He will see President Wilson, Secretary of State Lansing, and other State Department officials, giving them firsthand views and news.

LONDON, March 14.—Britain was vastly interested to-day in the Berlin Tageblatt explanation of the recent German retirements, by Major Moraht, the chief German critics. Moraht elaborately explained the well-known strategical tactics of Von Hindenburg, as exhibted in previous campaigns on the eastern front "in order to gain ample space for strategical movement," and was construed here as designed to prepare the German public for a withdrawal on the western front on a huge scale. Moraht declares the ground evacuated by the Germans is poor terrain for fighting. Meanwhile the British forces are pushing steadily ahead methodically strengthening their positions on newly won grounds.

GERMANS PREPARING TO RETIRE.

LONDON, March 14.—French aviators report Germans destroying bridges and buildings back of their lines in the Champagne and on the British front; also hastily retiring their big guns and apparently preparing for another big retirement.

ANOTHER SWEEPING FRENCH VICTORY.

PARIS (French Official), March 14.—Another sweeping French victory was announced to-day. On Tuesday, south of St. Mihiel, the French captured Romainville Farm and penetrated at four different points up to the second lines of the enemy between the Meuse and Apremont.

KILLED IN ACTION

Ptes. Chester Craft, Wm. McKinistry and J. B. Carvolth of Peterboro' Met Death Fighting With the Canadians in France

Three Peterborough soldiers, two of them former members of the 93rd Battalion have made the supreme sacrifice at the front.

This morning Mrs. Elizabeth McKinistry, Orpington Road received official notice from Ottawa that her husband No. 195065, Pte. Wm. McKinistry, Canadian Infantry late of the 93rd Battalion was killed in action on March 5th. Pte. McKinistry, who was a carpenter by trade, was born in the United Kingdom, but had been a resident of Peterborough for a number of years. He enlisted last Spring in the 93rd Battalion and after going overseas as a member of the Peterborough unit was transferred to another Canadian Battalion at the front.

Pte. Chester Craft, another former member of the 93rd Battalion has also fallen at the front. His father, Mr. Robert Craft of Smith township was notified from Ottawa to-day that Pte. Craft was killed in action on March 5th. Pte. Craft was one of the first to join the 93rd aBttalion, enlisting here in August, 1915, and going overseas as a member of No. 1 Platoon, A Company. He was transferred to another Canadian unit at the front. Pte. Craft was born in Canada and was one of five cousins in the ranks of the 93rd. He was a member of the Orange Order.

Mrs. Georgina Carvolth, Monaghan Road was notified this morning that, No. 751177, Pte. John B. Carvolth was killed in action on March 1st. Pte. Carvolth enlisted outside of the city.

AUTOMOBILE SHOW PROPOSED FOR CITY

A meeting of the Automobile and Accessory dealer of Peterborough, together with the officers and committees of the Automobile Association will be held at the Empress Hotel on Friday evening, March 16th, at eight o'clock for the purpose of considering the proposition of holding an Automobile Show in Peterborough in the near future. If the plan appears feasabe it is probable an Automobile Show Association will be formed for the purpose of conducting the show.

Letters are being sent to all the members and it is hoped that there will be a large attendance at the Empress meeting. It is believed an automobile show would be a decided success in Peterborough if the Association got behind it with a determination to put the city on the automobile map.

PRESBYTERY DESIRES AVOIDANCE OF ANY RUPTURE OVER UNION

At the afternoon meeting of the Presbytery yesterday the following delegates were appointed to the General Assembly: Rev. Dr. McKenzie of Colborne, Rev. J. A. McKenzie of Knox Church, Rev. E. B. Wolland of Norwood, Rev. R. J. Ross of Baltimore, Mr. Richard Lees, Mr. H. B. Cowan and two elders to be chosen from Norwood and Millbrook.

The Presbytery passed a resolution expressing the hope that the General Assembly would deal with the question of union in a manner that would avoid dissention and rupture in the church.

The contract for printing the minutes and other matter was let for the year to a Kingston firm, thereby securing a saving of $13.

WHAT BECOMES OF THE WASTE PAPER?

Dr. Jas. L. Hughes, of Toronto, has computed that if all the daily papers published in that city were turned in after being read, $700.00 daily would be realized; that if each home were to turn in ten cents' worth of waste, (paper, rags, rubbers, etc.,) per month over $100,000 would be secured.

Apply this to our own city. Ther are at least 5,000 homes; ten cents of waste from each home every month would realize $5,000, enough to equip and supervise four play-grounds, and give $2,000 for Red Cross purposes and have $1,000 left for some other benevolent project such as assisting the City Council to keep down the tax rate to 28 mills.

Two pairs of old rubbers are worth to us 10c; twenty pounds of paper the same, and a good bag of rags 90c. Of course the thrifty housewife will find that these prices do not prevail in her negotiations with the "ragman"; he is the middleman and must have his profits. Save your waste for the Supervised Play-grounds. The Committee intend making a collection next month.

Annie E. Mowat, Convener.

BIG PROGRAMME FOR CONCERT OF LOCAL RETURNED SOLDIERS

Will Give Entertainment at Tiz-it To-morrow, Affording the Public a Good Chance to Help the Men Who Have Done Their Bit—Buckhorn Recruits For the 247th Battalion —More Peterboro' Soldiers Back From Overseas—To-day's Orders and General Military News.

The Peterborough Returned Soldiers' Club have arranged a big programme for their concert in the Tiz-It theatre to-morrow afternoon and evening, the proceeds of which are to be used towards carrying out the objects of the club. The following District Order of March 10th, 1917 is published for the information of all concerned.

NO. 378. DISCIPLINE

It is published for the information of all concerned that the provisions of Para. No. 370. K.R.&O., 1916 must be strictly adhered to by the Officers, N.C.O's and Men in Military District No. 3. In the event of a violation of this order, the offender will be severely dealt with.

NO. 370. DEBTS—OFFICERS AND SOLDIERS.

The appended statement, showing the decision which has been arrived at by Militia Headquarters in relation to the collection of private debts of officers and soldiers, is published for general information: —

As applications continue to be received at Militia Headquarters, and by Officers commanding districts from tradesmen and individuals for assistance in the recovery of debts due to them by officers and soldiers serving in the Canadian Expeditionary Force or the Active Militia of Canada, and from officers' and sergeants' messes, regimental canteens, etc., it has been found desirable to inform the public that the military authorities have no power to enforce payment and they are unable to assist in the recovery of private debts.

All persons who give credit to officers and soldiers do so at their own risk.

Officers, non-commissioned officers and men are as amenable to the civil law of the country as any other class of His Majesty's subjects, with this exception that no execution can be taken against their person, pay, arms, ammunition, equipment, instruments, regimental necessaries or clothing.

February 3, 1917

To my Dear Mother and Father,—Just a few lines to let you know I am still alive and in the best of health, hoping this will find you all the same at home. Well Mother I am sorry to say that Wilbert is in the hospital. I had a letter from him to-night and he said he was getting along fine and thought that he would soon be back with the battalion again. The weather here has been cold; it has been down to 25 degrees below zero. I have not received that box with the gloves in yet. They would come in handy as it is so cold; but I guess it will be here some day. I received a nice box from Mrs. George Curtis and Peter and I certainly enjoyed the contents and you can thank her for her kindness and I will write as soon as possible. How did you like your Christmas present? It was the best I could get. But cheer up for there are better days coming. Well I guess I will close. The both boys send their love to you all, also myself. Good-bye and good luck to you all. From your loving son,

PTE. J. C. ARMSTRONG.

Y. M. C. A. OUTLINES ITS PLANS FOR THE PRODUCTION CAMPAIGN

Association Will Be Made a Clearing House For Farm Help, While Younger Boys Will Compete in Home Plot Cultivation Contest

PRIZES ARE OFFERED

The monthly meeting of the Board of Directors was held last evening, there being a good attendance and much interest manifested in the programme of activities now being conducted.

The Boys' Department Committee submitted a schedule for land cultivation on the part of young men under eighteen years of age. The plan which received the hearty approval of the Board of Directors, is, first, to make the Y.M.C.A. a clearing house for farm help, serving members and non-members of the Association on an equal basis. Farmers who wish help to register their names at the Y.M.C.A. office and young men who desire to do farm work to also enroll their names at the same place. At the end of the season each farmer to fill out a blank certifying the number of days each boy has worked, the degree of efficiency shown and general results. The three boys who have done the best work will be awarded cash prizes in addition to his wages of $10, $5, and $3. The farm plan to cooperate with any production effort that may be conducted in Peterborough.

The second part of the Y.M.C.A. agricultural plan proposes to enroll every boy member under sixteen years of age who will work his home plot of ground in competition with other boys and under the direction of a committee of experts. Boys may enter this home plot contest without expense and will have the opportunity to win one or more generous cash prizes. The third part of the plan contemplates a Y.M.C.A. farm where tents will be erected, and where a large group of the younger boys may sleep nights and enjoy some day sports in addition to the work programme which will fill a part of each day. Each boy would have his own plot to work, and the produce raised by him and also have the opportunity to compete for cash prizes.

Three pieces of land of from five to ten acres each, are being considered by the Association. All of these pieces offering the water privileges of the canal or river, it being the intention to mix work and play that the younger boy may receive the proper development from the effort.

It is expected that in the fall a special exhibit of products raised on Y.M.C.A. plots will be given at the Peterborough Fair for a special list of prizes.

There will be about seventy-five dollars expended in prizes, ranging in size from $1.00 to $15.00, so the friends of the young men are requested to contribute toward these awards. Mr. Jos. Wearing has 'phoned the Association that he will contribute a five dollar prize, so it is expected that others will shortly furnish the balance needed.

Reports given to the Board of Directors by members of the staff and other committees showed that the Association is experiencing one of the most successful years in its history. Sunday meetings, boys' groups and gymnasium classes are breaking all records.

Under Heavy Pressure Germans Have Abandoned Their Main Defensive System West of Bapaume Which is Expected to Fall Into British Hands Immediately.

NOTABLE GAINS MADE

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

LONDON, March 13.—Further notable gains have been made by the British forces against the Germans in the operations which have as their object the capture of Bapaume and a general bending back of the German line eastward in the Somme and Ancre regions of France.

Under another terrific bombardment the Germans have abandoned their main defence system west of Bapaume on a front of three and a half miles to a depth of a mile. The advance gave Sir Douglas Haig's troops the village of Grevillers and the Loupart wood, bringing the advanced British forces at the former place to a scant mile and a half from the north-western outskirts of Bapaume.

North of the Ancre the left wing of the British inn this particular operation has bent back the German line on a front of about a mile east and north-east of Gommecourt and somewhat straightened out the curve extending from Essarts-les-Bucquoy to the region north-east of Puisieux-au-Mont.

To the north of this region, in the vicinity of Armentieres, Souches and Neuville-St. Vaast and south-west of Neuve Chapelle, the Germans threw forward raiding parties, but all of these met with repulse, except in the last-named sector, where the Germans reached the British trenches and made prisoners a ' of the occupants.

Elsewhere on the line in France there have been only artillery engagements, which were especially severe in Champagne.

Sir Douglas Haig's report of the great victory on the west front reads:

"In consequence of our bombardment of his positions yesterday, the enemy abandoned his main defensive system along the forward crest of the ridge west of Bapaume on a front of three and a half miles.

"During the day our advancing troops have driven back the enemy's rearguard in this area for a depth of a mile, and have occupied the village of Grevillers and Loupart wood.

"We have also made further progres east and north-east of Gommecourt on a front of about a mile.

LOCKED IN.

That is how your lenses are when fitted into one of Dr. Lacey's Key Lock mounts. They cannot work loose, and look decidedly better than any other kind of mount. These are made by the largest optical manufacturer in the world, and they stand behind them. They are a masterpiece and the finest you can buy. Specify Key Lock when you order your glasses, or they can be fitted on to your old lenses without the hole showing. This is the only mount that does that. Call and see them. GRUDGING CONCESSION.

The Ontario Government is apparently afraid of the votes of the ladies. Under pressure they give the vote to women, but they don't do it gracefully or con amore. Mr. Rowell and his colleagues in the Legislature are the real convinced and alert friends of the women and their rights. On the question of votes for soldiers, the government made provisions for putting the names of soldiers overseas on the list. Then the names of Indians serving with the forces were later also put on. Both of these provisions were admirably right. But the government ungallantly forgot the ladies. Mr. Rowell suggested, and had to suggest twice, that the names of nurses serving at the front should be put upon the list—have equal place and power with those of soldiers and Indians. This suggestion was adopted by the government, otherwise the nurses would have been voiceless as to the vote. The government would be more diplomatic, more tactful if it took the ladies seriously and made friends of them, by giving them their rights gracefully and ungrudgingly. Woman is bound to become a factor in the public life of the country and exercise directly the beneficient influence she has always had in the promotion of the interests of social service—the fulfilment of the broad law of loving one's neighbour as oneself.

SKIMMING, SAVING, SERVING.

Do farmers know that by using a De Laval equipment for skimming whey for the production of butter they could save throughout Canada a million and a half dollars every year? In announcing, through a circular, their line of De Laval whey equipment, the company give some astonishing figures, which will bear repetition.

Canada every year uses for cheese making about 2,657 million pounds of milk, and the whey resulting amounts to 2,346 million pounds. This amount of whey contains 5,867,400 pounds of fat—butter fat—capable of producing an equivalent weight of excellent butter, which sold at as low as 25 cents per pound, produces the astonishing aggregate of value of over one and three quarter million dollars—$1,760,220.

Most of the whey is used by patrons of cheese factories for stock feeding purposes. It seems a sinful waste to feed a million and three quarters of money in the shape of butter in whey to stock, when equal feeding value can be got from corn meal at a cost of $47 per ton, or a total cost of $237,240, or a million and a half dollars less than the value (with the same feeding value) of the whey fed to stock. By using corn meal for feeding stock, and skimming the whey and converting it into butter, the patrons of cheese factories can save a million and a half dollars a year.

The manufacture of whey butter is not an experiment. Several factories have tried it, using the De Laval equipment, and the results have been satisfactory. One factory, manufacturing 2,800,108 lbs. of milk, produced 247,509 pounds of cheese and 7,147 pounds of whey butter, yielding at an average price of 23.22 cents, the considerable value of $2,017.18—a net profit of $1,2218.90 to be divided amongst patrons. This is enough, probably, to pay overhead expenses (outside the cost of milk) of the factory, leaving the total value of cheese produced, net profit.

The cost of the De Laval equipment is not great, especially considering the service it is capable of giving, the waste it will avoid and the "new money" it creates out of a bye-product of cheese factories. Whey butter is wholesome, clean, and fresher than much of the creamery butter: it is pasteurized and practically free from harmful bacteria.

Utilizing whey to make butter has two forms of appeal; the appeal of profit and the appeal of patriotism. We are called upon for greater production in every arena of activity; for, greater production adds to the national strength. Canada's production of all kinds last year was 1,204 millions of dollars. We can increase that by more extensive and more intensive—especially intensive—farming—making every available acre productive and making good use of bye products, as is possible in the case of whey, to give only one instance. We need to produce more, we are lending the government 150 million dollars more, and by general effort at increased production can cover that amount in one year.

HOME GARDEN AND VACANT LOT.

There are two forms of production—one by making one blade of grass grow where one never grew before; that is, raising some useful article of food on, now, waste land—and the other is to make proper use of means that come into our hands—that is, by wise use, making a profit out of a dollar, as we grow new crop on at present, or heretofore, untilled soil.

There is an universal call for more production—more soil products—the call of the Government, the call of patriotism, the call of reason and self interest, the call of common sense.

We town-dwellers have felt, and are still feeling, the pinch of high prices, simply for one chief reason—because not enough food is produced. An added cause may be combinations to artificially increase prices above the normal operation of the law of supply and demand.

If governments can't, or won't, curb and discipline these combines we have, to a very appreciable extent, the remedy of both causes in our own hands. We can compensate for high prices arising from scant production and scarcity by growing a large part of the smaller vegetables so necessary in every family on the little unused plots attached to our homes.

This practice, generally adopted, would lessen prices by lessening demand.

Great emphasis is laid upon increased production, and there is danger that we may try to do too much. We are advised by some of our readers to turn parks and public places into production areas. One reader of the Examiner calls attention to the production possibilities of the rifle ranges, east of the city. They comprise hundreds of acres, now lying idle, some of the best farming land in one of the most fertile od our townships. He also suggests that the golf links present splendid opportunity for growing food products.

These suggestions, on principle, are admirable. In this time of food scarcity, considering the demand, it seems a sin to have large and fertile areas lying dormant when there is so much need of production. We are loaning the Government a lot of money, and the means of paying it can come from only four main sources—from our fisheries, our factories and our farms, and our mines—the sources of all wealth.

But for our present local needs and purposes, and chances of success, we must not take in too wide a scope of production activity; we must attnd to these forms of production that do not demand too much equipment and too much time. The home garden plot, the convenient vacant lot, are what our attention should be concentrated upon. They involve the minimum of organization and offer the best chances of success — individually, small perhaps, but in the aggregate, (with general cooperation) great.

Official efforts are being, very properly, used to mobolize the vacant lots of the city, and make them available for the use of those who desire plots to cultivate to a greater extent than the home garden. It is probable that many persons who have vacant lots will be glad to turn them over for free use. They will, thereby, be doing a patriotic act and have the lots improved by use.

But one important thing that should be insisted upon is the importance of the home garden. Even a tiny plot can be made surprisingly productive. City water now reaches nearly every part of the city, and many rather gravelly and unpromising plots can be made to grow an appreciable amount of vegetables by liberal watering.

Then, added to the actual amount of green and palatable food for summer use, is the joy of producing it, the joy of tendance, the joy of watching growth, the delight of eating fresh, crisp vegetables direct from ground to mouth.

To Successfully Grow Marquis Spring Wheat

Mr. T. M. Hunter, Elmdale Stock Farm, North Monaghan, not only a successful stock raiser, but one of the most successful grain growers in the country—altogether a most successful exponent of mixed farming—some three years ago introduced Marquis spring wheat from Manitoba.

He has grown it for three years, and his satisfactory experience with it has created a large local demand. This year he has disposed of a large quantity for spring seeding.

His experience, as to the proper mode of cultivation to insure the best results, is of value and is here given:

In the first place the soil must be in good, fertile condition, and so drained as to be capable of early sowing.

Then sow early in shallow drills, not more than two inches in depth.

Sow one and a half bushels to the acre.

Then after drilling in, as directed, give the land a light harrowing (in the same direction as the drilling was done).

Early seeding and shallow sowing permit of early germination and good rooting before dry, hot weather, and give better chances of successful ripening and, of course, better crop results.

A Big Musical Surprise For Grand

"The Million Dollar Doll" Will Be Here on Saturday

Saturday, matinee and night, March 17, Harvey D. Orr will offer the patrons of The Grand the merry musical comedy, "The Million Dollar Doll." This new musical offering has been described as a jingling, joyful comedy with sparkling music and pretty girls.

The cast is headed by Harvey and Harold Orr, two comedians who stand in the front rank of fun makers, and are supported by a cast of principals, all of whom have won recognition in the best musical comedy of the day. A chorus of 25, real singers and dancers, with a rightful title of "Beauty Chorus" make the cast and chorus one of unequalled merit.

Costumes of dazzling beauty, sensational dances, sparkling music and a number of the latest novelties, go to make up an evening's entertainment which is hard to surpass.

Just laughs, jolly tunes and pretty girls, is what the management claim and this claim has never yet been disputed.

From all advance reports, it will prove one of the best of the season. One of the big features is the illuminated runway over the heads of the audience.

Do You Know

That in the French Period is seen a palanquin similar to the older ones, but in this case strapped to a horse, one before and one behind, in which rides the Princess Margot, bethrothed to Henry of Navarre?

That in the modern period we have in the last act a locomotive pursued by an automobile, in which rides the Dear One, attempting to overtake the governor to secure a hearing for new evidence?

That a great fleet of Zeppelins is seen in the last act?

That the gate of Imgur Bel, as used in the picture "INTOLERANCE" needed the weight of 24 men, with the aid of levers, to open?

That the figures on this gate are wrought out of bronze in fac-simile of tablets of ancient Babylonian recently excavated? Each of these panels tells a story in itself, representing hunting scenes or triumphs of various ancient kings.

That the lions on each side of the gate are an imitation of alabaster ornaments that once were used in Babylon and have five legs?

That the actual cost of the production of "INTOLERANCE" was over $1,000,000?

That the winged bulls and lions were placed on each side of entrance gates to Babylon as symbols of power, thereby keeping out evil? Exact replicas appear in the picture "INTOLERANCE."

THE WAR LOAN

Three years ago Dominion of Canada bonds sold to yield only 4% on the amount invested. It is interesting to know how this loan now issued at 96 would work out when the loan would still have fifteen years to run.

Five Years From Now

It would sell at	100	to yield	5%
" "	105⅜	"	4½%
" "	111¼	"	4%

The investor on this basis would have had 5.40% on his money for five years, and could sell, if desired, at a profit of $40, or $93.75, or $152.50 per $1.000, as the case might be.

We shall be glad to forward your application and look after all your interests free of charge to you.

Voice of The People

"OUR TOWN."

Editor of The Examiner:

Sir,—I read your paper about bathing places for your town.

Let me tell you how we got one in "Our Town." We had a funny lot of chaps in "Our Town" and a more funnier lot of chaps you never come across in our Town Council.

They belonged to all manner of societies, too, from the "Mashuns," Odd Fellows, Order of Elephants, Cats and Dogs, and others too numerous to mention. I forget them all.

Well, if you were the chief of the water throwers, or chief of the copper pickers, or chief town crier, or chief of any old thing, and belonged to any of these societies, you could always get what you wanted in, "Our Town."

Well, I will give you a couple of instances of what they done and how they used to do us.

It was the "Crimean war" I think—however, I know there were English, French, Russians and Turks fighting at the time—it was an awful war.

Well, we wanted sogers to fight, and the officers wanted "Our Town" to help them. These soger fellows, mostly working chaps, you know, could not belong to these societies, as it is only for the big 'uns.

Well, our funny chaps in the Council split their sides laughing at the idea, at least half of them did, (I hope), so they voted, evenly—and saved tons of money for "Our Town," about 1,000 dollars. Gee!

But we got a———bad name. "Our Town" was never thought the same of again. ——— them I say.

Well, we wanted a bathing place for the people, as a lot had been drowned every year; you know.

Of course, a lot of people, I might say a terrible lot too, did not belong to these societies, so our funny council did the same thing again—voted evenly, against it—so we got no bathing place in "Our Town" and we got wild, I tell you.

Some of our funny council chaps too, were frightened of water, and in the summer time, when they took their dollars off, you could see their high water-mark. Guess it was the same all the way down—half of the council could not swim.

Well, we had one or two drowned and one or two rescued from the river—by old country chaps. Nearly 90 per cent. of these fellows can swim—how is it? Well, they have bathing places over there.

So we resolved in future, if any one was drowned bathing, these funny fellows in the council who voted against us, should be on the inquest, just to show them what they voted for, and to ask them if "satisfied now." Eh?

Well, that done it—they did not like that, and we got a bathing place in "Our Town." I may say the other half of our council learned to swim, too, and you could not see any high water mark on them any more, or on any of the people of "Our Town"—and we got a good name, too. We were called "Clean Town" by visitors, for having such nice bathing places.

The fellows who voted against us got sensible, too, and voted for the sogers. That's how we got bathing places in "Our Town."

Yours truly,
Mayor of Our Town.

Dear Sir,—The following resolution was passed by the Single Tax Association and which we venture to bring to your attention, and if it could be put into operation all over Canada it would have a most important effect on the cost of living and would give a practical outlet for the patriotism of those of our men who are unable to enlist or to subscribe to war loans. The crop instead of potatoes might be anything suited to the particular locality. Root crops would probably be best as they do not need to be harvested at any particular time:

WHEREAS, one of the first duties of this country in order to carry on the war successfully against Germany, is to do everything possible to increase the production of food and decrease the cost of living and thus increase the savings of the people.

AND WHEREAS, there are many acres of vacant land within the limits of our cities and towns;

AND, WHEREAS, the owners of all these lots, now vacant, and not required this year for building or other purposes, would not be so unpatriotic as to refuse their use for patriotic production,

AND, WHEREAS, if the whole of this land were planted in potatoes there would be produced millions of bushels which would be a most important addition to our food supply and which would tend to keep down the cost of living.

AND, WHEREAS, many thousands of our citizens have volunteered to give portions of their time for any patriotic purpose within their power;—Therefore, be it

RESOLVED, that the ..... should take immediate steps to utilize the whole of this land for the cultivation of potatoes, the city or town to supply the seed and such other things as may be necessary, calling on the citizens to volunteer their services to plant and cultivate the land. The proceeds of the sale of the crop, after deducting all expenses incurred by the city or town in planting and marketing, to be given to the Canadian Patriotic Fund or to be applied to some other purpose in connection with the carrying on of the war.

Kindly bring this resolution before your organization.

Yours very truly,
C. THOMPSON.

SPRING OPENING

ALL the newest and best in Spring Fashions make their bow of welcome to you in this first complete presentation which occurs Thursday, March 15. We look forward to your attendance with real pleasure.

As a further inducement to have you attend our display, very special offerings have been arranged for the three opening days only. Come in and see what we have of value for you.

What are the new fashions like? Will they be terribly expensive? Are these not the questions that you want answered NOW? We're pretty sure they are, so we've arranged our Spring Opening to answer everyone.

Our new Fashions show the creations of Paris designers are at their very best, yet they are tempered with modifications that make them simpler and more truly artistic. We've chosen our models with care and discrimination governed by a knowledge of the likes and dislikes of our patrons, which have become known to us through our constant efforts to please. And these new fashions will be becoming to you because we've chosen them especially for you. Our models are not "terribly expensive"—only in a few instances have we been unable to equal or surpass last year's values. Just a word of suggestion though—purchase NOW. Prices will probably be higher later on. And too, by selecting now, you will receive the greatest possible amount of service from your purchases.

Real Charm in The New Dresses

Straight line effects, with normal waist line or with sash or belt slightly below, are most favoured, though many are short-waisted modified Empire styles. Afternoon and evening gowns are in Moyen age or long-waisted models. Semi-fitted dresses are popular. Skirts are both long and short. In the latter case they follow the barrel tendency.

Pastel colours, tan, grey, putty, chartreuse, white buff, Copenhagen, orchid, peach, navy blue and various tans are the best colours.

Sport dresses are in most cases identical with sport suits in every way. There is practically no means of distinguishing between the two, except that in some instances combination fabrics are employed.

You Will Look Extremely Attractive in the New Spring Suits.

The mannish, strictly tailored type is more to be preferred than the dressier type. Short and medium length jackets on straight lines or semi-fitted effects are favoured. Skirts are in barrel and straight line effects. Fabics are Serges, Gabardines, Twills, Oxford Cloths and mannish mixtures. Colours are blue, black, Copenhagen, apple green, gold, reseda green, grey and various shades of tan.

The New Coats are Unusually Attractive

Length is a feature of the separate coat. Most of them are in seven-eighths, but many in full length. The new barrel effect and Empire or Moyen age types are best. The more staple coat outlines the upper part of the figure with waist line high, low or normal, large pockets, large collars, large armholes and regulation coat sleeves.

Fabrics are Wool Velours, Serges, Gabardines, fine Twills and Novelty Checks. Greys, Copenhagen, navy, red, tans and gold are the best colours.

Sport Coats usually extend below the knee. They are made of Wool Velours and Wool and Silk Jerseys. Colours are very bright but attractive.

You Are Cordially Invited to Attend The Opening Exhibition of Our Millinery Department

We take pleasure in announcing that our Millinery Department contains the finest display of the latest styles and fashion in women's up-to-the-moment headwear requirements. This department's success in catering to fashionable women's needs in Millinery will make this the most talked of Millinery Establishment in Peterborough.

WE INVITE YOU ALL TO VISIT OUR SPRING MILLINERY OPENING

effects in scores of varied patterns are in high favour. Oriental patterns are also well liked. Sheer weaves, like Crepe de Chene, Chiffon Crepes, Crepe Meteors and Voiles and heavier sorts like Satin, Taffetas and Silk-Wool Poplins are featured. Pastel and stronger tones are best.

Dress goods of Wool, such as Velours, Basket Weaves, Poplins, Gabardines, Serges, Broadcloths and Mohairs are in general high favour. Fancy stripes, plaids and solid one-colour effects predominate. Amethyst, nigger brown, lawn green, sand and putty are the best colours.

Splendid Assortments of New Homefurnishings For Spring

New Furnishings play an important part in outfitting the home for Spring and Summer, and we have collected the best patterns and grades of everything that we could find at the most moderate prices. We are in a position to give you helpful suggestions that will effect savings in furnishing your home for the new season.

WHAT'S NEW IN BLOUSES

Georgette, Crepe and Crepe de Chene remain supreme by way of fabric, and the large collars still rule. The introduction of brilliant colours and embroidery motifs are also marks of the new vogue.

Orders For Supplies Must Be More Widely Distributed

All Merchants Must Share in the Orders From the Queen Mary Hospital

That the orders in connection with the Queen Mary Hospital should have a wide distribution, was the opinion expressed by Mayor Duffus and Ald. Duncan at a meeting of the Board of Health held last evening. It was pointed out that one butcher in the city had received meat orders from the city for two months in succession.

Miss H. Reid, acting matron, will be asked to see that more of the dealers share in the orders. One item on the list of accounts quickened the economical instinct of Mayor Duffus and Ald. Duncan. The item read, "3 dozen eggs $1.50." This was dated March tenth. Ald. Duncan recalled the fact that eggs were selling much below fifty cents on Saturday. "This should be looked into," said the chairman of the Board.

Will Test Milk.

Mr. F. M. Miller was asked to secure samples of milk from different vendours throughout the city. A letter was read from Dr. J. W. S. McCullough, Chief Officer of Health, urging the municipality to be careful about the milk supply of the city. A comparison of mortality record among infants in different countries was used as a basic argument for greater watchfulness on the part of the city's milk supply. Ald. Duncan was asked to confer with the chairman of the Utilities Commission in respect to the use of the laboratory for testing purposes.

Dr. Amys, Medical Officer of Health, referred to the advantages of appointing a veterinary surgeon as sanitary inspector, when the question of recommending an appointment comes up on Thursday night. Two veterinary surgeons are in prospect for the position.

Accounts Passed.

The following accounts were passed: Dr. C. H. Amys $1.51, Trebilcock Bros. $4.00, G. J. Jopling & Sons $15.39, Charles W. Mack 54c., Mrs. R. Hosken $2.25, James Juby $19.08, H. Reid $1.00, Wm. Brown $46.84, J. Stevens & Son Co., Ltd. $39.95.

The matter of prohibiting the use of closed in stalls in the public eating houses of the city was referred to by Ald. Duncan, but no action was taken.

WILL GIVE ADDRESS IN PETERBORO ON FRIDAY EVENING

Mr. M. A. MacKenzie Manager of the Toronto Penny Bank will be the Speaker of the Evening

Mr. M. A. MacKenzie, manager of the Penny Bank, Toronto will address a meeting to be held in the Collegiate Institute on Friday evening. Mr. V. Eastwood, chairman of the Board of Education will occupy the chair. Normal school students are invited to attend also Public School children and parents as well as bank managers.

MY FOUR LITTLE ONES USED BABY'S OWN TABLETS

Mrs. Albert Nie, St. Brieux, Sask., writes: "I have been using Baby's Own Tablets for the past seven years and they have done my four little ones a great deal of good." The Tablets always do good—they cannot possibly do harm—being guaranteed by a government analyst to be absolutely free from injurious drugs. They are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Business Transacted At Sunday School Conference Which Was Held Yesterday

Morning and Afternoon Sessions Were Held in George Street Methodist Church---Officers Elected For the Year

The annual Convention of the City Sunday Schools was held in the city yesterday.

The County Delegates held their session in the morning while the City convention opened at 2 o'clock in the afternoon. The devotional exercises were led by Rev. Mr. Peever, with the President, Mr. Joseph Wearing, in the chair. The treasurer's report showed total recipts $111.80, with expenses of $91.67, leaving a balance of $20.13 on hand. This amount is larger than carried over from previous years on account of a balance left over from the Laymen's Missionary Movement Convention, which was turned over to the City Sunday School Association.

Splendid Reports.

Splendid reports were presented from the Superintendent of the Home Department, T. W. Robinson; Superintendent Elementary Grades, Mrs. E. D. Lewis; Superintendent Secondary Division, Mr. R. C. Read; Superintendent Temperance Department, F. E. Kerr; Superintendent Teacher Training, Mr. A. Mowat. All these reports were received and adopted. The secretary directed attention to statistical returns from each of the Sunday Schools which would be required for his report to Provincial Office, and also drew attention to the request from the treasurer that each school's apportionment be paid promptly, as returns must be in the Provincial Office before Easter.

These reports were followed by an address from Rev. E. W. Halpenny, B.A., Secretary Ontario Sunday School Association, on "The Sunday School Session Programme," which proved very instructive, and full of suggestions. Miss Bertha Laine, Superintendent Elementary Grades, spoke on "Lesson Preparation and Presentation." Miss Laine was fully at home with her subject, and gave a splendid address. The afternoon session closed with an address on "Teacher Training" by Mr. E. E. Ingall, B.A.

Evening Session.

The evening session opened at 8 o'clock, with a good audience present. The devotional exercises were taken by Adj. McElhiney. The nominating committee presented their report of Officers for the year, as follows:

1st Vice-President—Mr. Malcolm Clark.

HIAWATHA INDIANS CONTINUE THEIR PATRIOTIC ENDEAVOURS

The patriotism of the Hiawatha Indians affords a touching example of fidelity of these Canadians, descendants of the original stock, to the cause of the Empire to which they have given generously of their men and means. A short time ago they held a pie social, at which seventeen pies were auctioned for $31. Last week it was a box social, with 25 boxes yielding $51. The total sum realised from the two socials in aid of the Red Cross was considerably over $80.

"We never see anything in the paper about our socials," said Madden Howard this morning, "and we want to specially thank the white people of the neighbourhood who attended the socials. We have only a small band down there, but we've given over $400 to the Red Cross."

Madden left the impression that he was at a loss to understand the indifference of a few of the white people who hadn't given "one cent." But he was anxious to convey to those who had helped the Hiawatha Red Cross the thanks of all its members.

"Who is head of your Red Cross," Madden was asked.

"We have no head," he replied. "Everybody in the band belongs. We don't need a head."

Geo. Paudash Home.

Private Geo. Paudash arrived home from the front several weeks ago. He was wounded at the front and spent six months in an hospital. He reports that Johnston Paudash's hair had turned white. Johnston had gained a great reputation as a sniper. Hanlan Howard, son of Madden Howard, has been at the front for two years with the 21st Battalion, has been with it through many engagements, and is in good condition when last heard from.

Spring Openings Starting To-Morrow and Continuing Friday and Saturday

THE SEASON OF SPRING

When the ideas of women turn to the thoughts of new raiment—
And the flowers, the trees, the birds
And the live things of the earth shed their old and don the new.

An Exposition of Fashionable Attire—Millinery, Ready-to-Wears, Dress Goods and all that Makes for Modishness in Dress

Ready-to-Wears

Spring has oft times come before, but has she ever been accompanied by such splendour of colour or magnificence of design. She has, indeed, a fit companion in the smart styles for 1917.

Huge collars, huge cuffs and huge pockets that are sometimes described as saddle—clock stitching and shoe string girdles are all fancies of fashion for this season.

Gabardines, serges, checks, velours, shad dah cloths, etc., are all equally popular and no doubt, equally deserving. They are fashioned into the various designs to which they are best adapted.

The dyers have produced marvellous tints in the following shades: Indian Blue, Purple, Penquin Grey, Gold, Damson, Chartreuse, Citron, Apple Green, Cress Green, Sage Green, Clay, Putty, Beige. Tan and Trench Brown.

Millinery

Spring!—and with it a riot of colour, nothing is immune, but perhaps Millinery presents the widest variety of all. A marked preponderance of blue, gold, citron, rose, putty and tan is noticeable.

The materials are chrysanthemum, tagel, and caterpillar braids. They frequently depend upon georgette and satin to complete some pleasing arrangement.

The trimmings presented are—charmingly embroidered ribbons, wings know no bounds in either direction "large or small" hand embroidery, soutache braid, flowers, medallions, motifs—but let us stop we cannot enumerate them all.

Shapes—all sorts and sizes, wide brimmed sailors and wee turbans. If we must be specific then let it be "either one extreme or the other intermediate sizes are shown, but the vogue runs to the tiny or the very large. There is unity on one point—the crown is much higher than we have seen for several seasons.

Gorgeous Weaves and Tints from Dress Goods Section

Splendidly equipped, for a season that will be sure to demand much in the way of colour and weaves, our Dress Goods Section now feels confident of the same fashionable following that has so liberally supported it in seasons past. Novelty and staple materials, in fact, no matter what the taste of the purchaser, we are sure that she will here find that which will satisfy.

The CRESSMAN Company Limited

Addresses At Last Night's Session of the Peterborough Sunday School Association

Rev. E. W. Halpenny and Rev. T. H. Mitchell Were the Principal Speakers at the Evening Session—"Four Calls of a Child"

The address "The Call of the Child" given by Rev. E. W. Halpenny in the George Street Methodist Church last night was one that will be of great help to all who heard it. The Conference was well attended.

Mr. Halpenny said, in part, that man wastes nothing so much as human life. He spoke of the enormous infant mortality which in a year amounts to over six million. This is waste. The lives lost in Europe are not wasted, for men can die no nobler death than when he dies for man. The awful war toll will be evened up by the temperance law which will save as many lives here as are lost in the war.

FOUR CALLS OF A CHILD.

He said there were to his mind four calls from children. The first that to be kept for ever from going away from God. During the past year there has been a tremendous turning.

The policy of the nineteenth century was "child go to the Devil and when you demonstrate where you belong, and will perform a surgical operation and try to sever your connection with him." The present policy is careful nurture and training that the child by his own declaration may be a member of Christ.

The second call is that of the child going astray—going astray in an unconscious process and easy. Calamities happen because the child is not stopped in the first. The smallest start, if not checked at once by care and love may lead to the greatest crime.

The third call is to give the child the best character it can possibly ask. Time is needed to mould a character. time and patience and correction at the right time. The child who goes wrong has not the character of the one who refrains.

The fourth call is to be given an atmosphere in which to live. Home is the great atmosphere, needed to protect the child from the flesh, the devil and the memory of home atmosphere will protect the child in after years. Good results can not be expected if home atmosphere and associations are not the best. Children need the best and it is our bounden duty, to give it.

REV. MR. MITCHELL.

The most critical period in human life was the subject of an intensely interesting address by Rev. Mr. Mitchell.

The most critical time he said may be any of the 'seven ages.' Infancy, from one to three years is often regarded as the greatest. Middle age because it a the age of disillusion and discouragement. To Mr. Wilson's mind the teen age is most important, for three reasons—for the physical transformation, for the natural unrest and for the spiritual susceptibility.

The school for character, during this period are home, school, church and the street. The great indictment against home is that it is negligent in the care of at this critical time. Infants are carefully tended, whilst boys and girls often meet with a lack of sympathy. In the modern world we have no time for training such as we ought. The indictment against school at present is that it is too exciting. Pushing the intellect and neglecting the body.

The third school is church, and its great drawback is that religion is home too winsome. The religion up to the present has been to teach one to pray, whilst laughter should be religion as well.

The fourth school is the street. The temptations met there are great. The cause of temptation is within and the occasion without. We should do all we can to lessen the occasion and make the character strong.

DID YOU NOTICE THE WALLS IN YOUR HOME?

When you were home on Sunday did you notice the walls and windows of the principal rooms of your home? Would they impress a guest as being in good taste? Do you realise how much more real satisfaction you would have if your rooms were repapered with some of Routley's charming wall papers and the windows hung with new window shades. You are not likely to buy at the same low prices anywhere else, any time, while the war conditions are on: Mr. Routley would never think of making such sacrifices as he is doing if it wasn't that he is forced to move out of his old established store, and necessity knows no law.

PETERBOROUGH WAR VETERANS TAKE OVER THEIR NEW QUARTERS

Otonabee Chapter I.O.D.E. Entertained the Returned Soldiers' Club Last Night—Classes Arranged For the Returned Men

AN ENJOYABLE PROGRAMME

The Peterborough Returned Soldiers' Club entered formally into possession of their new headquarters in the Barrie Building last evening when the members of the Club were entertained by the Otonabee Chapter I.O.D.E., who were responsible for securing the new rooms for Peterborough's Veterans of the Great War. There was a large attendance, and the evening was a most enjoyable one.

Sergt. J. Cooper of the 4th Battery, presided, and an interesting programme was provided by the men themselves, with solos by Sergt. Victor and Pte. Farr; a recitation by Pte. R. H. Muir and some capital stories of military life by Sergt. Cooper. Lt.-Col. Ackerman of the 247th Battalion acted as accompanist for the musical numbers, and he and Major E. D. O'Flynn also contributed brief speeches in which they expressed the hope that the members of the Club would enjoy their new quarters. Major O'Flynn made the suggestion to the Club that they should organize a debating society in order to familiarize themselves with the art of public speaking in order to prepare themselves for the conditions that may come after the war.

Pte. Wilcox, treasurer of the Club, announced that an arrangement had been made with the Soldiers' Aid Commission and the local Board of Education, by which teachers would be provided and night classes arranged for the benefit of the returned men who might desire to brush up their education. Many civil service positions will be open to the returned men, but they must first pass the qualifying examination, and the refresher course that is being arranged should be of great benefit. Many members of the Peterborough R.S.C. enrolled themselves last night as willing to take the classes.

At the conclusion of the programme coffee, cake and sandwiches were provided by the ladies of Otonabee Chapter.

Sergt. Victor, President of the Club, expressed on behalf of the members the hearty thanks of all the returned men to the Otonabee Chapter for their kindness in securing the new club rooms, and the veterans showed their appreciation by hearty cheers for the ladies.

The meeting was brought to a close with the singing of the National Anthem.

EVIDENCE OF TWO MARRIAGES PRESENTED IN BIGAMY CASE

Pte. James Drain Married First Cousin after his First Wife Left him According to the Testimony in Police Court

The Havelock bigamy case in which Private James Drain is charged with having married Bessie Deline while his first wife, Helen Cross was living was adjourned this morning. A letter from Dr. Holdcroft stated that the second wife was too ill to attend court.

Mrs. James Drain whom the prisoner married first, submitted a copy of her marriage registration certificate, showing that she, Ellen Cross, had married James Drain on June 21, 1899. She lived with his mother for about seven months after the marriage. Then she was told she would have to move to her mother's home. Witness said her husband did not support her. On one occasion he brought a woman to the house, who remained several days. There was only one bed in the house. After that Mrs. Drain left her husband. It was about 6 years ago, some time in 1911. She now lives in Toronto where she supports herself. Several times she had written her husband but received no replies.

Rev. Sellers of Cobourg produced the record of the marriage of James Drain to Bessie Deline on September 18, 1912.

The first wife stated that the Deline woman was a first cousin of the prisoner.

Mrs. Cross testified that she had been present at the marriage of her daughter.

MR. HARPERS' STATEMENT CONCERNING LABOUR DIFFICULTY

Mr. H. W. Harper, organizer for the International Association of Machinists, when seen to-day regarding the strike at the Munitions and Metal Products, Limited, said he was not at liberty to express an opinion concerning the prospects of a settlement. Last night the company made a proposal to have the men return to work individually, but this was not accepted. "We have no desire to fight," said Mr. Harper. "We are trying to make a peaceable adjustment. It is not a fight for a higher wage, but a question of overtime rates."

Mr. Harper said he resented the suggestion appearing in a statement signed by the company to the effect that he was an "alien." He said he was a Canadian of three generations, and was born in the County of Peel. He never was out of the county longer than two weeks at any one time.

Speaking of the difficulty at the company's plant, Mr. Harper said the men were seeking an adjustment of overtime rates. At first they wanted the same working period as exists in Toronto, namely, fifty hours. Mr. Harper discouraged this effort on the part of the men, stating that they would not have public sympathy and would be going against the custom of local trade conditions. The terms now demanded by the men are as follows:

Time and a half after ten hours' work.

All time work over five hours on Saturday.

Time and a half on Sunday.

"The Shop Committee met the company a short time ago," said Mr. Harper, "and everything appeared to be satisfactorily adjusted. About a week later the firm posted a notice, stating that fifty-nine hours would constitute a week's work, and that time and a half would be paid on all time over ten hours, and after nine hours on Saturday. Time and a half would also be paid on Sunday. "This notice," said Mr. Harper, "was intended to obrogate all previous arrangements. One other firm in the city recently agreed to pay the rates now demanded by the men of the Munitions and Metal Products Limited."

RHEUMATISM CURED

In the days of our fathers and grandfathers rheumatism was thought to be the unavoidable penalty of middle life and old age. Almost every elderly person had rheumatism, as well as many young people. Medical science did not understand the trouble—did not know that it was rooted in the blood. It was thought that rheumatism was the mere effect of exposure to cold and damp, and it was treated with liniments and hot applications, which sometimes gave temporary relief, but did not cure the trouble. In those days there were thousands of rheumatic cripples. Now, medical science understands that rheumatism is a disease of the blood, and that with good, rich, red blood any man or woman of any age can defy rheumatism can be cured by killing the poison in the blood which causes it. There are many elderly people who have never felt a twinge of rheumatism, and many who have conquered it by simply keeping their blood rich and pure. The blood-making, blood enriching qualities of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills is becoming every year more widely known, and it is the more general use of these pills that has robbed rheumatism of its terrors. At the first sign of poor blood, which is shown by loss of appetite, palpitations, dull skin and dim eyes, protect yourself against the further ravages of disease by taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. They have cured thousands of people—if you give them a fair trial they will not disappoint you.

You can get these pills through any dealer in medicine or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

BOWLING NEWS

Last night, in a League game, the Grocers took two out of the three games from the De Laval. The De Laval came strong in the second game and rolled an 859 game, showing that this team will be figured as one of the strong teams to finish in this League. Capt. Carter was high count for the De Laval, with 536, and Jack Gillespie of the Grocers, had high three games of 569, and also the high single, 230 count. It was a great pleasure to see Jack hit the new pins.

Thursday night the Printers, winners of the last League, play Capt. Bishop's team of the C. G. E. and a great game is expected.

SENT RADIO MESSAGES FROM INTERNED 'APPAM'

NORFOLK, Va., March 14.—Discovery of a secret wireless outfit on the prize steamer Appam here has been followed by evidence that Lieut. Berg, the German prize commander, as late as Dec. 8 had sent radio messages to a German ship. There is evidence that Berg had some knowledge of the British code, and it is believed that he got information of value through to Germany. The messages sent Dec. 8 concerned consideration of the German situation by President Wilson and in Congress.

Children's Aid Society Seek To Restrict Tag Dag Day To The Two Orphanage Institutions

A movement to regulate the issuance of permits for tag days was begun at the meeting of the Children's Aid Society, yesterday afternoon, when the Legal Committee was instructed to take the matter up with the proper authorities. At the same time it was moved by Chief Thompson, seconded by Mrs. Hopwood, that the officers and members of the Society render every and any assistance possible to St. Vincent's Orphanage in their annual tag day, Saturday, March 17.

There is a feeling in the Society that permission for tag days should be restricted to charity represented by the Children's Aid Society and the St. Vincent Orphanage. Both of these institutions are engaged in the care of orphans.

A Legal Question.

Rev. Father Phelan presided in the absence of Mr. E. A. Peck. Mr. G. N. Gordon appeared in behalf of a client who sought the return of several children. The Board decided to leave both cases, which have been referred to before, to the Legal Committee, with power to act. One case involves four children whose father was killed at the front, and whose mother is dead. With the lure of a pension, relatives have been scrambling for the children, but it is likely they will be made wards of the Society, and the money held in trust for them.

Thanks to Council.

It was moved by Chief Howard, seconded by Mrs. Gibbs, that the Secretary be requested to write to His Worship Mayor Duffus and the Aldermen of the City Council in appreciation of the splendid grant made by the Council to assist in carrying on the work of this society.

HIGHWAYS BILL INTRODUCED IN THE LEGISLATURE

TORONTO, March 13—The Government's bill for the creation of a Provincial Highways System was introduced in the Legislature yesterday by Hon. F. G. Macdiarmid, "Local municipalities," the Minister explained, "will be required to pay only for that part of the provincial system which supplies local requirements. In such districts outside of suburban areas the municipalities will pay 30 per cent. of the cost of construction, while the Government will pay 70 per cent. In suburban areas, the Province will pay 40 per cent., the city 30 per cent., and the local municipalities 30 per cent. The roads will be under the control of the Highways Department, which will assume full powers for construction, maintenance and supervision. The Government may take over the toll roads by paying 40 per cent. of the cost."

In answer to questions from Mr. Rowell, the Minister declared that municipal payments would be compulsory, and that the Ontario Railway and Municipal Board would settle disputes. Mr. Rowell then asked how suburban areas would be determined. Hon. Mr. Macdiarmid replied that the county councils and city council could appoint a commission to determine the area. In answer to a further question from the Leader of the Opposition, he declared that maintenance charges would be paid on the same basis as construction charges.

Hon. Mr. McGarry submitted a bill to amend the Tiles Drainage Act providing that the amount to be loaned to a municipality should be increased from $50,000 to $100,000, and that the power of the Province should be increased to permit total loans of $1,000,000 instead of $500,000.

MORAL CONDITIONS IN GERMANY

NEW YORK, March 13.—A striking picture of social conditions in Germany is furnished by one of the American correspondents who returned with Ambassador Gerard from Berlin. He writes:

Throughout the trying times the German women have been showing splendid nerve. They are taking men's places at manual labour. Many assure me if the women are called they will respond in tremendous numbers, and to perform many trench tasks, if not actually do full military duty.

The moral and social conditions are entirely unlike old Germany. In high society spying and intrigue prevail. Nobody trusts anybody, and the conversation is all insincerity and deception. While the unwritten law still holds among the nobility, the laws regulating divorce are a dead letter.

Soldiers at the front and wives at home are freed from martial restraints. Illegitimate births now reach 25 per cent. in Berlin, and even more in Bavaria, and the percentage is increasing.

Popular taste on the stage calls for a murder in every act, and the big theatrical successes reek with morbid details.

The tendencies in Germany to rule womankind with a rod of iron have been emphasized by the war. Men use women roughly and punish them physically for trifling faults. Women are treated as recognized inferiors, and they don't resent it.

New York Stock Market

Summary of To-day's Activities on the New York Stock Exchange

NEW YORK, March 14.—Despite fears of an approaching strike of railway workers the stock market's tone was firm to-day after a soft opening. Rails gathered strength in the face of optimistic utterances of railway managers and of Government officials. The sinking of the Algonquin caused only slight excitement.

PRODUCTION OF "A GREEK SLAVE"

The most ambitious undertaking of producing a musical gem, such as "A Greek Slave," with amateurs, reached its second phase last night, when all the Company were on hand for the first venture at the actual staging. Classed as a musical comedy, there are whole numbers of grand opera rank, chief of which is an "Invocation" scene. This opera was produced once before by Mr. R. J. Devey, in England, in 1901, for four consecutive nights, with great success, but the work entailed is heavy, as all those taking part are finding out. The caste is being carefully and deliberately selected, so no date has been even approximately fixed for the production. The Company at present is fifty strong, but it will probably number eighty at the production.

Apples and prunes can be cooked together with delicious results, and so can apples and cranberries.

Lived Near Fire Hall But Didn't Know Where It Was

A chimney fire at the home of R. A. Smithers, Lewis street, last night resulted in no damage. Mr. Smithers didn't know where the Fire Hall was, although only one hundred yards away. It was stated that he ran down to Charlotte street corner at George street to pull the City Clock bell, but failing to sound it chased over to Sprout's tobacco store where an alarm was 'phoned in.

PARIS, March 14. — The Temps says it learned from repatriated citizens of Peronne that German troops dismounted and sent away the bells from all churches of that city and neighbourhood, supposedly with the intention of melting them.

The newspaper adds that the Peronne bells subsequently were brought back to town and deposited in a corner of the public square after Pope Benedict had intervened.

"A NERVOUS BREAKDOWN,

That's what's the matter with my typewriter, Nelson. What can you do about it?" said a physician the other day. The reply was: "Send it to our TYPEWRITER HOSPITAL for a 48-hour rest, and we will guarantee it to be in good condition again." This was done and the cure effective. A typewriter neglected is as bad business as to allow a cold to run. REMEMBER our 'PHONE 229, over Lynch's drug store, Hunter

France Anxiously Awaits Action on the Part of The United States

With America Aligned With the Entente, the Issue Will Be Decided---French Government Believes Such a Decision Will Be a Final Overwhelming Blow to Germany.

AT THE LAST LINE

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

(By W. S. Forrest, U. P. Staff Correspondent.)

PARIS, March 15.—France believes a speedy decision in the war rests with Washington. If the United States today at the last line before war with Germany, crosses that line, and joins forces with the allies against Germany, it means a swift decision for the Entente. The ultimate victory of which France is confident will be hastened for this reason. The French government to-day, twenty-four hours after the report of the sinking of another American steamer, is most anxiously waiting for Washington's word. It regards America's entry into the war of vastly more importance than all forthcoming battles. These views may be regarded as those of the French government. These officials have not altered in the least their complete confidence in ultimate victory for France and her allies. With America aligned with the Entente, the issue will be decided, the French believe. The Government believes such a decision will be a final and overwhelming blow to Germany, both morally and physically.

Rev. Byron Stauffer And Mr. Frank Whitehouse Delighted Millbrook Audience

Interesting Concert Given in the Methodist Church--A Pretty March Wedding---Millbrook Items of Interest

MILLBROOK, March 14. — A large number availed themselves of the opportunity to hear Rev. Byron Stauffer give his highly entertaining lecture, 'The Funny Pennsylvania Dutchman," in the Methodist church, Millbrook, on Monday evening, and also had the additional pleasure of hearing the excellent music rendered by Mr. Frank Whitehouse of Peterborough, and the excellent vocal solos, sung with splendid effect by Miss Ella Elson.

Rev. Wm. Higgs, pastor of the church, was chairman. In a few well chosen remarks he welcomed all to the church and was pleased to have the clergy of the Anglican Presbyterian, Baptist, Congregationalist and Methodist churches represented at this entertainment. The programme commenced by the singing of a hymn, after which Rev. W. T. Wickett led in prayer. Mr. Whitehouse then played that beautiful violin solo, (a) Chant Du Soir, by Bye, (b' Salerella, by Papin, which has been dedicated to Mr. Whitehouse by the publishers. This in itself proves the ability of Mr. Whitehouse. He also gave, by request, "The Bagpipes," and a hymn with variations, all of which were listened to with great pleasure indeed. Mrs. William Cartwright Allen played his accompaniments with her usual ability. Miss Elson's selections were well received as were those given by the choir.

Miss Stella Hetherington was the capable accompanist for Miss Elson and choir.

For upwards of two hours, Rev. Mr. Stauffer held the audience in raptures with his delightful lecture.

A hearty vote of thanks was extended to the entertainers, after which a hymn was sung and the Benediction pronounced, closing a most pleasing and profitable entertainment.

Pretty March Wedding.

A quiet and pretty wedding was celebrated on Wednesday, March 7, 1917, at mid-day, at "The Elms," Baliieboro, when Mildred May, eldest daughter of Mrs. J. H. Armstrong, was united in marriage with Mr. Samuel Sandford Staples, son of Joseph F. Staples, Esq., of Cavan. Rev. Canon Allen, M.A., rector of Cavan, officiated, and Mrs. Allen played the wedding march. The bride entered the room on the arm of her brother, Gerald Armstrong. Only the immediate relations of the contracting parties were present. The bride wore a dress of white silk crepe de chene, with trimming of Georgette crepe, with veil and orange blossoms and carried a bouquet of white roses. After the ceremony the company adjourned to the dining room, where they partook of a dainty luncheon, the table being very artistically decorated with pink and white carnations and smilax. Rev. Canon Allen proposed the health of the bride and groom, to which the groom responded in appropriate terms. At halfpast two the happy couple drove to Cavan station and took the C. P. R. train for Toronto, followed by the good wishes of the community. The presents were numerous and handsome, testifying to the high esteem in which the bride and groom are held.

Song Service.

The delegates to the annual Toronto meeting were appointed and the officers for the new year were elected. Miss MacNamara made a short review of the missionary readings.

A vote of thanks was passed to Mrs. Westmacott for her kindness during the year. Mrs. Whyte made a few remarks and the closing hymn was sung, after which refreshments were served, which brought the pleasant evening to a close.

Has Cured Your Neighbours And It Will Cure You

Look Into This Evidence for Dr. Chase's Nerve Food From Your Own Town People

PETERBOROUGH, Ont., March 15. —It is only natural to doubt reports from people at a distance and who are unknown to you. If you have felt this way about what you have read in regard to the great good being accomplished by Dr. Chase's Nerve Food you do not need to doubt any longer.

Every day we are publishing in this paper reports from people right here in Peterborough who have been cured by Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, some recently and some years ago. When you have read these letters look these people up and inquire into their cases. Every one of them is glad of an opportunity to help others suffering as they did.

Miss Catharine Scully, 517 Sherbrooke St., Peterborough, Ont., writes: "Some time ago I was suffering from a run down condition of the system. I was nervous, could not sleep, and lost my appetite. I used to have severe headaches that became almost unbearable. I tried several remedies and Doctors' medicine as well, but they did not help me. Finally I became so weakened in condition that I was scarcely able to walk. It was then that I first tried Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. I used one box, and detected an improvement, so I continued the treatment until cured. I am in good health now, can eat and sleep well, and do not have those terrible headaches. I give the credit entirely to Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and can say it is a splendid remedy. If anyone suffering as I did would only try this treatment, I know they would not be sorry."

Mrs. Leether, 108 Lansdowne street, Peterborough, Ont., writes:

"About three months ago, I found myself in a run down condition, due no doubt to the fact that I had been working long hours. I was also troubled occasionally with headaches and pains in my back. Upon the advice of a friend, I began the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. I found the very first box benefitted me, so I continued the treatment until now I feel greatly improved and more like my former self."

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, 50 cents a box, a full treatment of 6 boxes for $2.50, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto. Do not be talked into accepting a substitute. Imitations only disappoint.

GERMAN SPY ROBS MR. GERARD OF $800 IN AN ATTEMPT TO GET HIS REPORT TO THE PRESIDENT

Acting Under Instructions from Berlin Not to Stop at Murder, Secret Agents Make Desperate Efforts to Intercept the Damaging Information Regarding Conditions in Germany

IMPORTANT DEVELOPMENTS EXPECTED

HAVANA, March 15.—Following the arrest of alleged spies with the Gerard party upon its arrival at Key West it was learned here that a secret agent of Germany, believing he was obtaining valuable State papers, stole a package from the recalled Ambassador in the Plaza Hotel here.

Prussian spies who have dogged Mr. Gerard's footsteps from Berlin to the United States and who are still with him are under instructions to prevent him from delivering to the Washington government certain official reports which he is known to possess. The informant states that they will not stop at murder, if necessary, to get the documents, and that explains why Mr. Gerard has been under fear of assassination every moment of the time since he announced to the Foreign Office in Berlin that he had been recalled.

The package stolen from Mr. Gerard contained checks amounting to a little more than $800. A few minutes after the robbery Mr. Gerard was standing talking in the hotel lobby when Mr. Gerard suddenly saw a man and made an effort to seize him. The man escaped. It is known that the man was one of a band of plotters who had come to Havana for the sole purpose of obtaining the Ambassador's papers.

It is now explained that Mr. Gerard recognized the man as the one who had stolen the package of checks.

A secret agent of the Cuban government produced a cable despatch he had received from Key West, stating that a man believed to be a German spy and who had made efforts to reach Mr. Gerard on board the steamship between Havana and Key West had been arrested there.

The result of the despatch was that the man whom Mr. Gerard had tried to attack in the hotel lobby left Havana on board the steamship Olivette for Key West, with a Cuban detective trailing him. The party was assured that he would be seized as soon as he set foot on American soil.

"There are going to be important developments in this case," said a prominent official. "I am in a position to state that every effort is being made to get Mr. Gerard's papers and those efforts will be continued right up to the White House. Even if a personal attack is necessary it will be made. Berlin has given orders that those papers must not reach the Washington government at any cost or sacrifice."

While Mr. Gerard was in Havana his important papers were deposited in a private vault. Just before going on board the vessel here Mr. Gerard obtained them from the vault. They are in a rather small black bag and Mr. Gerard permits no one else to carry them.

"If We Sink An American Ship We Get War," Said Bernstorff

In the course of an interview granted to the Copenhagen correspondent of the Berlin Tageblatt, says an Exchange Telegraph despatch, Count Von Bernstorff, interrogated as to whether he thought there would be war between Germany and the United States, replied:

"That depends on our U-boat warfare. If we sink an American ship, we shall get war. If not, I suppose we can avoid it."

"And if," asked the correspondent, "Germany sinks British ships with American citizens aboard?"

To this Count von Bernstorff replied: 'That is not the same."

OUR SERIAL STORY

THE RED PAPER

By C. GOTCHKISS

For the first ten miles the men rode rapidly and in silence, the trail tending due west and never swerving toward the Guadaloupe. Finally Thorp broke the silence between them. "If they went to Kerrsville the track must trend to the north very soon," he said. "Bagshot now knows we are after him; Rail Tucker opened his eyes to that; so instead of going on to Comfort or crossing the Guadaloupe by way of the ford where he knows he would be caught, he whips over the plains, hoping to get around us. He may be panicky by this, and shy about going to Kerrsville; perhaps he'll go on to Fort Terrel. If he does we'll have him, for all his start. Twenty miles farther on the land is waterless. I see by the track they have four mules to the ambulance, and there is one man on horseback. They sure have grub enough to last them. The only thing that can balk us is lack of water."

"How far is it to Fort Terrel?" asked John.

"About fifty miles, as the crow flies. It's close to the edge of Crockett County, and water guess-work for the most of the way. Heaven help the woman, if he's aiming for Terrel."

Wentworth groaned inwardly.

"But you will follow?" he asked anxiously.

"There was no doubting the spirit of the answer: "By the Lord! I'll follow them to the coast; and then on into the Pacific, if it is necessary. We can go where they do. I have something at stake here—and I have never lost a man on whose trail I once camped."

Wentworth set his teeth and rode on. That night they slept by a branch of the Guadaloupe, stopping only long enough to rest their horses; then they pushed forward by the light of the moon. As Wentworth lay under the stars, he wondered how it fared with the girl he loved. At what a frightful inconvenience to herself was she being dragged along by those men. How Bagshot must curse her presence, a presence of which he dared not rid himself.

The young man could not know, nor did he guess, that Bagshot was now more afraid of his niece than she was of him. Neither was he aware that his enemy trembled more at the possible consequences of possessing a paper representing fabulous wealth and belonging to another than fear of being charged with a murder which could not be proven. It was not as a murderer he was now fleeing, but as a thief in a country where thieving was looked upon as a greater sin than killing.

There was but one way out of his dilemma now. His niece should be forced to give him an interest—a legal interest—in her father's map. To continue to act without it might be his undoing; with it he could face the world—could he but shake from his heels the untiring Nemesis who was following him in the shape of old Wentworth's son.

Fear! It was worse. He must escape from the vampire who kept sleep from his eyes and ease from his heart. Between him and Wentworth law was a mockery. It was war to the knife. He would kill him on sight.

Bagshot hoped that it had been Wentworth who had been shot down at the ford, but he couldn't be sure; and now he dared not stop at Kerrsville. He decided that if he went on to Fort Terrel he might terrify his niece, who, under suffering, would sign away a part or the whole of her rights. They should not appear valuable to her—he would see to that. In any event, he would be near the mine.

In these plans the Mexican concurred. He would have concurred in anything that kept him near the girl, as he would have protested against anything that would have parted them. In the depths of his Latin heart he knew Grace Merridale detested him, even though his passion for her had grown to a white heat; but with the fine disregard for matters of delicacy characterizing natures such as his, he hoped to be able to wear out her opposition. He had no objections to her sufferings; suffering might break her spirit and make her an easier prey. At all events—the longer the route the longer Grace Merridale would be near him. With the veneer of his kind he treated her with exaggerated courtesy, which meant nothing, and really he stood between the maiden and her uncle who now almost hated her. Planet's knowledge of the country—a knowledge superior to Bagshot's, made him the present guide of the excursion.

As for the wounded scout who had been engaged as a fitting aid to the desperate enterprise—Bagshot with an oath had refused his admission to the ambulance; and Planet, who was driving, only shrugged his shoulders to the girl's appeal for the weakening man, and sent his four mules at a break-neck pace over the smooth prairie. When the scout finally fell from his horse the difficulty was settled; dead men tell no tales. The mules were kept up at full speed until cursing and the lash no longer affected them.

All this was unknown to the young man as he lay under the stars, though the knowledge of every detail came later. In the morning he was heavy for want of sleep, and the day broke with a promise of terrific heat, and at an hour when it should have been cool.

"I don't tumble to this sort of weather!" said Thorp, as he cinched on his saddle after their brief morning meal. "This is away out of plumb with the season, and I reckon it may mean something on the way. How are you this A.M.? He spoke cheerfully.

"Rocky," was the short answer.

"A poor state to start on in and under a hot sun; but there's no time to waste on frills and feelings! Come on. Lord, but the trail is as clear as a railroad track; not a breath of wind to fill their wheel marks; I wonder if they savvy the signal they leave behind!"

But later even the sheriff became quiet. By then the horses had reduced their speed to a slow walk and urging did not mend matters. Presently there came a little wind, scorching puffs of air that moved the loose sand. It made it harder to keep the guiding wheel tracks in sight as in places the ruts were smoothed over, and it was only at intervals the pursuers could see signs of the wheels they were following.

This made but little difference to the sheriff. The hope that Bagshot had turned north to Kerrsville had long since left him; Kerrsville was now behind, not ahead nor on one side; Bagshot had evidently concluded to take the desperate chance of reaching Fort Terrel. Once there, if menaced he could desert all and plunge into the western wilderness.

Later in the day the dogged and exhausted pursuers entered a treeless country. Grease-wood and sage-bush took the place of taller growths, and bunches of cacti told of the character of the waste over which they now travelled. Not a water-hole did they find, save two that had dried up; the liquid in Wentworth's canteen was hot and repellent. The two men now rarely spoke, because talking had become a painful effort. Lips and tongues were dry, swollen, and in danger of cracking.

Wentworth sat dejected; he knew, strong though he was, that another day like that would see him close to his end, while to go back would be as bad as to go on. What were the others doing for water? He asked Thorp.

"Better off than we be, son," said the sheriff. "They have a cask aboard, if they ain't fools."

"Will they fight if we catch up to them."

"Fight? Say, son, do you think any one who is desp'rit enough to drive into this hell wouldn't be desp'rit enough to fight? Yes, they'll fight, all right—and shoot to kill. You ain't out on no picnic, but this is a traverse I didn't count on. Thought I'd have 'em by this."

Wentworth relapsed into silence from sheer exhaustion. His head fell forward, and he slept heavily, dreamlessly. It seemed but a minute before the sheriff touched him.

"All ready son! The day is breaking!"

And they went on. Wentworth never forgot that day, neither did he ever remember much of it. By ten o'clock the wagon-tracks were lost, only once in a while were there indications of the passing of the outfit. By noon the young man had drained the last drop of the nauseous fluid in his canteen, and which now tasted like nectar; he sucked the neck of the bottle, and was suffering tortures from thirst and the blinding heat of the sun. He turned in desperation to his silent companion.

"I would give all I have for a drink of cold water! I would give all I own to wallow in the gutter-slush of New York! Slush—filthy snow water!"

He reeled in his saddle; his head felt big to the bursting point, and the heat of the blasting, undimmed sun felt like a weight he was carrying. He tore the hat from his head.

"Shut up, sir!" said the sheriff fiercely in a thick voice. "Put on that hat! Never talk water, nor even think water in the desert. We ought to hit Paintrock Creek in ten miles, if you keep going."

"Ten miles! Ten thousand miles! I think I see a lake! Look!"

Wentworth's mind was beginning to fail.

"Mirage!" grunted the other. Wentworth laughed as though he had heard a joke, but his voice was unnatural. He swayed from side to side; but on they went, both faces now swollen terribly, while the Northerner's was blistered; his eyes were half-closed. He looked about him, but his vision wandered.

Presently he dimly wondered how his horse could keep on going without a head, and why the land had turned to melted brass. He wanted to ask Thorp about it but something was the matter with his throat and tongue. He felt he was going blind, but he didn't care. He was already deaf, for he failed to hear the sheriff shout at him, nor did he see Thorp wave his arms and point to the north.

He came to himself with a start. The sheriff's arm was round him — the sheriff's canteen was at his lips, and there was a flavour of whiskey in his mouth. He looked round bewildered, but now quite sane, to find himself seated on the sand.

"Thank Heaven!" said Thorp, as he saw the light come back to Wentworth's eye. "I thought you were a goner for fair when you fell off your hoss! Think you can make a stagger at riding again? It is certain death to stay here!" "I'll try," said the young man feebly. "I—I didn't know I was so weak."

Was Troubled With Shortness of Breath

When the heart becomes affected, there ensues a feeling of a choking sensation, a shortness of breath, palpitation, throbbing, irregular beating, smothering sensation, dizziness, and a weak, sinking, all-gone feeling of oppression and anxiety.

The nerves become unstrung, you dread to be alone, have a horror of society, start at the least noise and are generally fatigued.

On the first sign of the heart becoming weakened or the nerves unstrung, Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills should be taken. They are just what you require at this time. They regulate and stimulate the heart, and strengthen and restore the whole nerve system.

Mrs. C. M. Cormier, Buctouche, N.B., writes: "Since two years ago I was troubled with a shortness of breath, and sometimes I could hardly breathe. I went to see several doctors, and they said it was from my heart and nerves, but they did not seem to do me any good. One day I got one of your B.B.B. Almanacs and read of a case similar to mine.

"I bought a box of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, and after taking it I noticed such a change that I kept on taking them until I had used four more boxes, when I was cured."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50c a box, three boxes for $1.25, at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

Evening Schools.

Evening schools owe their existence to the Rev. Thomas Charles, who about 1811 set up one at Bala, Wales, which proved to be quite successful. In 1839 or 1840 the English Bishop Hinds strongly recommended such schools for poor adults, who, on account of enforced labor, had no chance to secure an education. The idea was taken in hand by the British privy council in 1861, and from that date evening schools began to be considered seriously. At the present time they are numerous throughout Great Britain, America and many other leading nations.

Had No Time to Spare.

The stage was all set in the Ritz-Carlton hotel for the presentation of a magnificent sixteenth century cabinet to Thomas A. Edison. It was a copy of a piece carved for Louis XII. of France, which Mr. Edison had admired while in France. At the appointed hour the inventor was absent. A telephone call to his home in Orange, N. J., elicited the laconic reply: "I'm too busy. Ship it over here."

Superfluous.

The Beauty—Don't you think that a husband should occasionally tell his wife that she's beautiful? The Beast—Nope! Wholly superfluous. If she is beautiful she knows she is, and if she isn't beautiful she thinks she is.

Boosting.

"That man says your wife has the most beautiful hair of any woman in the city."

"He's trying to work up trade."

"Does he deal in hair tonics?"

"No; he sold her the hair."—Houston Post.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

A BEARER OF DISPATCHES

His Difficulties In Reaching His Destination

By ALAN HINSDALE

When the pan-European war broke out I offered my services to the war department of Great Britain for secret service. My reason for doing so was that I was traveling abroad and found myself strapped in London, communication with my native land, America, having been cut off, and I was unable to get funds. I will admit, however, that I always had a desire to try my hand at secret service work.

My fitness to serve the British at this time and in this field was that I am an American and had an American passport.

I made my offer through an official in the office of the foreign secretary who knew something of my antecedents and was in a position to vouch for me. There was plenty of work to be done and plenty of would be workmen, but the main trouble with the government was to know whom to trust.

One day I received a note from my friend in the foreign office to call upon him in his office in Downing street. Upon my reporting to him he led me to one of the chief men in the foreign department, who asked me a number of questions about myself with a view to establishing my trustworthiness. I doubt if he would have employed me had it not been that I told him my mother had been born in Canada and lived there till she was twenty years of age. That seemed to satisfy him. He knew the strong affection for the British flag among those who have been born and raised under it and agreed that a man would not be likely to turn traitor to a cause with which his mother sympathized.

When he had satisfied himself with regard to my fitness for the work he said to me:

"We wish some one to take certain important instructions to our ambassador at Athens. You are probably aware that there are certain Balkan nations for whose support both the entente and the central allies are struggling. Greece is one of these countries. We desire to offer to the king of Greece certain advantages for his support in case we are victors in the great struggle upon which we are entering. If a knowledge of what we offer should fall into the hands of the Teutons it would give them certain intentions of ours which they would at once endeavor to forestall. London, every route to Greece and the capital of that country is beset with spies. We are not sure but that we have them right here among our clerks in the government offices. You are liable to be watched, waylaid, possibly murdered on the way."

The commission was given me, and I accepted it. Had there been no risk attending it I should not have been interested in it. I was handed two packages, the one somewhat bulky, inclosed in an official envelope and bearing the official seal; the other a simple letter, evidently written on thin paper.

How the spies got on to the fact that a communication was to leave the foreign office and I was to carry it was and is a mystery to me. I was told that no one was employed to copy the paper, which was written by the undersecretary himself. Nevertheless the matter was known to some one who informed the proper person outside, who at once set in motion certain agencies to get possession of the document I carried, or at least prevent my delivering it.

As to my route, it was uncertain. I might go all the way by sea, but there was some danger of being submarined. I could go through southern France and Italy, but in the beginning of the war no one knew how the Italian cat would jump. Italy did not join the allies for a year after the beginning of hostilities. I resolved to go through France to Marseilles, then determine by what route I would continue my journey.

I had scarcely seated myself in the train for Southampton—I proposed to cross the channel from there to Havre—than I noticed a man in the same compartment as myself casting furtive glances at me. I surmised at once that he was aware of the fact that I was what I was, but believed that he would not have let me see him observing me, had I anything to fear from him personally. It was much more probable that he was intending to draw my attention to himself while my real danger lurked elsewhere. During the ride I opened my suit case and felt for the bulky document as though to make sure it was there. He left the train at Southampton, and I did not see him again till I was on the boat steaming for the French coast.

On reaching Havre I stood holding my baggage, a suit case, in the crowd of passengers waiting to leave the boat for the dock. Suddenly I felt the suit case wrenched from my hand. Turning, I looked for the person who had taken it, but saw no one near. Those behind me were comparatively quiet. Convinced that my enemies' plans for making way with my baggage were perfect, I made no motion to recover it. It was doubtless passed from one person to another till it was at a safe distance from me.

My first attempt to outwit my waylayers was a success. They had got a dummy dispatch, and I had the real one sewed in the lining of my vest. However, this did not accord with my plans. I had intended to use the dummy in another way and farther on in my journey. Now I had lost it, and my enemies had possession of evidence that I was a messenger from the British government. This latter consideration did not trouble me much, for it was clear that they knew all about me.

However, there was one advantage in their having the dummy. They must have believed they had the dispatch I carried, for I saw nothing more of them till I arrived at Marseilles. My theory is that they were undertrappers, with no authority to open the dispatch, but took it to some one who had such power, and this occasioned delay while I went my way.

But they did not lose track of me, for the man I had seen observing me on the train from London to Southampton kept me in sight. At Marseilles I had two problems to settle. Should I go farther by land or all the way by sea? And how could I throw my shadower off my track? I concluded that, whichever way I went, I would endeavor to make him believe that I had gone the other.

I had a trunk with me, and as soon as I could get possession of it I called a fiacre and, putting the trunk in it, got in the cab and told the driver to take me to the station of the railway running eastward along the Mediterranean. On reaching the station I billed the trunk for Nice; but, since there was no train for several hours, I strolled away, proposing to divest myself, if possible, of the observance of my shadower. Lighting a cigar, I strolled away carelessly, as if bent only on passing the time before the starting of the train. But I directed my steps toward the more frequented streets and from these entered a very narrow one. After having gone into it for some distance, seeing a door of one of the houses open, I looked behind me and, not seeing my shadower, darted into it.

I fell in with a lot of women who received my intrusion so angrily that I concluded to enlist them, if possible, to my service by appealing to their patriotism. I told them that I was a messenger of the English government and was followed by German agents who were bent on possessing themselves of a dispatch I carried. They were not convinced till I showed them a letter addressed to the British minister at Athens. Then I told them that I wished to go out unknown on a boat that I had been told left Marseilles that night for Italian ports.

When I departed from the house in which I had taken refuge I did so dressed in the apparel of one of the women after dark and under the guidance of another, for I did not know the way to the dock. About 9 o'clock I went on board, carrying my own masculine clothing in a gripsack.

I had succeeded in my maneuver in respect to the man who had been watching me in throwing him off my track. But the enemy had left nothing to chance. He had placed an agent on the boat. Unfortunately I did not suspect that he would do this. I concluded to retain my feminine costume, and it was a dead giveaway once the light of day shone upon me, for there is nothing feminine about me, and as soon as my enemy saw that I was a man it was pretty clear that I was the man who was wanted.

I was sitting in a secluded corner on deck when a man approached me, raised his hat politely and made some passing remark, as though he wished to scrape an acquaintance. I reckoned that his purpose was the dispatch I bore. I must decide at once whether I should send him about his business or pretend to be deceived with a view to outwitting him. I chose the latter course, for he had an advantage of me in the fact that I was a man traveling in woman's clothing. I did not repel him, but after a few casual remarks I excused myself and went to my stateroom.

The first thing I did after reaching it was to doff my woman's apparel and put on my own. I knew the man who had spoken to me would be on the lookout for me, and when next I went on deck, seeing him at a distance, I walked toward him. Passing him, I saw that he recognized me. I returned his gaze with one which said plainly, "Keep out of my way or I will kill you." He said nothing, and I received no further attention from him. I doubt if he cared to commit any act that was not covered by duplicity, and I was determined if he did I would scare him off. I did not wish to occasion the delay that would come of a fight with him, but I proposed to make him consider me dangerous.

What he did was this: He went to the captain of the boat and told him that I was an Englishman fleeing from justice. Of course since I had come aboard as a woman and was now a man there was excellent ground for the accusation. But my accuser had no documents to prove his case and could only ask that I be detained at the first port touched till the matter could be looked into. When I found the captain disposed to assent to this I showed him my sealed letter to the British embassy at Athens, and it served its purpose.

The next day we passed a French man-of-war. I induced the captain to signal her and send me on board of her. He did as I requested, and when I was conducted to the officer in command and stated my case he volunteered to take me to Athens.

This ended my embarrassments, for I delivered my dispatch, and it was doubtless communicated to the king of Greece. But subsequent events showed that it did not win his majesty over to the allied cause.

BIG EATERS GET KIDNEY TROUBLE

Take Salts at First Sign of Bladder Irritation or Backache

The American men and women must guard constantly against Kidney trouble, because we eat too much and all our food is rich. Our blood is filled with uric acid which the kidneys strive to filter out, they weaken from overwork, become sluggish; the eliminative tissues clog and the result is kidney trouble, bladder weakness and a general decline in health.

When your kidneys feel like lumps of lead; your back hurts or the urine is cloudy, full of sediment or you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night; if you suffer with sick headache or dizzy, nervous spells, acid stomach, or you have rheumatism when the weather is bad, get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate clogged kidneys; to neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer is a source of irritation, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure, makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water beverage, and belongs in every home, because nobody can make a mistake by having a good kidney flushing any time.

Deceased who was a son of the late George McMahon was born in Manvers township, 59 years ago. He has resided at Garden Hill, Bailieboro, Bethany, Omemee and Millbrook, also for a time he lived in New York State and in Essex County, Ont.

About twelve years ago he was united in marriage to Miss Annie Bruce of Hope township, who predeceased him by about four years. He was an Anglican and a Conversative.

The funeral to St. Paul's cemetery, Cavan on Friday was largely attended. Rev. Canon Allen conducted the services at the house and grave. Beautiful floral tributes were placed on the casket by Mr. R. E. Stinson, a representative of the Sherwin-Williams Paint Co., Mrs. Geo. Raper and Miss Laura Crocker.

The pall bearers were: Messrs. Thos and Leslie Bristow, Hilliard and Lloyd McMahon, Wm. Armstrong and Wm. Gray.

Four brothers and a sister are left to mourn the loss of an affectionate brother. They are: George and Jeff of Michigan; Albert of Sunny South, Old Virginia; Arthur of Cavan and Miss McMahon of Brockville.

PARALYZED LIMBS.

To-day it is sleeplessness, headaches, digestive trouble, and irritability. Next thing you know some form of paralysis has developed. Mr. Alex. Hossburg, Moore Street, St. Catharines, Ont., writes: "Nervous trouble developed into paralysis of the limbs so that I became helpless. Doctors failed me, but after using ten boxes of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food I resumed work and now feel better than I did for twenty years."

THE ODOR OF SPICES.

Often Used by Writers to Stimulate Their Imagination.

On some portions of the globe spices are worth more than gold or silver.

"In the arctic region spices are essential to health and happiness," writes an explorer. "A dash of pepper, a pinch of ground cinnamon, a little nutmeg or a pinch of ginger root revives the jaded appetite wonderfully in the north. I have seen shipwrecked sailors fight over an ounce of spices with more fierceness than they ever did for money."

The psychological effect of spices is of more importance than the physiological. Many writers have confessed their inability to write without the odor of spices in their rooms. One great musician composed his masterpiece under the influence of cinnamon and cloves steaming in a kettle of preserves in a neighbor's kitchen. Thereafter he composed only when steamed cloves and cinnamon were on hand.

The food of one man, however, very often happens to be more or less violent poison for another. In the annals of insane asylums there are many cases on record where the odor of cloves, cinnamon, pepper, allspice or ginger has driven patients into violent paroxysms.

Yet all the world loves spices. In the fear that the source of supply would eventually become exhausted chemists have sought to make spices synthetically. They have succeeded in a number of instances to such an extent that cheap adulterations are sometimes used.—Exchange.

Neighbors.

"What sort of neighbors have you?"

TORONTO OF OLD.

Mrs. G. R. R. Cockburn Formed Link With Picturesque Past.

The recent death of Mrs. G. R. R. Cockburn will recall to many the Toronto of forty years ago when social life was not as crowded as it now is. Her dinners and soirees in the Principal's residence of Upper Canada College in King street were events of importance in those days. Mrs. Cockburn's humorous sketch of their epergne, which formerly had graced the dining-table in the Tuileries, was worthy of De Maupassant. It appeared when the decoration was purchased that a new dining-table worthy of the epergne was necessary; then chairs worthy of the table; then a carpet worthy of the chairs; then curtains worthy of the carpet, etc., and then the upsetting of a lamp caused the destruction of everything in the room—except the fateful epergne.

The bright cricket afternoons, over which Mrs. Cockburn so graciously presided in the terrace overlooking the well-remembered playground, were social-athletic functions of special interest to Toronto people. Her memory was remarkable, and her recollections of the boys who had distinguished themselves in the class lists or in the athletic field were wonderfully clear.

Mrs. Cockburn was a Miss Zane, the daughter of a distinguished Kentucky family. Louis Philippe when an exile in America stayed for a time with the Zanes, and when later he was on the throne of France and members of the Kentucky family visited Paris their former hospitality was graciously acknowledged. Her father, Mr. Hampden Zane, came to Canada at the time of the Civil War, his lameness unfitting him for military service. It seems the family came from England at the time of the Restoration, when members of the Hampden and Zane families would feel more comfortable in the colonies than in England with the recollection of the Civil War and the names of the Cromwellian leaders still fresh in the minds of the people. Miss Betty Zane's exploit in furnishing an Indian-beleaguered fort with ammunition is one of the heroic episodes of early Virginian history. Mrs. Cockburn's mother was a Miss Churchill, of a well-known Virginian family.

While Mrs. Cockburn, by reason of her long residence in Canada, was thoroughly British, she never forgot her southern origin nor lost her southern sympathies. She was a young girl living in Louisville at the time of the Civil War, and was accustomed to recall incidents of that great struggle. Kentucky was occupied by the North, though the occupation was interrupted by frequent raids. On one occasion she was on a train journeying from the plantation of an uncle north to Louisville. The train carried, besides passengers, some hundreds of Union soldiers. It was stopped by a large body of raiders led by Colonel Morgan, a brother of the still more famous raider. A fusillade ensued and the Union soldiers retired. Miss Zane rushed to the platform of the car eager to see our (southern) soldiers. She was recognized by Colonel Morgan, for the Morgans also were Louisville people. He said that he deeply regretted he had to burn the train, but that he would first remove the baggage of the passengers and provide for their further journey. The young lady told Colonel Morgan that this was the first chance she had had of seeing any large body of southern troops, whereupon the gallant Colonel lined up his cavalry, over a thousand strong, and they sang for young Miss Zane's benefit "Cheer, Boys, Cheer," as she stood on the platform of the car. The incident illustrates the chivalrous spirit of the South even when at war.

Mrs. Cockburn is survived by her daughter, Lady Tait of Montreal. Her son, Major Churchill Cockburn, was killed a few years ago by the kick of a horse. It will be remembered that he held the Royal Humane Society's medal for saving two lives in Lake Rosseau, and also the Victoria Cross won in South Africa. He seemed to have inherited his daring from his southern mother, and his coolness in danger from his Scotch father.

Prince Praises Canada.

The Prince of Wales attended a meeting of the Canadian committee in care of soldiers' graves. Present were Sir George Perley and other representatives of the Dominion. The Prince mentioned that one hundred and fifty thousand graves were now registered. "Over sixty of four hundred burial grounds have already been laid out, under the advice of the Director of Royal Botanic Gardens. I have seen how beautiful these cemeteries look, with flowers; but it is especially gratifying to me to know that my visit from the front should coincide with the first attendance of this committee of representatives of the Dominion Governments. As the army in the field is now an Imperial army, so this committee should be an Imperial committee, entrusted by the Empire with the task of fittingly and enduringly commemorating the common sacrifice of the best blood of this generation, the sacrifice which forms one of the sacred links of the Empire." The committee subsequently considered questions of marking the graves of the Dominion soldiers who have died in England.

Canadian Wins Prize.

The first prize in the Economic Essay Contest, conducted by Chicago University, has been won by Duncan A. MacGibbon, of McMaster University, Toronto. Mr. MacGibbon is the third Canadian to take first honors in one of these contests. His prize winning essay was entitled "Railway Rates and the Canadian Railway Commission." The second, third, and fourth prizes were won by students of American universities, the contest being an international one.

"Miss Uppson—Mildred," said the poor but otherwise honest and ambitious young man, "I have paddled my own canoe for years and feel sure I can support you. Will you be my wife?"

"Nothing doing in the canoe line," replied the haughty maid. "If you had sailed your own yacht for years I might have considered your proposal."

Had Bronchitis FOR YEARS

Bronchitis comes from a neglected cold and it, if neglected, will surely turn into pneumonia. The first symptom is a short, painful, dry cough, accompanied with rapid wheezing and a feeling of oppression or tightness about the chest.

The phlegm raised from the bronchial tubes is at first of a light color, but as the disease progresses it becomes of a yellowish or greenish color, and is very often hard to raise.

Dr. Wood's Norway is just the remedy that you require as it loosens the phlegm and heals the lungs and bronchial tubes.

Mrs. Chas. Brean, Amherst, N. S., writes: "I was troubled for years with bronchitis, and could not find any relief. I was especially bad on a damp day. I went to a druggist and asked him for something to stop the constant tickling in my throat. He gave me a bottle of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, which I found gave me instant relief. I think it is the best remedy for bronchitis that I know of. I now take care that I always have a bottle on hand."

"Dr. Wood's" is the genuine, put up in a yellow wrapper, three pine trees the trade mark, price 25c and 50c.

LOCAL WEEKLY MARKET REPORT

Eggs have dropped from 10 to 12 cents a dozen during the past week. Local prices to farmers yesterday were 52 cents; to-day they were nearer 30 cents, with the market inclined to weakness. The drop is general and was first felt in Chicago, where heavy receipts loaded the market. Toronto is paying 32 cents.

Butter remains steady at from 44 to 46 cents and is slightly easier. The local milk reports some increase in volume but not sufficient to materially affect the market.

Cream is worth 45 cents a pound, locally and is of normal supply.

Hides.

The prices of hides are as follows:

Beef hides per lb .....19 to 20c
Farmers' hides per lb .....17 to 18c
Veal skins . . ..25 to 28c
"Deacons" each .....$1.00 to $1.50
Yearlings "runner-kip".. 15 to 17c
Sheep skins . . ..$1 to $3
Tallow per lb . .....7 to 8 1-2c
Washed wool per lb. .... 42 to 46c
Unwashed wool per lb ....32 to 34c

Grain Prices.

The following prices are quoted locally this week with trade steady:

Wheat, per bush. $1.80
Oats per bush . .....65 to 68c
Barley, per bush. $1.15
Rye per bush. $1.25
Small peas per bush. $2.50
Blue peas per bush $2.00
Buckwheat per bush ..$1.15 to $1.20

Grain buyers quote the following prices:

Red clover . .....$9 to $10
Alsike . . ..$7 to $9
Timothy . . ..$3 to $4

The finest seed is retailing locally.

Clover seed ..... $12 to $15
Alsike . . .. $12 to $15
Timothy . . .. $4 to $5

Hogs $14.75.

Matthews-Blackwell quote $14.75 this week for live hogs, a slight decrease from the figure of a week ago, but in keeping with a general shaking off. One cause for the decline is ascribed to uncertainty of exports, and overseas prices.

The first arrival of a few spring lambs is reported from Montreal. They weighed from 33 lbs. to 45 lbs and sold at $12 to $14 each.

Future of Cheese.

The Montreal Trade Bulletin says of the cheese outlook:

The price of March cheese last year started at 17c., and that price was bid for the April make. As long as the war lasts the price of cheese cannot be expected to rule much lower, as it is consumed so extensively by the army.

The Canadian cheese trade is virtually over for the present season, and dealers are beginning to look forward to the new make of April cheese, and it is understood that buyers are willing to pay 24c. to 25c. for the April make, but that farmers will not sell. There appears to be a dearth of cheese in England at the present time, and prices there continue to rule very high.

Flour Market Strong.

The flour market is strong locally, and is influenced by recent advances in Montreal and Toronto that will probably have a local effect.

Potatoes are steady at former prices with the demand largely dimished through the present high prices

POTATOES AT TORONTO.

"There is so sale for potatoes," says E. J. Ryan, referring to the Toronto market, "the trade is dead on account of high prices."

A. A. McKinnon says he is not buying potatoes, having supplies on hand, but that Ontarios are worth $3 per bag, and Delawares $3.50 to $3.75.

Dawson & Elliott report an easier feeling in the market but beleive that it is only a temporary let up, and that still higher prices are in view. This firm gives Ontarios at $3 in car lots, and Delawares at $3.25 to $3.50 per bag.

The New Brunswick potato exchange quotes Delawares at $3.75 per bag in car lots, as compared with $4.10 last week, and Quebec white varieties at $3.50, with Western Canada potatoes still a little lower.

Threw Over His Sweetheart For A Bride With Money

While Miss Bessie M. Coulthard, a Rutherford school teacher, sat in the Circuit Court in Paterson, N.J., and heard a jury grant her a verdict for $4,500 in a breach of promise suit against Edward M. Applegate, a Passaic lawyer, Mr. Applegate was pleading a case in another court in the same county. He did not defend her action.

Miss Coulthard, who asked for $25,000, testified that Mr Applegate first asked her to be his wife in 1912, and she consented. When the day for the wedding approached, she testified, he informed her that he had gotten into trouble with a girl in Bridgeton, N.J., and it had cost him so much money he could not think of marrying. Miss Coulthard said she forgave him, and then the wedding was set for successive years, each time being delayed because Mr. Applegate said he was without sufficient funds.

Last November Miss Coulthard suffered a serious nervous shock when she read in the newspapers the announcement of the engagement of Mr. Applegate and Miss Clementine Rust, a sister of Mr. Applegate's law partner, and one of the heirs to a $7,000,000 estate.

"Mr. Applegate called on me the following day," Miss Coulthard testified, "and assured me that the announcement had been made by Miss Rust's brother, and that he had to 'stand for it' or lose all the money he had invested in the Rust interests. But he said she was too old for him and he would never marry her."

However, Mr. Applegate did marry Miss Rust last Thanksgiving Day, and Miss Coulthard filed her action against him. In the last few weeks Mr. Applegate has established his own law offices in Passaic, apart from those of Mr. Rust. Mrs. Applegate, the bride, is living with her brother in the old Rust homestead.

EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE

LADY'S FOUR GORE SKIRT.

By Anabel Worthington.

Whether a woman stays home or travels about, has less or a bit more money than her neighbor for her clothes, she can always find use of the separate skirt, because she intends to cling to the separate blouse.

The clever blending of style features makes for the success of this attractive walking skirt. It is cut in four gores and has the front and back gores gathered to yokes at centre front and back only, the sides not showing this feature. A plait at each seam where the side gores join the front gore is a good point, since it neatly arranges the fulness, hides the seam and increases the long line effect that is of such importance in styledom. The button and loop decoration to almost hip depth is an up to date trimming feature. The closing is at the right side of front and a raised waistline is used. In size 24 the width of the lower edge is three yards.

Wool checks, plaids, also serge and cheviot, are suitable for this model. If you have once used a reliable pattern that pictures the instructions, you will appreciate the saving and satisfaction that result from copying such a simple design as this.

The skirt pattern No. 8,131 cuts in sizes 24 to 30. To make in size 24 waist will require 3⅞ yards 36 inch material.

A BRAVE OLD WARRIOR

"FOGHORN" M'DONALD OF THE CANADIAN FIGHTING FORCES

Picturesque Character Who Enlisted at the Age of 53—He Has Lived in Every Part of the Dominion, and is Never So Happy As When Taking Part in a Big Scrap.

"FOGHORN" McDonald admits he's as "Scotch as oatmeal," but what he does not have to admit is that he is beyond doubt the best known man in the wonderful big army Canada has sent over to fight for England, asserts a writer in The London Times. The rawest rookie in the rearmost ranks of the Dominion forces proclaims it on the fighting line and looks up to this world-wondering scion of the Clan McDonald as a shining example of what a lowly "buck" can do in trying times like these.

For "Foghorn" came over as a private himself just two short years ago. Some of his home folks told him he was a "darned old fool" to enlist at 53. But "Foghorn" had been a miner all his days. He had hit the western trail from sunbaked Batopilas in the wilds of Mexico, to the snow-shrouded valleys of the Yukon, and he knew what perseverance and pluck and courage and sacrifice could do.

He knew he would "make the grade" and so did a great crowd of his friends who gathered a day or two ago to "wet" that new third stripe and crown in the cuffs of his khaki army jacket. He was back from the front to receive this latest promotion, and he was toasted a major of his Majesty's forces.

"Foghorn" was born Neil Roderick McDonald, but there are comparatively few who know him by that distinguished name. It's just plain "Foghorn" nowadays from one end of the trenches to the other and one earful of that low, rumbling, window-shattering, rock-shivering voice explodes all possible doubt as to the derivation of the nickname.

There are plenty of Germans who know "Foghorn," too. In the days of the deathly deadlock, when trenches crept closer and closer together, he was one of those who burrowed beneath the earth and set off great mines under the enemy. He had not been a mining engineer in vain. Often his voice would go booming across "No Man's Land" hurling picturesque invective at the Germans.

Not to know "Foghorn" McDonald is to miss one of the big human personalities of the war. It is not difficult to realize what a tower of strength he is to the soldiers at the front.

"He is the sort of an officer whose men would follow to the gates of hell itself and walk in laughing," said Major "Eddie" Holland, a long-time friends, and a "V. C." of the South African war.

"And speaking of hell," he added, "there may or may not be something in the fact that 'Foghorn' belongs to the 'Black Devils.'"

That is the name the Germans have given the Eighth battalion, Canadian infantry, and the battalion has adopted as its ensignia a small black imp dancing in glee. They were delighted with the appellation, and are living up to it, according to all reports from the Somme.

It has been said of "Foghorn" that "he's not afraid of any man—and very few women." His home is in the great west. He has lived much in the United States and almost every province in Canada can claim him as her own. His heart is as big as the world in which he has lived; and he has a way of calling a superior officer "Bill," or "Jim," or "George," and referring to a corporal as a "brother officer" that is quite baffling to the Englishman's ideas of discipline. Someone spoke to "Fog" about it.

"Well, sir," he explained, "it's a man's war, by God, sir, and I respect every mother's son who's out there doing his bit. I was a full-fledged 'buck' myself once, and I know what they have to go through."

"Foghorn" has been serving for some time as transport officer of the "Black Devils" and has been riding about the front lines on what he describes himself as "a mighty fine hoss." Where he got the horse he will not tell you. "It wouldn't be passed by the censor," he says.

"One night," he said, "we were taking some loads of munitions away up in front. It was bleaker than the ace of spades and if you struck a match you'd get your eye shot out. But in the midst of all this blackness and the shelling we were getting, I heard one of my men say to his partner: 'Keep your eye out for a good hoss, Bill; this ought to be a good night to get one.'"

A day or two ago a staff colonel, fresh from Canada, walked into the Savoy "Club."

"Hellow 'Foghorn,'" he called out; "I heard you a couple of blocks down the street and came in to see you. Do you remember me?"

"Remember you?" repeated "Fog," "why bless your brass-hatted old soul, I'd know your hide in a tan-yard."

A "brass hat" is the army name for all staff officers, and it comes, of course, from the abundance of gold braid they wear on their caps.

Someone asked how things were going at the front.

"Going?" said "Fog"; "why the boys are getting so gay out there one of our battalions came prancing up to the front line trenches the other day with a brass band playing for all it was worth. They were right where you could get killed any minute, too, and even my old hoss thought they were crazy.

"Guess I'll be getting back to the front soon myself," he concluded with a sigh; "this quiet life of London is getting on my nerves."

Conceit is no character what paint is to beauty; it is not only needless, but impairs what it is supposed to improve.

ALASKA'S LONG SPUR.

The Aleutian Islands Chain Over a Thousand Miles in Length.

Few persons are aware that the shortest route from San Francisco to Japan is by way of Alaska. Nearly a thousand miles are saved to vessels trading with the orient by coasting along the Aleutian Islands rather than following the Hawaiian route.

The Aleutian islands, more than 150 in number, which extend in a chain east and west for more than a thousand miles, are inhabited by the remnant of the Aleuts. Their war of the revolution closed just as the American Revolutionary war began. So patriotic were the Aleuts, so brave in their struggle for independence, that they succumbed to the Russians only after a conflict of nearly fifty years, and then simply because the race was almost exterminated in the struggle.

While the Aleutian islands must eventually form an important link in the commerce between the United States and the orient, other islands link our country with the vast empire to the north. In the narrow Bering strait lie two little islands, one occupied by Russia, the other by the United States, so that citizens of the two great nations live on respective islands within a few miles of each other.

SAVED BY A CAMERA MAN.

How He Won a Lease of Life For Some of Villa's Victims.

During one of his earlier campaigns Francisco Villa had an American movie photographer, Burrud by name, attached to his staff, who spent a good deal of his time taking pictures of the excessively vain "general" himself. Sometimes, however, Burrud was called upon to undertake more strenuous operations. The following story, for instance, is told in Francis A. Collins' "The Camera Man:"

"Burrud was called outdoors unexpectedly at sunrise one morning and directed to report, with his camera, at once to headquarters. When he arrived, coatless and breakfastless, before Villa's tent he was told that the general had decided to have some twenty prisoners shot and wanted a moving picture taken of the execution. The prisoners, most of them political merely, were to be butchered to make a moving picture scene.

"Burrud feigned to examine his camera closely and then explained to the general that his films were bad and that it would be impossible to take the picture until a new supply had arrived. Villa was disgusted to miss the entertainment, but the camera man insisted that there was no use in making the exposure, and the picture and the execution were put off several days.

"By the time the next supply of films arrived the general had fortunately changed his mind and the men were saved."

Electricity and Coal Waste.

From coal we chiefly draw the sun's stored energy, which is required to meet our industrial and commercial needs. According to statistical records, the output in the United States during an average year is 480,000,000 tons. In perfect engines this fuel would be sufficient to develop 500,000,000 horsepower steadily for one year, but the squandering is so reckless that we do not get more than 5 per cent of its heating value on the average. A comprehensive electrical plan for mining, transporting and using coal could much reduce this appalling waste. What is more, inferior grades, billions of tons of which are being thrown away, might be turned to profitable use.—Nikola Tesla

The Color Cure.

To cure smallpox was apparently a very simple matter in the good old times. John of Gaddesden, court doctor to Edward II., has recorded that he got rid of the disease by the simple expedient of wrapping his patients in red cloth. "Let scarlet red be taken," he says, "and let him who is suffering from smallpox be entirely wrapped in it or in some other red cloth. I did thus when the son of the illustrious king of England suffered from smallpox. I took care that all about his bed should be red, and that cure succeeded very well."—London Tatler.

HELPED IN OIL FIELDS.

Drillers From Lambton County Were in Roumania.

Oil drillers from Lambton County were in Roumania as oil drillers from Lambton County are in all parts of the earth where wells have to be sunk. Two or three advance agents of the exodus of Canadian oil drillers from Roumania have already been heard from. Their story is a record of good work for the allies and of disappointment for Germany in the oil fields of Roumania.

Roumania's 1915 production of oil was 12,000,000 barrels, value $30,000,000, at $2.50 per barrel. The world's production of oil is 425,000,000. Roumania's output of oil was 3 per cent. of the world's production in 1915. Germany's conquest of the Roumanian oil fields was expected to give the Teutons an immediate supply of 1,000,000 barrels of oil per month from Roumania with the extra supply secured when Germany speeded up production.

Oil drillers from Lambton County report that the Roumanian production of oil will be absolutely nil until new wells are drilled. The Canadian oil drillers worked with the British officers in the Roumanian oil fields. Their letters tell of the complete destruction of machinery and buildings in the Roumanian fields. As for the wells, a Canadian says:

"Iron was dropped down the bore of every well and concrete poured in on top of the iron. When the drill gets through the concrete it strikes the iron. The drill will go round and round. It will be three years before the Roumanian oil fields are again on a producing basis."

Enquiry at the head office of the Imperial Oil Co. to-day did not bear out the theory that Germany could not sink new wells in the Roumanian oil fields in less than three years. Reports of destruction are so complete as to make it certain that Germany cannot get oil without sinking new wells. The Roumanian oil fields oppose a hard formation to the drills and the authorities of the Imperial Oil Co. state that six months is a minimum time for drilling a shallow well in Roumania and eighteen months a minimum time for the deeper wells. British engineers and Canadian oil drillers seem to have combined to disappoint Germany's hopes of securing an immediate supply of oil from the Roumanian wells.

An Echo of 1914.

In its annual trade review The Monetary Times says: Prior to August, 1914, settlements at Montreal, Toronto, Winnipeg, Vancouver, Quebec, Halifax, St. John, and Victoria were made in legals (Dominion notes), but the following month, when money began to get tight, the banks wished to concentrate and centralize cash reserves at convenient points, and accordingly arranged for settlement of daily balances by means of cash only at Montreal, Toronto, Winnipeg, and Vancouver. It was decided that henceforth Quebec, Halifax, St. John, and Victoria should settle by draft on Montreal. But in the beginning of October, 1914, the British Admiralty advised the Canadian authorities that it was likely Victoria and Vancouver would be bombarded as a result of the operations of the German squadron (commanded by Von Spee) in the Pacific Ocean. The banks represented at the Pacific Coast, forthwith, made rush shipments of legals, gold, and a large portion of their own notes to Winnipeg for safety, and it was arranged that Vancouver should settle by draft on Winnipeg. When all danger of bombardment had passed, it was decided that on and after 1st May, 1915, the Vancouver clearing house should settle daily balances by means of legal tenders and the Canadian Bankers' Association ruled that after the same date all other clearing houses in British Columbia (i.e., Victoria and New Westminster) were to settle by draft on Vancouver.

To the Man on the Land.

For two years and a half, war, red and ruinous, has raged through the world, and still no decision has been reached. There is reason to hope that before 1917 closes the struggle for liberty will have been won, or be greatly advanced. Amid the varying phases of this titanic conflict the fact stands out more clearly than ever that agriculture is of supreme importance. Extraordinary measures are being taken by the allied countries to increase and encourage production. It is earnestly hoped that every farmer in Canada will strive to increase the food supply of the Empire. A still powerful and unscrupulous enemy openly avows its intention to try and sink all ships carrying supplies to England during the coming year. In the tremendous strain yet to come a vital factor will be ample and unfailing flow of food to England and France. No matter what difficulties may face us the supreme duty of every man on the land is to use every thought and every energy in the direction of producing more, and still more.—Martin Burrell, Minister of Agriculture.

Mennonites Are Serving.

The guarantee of exemption from military service to Mennonites and Doukhobors must be kept with the original parties. It is another question whether it is applicable to all people who may profess these faiths in the future. The Mennonites, who were parties to the original contract forty years ago, claimed to stand aloof from all public affairs, and renounced all privileges of citizenship such as voting and holding office. The younger generation have departed from these rules, and become electors. This imposes upon them the obligations of citizenship, and many have recognised it by enlisting. The Church elders of the old school ask that these volunteers be sent back home, but they will ask in vain.—Vancouver News-Advertiser.

TORTURED AND DISFIGURED

by skin trouble was the lot of Mr. M. Butler, of 67 Congress Street, Bridgeport, Conn. He writes:—

"For fifteen years I have used Zam-Buk for various ailments—always with the same satisfactory results. My most recent cure was that of 'Barber's Rash.' This rash appeared on my face, and spread quickly until my face was entirely covered with sores.

"Having used Zam-Buk with such success on previous occasions, I commenced applying it to my face. This great herbal healer soon ended the irritation. The inflammation was drawn out, and the sores began to disappear. I persevered with Zam-Buk, and my face is once again quite clear and smooth."

Zam-Buk is the cure for eczema, ringworm, scalp sores, ulcers, blood-poisoning, bad legs, and piles; and a safe, quick healer for cuts, scalds, burns, and all skin injuries. All druggists and stores, or Zam-Buk Co., Toronto. 50c. box.

NEWFOUNDLAND PROBLEM.

Great Shortage of Tonnage for Fish Exporting.

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld., March 12.—Newfoundland's fish exports are disturbed over the difficulty of obtaining enough vessels to market their product this year. The fisheries constitute the main industry of the colony, and in normal times a large fleet of schooners and small steamers is engaged throughout the autumn and winter in carrying to Europe and South America fish caught in the spring and summer and cured by being pickled and dried in the sun. The vessels trading principally with Portugal, Spain, Italy and Greece bring back cargoes of salt from Sicily and Spain.

Until recently the war has not seriously interfered with this trade, except for a temporary shutting off of the Greek market by the Entente blockade. Since January 1, however, six fish carrying vessels have been torpedoed off the Portuguese coast, and in the Mediterranean. Fishing agencies here have purchased all vessels at present available, but as the British Admiralty has requisitioned many steamers formerly used in the trade there is a growing shortage of tonnage. The trade will require at least 35,000 tons of salt to cure this year's catch of fish.

Sir Edward Morris, Premier of Newfoundland, who went to England recently to participate in the forthcoming imperial conference, carried with him strong representations from fish merchants and others as to the need of assistance from the Admiralty in solving the problem.

THE BURDEN OF AGE.

The kidneys seem to be about the first organs to wear out and fail to properly perform their work. The result is weak, lame, aching back, rheumatic pains and failing eyesight. Many people of advanced years have recovered health and comfort by using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. They assure the healthful action of liver, kidneys and bowels.

WOULD DEPOSE KING SPUD.

NEW YORK, March 10.—The advertisement given to the potato by its use in Germany is undeserved, in the opinion of Dr. Samuel G. Dixon, Health Commissioner of Pennsylvania. People eat potatoes, he says, largely through habit, and the tendency is to develop the custom of taking in an excess of starch with serious effect on the system. The matter he thinks, will assume even greater importance if this country goes to war and the withdrawal of great numbers of men from agricultural production results in the endeavour to take the national food supply in hand an produce great quantities of some simple and easily raised staple.

"Potatoes," says Dr. Dixon, "have 18 parts to the hundred of starch and sugar, (carbohydrates;) jellies and marmalades, 60 to 90 parts; rice, 79; buckwheat and barley, 77; hominy, 76; cracked wheat, 75; macaroni and spaghetti, 74; raisins, 68; oatmeal, 67; toast, 66; beans, 60; bread, 50 to 60; chocolate, 30; canned pears, 9; and dried peas, 62.

"In raising, the carbohydrates are mostly of the soluble variety known as sugars. In all the other foods mentioned the carbohydrates present are mainly starch.

"With these things in mind, it is not hard to think of the potato being knocked off its pedestal."

Washing Won't Rid Head of Dandruff

The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, get about four ounces of ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

Do this to-night, and by morning, most if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop at once, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive and never fails to do the work.

SIR HAIG'S MEN AT THE GATES OF BAPAUME

BRITISH ANTI-SUB MEASURE SUCCESSFUL

The British Troops Are Fighting At The Very Gates Of Bapaume

Making Their Advance Through the Last Lines of German Defense in a Blinding Down-pour of Rain and in a Sea of Mud--Ambassador Gerard Says Germans Are Enduring Hunger and Privations, Hoping Their U-Boat Campaign Will Win the War For Them.

A SUMMARY OF TO-DAY'S WAR CABLES

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

LONDON, March 15.—British troops are making their advance to the very gates of Bapaume in the face of a blinding downpour of rain and a sea of mud. To-day military experts estimated they must be fighting before the last line of the German defense of the city. Despatches from the front stated the German resistance was stiffening and that for the most part what was started as a pursuit by the British has now developed into a big British offensive.

(By Albert J. Bender, United Press Staff Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, March 15.—"Friedenssehnsucht," longing for peace, is a great deep-seated emotion of the German people to-day. With grim stolidness they are enduring hunger and privations of all kinds, confident that with their last and most ruthless war weapon, the U-boat, an end to the devastating European struggle may soon be accomplished. These are in substance the outstanding features of Ambassador Gerard's first report to Secretary Lansing and other Government officials on German conditions. There is another feature that Gerard conveyed of importance, that despite the food shortage and tottering financial structures of the Government, Germany will be able, unless there is a crop failure, to struggle through for another year by application of the most drastic self denial. No relaxation in the U-boat policy can be hoped for unless the inefficiency of the U-boat is proved beyond question. When this time arrives, peace is immediately before the world.

LONDON, March 15.—An expert of the British Board of Trade, basing conclusions on authoritative figures of the British Admiralty, declares that the British anti-submarine measures have attained a large measure of success. Germany has lost many of her trained and experienced submarine crews, he asserts by capture and otherwise, and the result must be singularly disappointing to those in Germany who really know the truth. During the first two weeks of unrestricted submarine warfare forty-eight British ships were sunk, and only twenty-nine in the second two weeks. The average losses to the British in February were seven per day, and in March to date, four per day.

OTTAWA, February 15.—Sir Thos. White is still ill and is not expected back at the Department of Finance before next week, but officials this morning stated that reports from all parts of the Dominion indicate that the victory war loan promises to be a big success.

PARIS (French Official), March 15.—There was very active artillerying in the region of Maisons Champagne. The French took many prisoners in a raid on the German lines in the region of Moulins Sous Tous Vents during the night, and repulsed several German attempts to raid the French outposts.

PETROGRAD, March 15.—Russian troops in Caucasus are pressing the Turks vigorously toward Banu, to-day's official report asserted. Kermanshas was captured after two days' battle, and the Russians are in hot pursuit of the retreating Turkish forces.

PARIS, March 15. — Admiral Lacaze, now Minister of Marine, will temporarily succeed Lyautey as Minister of War, it was announced to-day.

BERLIN, via Sayville Wireless, March 15.—An executive committee of the Russian Duma has accomplished a successful revolution in Russia, imprisoned all the ministers and now controls the Government, according to an official statement from Petrograd, issued by the Official Press Bureau to-day.

TORONTO, March 15.—The above despatch from Berlin is taken to indicate that a bloodless revolution in Russian pro-Germanism and bureaucracy has been stamped out by the representatives of the people. There is now no doubt of Russian loyalty to the Allies' cause, and the new Government promises well for the early victory to the Allies and peace to the world.

LONDON, March 15.—In asking additional credit of three hundred million dollars to-day, Bonar Law, Chancellor of the Exchequer, explained that the money was required largely for advances for Allies and overseas dominions, as well as munitions and shipping, and for Australian wheat.

ROME, March 15.—TThe occupation of Bucameze, Tripoli, by Italian forces, was announced to-day.

OTTAWA, Ont., March 15.—This afternoon the Canadian Council of Agriculture sitting at Regina, notified the Government by wire that in its opinion the price the British Government should pay for Canada's surplus wheat crop should be from a minimum of $1.50 to a maximum of $1.90 per bushel at Winnipeg. If delivery at Fort William is needed a flat rate of $1.50 is suggested. The British Government offered $1.30 f.o.b. Fort William.

TORONTO, March 15.—"The advantage of such a move, if it is true, rests with the Allies," said Prof. Jas. Mavoro, of the University of Toronto, in relation to the Russian revolution. "If the Duma has formed a provisional government it means that pro-German influence in the Empire has been crushed. The Government has been yielding to the influence of the Germans and has been opposed by the real Russians. The latest advices arrived from Russia were rather gloomy as far as the pro-Germans were concerned. The President of the Duma is a Russian and not a German, and that is a good sign."

PENSION GRANTED TO THE CHILDREN OF PETERBORO' SOLDIER

Pte. Albert W. Tamblin, Formerly of the 93rd Battalion, Who Died From Wounds on December 8th, Was a Widower and Left Three Children

TOTAL OF $432 PER YEAR

A pension has been awarded for the children of Pte. Albert W. Tamblin, who was killed in service Dec. 8th, 1916. Previous to this his wife had passed away. The children have been in the care of relatives, one child in the city and two with an aunt near Haliburton. An application for a pension for the children was made and considered by the Pension Board, with the above results. The pension amount is at $432.00 per year, payable to the guardian of the children, Mrs. Agnes Tamblin, 56 Victoria Avenue, city. This will work out at about $12.00 per month per child and will continue to be paid until the children are of ages of sixteen for a son and seventeen of a daughter. The closing up of this pension indicates to the public, who have to pay the pensions as a people, that the Pension Board is disposed to deal liberally in the cases of dependents of the men who have died in service, and which is quite right, and in line with the wishes of the people. The pension is all the recognition, if it may be termed such, that may come to these the soldiers have left behind, but it at least ensures that there will be no uncertainty to a subsistence for many years to come and until the children have grown to early manhood and womanhood.

SERGEANT BROWN APPOINTED CHIEF OF SUDBURY POLICE

Sergeant John Brown of the local police force, has been appointed chief of the Sudbury police at a salary of $1500, and will leave at the end of the month to assume his new duties. He has been the senior sergeant on the local police force and has given a good account of himself since coming to Peterborough. His experience here and in Scotland should serve him well in meeting the responsibilities of the Sudbury appointment. Sergt. Brown has lent strength and a certain dignity that is expected of those who are entrusted with the enforcement of the law. He knows the code as do few policemen and is particularly well versed in the new Temperance Act. His Peterborough friends, and he has many of them, will extend to him every wish for success in his new position.

VACANT LOTS ARE REGISTERED FOR TILLAGE

This is the fourth day of the anticipated registration with the City Clerk's office of lots and places available for tillage in the furtherance of the Greater Production Movement. One registration per day and one over for good luck.

In quantity of area the results are satisfactory. Making a sporting guess at the extent of the area and the probable willingness of men to take on a part for each, about eighty can be accommodated with portions. The ground is arable and will offer very little obstacle to cultivation. The larger blocks could be ploughed and harrowed and made tillable as a whole, very much better than if each man undertook to do his own.

Presently, and after the snow leaves the ground and the plots can be looked over the ploughing will be considered. Of course just now, and under the snow little can be seen of the state of the surface, so there is not much need for viewing the places with the idea of making selections.

It will be assumed that those giving the use of the land will expect that it be used conjointly, that is that the parts used be not scattered all over the area, but kept together. A scattering proposition would result in a ragged and not satisfactory work and appearance. If the plots are given fairly good attention a crop may be looked for with some certainty and a spirit of emulation may be stirred up that will be good. As to the question of applying manure each will have to decide for himself. It would not be well to manure a whole field and then have a part of it stand idle.

Below are defined the lots so far available. Any one proposing to use land can look the prospects over at leisure, and if willing to participate may register with the City Clerk the amount of area proposed to be used:

By D. W. Dumble—5 acres, lies south of Dumble avenue, east of old Chemong railway and west of Argyle street. A good location and one easily accessable to residents in the north ward.

By B. D. Hall—Northwest corner of Lake and George streets. Size 70 x 90 feet. This seems to be about our size and should have many takers. Don't all speak at once. But first come first served, is understood.

By R. J. Wolstenholme — Lots 34 and 35, also lot 26, Plan 120, Prince street, and lot 11, Plan 120, Lansdowne street. These lots are right in the right place. Easily reached by people living in the south ward. The ground is easily cultivated, a dry summer will not have serious effect. Just go down and pick out how much you will use. Use, remember, not take. Don't secure more than you can cultivate well and easily. Remember the story of the man with the hoe.

Further detail will be given of additional registrations. In a week or two the matter of preparing the land will be taken up and some plan arrived at.

PETERBORO' RETURNED SOLDIERS QUALIFYING FOR NEW POSITIONS

Ptes. R. H. Muir and G. Fallen to Take Terms in Technical School—Peter Robinson Chapter Make Donation to the Funds of Soldiers' Aid Commission—To-day's Orders and General Military News.

As the result of attention of the local Branch of the Soldier's Aid Commission two men returned from service have been assured of a change of occupation for the future that will place them, when the facility from training has been acquired, in position to gain a livelihood despite any hindrances due to service.

On Monday last Pte. R. H. Muir and Pte. G. Fallen were before the Vocational Board of the Commission, in Toronto, and arranged that each should enter on learning new occupations. Pte. Muir, who was wounded in the face, and who is a moulder by trade, and who is affected by the fumes incidental to the trade of casting, will have a term in the technical school and afterwards in a machine shop to qualify him as a machinist.

Pte. Fallen will take a course in training in mechanical dentistry, and hopes to qualify in that branch of dental service. In this case the course will be one of considerable length, before he can take up work as an assistant in a dental office. In the meantime the Board arranges for assistance to cover living expenses in the interval and until earning power is assured.

FOR SOLDIERS' AID.

The Secretary of the local Branch of the Soldiers' Aid was pleased and gratified this morning. He is as a matter of fact fairly well pleased each morning by the good things that a heap of excellent people are doing. All of these good efforts are not shown on the surface but are appreciated and remembered. Outside of grumbling at the City Council people are fairly well content to lend a hand. But the Council will presently change itself, and remonstrance will take a fresh grip and go after new objects and new hopes. However, all of this is a strict aside from the acknowledgement in hand.

Things are coming our way after a period of waiting. Miss Celia Dunsford, treasurer of the Peter Robinson Chapter, Independent Order Daughters of the Empire, (the name is printed in full as a well deserved concession to the Peter Robinson who was very early, nearly a hundred years ago, in fact, embroiled in the first doings in Peterborough, and to give the full name of the Chapter), handed in a cheque for $97.25, the avails from the entertainment given by the friends in the Turning Point evening in the Opera House. Fine. Positively munificent. It may be explained that "avails" is an English commercial word, and means what is left after everything in the way of expense has been paid. So the effort was well worked out to be able to preserve from the entrance fees such a sum.

It is gratefully acknowledged and will be used with discretion and care and will enable the Branch to do some things, held over for a lack of funds, the Branch hesitating to intrude its claim for recognition on the public while so many other patriotic purposes were in view. Some other gifts are in anticipation and of these due acknowledgement will be made.

Further Retirement Of German Forces

The Retreat of Prince Rupprecht's Troops, Begun For Strategic Purposes, Has Been Compelled to Continue Until It Has Almost Become a Rout.

GOUGH AGAIN ADVANCES

LONDON, March 14.—Bapaume, toward which British eyes have looked longingly since July of last year, may swarm with General Haig's soldiers before morning. Under the overwhelming pressure of the British advanced units, the Germans are still retreating from the region around the stronghold. The retirement of Prince Rupprecht's troops, begun for strategic purposes, has been compelled to continue until it has almost become a rout. Gough's troops advanced their line to-day along a front of three miles to the west and south-west of Bapaume. The operation consisted of three thrusts. The first won new positions on a front of a mile and a quarter south of Achiet-le-Petit; the second resulted in the capture of a thousand yards of enemy trenches south-west of Essarts, on the extreme left wing of the Ancre line; the third cleared the German works for a mile and a half immediately to the west of Bapaume.

The latest British success spells the downfall not only of Bapaume, but of Essarts, Bucquoy and Achiet-le-Petit.

Official Statement.

The official report from British Headquarters in France to-night reads:

"North of the Ancre Valley our line advanced on a front of over one and a half miles southwest and west of Bapaume. We also made further progress on a front of over two thousand yards south of Achiet-le-Petit, and occupied a thousand yards of hostile trench southwest of Essarts, northeast of Gommecourt.

"During the day an enemy raiding party northeast of Arras failed to reach our lines. Last night a party of troops raided enemy trenches east of Armentieres.

"We carried out effective bombardments to-day against enemy positions north of the Somme and east of Arras, where two explosions were caused by our fire. There has been considerable artillery activity east of Armentieres and in the Ypres sectors."

What Germans Say.

The German official statement reads:

"North of Armentieres British detachments were driven away by our fire. In the Ancre sector the British attacked in the afternoon without artillery preparation between Achiet-le-Petit and Grevillers, and at night, after strong fire, on both sides of Bucquoy. They were repulsed with heavy losses, and left fifty prisoners in our hands."

THE BOARD OF WORKS ACCEPTS TENDER OF IMPERIAL OIL CO.

For Road Oil to Be Used on Streets This Summer—Also May Build a Storage Tank

IN THE CITY YARD

The tender of the Imperial Oil Company of Montreal for the supply of road oil this summer at 7.85 cents a gallon was accepted by the Board of Works last night and chairman Weir instructed to close the contract for the year's requirements of from 25,000 to 50,000 gallons. Tenders were also received from the Crown Oil Co., Canadian Tar Products, Crescent Oil Co., British American Oil Co., and others.

Mayor Duffus suggested that Tarvis B be tried out on Homewood Ave., or some other prepared road. Ald. Weir replied that the best streets were in Ashburnham and since he is Chairman of the Board it wouldn't be surprising if Rogers street was medium of the experiment.

WANT OIL TANK.

Ald. Weir urged the erection of an oil tank this year. The Crown Oil steel tanks of about 18,000 gallons capacity can be bought for $1,200. Mr. Parsons stated that a concrete tank could be built in the city's yard behind the incinerator providing a gravity system of unloading the tank cars and also from the storage tank into the street sprayers. He was authorised to prepare an estimate of the cost of a 10,000 gallon concrete tank.

Sudden Death Of Porter S. White

Well Known Local Grocer Passed Away This Morning

Mr. Porter S. White died this morning at the family residence, 511 Stewart street.

Mr. White has not been in the best of health since four years ago, when he had a stroke, but has been going about his duties, and was at his store late last night.

This morning he rose at seven o'clock, seemingly as well as usual. He went into another room, and on returning tried to speak to Mrs. White, but found speech difficult. He however, managed to tell her of a severe pain in the back of his head and that he thought he had had another stroke. Dr. Moir was immediately summoned, but all efforts to save Mr. White proved futile and he died at ten o'clock.

Mr. White was born in Bailieboro fifty-four years ago and was the son of the late Samuel White. He resided in Lindsay for some years before coming to Peterborough in 1899, where he has been prominently identified in the business world, having for eighteen years conducted a successful grocery business. He was a faithful member of the Murray street Baptist church and took an active interest in all church work. He is survived by his wife, formerly Letitia C. Barnard, and two children, Roy and Louise. Four brothers, Joseph of Centreville, John, Thomas and James, and one sister, Minnie, of Bailieboro. His mother, residing at Bailieboro, also survive.

The funeral announcement will be made later.

SKATING TO-NIGHT NO BAND

Band To-morrow Night and Saturday Night

There will be skating at Brock street to-night, but no band; the admission is only 10 cents. To-morrow (Friday) night, there will be band, as well as on Saturday night. Skating days are nearly over for this season, but the ice is still good.

Is the name of the splendid new serial which commences at the Strand Theatre, Thursday, Friday and Saturday of this week. It was written by George B. Seitz, the author of "The Iron Claw," which concludes this week. Don't miss the first episode. We know this serial will prove every bit as interesting as "The Iron Claw."

THURSDAY, MARCH 15, 1917

"O, CANADA!"

A member of the Women's Canadian Club at Ottawa, writes to the local press. She says:

At the beginning of the war we were so proud of our boys at the front—we were so proud of the generosity of our people—we were so proud of the strength that our Government showed in taking hold of the situation that in the Ottawa Women's Canadian Club we sang "O Canada" as a tributet to our country. Have we now lost pride in our boys? Have we now lost pride in the generosity of our people? Have we now lost pride in the part our Government has played in this great world struggle that at the club without any discussion being allowed the members, the singing of "O Canada" has been given up?

This may seem a trifling circumstance, but it has tremendous import. What is called the "morale" of an army is universally regarded by commanders, as well as common people, as its most vitally important equipment. It is the nerve centre, the solar plexus that gives vitality, energy and effectiveness to physical fitness.

The Ottawa instance seems to indicate that the national morale is deteriorating—that we are becoming weary in well doing.

The Government, giving it credit for all it has done in the past, is not now showing an interest in one of the most vital elements of national service—recruiting. Our soldiers at the front, fighting like fiends, and winning glory galore for themselves and Canada, are waiting in vain for reinforcing drafts. The Government, which, since the beginning, has taken an ineffective and perfunctory official interest in recruiting, has now withdrawn the chief national help it gave recruiting by withdrawing money aid to forming battalions, an action that seems to be likely to give the finishing touch to voluntary recruiting methods—unless it is overgome.

This indicates that the morale of the Government is at a low ebb, and that this condition tends to reaction upon the national morale. If a commanding officer of a regiment shows funk or indifference, his influence is bound to react on his men and their morale is affected.

Has not the attitude of the Government toward recruiting had to do with deterioration of the national morale? The slacker and the shirker thrive in the atmosphere of Government indifference to recruiting. They chuckle with yellow glee—"we're not the only slackers." The Government promised 500,000 soldiers to the cause of empire and humanity. We haven't "delivered the goods," and we are not likely to do so, unless a new spirit comes to the Government and it gives a cue to national action in the matter of recruiting.

The Government has no right to consider conscription yet. That is a last resort and not to be thought of till every other means is exhausted. We are trying hard to recruit regiments to strength by the voluntary system. This system cannot be thoroughly applied without means to give it an exhaustive trial. In the last stages, those really interested in recruiting, commanding officers and their aides, and others, need money. With reasonable financial means they could give the voluntary system the thorough trial it cannot get without means. This form of means has been denied or withdrawn.

Why does the Government take this attitude—not this time, of indifference, as heretofore—but of absolute obstruction to recruiting?

We don't know to what extent the failure of action and aid to effective recruiting operates as a discouragement and humiliation to the people of Canada. Canada has done much, and we were proud of her, and we could sing "O Canada" with meaning and enthusiasm. Now we don't feel like it when we see Canada "falling down" at the finish, collapsing with the winning wire in sight. We have raised about four and a half hundred thousand soldiers by voluntary effort—and without much official help from the Government. If, in the past, the Government had shown as much official interest in recruiting as it has shown indifference, we should, no doubt, have had our full 500,000 of soldiers enrolled. Then, in regard to this one great matter, we wouldn't be too discouraged, too down cast, to sing "O Canada" with full pride of spirit, full joy of heart and fortissimo.

STOP THE BIG LEAK.

The report of the Provincial Secretary summarized in recent Toronto despatches, shows that throughout the province the operation of the Ontario Temperance Act, in the six months since September 16th, has shown its value in decreasing drunkenness — and that, only sporadic drunkenness, not popular drunkenness. Since September 16, 1916, the average citizen never sees a drunken man—its only the lynx-eyed policeman who is on the look-out that encounters him.

It is to be remembered, too, that under prohibition, offences in the way of drinking that passed without police notice, under a license law, become punishable offences.

It is safe to say that if the provisions of the Ontario Temperance Act that destroy its prohibitive intent and spirit were removed there would be almost complete paralysis of the drink traffic and consequent almost total elemination of drunkenness, and their numerous resultant evils.

But the law permits the importation of strong drink and that is its weak point or rather its strong drink point. This session of the legislature steps should be taken to amend the Temperance Act. If Premier Borden is right in saying that the province has the power to prevent importation that power should be used. That action, apart altogether from moral grounds, would be justified on economic gorunds. As a matter of fact the province has surrendered a big block of revenue by cutting off liquor licenses. While compensation, to a very large extent, comes in the saving of the popular means, formerly wasted on drink, still the compensation could be increased, negatively at least, by preventing the sending out of large sums of money to Montreal and Buffalo and Windsor, to pay for imported grog, contrary to the prohibitory spirit of the Ontario Temperance Act, and the chief if not only bad and unsatisfactory feature of it.

The United States, though too proud to fight Germany, is not too proud to declare war on King Alcohol. Last month at Washington a law was passed—four to one—making it a criminal offence to ship strong drink into a state in which its manufacture and sale was by state enactment made unlawful.

The true friends of temperance, the true philanthropists who consider for a moment the wefare of their fellows; the true economists, who value the financial and material welfare of the province, are interested in seeing that the Ontario Temperance Act has a fair trial, in view of the verdict to be returned in 1919. To have a fair trial its principles must not be antagonised by the defect of its prohibitory object in the form of permissive importation of strong drink. The big leak should be stopped; dammed legally as it is sentimentally.

COL. WILLIAMS AND COMPULSION

CALGARY, Alta., March 15—Lieut. Col. Williams, chief recruiting officer, before leaving with his party for the east issued a statement to the local press, denying that he ever said conscription was coming. He further more says no member of his party was warranted in making a similar statement. Col. Williams said he did speak to the effect that the voluntary system was on its last legs, and urged men to enlist and save Canada any compulsory measure.

REGRET RUSSIAN ACTION.

View of British Observers on the Closing of the Duma.

LONDON, March 14.—In the view of British observers, the Czar has taken an unusually drastic step in proroguing sessions of the Duma, and of the Imperial Council, in order to deal with food demonstrations, which according to unusually detailed reports, have not been of any marked degree of seriousness.

The Daily Telegraph commented that it would be regretted that such action had been taken, since it was to be marked heretofore that the Duma constituted the "safety valve" of public feeling; its sessions period of unity, and the days of its prorogation periods of eclipse.

ORIENTAL HOTEL PETERBOROUGH

THIRTY THOUSAND SALOONS TO CLOSE

British Brewers Co-operate in Solving Liquor Restriction Problem

LONDON, March 14—Thirty thousand saloons in Great Britain will probably be closed during the next few months, according to the Mail. The measure is proposed as a solution of the difficulty arising from the compulsory restriction of the beer output, and the brewers are stated to be in practical agreement with the Government in regard to the remedy.

The closing of the saloon is said to have been suggested by some of the brewers, themselves. They contended that there were too many distributing agencies and that a third of them could be suppressed without inconveniencing the public, while such a step would enable the liquor trade to be conducted more economically. The arrangement seems to be in brief a pooling agreement between the rival brewers which own the public houses. The brewers have been conferring recently with the home office and the recommendations drafted at these conferences will be submitted to a general meeting of brewers.

INDIA ENFORCING WAR ECONOMIES

COAL AND OTHER COMMODITIES BEING CONSERVED, AND BIG CONTRIBUTIONS MADE TO ENGLAND.

DELHI, India, March 14.—India is daily assuming a greater share of the burden of the war, and it is becoming less and less possible to say that she is not playing her part in the great struggle. The energies of the leading officials of the central Indian Government are now practically confined to war questions.

Orders have been issued forbidding any women or children to sail for England except for the most urgent reasons, and the Government is preparing to publish an edict that no further import of foodstuffs, except a few minor essentials, from England to India shall be allowed.

The railway service in India has been curtailed by 700,000 train miles per month in order to save the wear and tear on rolling stock. Coal economies are being practised not only by the railways, but by the State, by the Viceroy and by private companies and individuals generally. The cutting off of all extravagance in domestic life is constantly being emphasized and enforced.

An example of patriotism has just been set by the Cawnpore Woollen Mills Company, which has turned over to the Government £23,000, its estimated extra war profits, besides investing its entire reserve fund of £200,000 in the war loan.

The Government's announcement of compulsory military training for all Europeans in India has met with a quick response. Along the same lines is the new Department of Munitions, under Sir Thomas Holland, which is mobilizing the industrial and natural resources of the country for the assistance of the mother country. A heavy increase in the present output of munitions and equipment will be shown within a few months.

The development of forestry and agriculture is being attended to by a committee of experts under Sir Claude Hill. The import of automobiles was prohibited last month, and economies in petrol consumption are being enforced rigidly. An additional duty of 8 annas per gallon is to be imposed shortly to assist in controlling the petrol question.

Meanwhile gifts for war purposes continue to flow in from all classes of the population. Large monetary contributions have been received during the last few weeks from several of the native Princes. The chiefs of the district of Gurdaspur have given airplanes, the Maharaja of Indore has sent 900 tons of grass, and the Maharaja of Bikanir has raised three new companies for the Indian Camel and tear in order to save thepuuu Corps.

When the scrip certificates have been paid in full and payment endorsed thereon by the bank receiving the money, they may be exchanged for bonds, when prepared, with coupons attached, payable to bearer or registered as to principal, or for fully registered bonds, when prepared, without coupons, in accordance with the application.

Delivery of scrip certificates and of bonds will be made through the chartered banks.

The issue will be exempt from taxes—including any income tax—imposed in pursuance of legislation enacted by the Parliament of Canada.

The bonds with coupons will be issued in denominations of $100, $500, $1,000. Fully registered bonds without coupons will be issued in denominations of $1,000, $5,000 or any authorized multiple of $5,000.

The interest on the fully registered bonds will be paid by cheque, which will be remitted by post. Interest on bonds with coupons will be paid on surrender of coupons. Both cheques and coupons, at the option of the holder, will be payable free of exchange at any branch in Canada of any chartered bank, or at the Agency of the Bank of Montreal, New York City.

Subject to the payment of twenty-five cents for each new bond issued, holders of fully registered bonds without coupons will have the right to convert into bonds of the denomination of $1,000 with coupons, and holders of bonds with coupons will have the right to convert into fully registered bonds of authorized denominations without coupons at any time on application to the Minister of Finance.

The books of the loan will be kept at the Department of Finance, Ottawa.

Application will be made in due course for the listing of the issue on the Montreal and Toronto Stock Exchanges.

Recognized bond and stock brokers having offices and carrying on business in Canada will be allowed a commission of three-eighths of one per cent on allotments made in respect of applications bearing their stamp, provided, however, that no commission will be allowed in respect of the amount of any allotment paid for by the surrender of bonds issued under the War Loan prospectus of 22nd November, 1915, or in respect of the amount of any allotment paid for by surrender of five per cent debenture stock maturing 1st October, 1919. No commission will be allowed in respect of applications on forms which have not been printed by the King's Printer.

SUBSCRIPTION LISTS WILL CLOSE ON OR BEFORE THE 23rd OF MARCH, 1917.

DEPARTMENT OF FINANCE, OTTAWA, March 12th, 1917.

HIGH HEELS PUT CORNS ON TOES

Tells Women how to dry up a Corn so it lifts out without pain.

Modern high-heeled footwear buckles the toes and produces corns, and many of the thousands of hospital cases of infection and jockjaw are the result of woman's suicidal habit of trying to cut away these painful pests.

For little cost there can be obtained, at any pharmacy a quarter of an ounce of a drug called freesone, which is sufficient to rid one's feet of every hard or soft corn or callus without the slightest danger or inconvenience.

A few drops applied directly upon the tender, aching corn stops the soreness and shortly the entire corn root, and all, lifts right out. It is a sticky substance, which dries the moment it is applied, and thousands of men and women use it because the corn shrivels up and comes out without inflaming or even irritating the surrounding tissue or skin. Cut this out and try it if your corns bother you.

To Make Hairs Vanish From Face, Neck or Arms

Keep a little powdered delatone handy and when hairy growths appear make a paste with some of the powder and a little water, then spread over hairy surface. After 2 or 3 minutes rub off, wash the skin and it will be entirely free from hair or blemish. This simple treatment is unfailing, but care should be exercised to be sure and get genuine delatone, otherwise you may be disappointed.

A Grand Orchestra And Ladies' Choir

Render Ideal Accompaniment to "Intolerance"—Plan Opens To-morrow

In the conception of Intolerance David W. Griffith set himself a tremendous task. He alone could have succeeded, and in the superb successor to the Birth of a Nation, he has more than justified popular estimation that he stands alone, unique and on the highest pinnacle of the moving picture world.

Intolerance is an ambitious production even for theis period. It surpasses the Birth of a Nation in the number and magnificence of its scenes.

The producer has the happy faculty of lightning speed, an absolute necessity with scenes so stupendous. He has the genius for playing on the strings of the human heart.

An implacable mirror is being held up to the curse of the ages. Intolerance driving Christ to the Cross. Intolerance murdering the Huguenots. Intolerance causing Babylon to fall. Intolerance driving the modern man to prison, and almost to the gallows.

Half the success of David Griffith's productions lies to the credit of the orchestra, which is quite unlike anything Toronto is accustomed to hear. It seems to be the ideal accompaniment of the pictures. There are thirty pieces under Conductor H. B. Soper and a small choir which sings behind the scenes from time to time. Beautiful, tender, old melodies that play upon the heart strings bring home the scenes of sadness with added force. Stirring, triumphant, martial music accompany the scenes of blood, thunder and battle. During the scenes in the temple the Priestess Chorus from Aida is sung by the choir. Selections from a Tschaikowsky symphony are elaborately rendered. The only thing in which David Griffith has failed in Intolerance is in pointing out his moral. The marvelous spectacular quality of the production costs the lesson it traces in the background.

THE CHORUS IN THE NEW MUSICAL COMEDY "THE MILLION DOLLAR DOLL" AT "THE GRAND" NEXT SATURDAY FOR TWO PERFORMANCES.

A decided improvement over the ordinary musical comedy is "The Million Dollar Doll," Harvey D. Orr's production, which will be the next big attraction at "The Grand" Saturday matinee and night, March 17th. This new musical comedy has a well defined love romance woven through the play and the music was written especially for and fitted to the play, rather than dragged into it, as incidental music, which is so common in the general makeup of musical comedies. "The Million Dollar Doll" takes you through many beautiful and novel scenes. The famous cabaret at the home of Col. Barrington, in New York City, the trip through the Panama Canal on board the big ocean liner, the now famous "Joy Zone" at the Panama Exposition and the illumination of the Tower of Jewels, all make scenes of unparalleled splendour. A company of 40 people in clever dances, tuneful songs, rousing ensembles and witty dialogue, make you forget all your troubles and think that life is worth living again. One of the big features is the New York Winter Garden success, the illuminated runway over the heads of the audience.

$5 FINE ON DILATORY SNOW-PLOUGHMAN UPHELD BY BOARD

Ed. Ferguson Failed to Cover the Northwest District Satisfactorily on the Morning of the Recent Heavy Fall—Other Details of Board of Works Meeting.

A pleasant and profitable, hence a satisfactory meeting of the Board of Works last night was written into the minutes. No weighty problems presented perplexities. It was just a routine fare as light as the oyster stew with which the Council refreshes itself on special occasions such as the tabulating of the estimates after weeks of "serious consideration."

Alderman Weir, presiding, first introduced Mr. Edward Ferguson, snow-plowing contractor for the northwest district. Mr. Ferguson had been fined $5 for alleged dilatoriness in fighting the heaviest snow storm of the winter a few days ago, and had reached the conclusion that this tangible censure was not justified in view of the circumstances which he elucidated. He had two snow plows in his yard and had engaged a man named Brown to assist him. In fact he paid Brown $2. Mr. Ferguson went over the district which he completed by 9:30 a.m., but Brown was a tardy workman and did not appear until the afternoon. Ferguson waited in order to detail him to certain streets, and as result both were late in giving the district the second treatment.

Street Commissioner Evans stated that the route should have been covered twice that morning. It snowed so heavily between 7 a.m. and 11 a.m. that the first path was filled soon after it had been cleared. Ferguson had two plows for such emergencies, and it was his duty to see that they were working. On several other occasions he had been late getting out to work, and this fine was intended to stir him up. It was the only goad the department could use on tardy snow-plowers.

Alderman Duncan moved, seconded by Alderman Smith, that no action be taken on Mr. Ferguson's complaint.

An Ashburnham Request.

Mr. Harry Gainey, of Ashburnham, requested that a catch basin be provided at the corner of Driscoll Terrace and Cricket Place to carry off the surface water that collects there.

Alderman Duncan moved, seconded by Alderman Saunders, that the Chairman and City Engineer be given power to act in providing the relief requested.

Says Sewer Freezes.

John Menogue, Driscoll street, complained that the sewer was so shallow it froze. This was laid over for further information.

No Contract for Castings.

In view of the fact that only a few manhole tops and crossing gratings are required, it was decided to dispense with contracts this year and secure the castings from the local foundries when they are needed.

Sewer Pipe Contract.

H. B. Taylor Sons' tender for sewer pipe disclosed another advance in prices. The discounts offered were 67½ per cent. on pipe from 4 to 12 inches, and 65 per cent. on 15 to 18 inches.

City Engineer Parsons stated that the discount last year was 70 per cent., an advance of 5 per cent., and the list price is 30 per cent. higher.

This was the only tender received. It was accepted.

No tenders were received for supplies of cement. H. B. Taylor and Sons, and the Peterborough Hardware Co. wrote that they could offer quotations to obtain until January 1 next, but not from January 1 to March 15, 1918. The Board will advertise for tenders for a supply of cement until the end of 1917.

Safeguards City's Interest.

The city's ownership of the unopened section of Rubidge street between London and McDonnell streets was covered in an agreement prepared by City Solicitor Gordon between the Council and the R.C. Episcopal Corporation which the Board of Works approved. It will be embodied in a by-law and presented to the Council. This right of way extends through the grounds of St. Vincent's Orphanage and forms the eastern boundary of Mr. D. W. Dumble's property. The agreement provides for the payment of a yearly lease for the sum of $1 to be terminated at any time upon three months' notice. Alderman Dobbin moved, seconded by Alderman Saunders, the approval of the agreement.

New Telephone Poles.

Three Bell Telephone poles on the south side of King street between George and Aylmer streets were recommended by City Engineer Parsons in a communication to the Board. He said he believed they had already been erected. The aldermen recognized the mere formality of their sanction and let it go at that.

Do You Know

That the house at Cana in Galilee, are prohibition religions and yet they have not brought about perfection?

That the Mohammedan and Hindu as shown in the picture, is made of real stone; these stones being selected with great care to reproduce the color and appearance of those in ancient Jerusalem?

That the Hill of Calvary was built so as to reproduce accurately the formation of the real hill or place at Golgotha for the play of "INTOLERance"?

That the costumes of the French period were hand-embroidered?

That the streets, wherein occurs the massacre in the last act, and before the Palace of the Louvre, were paved after cobble stones from wood-cuts of the period?

That the modern story in D. W. Griffith's "INTOLERANCE" is based on facts?

That the principal stockholders in a large mill were turning over their dividends to a charity foundation and were advertising their philanthropy while their employees, who were paid $1.60 a day, were striking for living wages, and that nineteen workingmen were killed in one week of that strike?

That the automobile race after the governor's train, as shown in "INTOLERANCE" was duplicated in real life by Misha Appelbanm, head of the Humanitarian Cult, in New York State, last August, when he pursued Governor Whitman's train for sixty miles, and that while he was asking for a pardon the electrodes were being prepared for the execution of Stielow?

That children are seldom taken away from mothers without the mother first being over-powered?

$25,000,000 Orders For Canada's New Ship Industry

OTTAWA, March 15.—The new programme of shipbuilding which has been initiated in Canada by the British Government through the agency of the Imperial Munitions Board is already under way. It is learned that ships now under construction at Montreal by the Canadian Vickers Co., and also on the Pacific coast for Norwegian interests are being taken over in connection with the new plan, while contracts for new ships over and above the twenty-five millions of orders already placed are in process of negotiations.

Apart from the Canadian Vickers Co., the Canada Steamships Co., the Polson and Thor Works, of Toronto, the Collingwood Shipbuilding Co., the Port Arthur Dock and Shipbuilding Co. and the shipbuilding concerns at Vancouver and Victoria are all in the negotiations, and within the past week representatives from these different companies have been successively in conference with the Munitions Board. It is also learned that three steel ships are being built by the Nova Scotia Steel Co., though they were not started in connection with the British Government's plans.

Yards on Atlantic Coast

Crafts of various sizes are adapted to various uses are to be constructed to the extent of the orders as previously pointed out, depending wholly upon the capacity of Canadian yards to turn out what is required. J. W. Norcoss, of Montreal, head of the Canada Steamships Company, is, through the Munitions Board, directing a part of the work. It is understood that the big yards which are in contemplation by companies of Montreal and Toronto capitalists will be located on the Atlantic coast.

Shell Orders Dropping.

The new line of activity in steel construction comes at an opportune time. The Imperial Munitions Board in the past two or three years has handled munition contracts up in the hundreds of millions. The munition business in Canada is not going to cease now, as is the condition reported in the United States shell industry, but the volume of this year promises considerable diminution. It is understood that future orders will be confined to the smaller sizes of shells.

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Dear Sir,—Critics are the curse of Peterborough, and the Mayor of Our Town is right when he jumps on them for lying in bed and running the War. It is high time that this everlasting blather by people who are side-stepping everything they can side-step, the War included, was stopped by somebody, and the Mayor of Our Town is doing it to the King's taste. Hurrah for the Old Country.

Yours truly,
CORKER.

WILL ASK CITY TO BRING LECTURER TO PETERBOROUGH

Horticultural Society Decides to Ask the Mayor to Have Representative of Ontario Department of Education Come to City

A meeting of the Executive of the Horticultural Society was held last evening at the office of Roland Denne at which it was decided that a committee be appointed to confer with the Mayor with the object of having the city ask the Ontario Department of Agriculture to have their lecturer on 'Vacant Lots' and 'Backyard Gardening' come to Peterborough at an early date on the invitation of the city.

The meeting expressed its willingness to co-operate with the City Council and other organizations in the city in this matter.

It was decided to advertise for a caretaker for Victoria Park as well as for the supplying and planting of the plants in the park.

The Park Committee is greatly disappointed at not being able to induce the City Council to make the full amount of the grant this year, but the best that can be done under the circumstances will be accomplished.

CORSETS EQUAL SHOES---

THE woman of fashion has as many corsets as she has shoes, and changes her corset as often as she changes her toilette. This may sound extravagant, but it really is not, for corsets that are worn interchangeably and 'rested' from the heat and friction of the body, last much longer than corsets worn continuously.

The skilled maid prolongs the life of a fine Corset, by smoothing out the fabric, if it is wrinkled anywhere, as soon as the corset is removed. Then it is thoroughly aired before being returned to its sachet covering.

DUTIES.

Orderly Officer for Thursday, March 15th, 1917—Lieut. J. M. Shook.

Next for Duty, Friday, March 16th 1917—Lieut. C. G. Shaw.

A. E. BRITTAIN, Lieut. Adj. 247th O. S. Battalion, C. E. F.

ST. CATHARINES, March 14.—The veteran volunteers of 1866, meeting here, have passed a resolution to the effect that the time has come when, in their opinion, the authorities should cause mobilization of our militia force under the militia act, so as to relieve men now in uniform for overseas service. These old warriors also express regret over the supineness of a large number of young Canadians, and suggested that the police keep a record of young men who flit to the United States to avoid service.

Mr. Jas. Houlihan of Peterborough returned to the city yesterday from Montreal, having been discharged on account of physical unfitness from the Skilled Railway Employees Section, C. E. F., which has gone overseas. Mr. Houlihan enlisted with the unit in Lindsay as a carpenter. The section, as its name would imply, is composed of expert railway men, engineers, firemen and shop mechanics, and the men are being sent to France to operate the railways being built by the Railway Construction Battalions.

Lieut. Sparks, who is here recruiting for a Forestry Battalion for the Canadian Expeditionary Force, is pleased with the prospects in this city. Expert foresters and mill hands are required for this branch of the service, but the medical tests have been lowered. The work of the Forestry units is of prime importance, in view of the fact that the importation of timber into Great Britain is prohibited and the forests of Great Britain and France are being sacrificed to supply the deficiency. There is where the Canadian Foresters are needed and the Imperial authorities have asked Canada to supply 5,000 more men for this branch of the service. The Canadian Forestry Battalion, already overseas, are doing great work. Lieut. Sparks may be found at the Oriental Hotel.

R. C. H. A. Recruiting.

Sergt. Hill and Bomb. Loraine of the Royal Canadian Horse Artillery, Kingston, are in Peterborough in search of recruits for the famous C Battery which has sent so many artillerymen to the front. To the young man who wants to join the Artillery the R.C.H.A. affords peculiar advantages. The unit has not done much recruiting in Peterborough, but expect this city to make a good showing. Sergt. Hill and Bomb. Loraine are at the Oriental Hotel.

Ptes. Norman H. Green, of Buckhorn, and Andrew Percy Mather, of Otonabee, were taken on the strength of the 247th Battalion this morning.

A PHOTOGRAPH.

I picked it up where the dead man lay,
Upon a blood-stained plain, trampled and torn by war's grim feet,
Sodden and soaked with rain.
And I gazed upon a dimpled face, and eyes that smiled at me—
A picture of a laughing babe, that smiled so tenderly.

And I thought of the soldier who hurried away,
With a kiss for the mother and babe that lay
Smiling and dimpling, and chuckling with glee.
Unconscious, thank God, of the tragedy
That was taking his daddy far over the sea.

And I prayed as I stood on that blood-stained plain,
Trampled and iron and sodden with rain;
I prayed that the owner, whoever he be,
Would return again from over the sea,
To the baby that smiled so tenderly.

The following letters have been received by the Canadian Kitchener League:

France, Feb. 16, 1917.

On behalf of myself and Peterborough members in my platoon I would like to thank you for the fine parcel that I received from you this morning. I received your letter saying you were forwarding the parcel, some time ago, and I waited until I received the parcel. There are five other members in this platoon who come from Peterborough so I shared the socks among them and gave them the address that was in the parcel, so I guess Mrs. Knox will receive letters from them in due course. If you only knew how much we boys appreciate these kindnesses that we get from the friends at home you would be fully repaid for the hard work you all do for us. A fellow out there really needs to change his socks every other day, to keep his feet in decent condition. Please excuse this note if it appears short, but as news is so scarce we really have nothing to write about. Again, thank you and the workers of the Canadian Kitchener League. Believe me,

Yours very sincerely,
GEORGE MELTON, (Pte.)

France, Feb. 16.

Please accept and extend to the other ladies of the Canadian Kitchener league my most grateful thanks on behalf of the Signal Section, R. C. R., for your kind gift of socks, received to-day: There were enough to go all around, with two extra pairs which I kept for my own use. Socks, I may say, are greatly appreciated over here. One has to change very often.

Please thank the ladies of the League for their kind wishes.

Yours sincerely,
HAROLD SCOTT,

MR J. C. KELLS OF MILLBROOK DIED THIS MORNING

Met with an Automobile Accident Last Summer from which he Never Recovered

After a life of usefulness and devotion to the interests and welfare of the village of Millbrook, in which he had lived for forty-five years, Mr. John Christopher Kells died this morning, aged 62 years. Mr. Kells met with an automobile accident last August and while his injuries were not considered very serious at the time, his nerves were affected and he failed to rally, death being due to a collapse of the nervous system. He was a son of the late John Kells and was born in Lindsay in 1855.

Deceased was senior member of the firm of Kells, Fowler & Co., general merchants in Millbrook. For many years he had taken a forward movement in all matters pertaining to the welfare of Millbrook and surrounding district. He had served on the council for a number of years and had held the office of reeve with distinction for several terms, many improvements for the village being due to his initiative. He was a member of the J. B. Hall Lodge, A. F. & A.M. and a past master of the lodge and a member of the Grand Lodge. An Anglican in religion, the late Mr. Kells had been an active and ardent member of St. Thomas' church where he had served as church warden.

He was universally esteemed and in his death Millbrook has lost one of its most distinguished citizens.

Surviving are his widow, two daughters, Miss Anna Kells at home and Mrs. Sims of Barrie, and one brother, Richard Kells, formerly a merchant in Peterborough, now residing in Toronto.

The funeral will be held from the family residence in Millbrook on Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Interment at St. John's cemetery, Cavan.

HIGH CLASS OF APPLICANTS FOR WOMEN'S BATTALION

Yesterday's Mail Brought to Mr. J. H. Burnham, M.P., Letters of Enquiry From Nova Scotia to Vancouver—Applicants Are Mostly Business Girls Holding Responsible Positions—Copy of a Letter.

Appended is a letter taken from a number received by Mr. J. H. Burnham, M.P., in connection with the proposal to recruit Canadian women for service at home and abroad. The letter is a fair representation of the majority of the six hundred or more letters received by Mr. Burnham from women who are willing to serve in any capacity the authorities might name. A large number of the applicants are business girls and judging by the letterheads and general tone of their letters, are a very fine type of Canadian womanhood.

The Letter.

The letter, which was received this morning, reads as follows:

Listowel, Ont.,
March 14, 1917.

Captain Burnham,
Peterborough, Ont.

Dear Sir,—I am pleased to note by this morning's paper that you are not relaxing your efforts to utilize the woman power of Ontario in the great cause to which we are devoted.

It is a source of great grief to me and to many others that so much force and energy are left idle and uncalled for where there are so many and great needs. If you can organize and use the will and the ability of all the voluntary workers who would rally to your call, you would be one of the greatest national benefactors Canada has produced. If British women have been able to accomplish so much and in such a splendid manner, there is no reason why we in Canada should not emulate their example.

If there is anything I can do in any way or in any place, I shall be only too glad to dedicate myself, and all that is in me, to prove our worth.

Yours very truly,
(Signed) — Adelaide T. Clayton.

OVER 600 RECEIVED.

Two days ago Mr. Burnham forwarded to Ottawa the names of six hundred or more Canadian women from Vancouver to Halifax, who would be willing to serve their King and country. Yesterday's mail alone brought letters from Nova Scotia, Vancouver, Newfoundland, Winnipeg, Port Arthur, Toronto and Saskatchewan.

Union Bank Cup Offered For District Curling Contest

Mr. J. R. McKelvie, of Norwood, is in the city to-day for a conference with the local Curling Club executive with respect to the arrangement of a series of games for the Union Bank Cup. This trophy was presented to the Norwood club by the Union Bank for district games, but the McKelvie-Finlay curlers have been without ice this winter and their only games have been away from home. Hence Mr. McKelvie proposes to the Peterborough Club a series of games between clubs in this county, including Keene, Hastings, Norwood, Peterborough and Lakefield. It was suggested that none of the local Tankard or District Cup curlers be permitted to compete. The games should result in bringing the district curlers close together and an effort may be made to hold the games next week.

CAN'T KILL SLOAN HAMILTON GOAL KEEPER

It takes something quite out of the ordinary to put Frank Sloan, the goal keeper of the Hamilton intermediate champions down and out. He fell a distance of eighteen feet while removing storm windows at his home in Hamilton and escaped with minor bruises.

From 1913 until this season Sloan was absent from hockey circles. He was attending to the more serious business of defeating the Huns, and while thus engaged he was wounded. He enlisted in August, 1914, and in the famous St. Julien battle was wounded in the right arm, left hip and left leg, besides being gassed. From April 23, 1915 until December of the same year he was in hospital, finally being discharged and sent home.

Peterboro' Pure Milk Limited Stock Is Selling Rapidly

The Peterborough Milk Products, Limited, Stock has proved the attractive investment that was expected of it. Blocks of it have already been sold to local business men who were impressed with the future of the condensed milk industry and by the integrity and business ability of the directorate. Mr. J. A. Morden, who has been selling the stock in and out of the city has been well received. In spite of the war loan, which is being floated there has been a ready response to the new local industry. Mr. G. A. Bull, who is acting with Mr. Morden, has found equally gratifying business among the farmers of this district. In short there is a general desire not only to share in the support to this new industry, but also to get in on the ground floor of the stock while the list is open. The unvaried success of milk condensing plants is one of the strongest features of this offer.

DID NOT SAY "COMPULSION."

CALGARY, Alta., March 13. — Lt. Colonel Williams, the chief recruiting officer, before leaving with his party for the east, issued a statement to the local press, denying that he had ever said that conscription was coming. He furthermore said that no member of his party was warranted in making any similar statement. Colonel Williams said he did speak to the effect that the voluntary system was on its last legs and urged men to enlist and save Canada any compulsory measure.

Wanted Another Sewer Connection

The request of Mr. G. L. Hay, Hunter street, east, for a sewer connection from Rogers street, was considered by the Board of Works last night. The connection from Hunter street was brought in at a height that necessitated the pipes to be raised above the cellar floor. This is too high to connect with the laundry tubs in the cellar and Mr. Hay desired a connection to Rogers street for that purpose. The Board decided to open the Hunter Street connection to the property line and if it has been laid at the proper level the fault does not lie with the city. It was the opinion that the sewer was sufficiently deep even for the laundry requirements. If the city is not at fault, no action will be taken. It is the assumption that the connection through the property was laid at an angle, hence Mr. Hay would have to pay for a new connection to the Hunter street sewer.

Will Be Made Regular Corps

Brigadier Morchen was in the city yesterday, and before leaving announced that official sanction had been secured to concert the Byersville outpost of the Salvation Army into a regular corps with an officer in charge. The date for the change will be announced later.

DENTALS WIN ROUND FROM SASKATOON IN ALLAN CUP CONTESTS

WINNIPEG, March 14.—Toronto Dentals, champions of the Ontario Hockey Association, will meet the Victorias of Winnipeg to decide the possession of the Allan Cup for the next year. The Dentals were beaten to-night by the Pilgrims of Saskatoon in the second game of the elimination series three to two but win the round by a margin of one goal, the score in the former game being six to four. Dentals will play the Vics on Friday and Monday nights.

Fast Ice Helps Saskatoon.

A slight touch of colder weather put the ice in better shape to-night, and a dashing game that kept two thousand fans in an uproar was the result. The hard surface gave the Saskatchewan champions a chance to show their speed, and in the first two periods they cut loose at a dazzling pace. They grabbed the bulk of the play and with a little more finish to their style would probably have scored enough goals to give them the series. They led at the end of the first period two to one, and at the end of the second call of time were on equal terms with the Toronto team.

Box Hero of the Game.

With the score three to one in the last period the Easterners showed their true form. With practically the whole forward line checking back on every play they carried the attack to the Westerners' quarters.

With ten minutes to go Box sailed in and planted the shot that made the score three to two and gave the Easterners the series. Saskatoon made a desperate attempt to pull it out of the fire in the dying moments but were checked at every turn. They had shot their bolt in he first two periods and had not a punch left.

The game lasted over two hours, the strenuous checking putting a player out on an average of one every ten minutes. Stiff work with the body caused most of the casualties. Box received a cut behind the ear as a result of colliding with a skate in the second period, but was able to come back after being patched up.

Dents. the More Strenuous.

The Easterners were the more strenuous of the two teams, spending a total of twelve minutes in the penalty box, while the Pilgrims suffered only five minutes. J. Stewart was chased twice and showed a pugnacious spirit all through the game. Laflamme was the mainstay of the Dentals, steadying the whole team when the Pilgrims were coming at them in the deadliest fashion. Sheldon did a lot of effective work all the way through, while Milan and Box rushed repeatedly and checked back like fiends. Stewart and Smillie fought Webb and Anderson to an equal decision on the wings.

Pilgrims "Lay For" Box.

Box was not as effective as in the first game, as the Pilgrims had his style sized up and bottled him in nearly every rush. Stewart had a busy night in goal and kept up his good record.

Leon Koyle, the old Lindsay, Ont., player, shared honours with Klasson as the stars of the Saskatoon team.

The game was played under O. H. A. rules. The Pilgrims, with their speed, took to the onside skating rule like ducks to water; and were as much at home as the Easterners under the Ontario regulations.

Line-up:

Officials: Referee—F. Bawlf. Judge of play—W. Noble.

Shots stopped: By Morgan—First period, 4; second period, 2; third period, 2. Total, 10. By Stewart, first period, 5; second period, 5; third period, 3. Total 13.

Penalties: First period, Laflamme and Baker, 2 minutes each. Second period, Milan, 2 minutes; Webb, 3 minutes; third period, Stewart, 2 minutes, 3 minutes.

Goal Summary.

First period—
1. Toronto, Stewart, 8.50.
2. Saskatoon, Webb, 1.00.
3. Saskatoon, Kelly, 1.40.

Second period—
4. Saskatoon, Kelly, 6.50.

Third period—
5. Toronto, Box, 16.30.

JACK ADAMS AGAIN STARRED IN TORONTO

Jack Adams of the 247th played for St. Pat's in Toronto again last night and was once more the star of the game. St. Pat's won by 7 to 4, Adams getting three of the counters, a total of nine out of the fourteen scored by the club in their two games. The Mail says:

Jack Adams was again the star of the contest. He not only had the most counters to his credit, but he more than held up his end in checking back, while his poke check spoiled many a rush. He once had the hardest kind of luck when, after passing McLean and Hicks, he went to shoot but broke his stick. He tried atheticaly to score with the handle alone, but immediately lost the puck to the enemy.

The Globe says:

Jack Adams of the 247th of Peterborough was easily the best man on the ice. He has weight, speed and plenty of stick-handling ability and was responsible for the majority of goals scored by St. Pat's.

Waddell-Cappon Trophy Won By The Toronto Victorias

With a lead of 21 shots in their favour, Toronto Victorias played the return games with Peterborough last night, losing by 5 shots, but taking the Waddell-Capon trophy by 16 shots.

The visitors came down in a special car four rinks strong, including W. McIlroy, who was back among his "fain folk" for the evening. Last night's scores were as follows:

Toronto	Peterborough
Geo. Lyon	H. F. Foote
Skip ..14	Skip ..17
C. E. Robin	R. M. Waddell
Skip ..8	Skip ..19
H. M. Metheral	W. G. Morrow
Skip ..11	Skip ..12
Geo. Biggar	R. G. Sturgeon
Skip ..18	Skip ..8
51	56

After the game the visitors were entertained at luncheon at Hooper's, for which the curling had whetted a keen appetite. Mr. W. G. Morrow presided and after the toast to the King, the health of the visitors was proposed by Mr. G. H. Logie with supplementary speeches by Mr. Tom Brightman and Mr. F. M. Dela Fosse. Mr. Lightburn replied for the Toronto curlers. A toast to the donors of the inter-rink cup, Dr. Capon of Toronto, and Mr. R. M. Waddell, was proposed by Dr. Clark of Toronto.

Mr. Waddell replied in a neat speech in which he touched upon the old game and the friendship between the two clubs.

Mr. McIlroy and Mr. W. G. Wright of the visiting club entertained the gathering with songs befitting the occasion.

TEN MILLION MEN ESTIMATE OF THE TOTAL WAR LOSSES

WASHINGTON, March 15.—The first complete tabulation of official and authenticated semi-official reports of the various belligerents received here gives more than ten million men killed, wounded, captured, or missing in the war.

Among the military men proper 4,441,200 are reported dead, 2,698,500 wounded and 2,564,500 captured and missing. Among civilians, especially on the Russian and Balkan fronts, and in Armenia, another 400,000 are figured as either dead or wounded.

The Entente's losses are given as 6,316,400, as against 3,564,000 for the Central Empires. One reason for the great discrepancy between the two is believed to be the relative unpreparedness of the Entente, the disastrous retreats in France at the beginning of the war, in Russia from the Masurian Lakes and the Carpathians, and in Roumania.

The Entente's dead total 2,980,400 against 1,550,800 for the Central Empires. The Entente's wounded total 1,676,500, against 922,000 for their enemies, and their captured and missing, 1,652,500, against 912,000 for the Central Empires. These losses are based upon the assumption that in Germany ninety per cent. of the total wounded return to the front and eighty per cent. in all the other countries. Russia is infinitely the heaviest loser so far, with a grand total of 3,084,200 men.

France has suffered the second highest casualties with a total of 1,810,800, largely because of the early retreat to the Marne and the terrific losses in the defence of Verdun. Her dead total 870,000, her wounded 540,800, and her missing and captured 400,000, although the last figure is believed here to be improbably high.

England's total falls far below, being about one-third France's and one-sixth Russia's, owing, of course, to her late sending of a continental army. England's total comes to 515,400, with 205,400 dead, 102,500 wounded and 207,500 captured and missing.

Germany, among the Central Empires, is given as by far the largest loser. Her total casualties are 1,585,200, or 225,000 less than France's. Her dead come to 888,200, while her wounded are set at 450,000 and her captured and missing at 245,000.

Austria is only slightly less heavy a loser than Germany, with a total of 1,469,100. Her dead, however, only number 533,100 and her wounded 355,000.

RED CROSS TEA A GREAT SUCCESS

The Red Cross Tea held at the home of Mrs. P. Glover Tuesday afternoon, by the ladies of St. Andrew's Church Patriotic League, was a huge success. Mrs. Glover received her guests in the drawing-room and was assisted by her daughter, Mrs. J. Wood of Toronto. The pretty tea-room was aglow with coloured lights and flowers and looked very attractive. Mrs. Kerr poured tea, and was assisted by Madams Waram, Sills, McNab, Miss McClelland and Miss Belleghem. Mrs. C. S. McClelland had charge of the music for the afternoon and evening. In the afternoon Miss Alice McFarlane was soloist and in the evening Mrs. Lock. Both were much appreciated. Mrs. F. L. Robinson and Mrs. John assisted in the drawing-room. The last of the series of Red Cross Teas by St. Andrew's Church Patriotic League will be held at the home of Mrs. A. A Brother of a Peterborough Boy Had Leg Amputated

Mr. and Mrs. Reginald R. Lockhart of Toronto have received word that their son, Flight-Lt. James Watson Lockhart, who was wounded in the big air battle on March 6th, has had to have his leg amputated below the knee. Lieut. Lockhart is now in the hospital at Rouen, and the latest cable received by Mr. Lockhart tells that he is seriously ill. Immediately after he was hurt, the young officer, who is barely twenty-one had a cable sent to his parents to reassure them, saying his wounds were slight. It is but another instance of the pluck he has shown ever since he first tried to go to the front two years ago. With his brother he enlisted in the 19th Battalion. His brother fell a victim to spinal meningitis.

Lieut. Lockhart had pneumonia and was left behind when his battalion left for overseas. Finally he got overseas with the 119th Battalion, and upon reaching England, joined the air service. He had been on active service for four months and just before his accident had been appointed officer in command of photography for a squadron. It will be recalled that Mr. Reginald Lockhart was on the Lusitania when it was sunk, but was amongst those who were saved.

Lieut. Lockhart is a brother to Lt. Reginald Lockhart who before enlisting was with the C. G. E. in this city.

Thirty-Seven Game Cocks Doomed

Relegated to Soup Pots Instead of Donning Spurs.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., March 15 — The doom of thirty-seven game cocks estimated to be worth $10,000, captured in a raid Sunday morning, February 25th, when several prominent business and professional men were arrested, has been sealed by the court, instead of living again to "don the spurs" in a fighting pit, they will be relegated to the soup pots of Pittsburg hospitals.

In an effort to save the game birds from an ignominous death, Attorney George W. Allen asked Judge Shafer to grant an injunction restraining the humane society of Western Pennsylvania, in whose custody the birds now are, from killing them, citing in his petition an act of 1863, which authorized the sale of game cocks, captured in raids.

Attorney Allen stated that he had an offer of purchase for the birds, and was willing to buy them from the humane society at the regular market price for dressed fowl. Judge Shafer, however, refused to grant the injunction.

Among the cocks captured are several valued at $1,000 apiece. One of the birds, which will grace a soup pot, was brought here from Cuba by a prominent attorney at a cost of $1,200.

THE GRAND DUKE MICHAELVITCH HAS ALSO ABDICATED

Romanoff Dynasty of Russia Has Now Reached An End

The Prospects Are That Russia Will Become a Republic

The Grand Duke Has Also Abdicated And Romanoff Dynasty Ends

The Government Has Declared For Universal Suffrage and the Abolition of All Social, National and Religious Restrictions

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

PETROGRAD, March 17.—Grand Duke Michaelvitch has also now abdicated and the Romanoff dynasty is now at an end. Prospects are that Russia will become a republic. The government has declared for universal suffrage and the abolition of all social, national and religious restrictions.

The deposed Czar Nicholas II., who is forty-nine years old, came to the throne of Russia in November, 1894. His mother, the Dowager Empress, is a sister of Queen Alexandra, and very closely resembles her in appearance. Three weeks after coming to the throne he married his present wife, who is a daughter of the late Princess Alice, Grand Duchess of Hesse, who was a daughter of Queen Victoria. Therefore both the Czar and the Czarina are first cousins of King George.

Nicholas is very unlike his late father, Alexander III., in physique. He is small and frail. His father was immense and strong—one of the strongest men in the world. He used to do several "strong man" turns, like breaking a copper coin with his fingers.

The Czar has four daughters and a son, the Czarevitch, who is thirteen years old, and whose health is extremely delicate. He was made a Field Marshal in the British army in March of last year.

The Czars of Russia descend, in the female line, from Michael Romanoff, elected Czar in 1613, after the extinction of the House of Kurik, and in the male line from Duke Karl Freidrich of Holtein-Goltorp, scion of a younger branch of the princely family of Oldenburg. The union of his daughter Anne with Duke Karl Friedrich, formed part of the great projects of Peter I., intended to bring Russia into closer contact with the western countries of Europe. Peter I. was succeeded by his second wife, Catherine, daughter of a Livonian peasant; and she was succeeded by Peter II., the grandson of Peter, with whom the male line of the Romanoffs terminated in 1730.

It was the Czar Alexander II., grandfather of Nicholas II., who "made the serf a man and broke his chain." He was a very liberal and humane monarch, but, in spite of all his reforms, he was assassinated in 1881. His assassination preyed on the mind of his son and successor, Alexander III., and made the latter harsh and unsympathetic to progressive tendencies.

The new Regent, the Grand Duke Michael, brother of Nicholas, also a son of Alexander III., must not be confounded with his first cousin, once removed, the Grand Duke Michael Michaelovitch, who also contracted a morganatic marriage (in his case with Countess Torby), and also went to live in England. This last named Michael has a beautiful English home, Ken Wood, Hampstead, and holds the office of Lord High Steward of the borough of Newcastle. He is remarkably popular in English society and a splendid golf player. He has two lovely daughters, one of whom was married the other day to a Prince of Battenburg.

The Czar possesses the revenues from the crown domains, consisting of more than a million square miles of the best cultivated lands and forests. In addition, the richest gold and other mines are his personal and private property, and produce a vast revenue, the actual amount of which is unknown. But the Czar is said to be richer than the six other richest men in the world.

INTEND TO WIN THE WAR.

PETROGRAD March 17. — "The problems which we are going to solve consist of the re-establishment in Russia of a powerful capability of giving the people final victory over the enemy," said Prof. Milukoff, the new Russian Foreign Secretary. "The great crime of the late Government consisted of throwing the country into complete disorganization and subjecting it to the hardest trials. This state of affairs might even have had dangerous effects on the issue of the war. The increase of popular discontent was the cause of the turn which events have taken.

"The anger of the people was such that the Russian revolution was almost the shortest and most bloodless in history.

"The late Government was completely isolated, which confirms the fact that no one had confidence in it. The great events of the last few days make it possible for the people to gain fresh confidence. These events will increase popular enthusiasm and multiply the national forces, giving them at last power to win the war.

"During a few days the Duma attracted to itself the attention of the whole nation, and was the centre of enormous moral force. To-day it has material force also at its disposal, seeing that the army has taken its side. Every hour brings news bearing witness to the continual growth of power of the forces of national representation."

VICTORY FOR ALLIES.

NEW YORK, March 17.—The overthrow of the Czar's Government in Russia, with its coterie of pro-German sympathizers in court circles and active agents in Russian officialdom, it is hailed by newspapers here as practically a victory for the allies.

The World says: The Russian people are engaged in two wars, one against Germany and one for their own liberty. Autocracy has made the issue inseparable. The importance to mankind in general of a free Russia is beyond estimate. And what must be the feeling of Germany's autocrats when they read the handwriting on the wall!

The Sun says: The Romanoff line, through inter-marriage with German princely houses, has become more German than Russian. In the veins of Michael now this aristocratic blood. He has disclosed an independent and self-reliant spirit in contrast to that of his brother that gives reason to believe that the allies, to whom the change in the Government is of supreme importance, will profit eventually, if not immediately, by the change in authority. For the Germanophile court in Petrograd has obstructed the conduct of the war by Russia from the beginning.

The Times: The Germans will go far astray, they will be guilty of one of their characteristic blunders if they assume that the revolution will be helpful to them, but it will put the great Empire of Russia into the war, with a real determination to conquer Germany, with armies better equipped, unhampered by treasonable plots and sustained by a united Russian people.

The Tribune: The revolution in Petrograd may easily prove one of the greatest incidents in the war, one of the decisive facts in determining German defeat, and one of the landmarks in human history, as it indicates bringing 180,000,000 of people within the frontiers of democracy. For Germany any uprising of the Russian people would be a defeat beyond all compare, because the national will of the Russian people at all times has been to drive the Germans out of Russia — both the German armies and the German influences.

LARGE FARM CROPS FOR THE YEAR 1917

Timely Information Given by Professor Zavitz—Agricultural Committee of the Legislature Discusses Question of the Kinds of Foodstuffs to Grow and How to Grow Them —Views of Ontario College Expert.

BEANS SHOULD BE INCREASED

TORONTO, March 17.—At the inaugural meeting of the Agricultural Committee of the Legislature held last week a propaganda was instituted towards meeting the problems imposed by the war on the agricultural industry. At the request of Sir William Hearst, Minister of Agriculture, Professor C. A. Zavitz, of the Ontario Agricultural College, spoke at some length on ways and means of increasing crop production and the right kinds of materials to use. Sir William himself made a few remarks emphasizing the need not only of growing foodstuffs, but of growing those kinds of foodstuffs which will be most needed both here and in the Mother Country.

There was a desire on all sides, said Professor Zavitz to do all possible to meet the very trying conditions that existed at the present time, but he hoped the suggestions he had to offer would be of real service in connection with the increase, if possible, and especially the quality of the crops of Ontario for the coming year.

BETTER CROPS WITH LESS LABOUR.

Owing to the scarcity of labour all possible means should be adopted to economize labour. While many of these suggestions were obvious, their importance could not be too strongly emphasized if actual results were to be achieved on the year's operations. He, therefore, said as a first consideration the farmer should get ready for the year's crop before the snow disappears from the ground. The seed should be selected, cleaned, and got ready for spring sowing. In the great majority of cases it had been found that the seed which produced the best results was that grown in the locality where it would be used. In Ontario, generally speaking, there was a lot of seed of good quality. At the College they had learned from a long series of experiments that "plump" seed gave much better results

AULTSVILLE PRISONERS REMANDED

Nettie Richmire Was a Pathetic Figure, Her Face Swollen From Weeping, While Emerson St. Pierre Was Stolidly Indifferent—Remanded Till Tuesday

CORNWALL, Ont., March 17.—A morbid, curious crowd gathered at the Police Court yesterday expecting startling revelations in the St. Pierre murder case, when Emmerson St. Pierre and Nettie Richmire appeared before Magistrate Danis and were remanded until Tuesday pending the result of the inquest in Aultsville.

In the Police Court Nettie Richmire wore a dejected appearance, giving one the idea that she had been subjected to crying spells, while Emerson St. Pierre was very much unconcerned.

The proceedings only occupied a few minutes and at their conclusion the finger prints were taken and she signed her name Nettie Richmire, writing with the left hand.

The two prisoners have been kept apart by the police authorities and were brought to the Police Court separately. No change was made in the charge against Emerson St. Pierre, who is being detained on suspicion of causing the disappearance of his father.

The girl presented a pathetic figure as she was led into the Police Court, which was full of curious men. The girl had to face a press photographer at the door and at first hid her face behind her hands. Assured by the constable escorting her that it would be all right, she did the best she could to look her best. It was obvious the girl had been suffering from lack of sleep and had been weeping a great deal. Her attitude was in marked contrast to that of St. Pierre, who was as indifferent as when he first appeared.

The Richmire girl held a short consultation with her lawyer, G. A. Stiles, in the court room. The proceedings were confined to the demand for a remand by J. G. Harkness, Crown Attorney.

OUR SERIAL STORY

THE RED PAPER

By C. DUTCHISS

But the continued presence of his niece had become a separate problem and one to be solved at once. Also Planet, who was plainly in love with her, who openly took her part and would protect her interest, must be taken into consideration. He was wondering if it would not be wise to at once get up and have a talk with the girl on the other side of the screen—while Planet was unconscious, and could have nothing to say. He would promise an immediate return to civilization, obtain her signature to her release of the red paper—and keep as much of the promise as was convenient to him. Planet might then go to the devil where he belonged. He was actually considering how to open the conversation, how best to wheedle the lady into compliance with his plan, when to his consternation, the square of the doorless entrance was blocked by the figures of two men, showing against the faint sky.

At first Bagshot recognized neither and thought that some wanderers like himself had been caught in the norther and were seeking shelter, but as the slowly dying fire leaped into temporary strength its light struck full on the face of Wentworth, and with something like horror Bagshot became aware of the man he hated—the only one he really feared. He guessed at once that his companion was an officer of the law. The blow had fallen when least expected. But he would meet it; his determination was automatic.

Simeon Bagshot was no physical coward though he was a moral beast. He knew he had not yet been seen, and that the time for the settlement of many things had come, bringing him the advantage of position. Slowly shifting his hand to his hip, he drew his revolver, and getting to a sitting position, deliberately aimed at te centre of the loom of Wentworth's body and fired. In the dark the spurt of flame seemed to reach from man to man.

For Wentworth it was a fortuitous shot. The forty-five caliber ball simply struck the revolver he held in his right hand—struck it on the edge of the cartridge chamber—and thus saved the young man's life.

The bullet split under the impact, one-half flying upward, the other outward and downward, and lodging in Thorp's thigh. The force of the blow drove the weapon from John's numbed fingers as though it had been struck with a club.

The sheriff fell to one knee with a curse, and levelling at the location of the flash, instantly returned the shot—the ball pasing into Bagshot's abdomen.

Uttering a yell of agony, the latter sprang to his feet; and this time with unsteady aim, fired direct at Thorp, who on the explosion, dropped his weapon and fell forward on his face.

From then on the time of action might be measured in fractions of a minute.

With the delivery of the second shot and seeing that one of his victims was down Bagshot again drew a bead on John, but a terrific paroxysm of pain seizing him he half doubled as he once more fired—and missed. Not knowing the defenceless condition of his enemy and frenzied by the pain of his own wound, the now demoralized outlaw ran wildly for the hole in the wall tearing down the hanging blanket in his flight. In a second he was across the apartment. Passing close to the now shrieking girl he struck her down and leaping over the fire disappeared into the storm without. So rapid had been the action, so stunning the effect of the four explosions in the narrow interior that for a brief instant Wentworth was dazed. He was conscious of three things, however, that he was disarmed, that Thorp had fallen, and that Bagshot had escaped. Temporarily he saw and thought nothing of the girl; but as he stooped to recover his revolver, which he found at his feet, he became aware of the presence of Planet.

That individual, awakened from his always light sleep by the crash of the firearms, jumped up, throwing aside his blanket, the cover falling on his revolver hanger, which he had left aside for ease of body as he slept. The only part of the situation it was necessary for him to know he comprehended at once.

The fire now illuminated the entire apartment; and by its light, feeble though it was, he recognized Wentworth as that young man began to straighten himself from picking up his weapon. He saw the revolver in his enemy's hand, and being himself unarmed save for the knife in his belt he had but an instant to act. Instead of losing time by getting his own revolver or wasting himself brushing on Wentworth, he drew the steel, threw back his arm, and hurled the blade at the stooping man.

As a knife-thrower, Planet was well nigh an expert; and had the light been better or had he not been agitated by the suddenness of the attack, his act would have been fatal to Wentworth. As it was, the steel barely missed the head it was aimed at; it passed close to the young man's left ear, chipped the adobe with its point, and glanoing from the wall, fell to the ground near the fire.

It was followed up by the body of Planet, who hurled himself over the space separating him from his enemy.

Wentworth had only time to pull the trigger of his weapon and hear the harmless click of the hammer on the chamber which had been knocked out of gear by Bagshot's shot, when the Mexican was upon him. Casting aside the useless firearm, he met the assault, and in an instant the two men came together for the third time—now in an embrace that each knew meant death for one of them.

Had Wentworth's state been normal the Mexican would have had no chance with him; but through the extremes of heat and cold — through thirst, exposure and lack of rest—he was far from being in his usual form. In fact, the physical relations of the two were almost reversed.

Planet was acclimated—inured. He had only suffered sharp inconvenience from the storm, and had hardly backed a horse during the entire trip. Therefore the brute strength of the two men was now about equal while the agility of the Mexican was superior.

In a moment the pair were whirling and staggering around the hut. Neither uttered a word. It was a silent fight. Each snatched at the throat of the other one, and each made good his defence; but neither could break from the hold of the other.

Three times they circled the place, narrowly escaping a fall over the body of the sheriff, who lay prone on the ground. The hot breaths of the two contestant intermingled and came in gasps. The fire described wild circles as they whirled, tottered, and recovered; neither yet had the advantage.

Wentworth knew himself to be weakening. The supple form of the Mexican was like tightened wire under his hands. He could neither catch a firm grip on the sinuous throat, nor break from the tenacious grasp. This could not last.

Their feet became entangled in the folds of the fallen blanket and the struggling men went heavily to the ground, not five feet from the fire, but within reach of the knife that Planet had cast. There was a confused thrashing of legs and bodies for a few seconds, and when it ceased Planet was astride Wentworth's chest, one lean hand had him by the throat, and the other was stretched for the knife which he reached, grasped and lifted aloft for the final blow, but in a state of desperation Wentworth managed to grasp the wrist of the hand holding the descending blade.

The grip of the Mexican was too feeble to throttle the under man at once, and with the arrest of his hand there came a test of strenght and endurance between the two men, with Planet in the better position.

Wentworth felt his power of resistence fast ebbing but he still managed to hold off the knife, giving over all other efforts as useless. It seemed a matter of a few seconds when he must succumb.

Slowly but surely, lower and lower, came the steel and the muscles of both men trembled under the strain. Wentworth's face was set and white; once he groaned. Planet's expression was diabolical, his teeth showed in a grin of desperation; his black eyes shone as he felt his final triumph.

And the end of John Wentworth would have come then had it not been for the girl. Recovering from the shock of her overthrow by Bagshot, and the crash of the two shots, she had shrunk into a corner as the two men tottered around the cabin. She did not know the cause of the assault; that the party had been attacked by that the party had been attacked by desperadoes bent on robbery—or even worse, so far as she was concerned. She considered Planet as acting in her defence as well as his own, and her hopes went out for him.

It was not until after the fall of the two that she realised what it all meant. As the Mexican snaked himself from the loosened grasp of Wentworth, swung into his position astride the other, and grasped the knife, Grace Merridale saw the upturned and the hopeless face of her lover now brought out clearly by the light from the fire.

The sight paralysed her, and even the slowly descending blade failed to at once arouse her energies, but in a moment the woman in her arose superior to the conditions; strength and purpose came to her in a rush. At that instant she was a lioness, and with a shrill but inarticulate cry she sprang to the fire, pulled out a flaming brand and thrust it into the face of the triumphing Mexican.

Planet started back with a scream though without entirely losing his seat astride of his prostrate enemy. However the shock and pain of the fire did cause him to relax the pressure of his right arm, for the moment giving Wentworth the opportunity that he sorely needed. As Planet drew away from the brand with a desperate thrust of his body Wentworth threw off his opponent, and without letting go of the hand holding the knife he pinned the man on his side, and changing the direction of the point of the blade, shoved it from him.

Unable to avoid the blow Planet's head fell back and the point of the knife entered his throat; he suddenly relaxed all effort, tried to speak, rolled over, flung out his arms, and lay still. When Wentworth finally got to his feet the Mexican was dead; the knife had severed his jugular vein.

Like one aroused from a terrific dream the victor stood looking at the motionless body, his chest heaving; he could scarcely stand as he stood before the woman who had saved his life and for whom he felt he had suffered all things. As their eyes met a common impulse seized them and the next instant the two were in close embrace. Not a word had been spoken, but the girl broke into a storm of sobs. Wentworth was breathing like an engine.

"Oh! I did not know—I did not think—did not even care to hope you would come!" said the girl after the first gust of her emotion had passed.

"You must know what I owe you," said Wentworth, when he could speak. "I mean my life. I offered it to you in the Alamo and gathered that you accepted it. And I have been literally through fire and water to offer it again. Will you keep it?"

Croup

"Granny" Chamberlain

"I don't think there is a more anxious time for parents than when their children have croup. Without they are prepared with Chamberlain's Cough Remedy they must wait for the doctor and listen to the choking, metallic cough and watch their little one gasping for breath.

You know the great danger of croup is the formation of a false membrane in the larynx, and until this is expelled relief cannot be obtained, and the spasmodic choking continues. Give Chamberlain's Cough Remedy in frequent doses. It will loosen this membrane and cause the child to expel it by vomiting.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy

is an absolutely safe and certain remedy for croup, and if given as soon as the child becomes hoarse, or even after the croupy cough appears, it will prevent the attack."

"Nature" chose Assam

Scientists tell us that Assam in northern India was the original home of the tea plant. Thousands of years ago "Nature" chose the climate and soil of this favored region as most suitable for growing tea.

It is, therefore, natural that the hillside gardens of Assam (see picture) grow the teas which to-day are famous for their flavor, fragrance and rich strength.

It is of these Assam teas, skilfully blended with choice Ceylons, that Red Rose Tea consists. It is this rich Assam strength that users of Red Rose Tea must thank for its splendid economy—for the greater number of cups it yields to the pound, fully one-third more than ordinary teas.

To make certain that these Assam qualities are fully preserved for you we put Red Rose Tea into dust, odor and air proof sealed packages. Red Rose Tea reaches you pure, fresh and full strength—we guarantee it.

Coat Suits May Return With Spring

Norfolk and Box Coats Among the Smart Models

Accessories to Freshen Winter Frocks

New York, March 12.

It has been a matter of conjecture whether coat suits would return to favour with the spring or whether the long coats by which women have stood firm all through the winter would continue to satisfy their needs in the spring.

One would naturally conclude that a coat suit in spring would be welcomed by most women after the heavy long coats of winter. But the question is still to be settled. In all probability there will be as many coat suits as separate coats worn when spring comes. Some very jaunty models are being shown now and many of them have coats in Norfolk or semi-Norfolk efferts with plain or pleated skirts.

The dressier suits are made of silk and satin with touches of embroidery in the same or some contrasting color. The coats are generally midway between the hips and knees in length.

For sports wear there is no doubt that hip-length coats with contrasting skirts will be very smart, and there will be more interest in sports clothes this spring and summer than in any other styles if one may judge from the present demand for them. Plaid skirts with coats of a solid color having the collar and cuffs trimmed with the plaid are considered exceedingly chic. The striped and checked materials are employed in the same way with coats of one color.

7651—7627

Smart Spring Model Developed in Jersey Cloth.

Besides the Norfolk Coats, the loose, straight-hanging box coat is one of the models that promises to be very much favored. Some of these are quite short. They are very stunning made up in velvet and worn with white serve skirts. Dark blue or old-rose velvet, with large white pearl buttons for contrast, is used for these coats.

Not strictly Norfolk, but resembling this style in many points is the smart model illustrated in the sketch. It is of orange colored wool jersey and accompanies a skirt of black and orange check, making an exceptionally smart costume. The coat is twice belted, part of the lower belt forming straps at the top of the large patch pockets. The belts extend around the sides only and leave a panel effect at the back, which is pleated like the front.

TO FRESHEN THE WINTER DRESS.

There are many people who wish to freshen up their winter clothes before getting their spring things, for it is still some time before the weather will allow us to be comfortable in spring clothes. Only those who have been able to replenish their wardrobes very frequently throughout the winter will not feel the necessity of adding new touches to their clothes.

There are new sets of vests and collars and separate cuffs to match, or matching collars and cuffs which will do much toward making a change in a dress of which you may have tired. These collars and cuffs are of white Shantung silk trimmed at the edges with bands of plain colored silk or the dotted or figured silks. The band of colored silk adds a bright touch which is very refreshing. The flat, rolled collar in sailor shape is still a favorite. Some of the collars are made double; for instance there is a lower collar of white silk and an upper collar in green, rose, gold or any of the fashionable colors, the same shape, but smaller, so that an edge of the white shows all around.

Save the fat of the chicken, it is an excellent substitute for butter when making a cake.

Put pockets in the little girl's dress if possible. She will not lose so many handkerchiefs.

In some materials it is better to make the buttonholes with a crochet needle and fine thread.

CHOICE RECIPES

With potatoes at their present price, such a thing as wasting even half a spoonful of mashed potatoes is unthinkable. There are various ways in which left-over potatoes can be served, to make a small amount have quite a festive appearance and really go farther toward being a satisfying dish. Following are a few ways of servin gleft-over potatoes, from a half cup to two of three cups—not that any housewife is likely to have three cups of potatoes left over from any one dinner now-a-days, but a little will keep in a cold place from one day to another. Boiled potatoes left over, in case there should be two or three of such treasures, can be cut in small pieces, mashed with a little milk and seasoned.

Potato balls can be made from a small quantity of mashed potato. Season with salt, pepper, celery salt, chopped parsley, and butter, and moisten with hot milk. Be careful not to make too moist. If you are not afraid of being extravagant beat one egg light and add part of it to the potatoes. Form into balls, brush over with the remainder of the egg, and bake on a buttered tin till brown. Instead of using the egg, you can enrich the potato balls by making a cavity in each and filling it with a mixture of grated cheese flavored with salt, butter, and celery salt. From the top of the ball ever, place on a buttered tin, and whisk into a hot oven.

Potato patties call for well seasoned mashed potatoes. Flatten the mashed potatoes out on a floured bread board and cut in circles with a glass tumbler. Roll in bread crumbs and then in beaten egg, and fr- in deep fat. Drain on brown paper and make a hole in each in which to place a little grated cheese and chopped parsley.

Here is a way to make potato salad from mashed potatoes. It calls for two cupfuls of well seasoned mashed potatoes, a tablespoonful of chopped onions. Beat till light and then add two chopped hard boiled eggs. Serve with French dressing seasoned well with mustard and celery salt.

Here is a rule for a delicious luncheon dish. To three cupfuls of seasoned mashed potatoes add one teaspoonful of grated nutmeg, two well beaten eggs and three teaspoonfuls of melted butter. Form with floured hands into cakes and fry on a hot griddle. Bake to a nice brown.

Potato pie is made in deep baking dish. It calls for a good supply of cooked meat which should be cut up and placed in the bottom of the dish with a little gravy or stock. Over the meat place a layer of well seasoned mashed potatoes. Bake in the oven till a light brown.

A delicious salad dressing for plain lettuce can be made with mashed potatoes as a foundation. Imagine mashed potato made into salad dressing. This calls for one half cupful of mashed potatoes seasoned with a teaspoonful each of mustard and salt and sugar. Add one tablespoonful of vinegar, press through a sieve, and add three quarters of a cupful of olive oil very gradually and another tablespoonful of vinegar.

WAR PRISONERS IN THE MINES

German Collieries Also Using Many Women and Boys.

How the great industrial plants in the coal an diron district of Silesia have been kept in operation through the employment of the labour of women, boys and prisoners of war, is explained in detail in a recent number of the Jahrbucher fur National-okonomie, one of the leading economic publications of Germany. As summarized by the Daily Chronicle of London, the article points out that at the outbreak of the war nearly one-fourth of the workers of the district were called to the colours; the drain has steadily gone on since; yet these works have managed to maintain their labour force at virtually its pre-war figure. This has been done in the main by the employment of women and boys. Immigration from other districts, to some extent the occupied territories, and special training of workers from other trades have been among the expedients employed.

Prisoners of war have been used more and more as time has gone by. They have proved good workers. In order not to lower local wages, it was required that a certain sum per day should be paid to the military authorities for the use of such prisoners. This sum is equal to the daily wage of a free worker in the same factory, as shown by the wage-books. The usual special rates were paid in the case of skilled prisoners. This and other measures largely prevented jealousy or dissatisfaction on the part of the trade unions.

The prisoners of war were kept apart as strictly as possible both from the ordinary workers and the general public. In the case of iron-workers segregation was generally impossible. Similarly in the mines "direct association of prisoners and free workers was a necessity," the free worker being in practice the foreman and the prisoners working with him "as mining apprentices."

At first the system did not work smoothly. "Although the military authorities did their best to pick out suitable prisoners, yet a great number of unsuitable men pretended to have been miners or iron workers in order to have a chance of escaping from the monotony of camp life.

"As a rule the men were not used to exerting themselves as much or so regularly as the German workers, and their unfamiliarity with industrial processes, led to a number of minor accidents, impairing their usefulness."

Gradually however, there has been an improvement, so that the average output of a prisoner can be reckoned as two-thirds of that of a German worker. A generous bonus system was employed. "The prisoners received an average of 25 per cent. of their earnings for themselves," besides being lodged, fed, and clothed. "This proved an effective incentive to better work."

Suffered With Heart For Ten Years

Would Nearly Smother

There is nothing that brings with it such fear of impending death as to wake up in the night with that awful sense of smothering. The uncertain and irregular heart action causes the greatest distress of both mind and body.

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are the only remedy that can give prompt relief and effect a complete cure in cases of such severity.

They strengthen and invigorate the heart, so that it beats strong and regular, and tone up the nervous system so that the cause of so much anxiety becomes a thing of the past.

Mrs. M. O. McCready, Wapella, Sask., writes: "I am not much of a believer in medicines, but I feel that it is only right for me to let you know what your wonderful remedy has done for me, and in a very short time, too. I had suffered terribly with my heart for nearly ten years, could scarcely do any work, and would nearly smother at times. I had many remedies, some only relieving me for a time. I got a box of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills and felt so much better that I kept on using them, and can truthfully say I feel like a new woman.

"I would advise anyone with heart trouble to use them."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50c, or three boxes for $1.25, at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE

LADY'S WAIST.

By Anabel Worthington.

8102

Even if the one piece frock has come in for an unusual amount of attention this season, the separate blouse will continue to receive its share. It is easy enough to keep up interest in this "standby" of the average woman, because, in keeping to the plain, comfortable lines that admit of a waist being cut out and made at home in one evening, the designers have seen to it that novelty effects were provided.

There is plenty to talk about and admire in the shirt waist design illustrated.

An interesting feature is having the centre front and front yoke cut in one piece. A box plait in each half of the back below the back yoke and plaits in each side front is a new style development. Then there is a handsome collar, cut in a point at the back and tassel tipped, although trimmed with braid. The sleeve is pretty, gathered at the wrist to a flare cuff. Hand embroidery at either side of the front closing speaks style and gives an attractive finish.

Satin, silk, wool batiste and linen may be considered for developing this model. The selection of material will be according to the kind of skirt with which the blouse will relate to complete a costume.

The waist pattern No. 8102 cuts in sizes 36-44. To make in size 36 requires 2⅝ yards of 36 inch material, 4⅛ yards of braid.

To obtain the pattern send 20 cents to the office of this publication.

When ordering remember to give your name and address as well as the number and size of pattern required, and age of a child.

Price 15 cents, or 2 for 25 cents.

"The plow is our hope," declared Right Hon. David Lloyd George, the Prime Minister of Great Britain. The tremendous significance of these words in the face of a world shortage of food must be a matter of concern to all. It points out the path of duty to men and boys unable to enlist in the army but capable of helping to increase production.

Help the farmer increase production

At this supreme hour when ample food production is one of the indispensable means of victory, the country faces a serious shortage of men and boys on the farms. The Department of Agriculture emphasizes the urgency of every man and boy taking to heart this splendid opportunity for patriotic service.

Boys Decide now to help in the war. If you are between the ages of 14 and 18, and have good term record, you can secure promotion at school by enlisting for farm service any time between April 20th and May 20th.

Parents are urged to encourage their boys to enlist for farm service. The physical and moral welfare of your boy will be advanced by a summer spent close to Nature; an interest will be awakened in an important industry of the country that will be a help to him in his whole future.

Men The Department appeals to retired farmers, to men following no occupation (retired), to business men who can spare at least a portion of their time, to all men who can arrange their affairs so as to help some farmer. Every man is invited to enlist for farm service.

The Two Tigris Offensives

First Uncoordinated and a Failure, Maude's a Victory of Co-operation

The expedition of Anglo-Indians under General Maude which has captured Bagdad bears little relation to that which started up the Tigris for the same objective soon after the war began, and after coming within eighteen miles of the city of the Caliphs, was forced to retreat to Kut-el-Amara, was besieged there from Dec. 7, 1915, until April 28, 1916, and finally surrendered its rear guard of 9,000 men.

Nor did this unfortunate expedition have any relation to the British defense of Egypt, or to the advance of the Russians across Armenia although there was a certain co-ordination between it and the Russians on the Persian frontier east of Bagdad. The expedition on the Tigris, which began with the idea of protecting the oil wells at the head of the Persian Gulf, developed as a means to keep Turkish troops from being used at Gallipoli, and, later on, in the Balkans. And the Russians, in occupying Armenia beyond Lake Van and Bitlis, doubtless aided this object. All probably prevented a second expedition being launched against Egypt and the Suez Canal.

Now, however, the successful Tigris expedition is part of a comprehensive plan against Asiatic Turkey. From Egypt troops under Sir Archibald Murray are approaching Jerusalem. The Russians in the Bitlis region are renewing activities, and those on the Persian frontier, who retired beyond Hamadan after the surrender of General Townshend at Kut-el-Amara last April, are again setting out for Mesopotamia. Their junction with General Maude, daily expected, will form a line of over 1,000 miles broken only by mountains, from Basra at the head of the Persian Gulf to Trebisond on the Black Sea.

The new offensive on the Tigris began on Dec. 13 and was at first an extension of the defenses erected across the Tigris thirty-five mile east of Kut el-Amara by the survivors of Townshend's expedition and the forces sent in vain to relieve it. The Turks evacuated Kut-el-Amara on Feb. 24, and after that their retreat upstream in the direction of Bagdad became a route. On March 7 British cavalry even went beyond Ctesiphon, the scene of Townshend's turning point in November, 1915, when he began his retreat back to Kut-el-Amara.

HOW THE FIRST CAMPAIGN STARTED.

For years the British Government had worked with the Turkish in Lower Mesopotamia and the Persian Gulf in peace and amity, and it was expected that British capital would restore Mesopotamia, jjust as it had operated the oil fields of Persia. Then in early November, 1914, Turkey joined the Central Empires and the Sultan launched a "Jehad" or Holy War against the British communities settled at the head of the Persian Gulf which were protected only by a small force of Indian troops that had been hurried thither. Next came a combined force of British and Indian troops under General Delamain, numbering it is reported, 6,000, which landed at Fao with the co-operation of a strong naval force.

The Turkish troops at Fao were forced to fall back up the Shatt-el-Arab, and took up a position opposite Mohammerah, on the right bank of the river. On November 14, General Delamain was reinforced by the troops under Sir Arthur Barrett, who came from India and took command of the expedition. He brought a number of river gunboats. By the middle of December the invaders had forced their way up the river and strongly intrenched themselves at Basra, the terminal of the Bagdad Railway survey, forty miles southeast of the confluence of the Euphrates and Tigris, at Kurna. Here roads had to be built and camping grounds raised above the water level, for Basra, before the arrival of the expedition, boasted no means of locomotion except primitive country boats on its numerous creeks.

In January, 1915, more reinforcements came—some from Egypt and more from India. The expedition then broke up into widely scattered detachments for the purpose of protecting the area of the Anglo-Persian Oil Company's premises, at the same time annoying the Turks who were assembling in mass to obstruct the passage to the junction of the great rivers.

Between Adadan, on the Shatt-el-Arab, and the oil fields 100 miles and more to the north lies the highly vulnerable pipe line through which the oil is carried to the company's depot at Adadan. The pipe line passes through Persian territory, but the Chaab tribe or Arabs, who inhabit the region, own allegiance only to the Shiek of Mohammerah, a Persian subject, and a loyal friend of the British Government.

The Turks had persuaded the Chaab tribe to revolt against the Sheik, and with other Arab tribes to the west to threaten the lives and property of the employes of the oil company at Ahwaz, the centre of the oil fields. Expeditions were dispatched to Ahwaz and to several points on the pipe line. All this delayed the advance beyond Bazra.

TURKS STRONGLY REINFORCED

This situation prevailed until April, 1915. Meanwhile, the Turkish regulars and Arab levies had gathered in strong force at Nasariyeh and Suk-esh Shuyuk, on the Euphrates, with the intention of investing the fortified camps at Basra and Shaiba. More reinforcements had arrived from India and with them came Sir John Nixon, who succeeded Sir Arthur Barrett as Commander in Chief, Sir Arthur being invalided back to India.

Toward the middle of April, 1915, the situation developed rapidly. The Turkish-Arab force attempted to envelop the garrison at Shaiba and isolate Basra. A series of attacks and counterattcks with sorties from both places followed.

Then, on April 14, came the battle of Burjisieh. The British took the offensive and advanced across the desert ert and attacked the enemy's intrenched position at Burjisieh, five miles south of Shaiba, dispersing the defenders, who fled toward Nasariyeh, leaving 2,000 in dead, wounded, and prisoners. The Anglo-Indian loss is said to have been heavy.

When May came, the Arab tribes at Ahwaz having promised loyalty, Sir John Nixon prepared to advance with troops, barges, and gunboats up the Tigris. At the same time a column was formed to ascend the Euphrates under Major Gen. George Goringe. The latter fought his way upstream as far as Nasariyeh, which he reached and occupied on July 1. Nasariyeh, which he reached and occupied on July 1. Nasariyeh is only seventy-five miles south-east of Bagdad. He could have gone further had he not feared to outstrip Sir John, who had been detained on the Tigris, owing to a flanking movement on the part of the Turks in the direction of Persia for the purpose of striking the column in the rear and cutting off their communications.

On Sept. 29, 1915, Austen Chamberlain, Secretary of State for India, announced in the House of Commons that Sir John had won an important victory and that the defeated Turks were fleeing toward Bagdad.

FIRST CAPTURE OF KUT.

This was the battle of Kut-el-Amara. Kut is ninety miles southeast of Bagdad and 230 miles northwest of the head of the Persian Gulf. Here The Tigris, for a few miles turns from its ascent northwest to due west. Sir John was thus able to strike at the enemy across the desert while protecting ghis flanks by the river. The battle was fought on Sept. 27, with Anglo-Indian casualties amounting to 500 and Turkish to 3,000 including 1,650 prisoners.

From that time on the Euphrates and the Tigris columns gradually converged on Bagdad, and on Nov. 22-23, 1915, the invaders attacked the strongly intrenched position of the Turks at Ctesiphon, eighteen miles from Bagdad. This attack was made by an advance column under General Townshend, which then retired three miles because of lack of water, but took possession of the battlefield two days later, with the Turks making a stand only ten miles from Bagdad. Townshend took nearly 1,500 prisoners, while his wounded numbered 2,500.

The British victor was followed by Townshend's enforced retreat and his final surrender at Kut, which has been noted earlier in this resume of the Tigris operations.

KINGSTON SPEAKS

The old "Limestone City" is all worked up over Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. In nearly every home someone is trying out the restorative, upbuilding influence of this great food cure. The newspapers are daily reporting cures effected. As spring approaches more and more will find the need of this famous blood builder to keep up vitality. These are interesting letters:

Dizzy Spells

Mrs. Nellie Harding, 377 Earl St., Kingston, Ont., writes: "Last winter I was suffering from nervousness, headaches and dizzy spells. The headache and dizziness were so bad that I used to faint. I didn't know just what to do, until a friend advised me to use Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. So I got a box and followed up the treatment, with splendid results. Now I have not had a fainting spell since, and I can sleep quite well. I would recommend this treatment to anyone suffering from nervousness, dizziness or rundown system."

Sleeplessness

Mrs. F. Truesdale, 9 Lower Charles street, Kingston, Ont., writes: "For some time I suffered from nervousness and sleeplessness, and I attributed it to the fact that I was alone so much with my child, my husband being a sailor. But after trying one box of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food I found I could go to bed at night and get a good night's rest, despite the fact of being alone. I have found excellent results from the Nerve Food, and recommend it with confidence to all suffering as I did from nervousness and sleeplessness. I also used some Nerve Food for my little boy, eight years old, and found it quieted his nerves and made him sleep better."

Week Heart

Mrs. G. Storing, 18 St. Catharine Street, Kingston, Ont., writes: "I have been suffering for the last five years with nervousness, headaches, so that my eyeballs would fairly split diziness and weakness of the heart and a generally run-down condition. I doctored for several years with different doctors, but without getting relief. Through reading one of your booklets I thought that possibly I could get benefit from Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, so I decided to try it. I got one box, took the pills, and, feeling better, followed it up with more. Now I am feeling much better and stronger, and able to get around and do my work without difficulty. I would recommend Dr. Chase's Nerve Food to anyone suffering from nervousness and run-down condition."

Restless, Sleepless

Mrs. S. S. Schofield, 124 Bagot Street, Kingston ,writes: "About a year ago I got run down, suffering from nervousness, and could not get a good night's rest. From reading one of your little books I began taking Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and after taking the Nerve Food treatment I found great relief. I recommend this to anyone suffering as I was from nervousness. My husband also used some of the Nerve Food, and was relieved of nervousness."

Headaches

Mrs. B. Robinson, 309 Alfred Street, Kingston, Ont., writes: "Some months ago I was suffering from severe nervous headaches, sleeplessness and general run-down condition. I was so bad at times that I would have to go to bed. From remembering that my grandmother always resorted to Dr. Chase's remedies, I decided to try the Nerve Food, and found it gave me great relief. I am now gaining in weight and feeling much better in every way."

Gained in Weight

Mrs. G. Brown, 14½ Clergy W., Kingston, Ont., writes: "A year ago last summer I was badly run down and so nervous that I could not sleep at night, but would have to get up and walk around. I had no appetite, had pains in my stomach and back. I sent for a box of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and found it gave such good results that I kept up the treatment until I had taken five boxes. I have gained in flesh, my nervousness is gone, and I can eat as much in one day as I used to in a week. I sleep well, and have not had a sick headache for a long time.

"Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is worth a lot of money to any person that is suffering like I did; it makes a person feel young and full of life, not downhearted and dull. I am glad to recommend it to all suffering from nervousness, sick headaches and run-down conditions."

Exhausted Nerves

Mr. W. E. Moore, No. 4 Lower Quebec St., Kingston, Ont., writes: "About five years ago I was suffering from nervous trouble, pains in my back and general run-down condition, and was next door to dying a couple of times. I was so nervous at times that I could not get a cup of tea to my lips. Sometimes I would never close my eyes during the whole night, and if I did get to sleep would waken with a jump. Through seeing the effect of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food on a friend of mine I was induced to try it. After taking a treatment I found a great improvement; could sleep well and am enjoying good health at present. At times, if I am not feeling up to the mark, I use some Nerve Food. I wish to recommend the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food to persons suffering from nervousness, sleeplessness and rundown condition."

Tells how to loosen a sore, tender corn so it lifts out without pain.

Good news spreads rapidly and the druggists here are kept busy dispensing freezone, the ether discovery of a Cincinnati, which is said to loosen any corn so it lifts out with the fingers.

Ask at any pharmacy for a quarter ounce of freezone, which will cost very little, but is said to be sufficient to rid one's feet of every hard or soft corn or callus.

You apply just a few drops on the tender, aching corn and instantly the soreness is relieved, and soon the corn is so shrivelled that it lifts out without pain. It is a sticky substance, which dries when applied and never inflames or even irritates the adjoining tissue.

This discovery will prevent thousands of deaths annually from lockjaw and infection heretofore resulting from the suicidal habit of cutting corns.

Mediterranean Trip These Days Not Pleasurable

Correspondent Who Made the Voyage Tells of Preparation and Alarms

MEN PASSENGERS PLAY THEIR PART

On Board Ship, English Channel, March 16.—This great ocean liner with its human freight to-night is anchored in comparative safety after having spent in the Mediterranean danger zone three of the most strenuous weeks which the submarine warfaree has produced since the beginning of the world conflict. For days the steamer's wireless has been humming almost steadily with "S.O.S." calls received from vessels in distress. It was only yesterday that a big ship was torpedoed four miles from us and signaled wildly with rockets for assistance while we did the only thing which we could do—ran away as fast as the engines could take us. But to-night we are in quiet waters and for the first time in twenty-one days the commander will remove his clothes for sleep. To-morrow we shall dock, and consider ourselves lucky to have reached port at all.

Twice in the past six months a correspondent of the Association Press has travelled through the Mediterranean, on a trip to and from India. From Indian ports to Port Said there is, of course, practically no danger to be encountered from hostile warcraft, but once the Suez Canal has been passed on the homeward voyage a ship is in constant peril.

A day or two after the ship left Bombay the passengers were summoned to the ship's boats to which they had been assigned, and the chief officer made the rounds, delivering instructions which gave to many the first real idea of what the coming danger was.

"After we left Port Said we shall be in the danger zone," he began. "Each one of you will carry a lifebelt about all the time. This is imperative. Sometimes people get careless or are forgetful. This must not be. You should have the lifebelts with you night and day, carrying them even to your baths with you."

A STARTLING STATEMENT

The officers gave instructions as to how the lifebelts were to be adjusted and continued:

"In case we are torpedoed five shorts blasts on the ship's whistle will call you to the boats. You will come immediately, bringing some warm clothing as you can snatch at the moment. The unmarried men and those who are travelling without their wives will see that all women and children are in the boats first. You will put them into the boats by force if necessary. I may tell you bachelors, he intedjected with a smile, "that a woma nwill take more rough handling than you may imagine. So throw them into the boats if you have to. Married couples will get into the boats together. It is the husband's duty to go with his wife, and I make it an order that this shall be carried out. Many times a wife refuses at the last moment to get into a boat without her husband and we want no delays of this sort.

"In case you see that the ship is so badly hit that she is going to sink immediately, you will not wait for the boats. The men will see that the women and children have their lifebelts properly adjusted and then will throw them overboard, following as soon as possible themselves. Jump as far from the side of the ship as you can, and trust to luck. Probably you will be picked up by someone.

And so he continued. It was not a thing which tended to relieve nervous ness. More than one woman who was travelling with little children turned away white of face and thoughtful, and for the thousandth time inspected the tiny lifebelts which she was carrying, to make sure that they were ready for her babies.

From the beginning of the voyage no definite information as to when the ship would reach port or leave was given to passengers. In fact, there were few questions which one could get answered. The correspondent tried to get the official number of passengers and asked whether any other neutrals were aboard, but he was told that the ship's officers had been forbidden to give any information whatever. After leaving Port Said even the emergency compass at the stern of the steamer was covered so that inquisitive passengers could not tell what direction she was taking.

Doctors Stand Amazed at Power of Bon-Opto to Make Weak Eyes Strong---According to Dr. Lewis

Guaranteed to Strengthen Eyesight 50% In One Week's Time in Many Instances

A Free Prescription You Can Have Filled and Use at Home

Philadelphia, Pa. Victims of eye strain and other eye weaknesses, and those who wear glasses, will be glad to know that according to Dr. Lewis there is real hope and help for them. Many whose eyes were failing say they have had their eyes restored by this remarkable prescription and many who once wore glasses say they have thrown them away. One man says, after using it: "I was almost blind. Could not see to read at all. Now I can read everything without my glasses and my eyes do not hurt any more. At night they would pain dreadfully. Now they feel fine all the time. It was like a miracle to me." A lady who used it says: "The atmosphere seemed hazy with or without glasses, but after using this prescription for 15 days everything seems clear. I can read even fine print without glasses." Another who used it says: "I was bothered with eye strain caused by overworked, tired eyes which induced fierce headaches. I have worn glasses for several years both for distance and work, and without them I could not read my own name on an envelope or the typewriting on the machine before me. I can do both now and have discarded my long distance glasses altogether. I can count the fluttering leaves on the trees across the street now, which for several years have looked like a dim green blur to me. I cannot express my joy at what it has done for me."

It is believed that thousands who wear glasses can now discard them in a reasonable time and multitudes more will be able to strengthen their eyes so as to be spared the trouble and expense of ever getting glasses. Eye troubles of many descriptions may be wonderfully benefited by the use of this prescription. Go to any active drug store and get a bottle of Bon-Opto tablets. Drop one Bon-Opto tablet in a fourth of a glass of water and let it dissolve. With this liquid bathe the eyes two to four times daily. You should notice your eyes clear up perceptibly right from the start and inflammation and redness will quickly disappear. If your eyes bother you even a little it is your duty to take steps to save them now before it is too late. Many hopelessly blind might have saved their sight if they had cared for their eyes in time.

Note: Another prominent Physician to whom the above article was submitted, said: "Yes, the Bon-Opto prescription is truly a wonderful eye remedy. Its constituent ingredients are well known to eminent eye specialists and widely prescribed by them. I have used it very successfully in my own practice on patients whose eyes were strained through overwork or needed glasses. I can highly recommend it in case of weak, watery, aching, smarting, itching, burning eyes, red lids, blurred vision or for eyes inflamed from exposure to smoke, sun, dust or wind. It is one of the very few preparations I feel should be kept on hand for regular use in almost every family." Bon-Opto, referred to above, is not a patent medicine or a secret remedy. It is an ethical preparation, the formula being printed on the package. The manufacturers guarantee it to strengthen eyesight 50 per cent in one week's time in many instances or refund the money. It can be obtained from any good druggist and is said in this city by Warne Drug Co. and Other Druggists.

Sunday Sermon For Those Who Do Not Go To Church

(By JAMES SUTHERLAND)

In presenting this subject we say that the Apostolic church was premillenarian, we are aware of the apparent contradiction in the statement that the church was premillenarian before the apocalyptic prediction that Satan should be bound one thousand years and should be cast in the bottom less pit, and deceive the nations no more. The contradiction is only in name, not in fact; it is a common, yet wholly erroneous impression that the premillennial faith is based mainly, if not wholly, on a disputed passage in the Apocalypse. Professor Duffield says: In a recent work in defence of post-millenniarism the writer manifests misapprehension and misappreciation of the doctrine he is opposing by the statement that the twentieth chapter of the Revelation is at once the birth-place and the Giberaltar of premillennialism—the fact is the main question at issue in what is now known as the millenarian controversy antedates the apocalypse and would have been a question of no less interest and importance throughout this dispensation if the apocalypse had not been written. What is the main question at issue The Scriptures contain distinct predictions, yet unfulfilled by two events of momentous importance.

1. The return of our Lord Jesus Christ to this earth—the same Jesus whom the apostles beheld taken up into Heaven, shall come again in the glory of the Father, and with his holy angels.

2. Throughout Old Testament prophecy, the prediction is prominent of an era of universal righteousness and peace on earth under the reign of the Messiah. He shall have dominion from sea to sea, and from the river to the ends of the earth. All Kings shall fall down before him; all nations shall serve him; all nations shall call Him blessed. Psalm 72-8-11-17. They shall beat their swords into plough-shares and their spears into pruning hooks, nation shall not lift up the sword against nation, neither shall they learn war any more. The earth shall be full of the knowledge of the Lord as the waters cover the sea (Isaiah ii-41-xL-9.) They shall teach no more every man his neighbour and every man his brother, saying, know the Lord; for they shall know Me, from the least of them, unto the greatest of then, saith the Lord (Jeremiah 31-34) I saw in the night visions, and behold, one like the Son of Man came with the clouds of Heaven, and came to the ancient of days, and they brought Him near before him, and there was given Him dominion and glory and a Kingdom that all people, nations and languages should serve him. His dominion is an everlasting dominion, which shall not pass away and his Kingdom that which shall not be destroyed. The Kingdom and dominion and the greatness of the Kingdom under the whole Heaven shall be given to the people of the most high (Daniel 7 Chap. 13-14-27-verses.) The question relates to these and similar Old Testament predictions and the issue is, whether this era of universal righteousness and peace on earth. The Messianic Kingdom of prophecy will precede or follow the second coming of the Lord Jesus? As the prediction in the Apocalypse of the binding of Satan for one thousand years seems to refer to the era of righteousness and peace on earth under the reign of the Messiah, the term millennium has been appropriat to designate the Messianic kingdom of Old Testament prophecy and the word should be so understood in any discussion of the subject at issue. It is in point here to remark that much laboured argument has been expended to prove that Christ is now a King—that all power in heaven and on earth has been given unto Him, that he rules in the hearts of his people, that he is head and sovereign of his blood bought church. All this is true but it is wholly irrelevant to the question at issue between premillenarians and post-millenarians. This question has reference exclusively to the predicted messianic kingdom. Unless the language of Scripture is meaningless, the prophecies above referred to have never yet been fulfilled and the question is whether their fulfillment is to precede or to follow the second advent. It is with reference to this question we say the apostolic church, including the apostles themselves, was premillenarian. God's covenant people, to whom were committed, and to whom pertained not only the giving of the law bnt "the promises," the oracles of God, expected the fulfillment of the predictions of the Messianic kingdom, at the first advent of the Messiah. The apostles undoubtedly cherished this expectation and probably did not entirely abandon it until they beheld his ascension and heard the annunciation of the heavenly messengers. But a few days before his crucifixion he spake to them a parable because they thought that the kingdom of God should immediately appear. As he was about to be parted from them and taken up into heaven their last enquiry was: Wilt thou at this time restore the kingdom to Israel? After his departure and their baptism by the Holy Ghost, whom Jesus had promised to show them things to come and to bring to their remembrance whatsoever he had said to them. The truth both as to the coming and the kingdom was distinctly apprehended. They now remembered and understood the parable. A certain nobleman went into a far country to receive for himself a kingdom and to return. They now remembered and understood what he had recently taught mem as to the state of the church and of the world between the time of his departure and his return. Wars and rumours of wars, famines, pestilences and earthquakes, false prophets whereby many should be deceived, abounding iniquity, whereby the love of many should wax cold—but no intimation of an era of righteousness—no no messianic kingdom before the advent. The gospel of the kingdom, the glad tidings of its comings and of the way by which citizenship therein might be attained, was to be preached unto all nations, for a witness, and then should the end come. He foretold the coming of the Son of Man in the clouds of heaven with power and great glory, and having mentioned signs of this coming. He spake a parable: Behold the fig tree and all the trees; when they now shoot forth, ye know that summer is nigh; so when ye see these things come to pass, know ye that the kingdom of God is nigh at hand. So instructed by the Master and enlightened by the Holy Ghost the Apostles taught that he Lord Jesus would return again to the earth but that "the heaven must receive him until the times of restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of his holy prophets since the world began. What can here be referred to if not the the Messiah?

As this Kingdom was to be manifested at and not before the advent, the advent became the immediatt object of desire and expectation, the blessed hope of the apostles and through them of the apostolic church. The fact of special interest and importance in its bearing on the question under consideration is the apostles not only taught Christ would certainly return but that the event was possibly near at hand, that it might occur in their day and hence was to be "looked for" with expectation and preparation. They would now appreciate as they [illegible] before his departure [illegible] ed injunction in his [illegible] course on the parable [illegible] for ye know not [illegible] Lord cometh," and now appreciate [illegible] enforced [illegible] by reminding them that if the good man of the house had known at what hour the thief would come he would have watched. By commending the faithful servants who lived in expectation of his master's coming and be the parable of the ten virgins, with the accompanying interpretation. Watch, therefore, for ye know neither the day nor the hour when the Son of man cometh.

Whatever questions have been raised as to the meaning of this injunction by the interpreters of Scripture in these latter days, there could have been no doubt as to its meaning in the minds of the apostles, when he spoke of the coming of the Son of Man in the clouds of heaven with power and great glory. And he shall send his angels with a great sound of a trumpet, and they shall gather together his elect from the four winds, from one end of heaven to the other. The apostles could never have imagined what many of the present day not only imagine but teach, that the coming here referred to was his coming to each one at death, or a spiritual coming as on the day of Pentecost; or a providential coming, as at the destruction of Jerusalem.

Yours sincerely,
James Sutherland,

WONDER ISLAND OF HISTORY.

The Story of Sicily Is a Compendium of Medieval Romance.

Sicily's history is as vivid and picturesque, as ferocious and creative and destructive, as mythical and intensely practical as the stories of all the rest of the world put together. And in beauty of nature, of climate, or man and of beast, the island is a paradise today, whether or not it was ever the workless, painless, passionless elysium where our first ancestors enjoyed all the good things of life without having to toil.

Nature itself, now in the guise of the misunderstood gods of old, now in convulsions or in quiet fertility that science has made plain to us, weaves its mysterious shuttle through and through the highly colored fabric.

And men—such men!—tower above their fellows in the story like Titans—Pindar, Aeschylus, Theocritus, Thucydides, Archimedes, the two great Hierons, Cicero, Verres, Diodorus, Hamilcar and Hannibal, Roger the Count and Roger the King, Belisarius, the great crusaders Richard of the Lion Heart and Louis the Saint of France, Charles of Anjou, Frederick II., the "wonder of the world," and Garibaldi. Even this partial list reads like a compendium of ancient and medieval romance and chivalry.—National Geographic Magazine.

DOCTORS ADVISE IRON FOR THE BLOOD

Anaemia, pale faces, nervousness, stomach troubles, watery blood, etc., are sure signs of thin blood. Dr. Malmerius says he can take any of these cases and cure any one of them in ten days by giving Iron for the blood, and Phosphorus for the nerves, "called Bonised Phosphorus with Iron." I have found that 99 per cent. of all stomach, liver, kidney, bowel, nerve, etc., troubles are traced right back to the blood. Just as soon as Bonised Phosphorus with Iron is given it is almost immediately absorbed by the system the blood takes the iron while the nerves are soothed by the phosphorus, making you eat better, feel better, look better, digest better, and finally you will be made 100 per cent. stronger. Do not be taking all sorts of patent medicines and laxatives which only ruin your system; go to the root of the trouble and start taking Iron and strengthen your blood, restore your nerves, and your digestion and will recharge your whole system with new life. Bonised Phosphorus with Iron is dispensed by one druggist in each city. F. C. Weber dispenses it for Peterboro.

than amal seed, but more seed would have to be used in sowing, as the plants from this class of seed were larger and more vigorous than from small seed.

PLANT AT THE RIGHT TIME.

The next point made was the importance of planting the seed at the right time. Much had also been learned in this respect by experiments at the College. Briefly these results indicated that in the case of spring wheat it was important to get it in the ground just as quickly as the land could be worked. This should be immediately followed by oats. The barley should be put in next, then peas and beans. Getting the seed into the ground at the right time means an addition of bushels per acre.

BEANS SHOULD BE GROWN.

Turning his attention to the crops that might be sown to advantage, Professor Zavitz urged an increased sowing of beans. Beans were grown extensively in Michigan and New York States, and it was reasonable to assume that Ontario, lying between them, could grow beans profitably. The bean was a highly concentrated food product, and the seed available in Ontario was comparatively free from disease. The variety that he thought could be used to best advantage was the common white pea bean. They are already grown to some extent in every county in the Province, and could be greatly extended with profit. Prevailing prices are high and will continue to be so as long as the war lasts. He very strongly urges the growing of more beans.

The pea crop might also be increased, but he did not urge this strongly. Like the bean the pea was a concentrated food.

ROOM FOR MORE OATS.

Another crop that could be increased to great advantage, said Professor Zavitz, was oats. The oat crop was exceedingly important. It was needed to feed our live stock, and live stock was greatly needed. The oat crop of Ontario was worth in value about one-quarter of all farm crops. Reiterating his former advice about sowing good seed, he declared the farmer should insist on getting seed oats of a known variety. There was a limited supply of O. A. C. No. 72 oats, and he understood the Dominion Government was arranging to get "Banner" seed oats from the West; in fact about 400,000 bushels had been collected for seed purposes in the terminal elevators. If the farmer could not secure these he suggested that No. 1 commercial seed oats be purchased, but on no account the ordinary commercial feeding oats. This point he strongly emphasized as being essential to success—first home grown seed and next western seed of known variety.

Professor Zavitz warned the farmers against purchasing at a high price seed oats that were exploited by United States seed houses, when the same quality of seed could be purchased in Ontario at from one-third to one-quarter the price.

THE POTATO SITUATION.

At the request of the committee, Professor Zavitz referred briefly to the potato question. The existing high price of potatoes he thought would result in a great many people in cities and towns using vacant land for potato growing this year. This crop could also be very well extended because of its great food value. As to methods to be employed in sowing, he said, that best returns would be secured from sowing small, immature potatoes from good, healthy plants, as distinguished from small potatoes of a poor variety. Large potatoes, when used, should be cut into pieces of about two ounces in weight. Experiments along this line had been conducted over a series of years, and the two-ounce seed, under exactly similar conditions to one-ounce pieces and less, had given a yield of 177 bushels per acre. This was also demonstrated at the Central Experimental Farm at Ottawa where they got better results from potatoes from Indian Head than from places further south, not because the potatoes came from Indian Head, but rather that the potatoes did not come to the same degree of maturity. Give first preference to your home-grown seed by all means.

The weather conditions last year, said Professor Zavitz, were abnormal. Fortunately most of the seed in Ontario was free from disease. The labour shortage continued to be acute, and it could not well be overcome while the war lasted. But he was assured that if the suggestions that he had thrown out to the committee were adopted seriously by the farmers of Ontario, the seed prepared before the snow disappears, sowing done at the proper time, and "plump" seed selected, free from disease or blight, that the results to the farmers from this season's crop, given reasonable weather conditions, would be astonishing to the farmers themselves and a great help to the country.

John. R. Dargavel, M.P.P., was elected chairman and the members present showed a great interest in the discussion.

Nurse Swears Eva Boyle Said Haynes Threatened To Quit

She Was Lonely, Girl is Alleged to Have Said, and Lover Was Working at Night But He Objected When Other Young Men Offered to Take Her Out Evenings.

MONTREAL, March 17—The court room was crowded again yesterday when the case of Eva Boyle, on trial for the murder of Albert Haynes, was resumed at a quarter to eleven o'clock. Adjutant Taylor of the Salvation Army again sat in the box with the prisoner who seemed more concerned than Thursday and kept her head down for several minutes. She had evidently been crying.

The Crown—You had retired for the night, on January 8th. You were awakened by calls for help. What did you do?

I got up and looked out and saw a woman calling for help. She staggered a few steps and fell down.

You subsequently found some one had come into the Hospital wounded that morning?"

Mr. Couper—"From what direction was she coming?"

"Up the driveway leading to the Ross Memorial."

Miss Alice Dolley, was then called, another nurse at the Hospital. She was in charge at night in the Ross Memorial.

"You attended the prisoner?"

"I was in charge."

"You know something about the charts?"

"I do the charts."

The charts of the case were shown, and recognized as the witness's own charting. In reply to questions she witness noticed nothing unusual. But on the day of the tenth the nurse attending the case reported what she had noticed. The witness herself had noticed nothing at the time.

The Crown—"Did you have any conversation with the prisoner?"

"Yes."

"What was that conversation?"

The question was objected to by the defence.

"On what day did you have the conversation?"

"Shortly after admission—two days after, when she was able to talk."

"You went in to see her in the course of your duties."

"Yes."

"She gave you some information?"

The Judge—"Did you ask questions?"

"No, only what she volunteered."

Defence again objected.

"Which was ——?"

"That she had shot her friend and had shot herself."

"Anything else?"

"She told the reason."

"What was that reason?"

"She told me that she had been going with this friend; he was working at night. She was lonely; others had offered to accompany her to places, and her other friend said she was not to do this or he would give her up. After that she told me the friend was going to give her up because she had gone with this other man, and she shot him because she didn't want him to give her up."

The defence—"At what time were you with the accused?"

"Between 12 and 1."

"How did you usually find her?"

"Generally crying. She used to ask me questions about her friend. I told her I knew nothing."

Cattle Markets.

Light runs of cattle all through the week kept the general tone of the market strong, with prices at an advance of 25 to 30 cents average over the preceding week. The demand continues strong and active for the best finished cattle and very light prices were in a few cases paid. The choicest lots sold up to $10.80 to $11 and single fancy Easter heifers sold as high as $12 to $12.50. Few of the latter class are as yet coming in, but the indications are that the choicest Easter cattle this year will be in a strong market.

Fat cows and heavy choice bulls have held very firm all through the week, both classes going well up to $9.50 o $10.

The market is strong and active for good bready stockers and feeders, the bulk of the transactions for anything choice ranging from $8.50 to $9.50.

There is a good market for choice quality milkers and springers.

Coice veal calves held strong.

Sheep and lambs firm.

Hogs declined early in the week, holding the decline at $15.40 fed and watered up till Thursday morning sales the packers succeeding later in the day in lowering their market another 15 cents, bringing their quotations to $15.25 fed and watered and $15.50 off cars, and prospects still lower for next week.

Very Impatient Prisoners.

Canadians do not make patient prisoners-of-war in Germany, and make more attempts to escape than any other section of the army. Moreover, they do not lose heart when recaptured, and almost invariably the man who has made one unsuccessful attempt repeats the attempt twice and even thrice. The spirit which animates these unfortunate victims of the war is shown in a letter from Donald MacNicoll, of Vancouver (16th Batt.), who writes from a German camp: "I am confined in my 3 x 4 room. I am not sick, unless it is of the home kind. I am here for that honorable offence of 'beating it, as the Americans would say. This is my second attempt. The first time I got within four miles of liberty, and the next 3½. Fourteen days' solitary confinement on bread and water—that is what we suffer for these attempts; but, then, look at the prize if you win, and you know we are always going to win." The writer goes on to speak of his progress in the study of German and French.

GIN PILLS FOR THE KIDNEYS
SUFFERING RELIEVED IN OLD AGE
Many people give way too easily to disease when they are getting old. They regard such ailments as Rheumatism and Pains in the Back, Swelling Joints, and Bladder trouble as inevitable and incurable.
But take the case of Mr. Frank Lesland, a well known farmer of St. Raphael, Ont. At the age of 61 he writes to thank us for what Gin Pills have done for him. He had suffered with pains in his back and joints to such an extent that he was forced to quit work. After taking six boxes of Gin Pills he was completely relieved of his pains and says he is as strong as when he was thirty. He is younger than his wife, and she has been greatly benefitted by taking Gin Pills.
Probably the sufferings you put down to advancing years will disappear with the use of Gin Pills. They are well worth a trial. Mr. Lesland started with our free sample. A sample will be sent to you free upon request. All dealers sell Gin Pills at 50c. a box, or 6 boxes for $2.50.

A VICTIM OF CRUELTY.

Hon. Dr. Beland Was Kept From Seeing Dying Wife.

That the British and Canadian Governments had made every effort to secure the release of Hon. Dr. Beland, member for Beauce, now a prisoner of war in the hands of the Germans, was stated by Sir Robert Borden in the Commons recently. The Prime Minister replied to an enquiry by Mr. Marcil, of Bonaventure, who had read that two prominent Germans had been released from a Canadian internment camp, and wished to know what had been done on behalf of Dr. Beland. Sir Robert said he had acquainted Sir Wilfrid Laurier with all that had been done, and pointed out that one difficulty in the case was the fact that strong efforts to have a prisoner released or exchanged often tended to strengthen the determination of the enemy to hold him.

A letter received in Ottawa announces that the wife of Dr. H. S. Beland, a Belgian noblewoman, died recently in Belgium, and that her husband was refused the supreme consolation of attending his wife at her death-bed.

Dr. Beland was with his wife in Belgium when war broke out, but refused to leave for England, staying behind to attend wounded Belgians and Germans in Antwerp before the fall of that city. Some time ago he was imprisoned by the Germans in a Berlin detention camp, and, although successive appeals were made to high German authorities, he was always refused a permit to see his sick wife, who died some days ago without seeing her husband. It is an outrage for Germany for having thus treated Dr. Beland, who after all committed no other crime than staying behind to attend the wounded and sick, Germans as well as Belgians. It has greatly angered the people in this country to hear that innocent Canadian heroes are so inhumanly treated by Germany.

A Cool Soldier.

A French grenadier who was exasperated at some injustice that had been done him by a field marshal pointed his pistol at the marshal and pulled the trigger, but it did not go off. Without moving a muscle the veteran cried, "Four days in the cells for keeping your arms in a bad state!"

THE LITTLE THINGS

Studebaker cars are fine cars. The excellence of Studebaker chassis design—the beauty of the body, both in finish and in line—the wonderful power of the motor—the smooth, almost vibrationless operation of the car—these are the BIG things that indicate quality, which makes Studebaker a fine car.

But PERFECTION also is shown in the LITTLE things.

In both the Studebaker FOUR and SIX you find a high-grade Yale Ignition Lock; permanently bright finished metal parts; hand grips on the door; leather-bound carpets in the tonneau; aluminum bound linoleum in the driver's compartment; leather edged top; Blackmore curtain openers; leather-bound robe straps; big pockets on every door.

These are some of the LITTLE things that indicate the perfection not only in BIG things but in detail, which make the Studebaker such a wonderful value for the money.

Death Claims

One of the largest American Life Insurance Companies (The New York Life) lost by death during a period of only twelve months, the year of 1916, no less than Nine Thousand Eight Hundred and Fifty-seven policy holders, a number nearly equal to one half the whole population of the City of Peterborough, through disease and accident as follows: Heart Disease carried off 1,270, Bright's Disease 913, Consumption 882, Pneumonia 810, Cancers and Tumors 802, War 328, Accidents 589, Apoplexy 559, Disease of Arteries 457, Disease of Digestive Organs 315, Paralysis 221, Diabetes 214.

As to ages 689 were 30 years or under; 1,519 were between 30 and 40; 2,471 between 40 and 50; 2,726 between 50 and 60; and 2,416 were over 60.

During the same period, the year 1916, the same Company declined 9,995 applicants for life insurance totalling $28,852,294. It is safe to assume the majority of those 9,995 applicants were at one time insurable risks, but THEY WAITED TOO LONG.

How about yourself Mr. Reader? WHERE DO YOU STAND? Are you still insurable? Perhaps next week or next month YOU may have waited too long. If you are still insurable we can sell you the best policy that money can buy.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

He Had Neither Patriotism Nor Romance

By OSCAR COX

A man with one eye covered by a patch, a long scar on his neck and helping himself with a cane hobbled toward a hamlet in Canada. Meeting another man on the road, he stopped him and said:

"I come from ze wars in la belle France."

"Oh, you do? Did you go out with one of our Canadian regiments or did you go over and enlist in the French army?"

"I enlist in ze ——th Canadian infantry. I am a Canadian, though I love France."

"There's more of you come back than might have been expected. Seems to me I'd about as leave be a steer turned into a Chicago packing house as go over there to be made pulp of."

"We fight for civilization, for ze benefit of posteritie."

"Well, you're welcome to do so if you like. I'm not interested in posterity myself, and I don't consider that I'm under any obligation to my great-great-grandchildren whatever."

The speaker was about to move on when the war scarred veteran said:

"There is a girl in this town by the name of Mabel Shaw, I believe?"

"There was a girl by that name."

"Mon Dieu! She is not dead?"

"No; she's very much alive."

"I bring a message to her from her lovaire."

"Oh, you do?"

"He and I fought togezzer in ze trenches."

"Is the main part of him coming home too?"

"All of him is buried on ze battlefield in Picardie."

"That's too bad." This was said with evident disappointment. "Was his name Wilkins?"

"Yes. You knew him?"

"No. I never saw him. After he went away I took something that belonged to him. I'd like to return it to him."

"He was a brave man, a ver' brave man."

"I'm sure o' that, considering what he stood up against before he left. But I reckon he didn't realize the critical position he was in. What was this message you brought from Wilkins to his girl?"

"We had repelled seven attacks in one day by the Germans. At the last attack my friend was shot through the heart."

"That's the weakest place in a man's body."

"It is certain death. But Wilkins lived long enough to say to me: 'Antoine, in ze little town in Canada where I lived there is a lovely girl who has promised to wait for me till I come back after ze war. If you go there will you seek her and tell her zat my last thoughts were of her, zat I died wiz her dear name on my lips? I would like to live for her, but I rejoice to die for my country.'"

"That's very beautiful."

"It is magnifique. What could there be more glorious for a man than to die for his country wiz ze name of ze girl he loves on his lips?"

"Nothing, positively nothing," replied the other. "I envy Wilkins from the bottom of my heart. Fate has many trials in store for us. If he had come back he might have been sorry that he hadn't closed the account abroad."

"Oh, but that was not so wiz him. He would have come to ze embrace of ze girl he loved. Zat made his sacrifice so magnifique."

There was an impressive silence between the man, which was broken by the returned soldier.

"Can you direct me to ze house of Mabel Shaw?"

"Certainly. Do you see the little red house over there?" pointing.

"Yes."

"Well, around the corner is a white house with green shutters. That's the location you're after. You can tell Mabel that you met a man on the road who directed you to her and asked you to say to her that he won't trespass on her sacred feeling for the rest of the day and she needn't expect him to dinner. She'll doubtless be very much overcome."

"You are her brother?"

"I wish I was. No; I'm her husband."

"Mon Dieu!"

"There's a lot of romance in this world, but I wasn't made that way myself. There are men who tumble over each other to get themselves killed in battle and men that are ready to kill each other for a woman. I haven't any experience in war, but I'm a major general in love. After Jim Wilkins went off to fight the Teutons I executed a brilliant strategic move on the girl he left behind him and captured her. Did you ever hear of the soldiers who captured a powder mill? No? Well, they were much pleased with their exploit till the whole thing blew up and sent 'em sky high."

"You have no reverence for woman."

"You bet I have! My mother was the best woman that ever lived."

The soldier stood irresolute for a few minutes, then, turning away, said:

"Since you are married to the woman to whom I bear the message you would very much oblige me if you would give it to her yourself."

"I will be happy to do so. It will make her very benevolent—for awhile."

The soldier went one way, the man with whom he had left the message another.

An Army of Internal Bathers

Over half a million bright, keen, up-to-date Canadians and Americans have found that Internal Bathing is more essential to their well-being than External Baths.

Have found that, taken occasionally at night, they feel like different people the next morning. No more of that bilious, tired, nervous condition—but, having by Nature's own element, antiseptic warm water, removed all the poisonous waste from the Lower Intestine, they awake thoroughly refreshed by normal sleep, with all their functions acting in healthy accord, bright, happy, clear-headed and confident, eager and capable for the duties of the day.

THE COST OF WAR.

How Money Voted by the Dominion is Spent.

In launching discussion of the resolution to provide $500,000,000, Sir Robert Borden presented to Parliament a statement of Canada's war expenditure during the fiscal year and an estimate of such expenditures during the coming period.

Of the amount asked, the Department of Militia and Defence requires $196,171,000, the Overseas Militia Department $219,000,000, and the Naval Service $17,500,000. In reference to this the Prime Minister's memorandum referred to "new ships and maintenance." The war expenditures proper provide for a total of $433,000,000. The balance of the half billion may be devoted towards further assistance to Great Britain in financing war orders in Canada.

The detailed items for the land forces include pay and allowances for 400,000 troops, $182,500,000; separation allowances, $36,000,000; rations and subsistence, $51,000,000; clothing and necessaries, $48,000,000; equipment and general stores, $42,261,000; ammunition, $16,750,000; small arms and machine guns and 20,000 Ross rifles and bayonets, $5,666,000; forage, $2,500,000; remounts, $2,000,000; ocean transport, $5,000,000; railway transport, $3,000,000; engineer service, $4,000,000; civil employes, $2,000,000; recruiting, customs duties, funeral expenses, fuel, $5,000,000.

The total expenditure by fiscal years since the war began has been: 1914, $60,750,476; 1915, $166,197,755; 1916 and 1917, up to January 20, $216,901,822. Of the total expenditure for war during the present fiscal year the Militia Department had controlled $209,213,000, the Naval Service $5,775,000, and the Justice Department $1,004,000.

The Prime Minister explained that after deducting the expenses already borne by Canada in connection with the maintenance of its troops, such as pay, etc., six shillings per man per day was the War Office estimate of the net cost of the Canadian soldier at the front, the total cost being nine shillings and sixpence. This six shillings was, therefore, the amount which Canada still had to pay. As for the equipment of the troops, that would belong to the Dominion after the war.

Hon. J. D. Hazen said that Canada was paying the 1,300 naval recruits who have been sent overseas.

Sir Robert Borden told Sir Wilfrid Laurier that the reason for the great increase in this year's war vote was the financing of Great Britain's munition purchases here.

The Opposition leader then asked how much of the war loan was being spent for the defence of Canada. The Government had purchased two submarines at the beginning of the war when danger threatened from the German navy. What was it doing to-day? He was assured by the Premier that the matter had been considered, both by the Government and the British Admiralty, and that the correspondence in connection with the matter would be submitted privately to Sir Wilfrid.

GOLDEN TWILIGHT.

In the twilight, golden twilight,
When the sun has bid good-night,
And its rays are still reflected,
As the orb has left our sight,
When all shadows have departed,
And the dew is falling fast,
When the stars begin to twinkle,
And a lurid light is cast,
When the birds have ceased to warble,
And have nestled for the night,
When the bullfrog's "chug" is strengthened
By the waning of the light,
'Tis the hour for calm reflection,
And all nature seems to rest,
For the day's turmoil is ended
After hours of strenuous test.
'Tis the hour of peace and quiet,
Leading up to full repose;
'Tis the time of relaxation,
Daylight fading as a rose.
'Tis a time for contemplation,
When life's work can be reviewed,
And the errors that have marred it
Can be studied and eschewed.
In the heyday of our manhood
Life is full of strength and power,
But life's twilight comes so gently,
We scare feel the gloaming hour.
Twilight, twilight, golden twilight!
Waning days are drawing near;
Comfort and contentment follow
When life's sky is bright and clear.
—J. B. Rittenhouse.

Fed English Poor.

Sir George Perley recently presided over an entertainment in the People's Palace for a thousand poor children of the East End of London. The entertainment was provided by funds from Hamilton, Vancouver, and Victoria. Agents-General McBride of British Columbia and Richard Reid of Ontario attended.

Operated Old Mill.

Every collection of Toronto views published in recent years contains a picture of the Old Mill on the Humber, one of the suburban beauty spots of the city. This scene has been painted and photographed thousands of times. It will surprise most persons to hear that the man who operated the old mill has just died at the age of 84 years. Jacob Atkinson owned and operated the historical old mill as a foundry back in the 60's of the last century, and it was finally burned down, having remained from that time the picturesque ruin like that it is to-day.

Cannot Poison Huns.

Careful investigation at the Berlin University has shown that covers for beer steins can contain as much as 35 per cent. lead without danger of poisoning consumers of the steins' contents.

The Moral of the Story.

Douglas, as the narrative runs, was once sitting in a profound sleep in the corridor of the capitol when Adeline Cutts, a Washington belle, passed by. She did not know the sleeper, but was struck with compassion on seeing such a splendidly intellectual face under such conditions, and, stooping down, laid her handkerchief over it to protect it from the flies. Douglas on awakening found the handkerchief, sought the owner and eventually married her. There was a pause, and then the professor added: "Young ladies, the moral of this story is, have your pocket handkerchief marked."

Bishop Fallon's Offer.

In refusing to make an eloquent appeal for the Red Cross and Patriotic Fund campaigns in the city of London on the ground that talk is cheap, Bishop M. F. Fallon, of the Roman Catholic Diocese of London, announced that he is prepared to give one-third of his net income to this purpose for the duration of the war, on condition that 100 other Londoners, whose incomes exceed $3,000 a year, do likewise.

One shows "gap" Other fits close

You know, by experience, that the ordinary collar soon spreads and shows an unsightly "gap" at the top.

On the other hand, a W. G. & R. collar retains its close fit for the following reasons:—

1st—Because the inside buttonhole (see 1 in illustration) is a fraction of an inch higher than the outside buttonhole. This makes the collar button act as a lever and exert a steady upward pressure on the hook end (see 3) making a tight lock at the top of the collar.

2nd—Because it has our "Slip On" buttonhole (see 2) on the outside tab. Thus, when buttoning the outside tab, the collar slides easily into place, the post of the collar button coming to the top of the "Slip On" buttonhole, making it impossible for the collar to spread. It must stay close at the top.

These exclusive features of W. G. & R. collars are sure to be appreciated by you and other particular dressers.

Is Peterboro Doing Her Share In Helping To Win The War

A Returned Soldier says: "Peterboro does not know there is a War going On!" and the indifference of many of Our Citizens would seem to indicate that his Diagnosis is Correct. Women are doing great Work but many of Our Men have Failed to follow their Example. Many ways to Help but a Lot of People seem unable to find them. Apathy towards Recruiting Efforts and Carelessness in Receiving Returned Soldiers are Features that Strike an Observer. An Important Question that Citizens should Ponder Over.

IS PETERBOROUGH doing her share in helping to win the war? This question is prompted by the remark of a returned soldier a few days ago, who said: "The people of Peterborough do not know there is a war going on." At the first thought, when one considers that Peterborough has enlisted nearly 3,000 soldiers and contributed several hundreds of thousands of dollars for patriotic purposes, one would be inclined to answer the question asked at the beginning of this article in the affirmative.

But are the people as a whole doing anything to win the war? The families who have sent their men to the front are doing their share, the men who have come back have done theirs, but how about the rest of the people? Think it over. Consider your own case. Are you contributing in any way to the success of the cause?

Monthly Receptions Have Dropped Into Oblivion

There seems to be an apathy in Peterborough that has been shown in many ways recently. In other cities where men have come back from overseas, battered and broken down from the ravages of war, there have been receptions for them, and afterwards their services have treatment of our heroes who have come back. Occasionally a returned soldier is met at the station by some of the city representatives—more often than not recently the men have found no welcome awaiting them. A system of monthly receptions was inaugurated, but has dropped into oblivion.

The Response of the Citizens was Lamentably Poor

That is one instance of the apathy that apparently prevails. Another is the indifference that a great part of Peterborough's population shows towards the recruiting efforts of the 247th Battalion. Lieut.-Col. Ackerman attempted to form a 500 Club to stimulate enlistment, but the response of the citizens was lamentably poor. Recruiting conferences called by the Chief Recruiting Officer for the District have been attended by a handful. The men who should have been been recognized by the presentation of testimonials or medals. Here we have been careless and inconsistent in our there were curling or at the theatre amusing themselves while the call for reinforcements is sounding through the land.

Generous Donations Have Been Made To Patriotic Funds

Generous contributions have been made to the various patriotic funds, but, speaking frankly, is there any one in Peterborough who has sacrificed anything to make a donation to any of the funds? Has any one given enough to feel it? And this year, instead of securing the Patriotic Fund by voluntary subscriptions, it has been shunted onto the taxes so that the men who are now at the front fighting for us will have to pay their share of it for years after they come home.

Hundreds of Things You can Do to Help Win the War

Think it over. Are you helping at all? Have you done anything to help a returned soldier get a position? Have you ever even gone up to one of them on the street and shaken hands with him, while you told him how glad you were to see him back? If you are not eligible for military service yourself, have you ever done anything to see that those who are eligible are brought into the ranks? Are you saving your money to buy war certificates? Are you going to do anything to assist in the greater production campaign? There are hundreds of things you can do to help win the war. Are you doing any of them?

The Ladies Have Responded Nobly

Needless to say, this article is not directed at the ladies. The women of Peterborough, as are the women of Canada, are doing their part far more devotedly than are the greater part of the men. Our soldiers in the trenches, our wounded lads in the hospitals and the unfortunate boys who are prisoners in Germany would fare ill if it were not for the unselfish persevering efforts of the women.

: Various Scenes From the War Regions : A Costa Rican Inauguration :

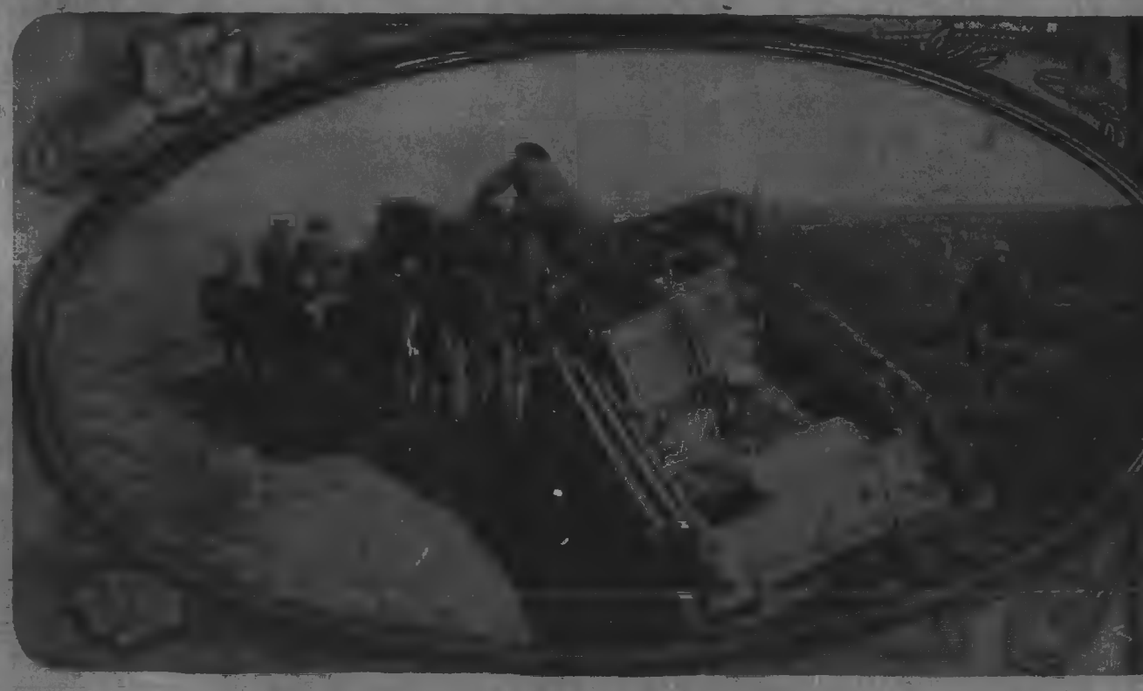
After a long and tedious campaign word comes from the Mesopotamia expedition that conditions are improving. The British have captured the city of Bagdad, and the Russians are pushing forward to the border. Major-General Maurice said recently that this success has completely upset Germany's plans in the East. The picture shows a Turkish military bridge over the Tigris at Mosul.

Two thousand French munition workers receiving words of praise from the Russian General, Gilinsky.

The objective of it all. An elaborately constructed system of German trenches on the western front.

The barrage fire, Meurthe et Moselle sector, which uses up shells of the famous French 75's by the millions. This is a photograph of an actual bombardment.

French troops on the march from Salonika to strengthen the advanced lines, bivouacked along the banks of the Vardar. The French now hold the centre of the allied line in the region of Lake Doiran, where considerable activity in the way of raids recently has been reported. The Italians in Albania on February 22nd were reported to have linked up with the Salonika line, and the constant arrival of reinforcements for General Sarrail's army suggests an impending drive.



It is no easy matter getting an ammunition waggon over miry ground, for, after persistent rains, the soil is no firmer than cream cheese, and horses cannot get a grip.

U.S. Looks to Her Fleet - Georgy "Gets Leave" - Jerusalem Again in History

Since the breaking off of diplomatic relations with Germany, the United States have turned their attention seriously to preparations for actual warfare, especially in the fleet. The Congress passed large appropriations for the construction of more units and for more adequate coast defence. Our photo shows the naval station at Guantanmo Bay, Cuba, and a few members of the Atlantic Division.

The Right Hon. David Lloyd George on his first visit to his old home village of Criccieth, Wales, since becoming the British Prime Minister. With him is his elder son Richard, of the sixth battalion of Royal Welsh Fusiliers. Lloyd George is the idol of the villagers, and even in general he is well liked, but 'tis rumored he takes his life in his hands when he visits Scotland, especially the immense Clyde shipyards.

View of Jerusalem looking toward the Mount of Olives, showing the dome of the Mosque of Omar in the middle ground. The dome, properly the Dome of the Rock, is believed to have been erected about 631 A.D., and to cover the original site of Solomon's Temple

A bed inspection on the battleship Texas. This gives one an idea of the tremendous activity in vogue on Uncle Sam's ships as mentioned in a foregoing picture.

One of the gates of Jerusalem. This shows a portion of the wall around the new city. Three walls were at various times built about the city, the oldest, some parts of which still exist, being attributed to Solomon.

The Church of the Holy Sepulchre. This holy spot, the recovery of which from the Turk kept the chivalry of Europe at war for 200 years, will again form one of the questions to be decided at the peace conference.

A street scene in Jerusalem. This ancient city, which has seen but little radical change since the day of Christ, seems assured of vastly increased importance with the last shot fired in the great war.

BAPAUME CAPTURED BY THE BRITISH

KEY OF GERMAN DEFENSES TAKEN BY HAIG

General Haig's Men Have Battered Way Into Bapaume

Much Coveted German Stronghold on Western Front Has Fallen Into British Hands--Czarveitch of Russia Reported Dead of Scarlet Fever---German Zeppelin Returning From a Raid on England is Shot Down and Its Crew Burned to Death---Great Uneasiness in Berlin Over the Russian Situation.

A SUMMARY OF TO-DAY'S WAR CABLES

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

LONDON, March 17.—Bapaume is captured. The splendid news came from the Western front to-day, telling of smashing victories, both by the British and French troops. General Haig's soldiers not only occupied Bapaume, Achiet Le-Petit and Le Transloy, but have pressed beyond the first named towns. The French troops also did magnificently, advancing last night north of the Avre and between the Avre and Oise, on a front of 13 miles, to a depth at some places of two and a half miles.

"Our troops entered Bapaume this morning after stiff fighting," Reuter's correspondent telegraphs. "The place was in flames. The Germans had evidently made all plans for setting fire to it when forced to retreat. Our troops are reported to be beyond the town." The correspondent also reported the occupation of Achiet Le-Petit and Le Transloy.

LONDON, March 17.—An unverified report was circulated here to-day that the Czarevitch, 13-year-old Grand Duke Alexis, was dead from scarlet fever.

(By John Grandens, U.P. Staff Correspondent).

BERLIN, March 17.—Germany is profoundly impressed by the Russian revolution. Newspapers to-day pointed to the conference of officials in Vienna as of extreme importance, in view of the developments at Petersburg (Petrograd). In this conference will be the Emperor Carl of Austria, the Imperial German Chancellor Von Bethmann-Hollweg, Prince Conrad Von Hopenlohe, formerly Minister of Finance, Count Czernin, Premier Clam Martinitz and Count Tisza.

LONDON, March 17.—Bapaume, the key of German defences against which the new Haig offensive on the Western front has been hammering, has been captured.

Despatches on Thursday, coupled with Field Marshal Haig's official statement, prepared the public in a measure for the welcome news of the capture of the German stronghold, dubbed by Hindenburg not so many months ago as the "Gibraltar of the Western front."

LONDON, March 17.—Petrograd despatches late to-day report Grand Duke Michael as accepting the Throne from his brother Nicholas. Last night's news, however, conveyed the impression that Michael had himself abdicated. This morning's report unofficially stated that the Czarevitch had died of scarlet fever, which would make Grand Duke Michael Czar in his own right, if the people let him. The first reports said he would be Grand Regent. This would probably mean a limited monarchy, similar to Great Britain.

PETROGRAD, March 17.—By order the Provisional Government, Admiral Mapine to-day arrested Governor Zeen of Finland.

PARIS, March 17.—A Zeppelin, apparently returning from England, was brought down in Compiegne to-day. The airship fell from a great height. The crew were burned to death.

AMSTERDAM, March 17.—Unrest in Germany against militarists' repression of the people has been violently accelerated by the success of the Russian people in casting off the yoke of centuries. Even those elements of the German people who favour autocratic control of the Fatherland have been affected by the news form Petrograd, seeing there the certainty that instead of Russia growing weaker as the war progressed, she is likely to grow stronger with a new Government animated by a united determination to do its best against Germany.

Additional details printed in papers arriving here indicate a dramatic scene in the Prussian Diet on this occasion. Socialists spoke bitterly and denounced the Government and the "sins of those in power." "Absolutism" was one of the targets of their attack. Several speakers declared the time was coming when the nation would arise and sweep "Junkerism."

"We are no longer serfs whom the King can buy or sell," declared the Socialist Deputy Leinert, "or order us to bleed to death at his command. We have reached political manhood."

It was in reply to this outburst and fiery speeches by other delegates, that the Chancellor made his announcement of increasing power to be granted the people after the war.

PETROGRAD, March 17.—It was announced to-day that Grand Duke Michael is willing to accept the Throne of Russia only in case a referendum vote of the people shows that the form of government is approved throughout Russia.

LONDON, March 17.—The Russian revolution came at a most opportune moment for the Entente, according to an Exchange Telegraph Company's despatch from Copenhagen to-day, which stated that Minister of Interior Protopopoff had "already negotiated for a separate peace for Russia."

Protopopeff had long been accused by the Russian people of duplicity in traitorous negotiations with Germany.

PTE. W. TEABO, a Peterborough member of the 4th C.M.R., who returned yesterday from overseas. He was shot through the thigh by a shrapnel bullet on June 3rd of last year and has had seven operations, while he will have to undergo another at Kingston.

IMPOSSIBLE FOR THE GOVERNMENT TO AVOID ELECTION

Situation in British Parliament is Exceedingly Complicated and it is Impossible For the Government to Escape With Honours

NATIONALIST OPPOSITION

By T. P. O'Connor

LONDON, March 17.—Now that what might be termed the honeymoon of his premiership in England) has passed, Lloyd George finds that he is confronted with the same problems and the same troubles in government that beset every man who becomes a ruler of his fellow men, and that he is supplied with but a capricious instrument in the House of Commons. It certainly appeared as though the Premier had received a knock-out blow last week when he turned down the Irish demand with such vehemence. As a natural sequence, since misfortunes, the adage tells us, never come alone, there arose at the same time a fierce agitation in Lancashire. This was a business difficulty, touching the pockets and threatening the commercial life of many. So strenuous was the feeling that the Government was abusing its power, and so ardent was the determination to force a better condition for manufacturers the party differences were, at least for a time, entirely obliterated, and all, influenced by financial interest, joined in a movement which seemed to threaten the life of the ministry, because it proposed to raise the duties on Lancashire cotton imported into India.

Strenuous Opposition.

In the meantime the Irish Nationalists, as they had threatened to do, went into a strenuous opposition, and the new national service bill, which is not very popular in England, and which is very distinctly unpopular in Ireland, gave the desired opportunity to start a prolonged parliamentary fight.

The situation thus brought about is exceedingly complicated, and for the government to extricate itself. To escape with honours seems to be impossible. Indeed, to best judges of the situation, there appears to be nothing for the government to do except call for a general election. Accordingly for some days now the report has been sedulously circulated that a general election would be called, with Lloyd George arrayed against a recalcitrant House of Commons appealing to the country at large for support in his measures.

The Irish party alone remains unmoved by this possible contingency.

VACANT LOT SCHEME IS GROWING DAILY

their decision in regard to the providing of public bathing houses. their decision in regard to the providing of public bothing houses. The committee of citizens which has been pressing this movement is not satisfied that the Council properly considered the matter when it was before them, and Dr. Neal and Mrs. W. R. Morris have been selected to appear before the city fathers and request them to give further consideration of the important question. They will make this appeal on behalf of the hundreds of working people who signed the petition and who havev no opportunity of getting who signed the petition and who have no opportunity of getting

Just as we said. Those Wolstenholm lots have been snapped up. Worthy citizens have pre-empted the section. So to speak. They have driven stakes and will stand off all comers. Truly some people can see a good thing when it is propelled before them.

The lots are 39 feet front by 80 feet deep, and were secured by J. Ingram and H. Cruickshanks. The ground is choice and easily worked, which a discerning man should see. The Secretary of this movement expects a mess of early onions or juvenile beets as a sample. Don't forget.

Mr. W. Harper, of Lakefield sends in his quota. He offers seven acres, near Crawford's Grove. Seven acres is quite a piece when it comes to hand gaidening and cultivation. There is this further advantage in this allotment that divers citizens may go and camp, as many do, at the Grove, and have the early morning hours, before starting making munitions, to delve and dig. Besides he will be right on the ground to scare away any interloper and do it with a clothes pole. As Mr. Harper is not in the city to be spoken to any who wish can arrange with Mr. Joseph Gray, who lives on Charlotte street, next to Snowden's. As the late Edward Blake said on a memorable occasion, "better speak now."

Then the Mayor has donated the use of eight lots in the south. The Mayor has excellent taste in most things and the ground should be good for the purpose. You know where to find the Mayor. He is in his office for a few minutes each day. The rest of the time about on city business. His daily beat is from the garage to the clerk's office, same as a policeman. When not at one or the other he is in between.

It is in the mind of the secretary to make a walk about the city so soon as the flood subsides and see what might be available in the way of lots, convenient for use. There are a number of pieces, very good, and which owners may not take the trouble to list. The movement will accomplish very little unless it be pushed. Quietly and persistently. If possible the women should get interested and poke their husbands up to not be beaten by the other fellow who is earnestly going to see what we shall see. Next October will bring a lot of satisfaction into houses if a supply of vegetables, even the humble and now lucrative potato, can be garnered in.. Then the man of the house will go down cellar and view the results and take as much pride in what has been accomplished as the wife does in conning over the gem jars filled with sweets, pickles and other feminine concoctions. All good to take and displaying culinary skill. Remember the brands and varieties of home-made pickles and relishes that are lugged out and placed on the tables at an efficient Methodist tea meeting. All gifts and samples.

Then the man who appears at the back gate and waves a small collection of incipient onions over the fence and says fifteen cents can be told to take his green-grocer enterprise next door. Its great to be able to stand some one off and feel that in so doing one does not deprive oneself of what is needed.

ARMY OF 50,000 TO BE ENROLLED FOR SERVICE IN CANADA

Infantry and Artillery Home Defence Units Will Be Organized With Pay Slightly Under That of the Expeditionary Force---Will Go Into Camp For Summer---Pte. Teabo Home From Front---To-day's Orders and General Military News.

OTTAWA, March 16. — For the double purpose of providing troops for the defence of Canada and of releasing the members of the expeditionary force still in the Dominion 50,000 men will be enrolled in the active militia and will in two months be embodied in units for continuous service. For some weeks past the Government here has been considering measures for filling the ranks of the militia, which have been depleted by enlistments for active service abroad and for providing a home defence army. The course decided upon was announced by Sir Edward Kemp, the Minister of Militia, after the meeting of the Cabinet Council today. Accompanying the announcement was an appeal to the manhood of Canada to volunteer for national defence, not only from the members of the Government in Canada, but also from Sir Robert Borden, who sent a cable message from England following his visit to the front.

"A splendid response to these proposals," the Prime Minister cabled, "is vitally necessary in order that the full strength of our Dominion, in cooperation with the whole Empire, shall be thrown into the struggle with the least possible delay.

The troops to be mobilized for national defence will consist of infantry and field artillery with a due proportion of supply and transport, medical and other administrative services. They will be raised by voluntary enlistment.

Between Ages of 18 and 45.

Men between the ages of 18 and 45 years are urged to enlist through the existing militia units. They will be attested for one year or during the period of the war, should it last longer, and for six months after the war, provided his Majesty should so long require their services. Their attestation papers will show that they have been accepted for duty in Canada.

It is expected, however, that a considerable number of soldiers of home defence corps will in time seek transfers to the overseas forces.

Men enlisted for home defence will be provided with clothing and necessaries on an adequate scale. Their uniforms will be distinguished from those of the members of the expeditionary force by the badges worn on the latter.

Pay for the officers, non-commissioned officers and men of the new units will be the same as that prescribed for active militia called out for service. The private soldier will receive $1 a day in pay as compared with $1.10 a day received by members of the Expeditionary Force. The separation allowances will also be slightly less than those paid in the case of the overseas army.

For married men in the home units the separation allowance will be $18 a month. For other members of these units the amounts will be graded according to rank.

Organize Battalion Staffs.

During the present month battalion staffs will be organized, officers and non-commissioned officers will be instructed and recruits will be enrolled in the new units. Next month the men enlisted will be trained two evenings and one afternoon a week.

In May, unless their units are detailed for special duty, they will go into camp for the summer.

In order to assist the Militia Council in the special work of mobilizing the active militia, an additional directorate in the branch of the chief of the general staff at the Militia Department has been created for the duration of the war. Col. S. C. Newburn, who has been assistant adjutant-general in charge of administration in Military District No. 2, with headquarters at Toronto, has been placed at the head of this new directorate, with the title of director of the Canadian defence force and the military rank of major-general.

Another of Peterborough's war veterans arrived home yesterday afternoon in the person of Pte. Wm. Teabo.

"ABDICATE CROWN FOR COUNTRY'S SAKE"

Czar Nicholas Says Whole Future of Russia Demands that War Should be Conducted at all Costs to a Victorious End.

ISSUES A MANIFESTO

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

PETROGRAD, March 17.—Regarding his abdication Nicholas, late Czar of all Russia, issued this manifesto: "To all faithful Russians: In the course of a great struggle against the foreign enemy, who has been trying for three years to enslave us, it has pleased God to send a further painful trial. Internal troubles threatened fatally the further progress of this obstinate war, and to affect Russia's destinies. Our heroic army, the happiness of the people, the whole future of the beloved fatherland demand that the war should be conducted at all costs to a victorious end. The cruel enemy is making his last efforts; the moment is near when our valiant army, in concert with our glorious Allies, will finally overthrow the enemy.

"Therefore, in agreement with the Imperial Duma we recognize it is for the country's good that we should abdicate the Crown and lay down supreme power."

All army officers at present in Petrograd met to-day and unanimously resolved to recognize the authority of the Duma. Speeches were made stating the realization of the army in the indispensible need of reestablishment of order as speedily as possible "that the work behind the trenches" might proceed.

VOLUNTARY SYSTEM OF RECRUITING HAS NOW BROKEN DOWN

Speakers' Patriotic League of Peterboro' Expresses This Opinion in Forwarding a Resolution to Hon. Geo. E. Foster, Acting Premier

"CONSIDERATION" IS PROMISED

"Careful consideration" is promised by Sir Geo. E. Foster, Acting Premier, of the resolution forwarded to him as a result of the conference of manufacturers and business men here on Monday night to discuss recruiting. In forwarding the resolution Mr. Jos. Wearing, secretary of the Speakers' Patriotic League, wrote as follows:

13th March, 1917.

The Rt. Hon. Sir Geo. E. Foster, P.C., K.C.M.G., Acting Premier, Parliament Buildings, Ottawa, Canada.

Sir,—I have been instructed to forward to you a copy of a resolution passed last night at a representative meeting here of the manufacturers and other business men of the city.

Recruiting here is practically at a standstill and in spite of all efforts it is now quite impossible to induce young men to enter the ranks. It can be shown that Peterborough City and County have done their full share in the matter of recruiting compared with other districts and the condition in Peterborough at the present time is probably no worse than in other places. The fact of the matter is that almost all the young men who wish to enlist have already done so, and the time has come when something must be done by the Government in the way of compulsion.

The Speakers Patriotic League here has co-operated with the different battalions stationed here and has done everything possible to assist in the matter of recruiting throughout this district. It is felt, however, at present, that the voluntary system of recruiting has now broken down and that nothing further can be done without the aid of the Government.

The resolution, a copy of which I enclose, was carried unanimously at last night's meeting by a standing vote.

I have the honour to be, sir,

Your obedient servant,

"Joseph Wearing,"

Sec. Peterborough Speakers' Patriotic League.

Ottawa, March 15th, 1917.

The Minister's reply was as follows:

Dear Mr. Wearing,—I beg to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 13th with copy of resolution passed at the Peterborough meeting.

I shall be glad to bring this to the attention of the Minister of Militia and my colleagues, and to this you may rest assured careful consideration will be given.

Yours sincerely,

"George E. Foster."

Five Bags of Onions Sold For $35 To-day

Onions at from $7 to $8 a bag is just one of the market items to which the consumer has become accustomed. Mr. Fred Stinson stated that last year's crop was so small that supplies are practically exhausted, and the price is accordingly high. Five bags brought $35 this morning. At this rate onions will be relegated to the place of potatoes, which for weeks past many householders have refused to buy. Potatoes at one meal in three is generally the present limit, and with that allowance consumers are generally satisfied in view of the prevailing prices.

WORTH WHILE KNOWING.

It's worth while knowing that when you get your glasses from Dr. Lacey you are receiving satisfaction; if the lenses have to be changed, there is no extra charge. He only prescribes glasses when necessary. See him and See Better.—410 George street.

Entertainment Was a Success

"The Key to Jack Canuck's Treasure House" Was a Treat

The entertainment under the auspices of the Mission Band of George street Methodist church in the Sunday school room last night was a great success. The feature, the play "The Key to Jack Canuck's Treasure House," in which some 75 young folks took part, was cleverly carried out, and was much enjoyed by the large audience present. Musical numbers drills, etc., were given and the programme was a delightful one.

Motor Show Here About 1st of May

A motor show, whose proceeds will be devoted to the Red Cross, received the united support of the local automobile dealers at a meeting in the Empress Hotel last night. It will be held in the Armouries about the first of May. This is the first motor show to be held in Peterborough and should prove a success. There will be a De Laval exhibit, and the Peterborough Canoe Co. have already responded. J. J. Turner & Sons are also expected in and of course the automobile, motorcycle and accessory dealers will all have exhibits.

STREET SURFACES.

The season is coming when our streets will be laid bare, and the needs of their surfaces, to insure comfortable use, will be revealed. The season is now at hand, when with gutters obstructed by snow, we have demonstrated the results of neglect of one of the chief things in street management—the provision of good surface drainage to our earth and gravel and macadam streets.

In an article in the Canadian Engineer, the Highway Commissioner of Manitoba treats of gravel road maintenance. He lays special emphasis upon the "importance of drainage to the welfare of any road." He especially shows how the growth of weeds in gutters preventing the offflow of water, injures the street surface as well as sub-surface.

The presence of weeds in the gutters of our city streets, is not only an obstruction to drainage, but a veritable eyesore, and a gratuitous maintenance of a nuisance.

The remedy is easy. There should be no weeds allowed to grow. Our street surfaces are too wide, with a broad belt on either side, where silt washed from the ribbon of gravel in the middle creates the best conditions for growing weeds. With such wide driving surfaces, it is difficult, without great expense, to gravel the whole street between curbs, or give the proper crown, to shed water, which, however, the weeds at the sides will not permit to run away.

The consequence is flat streets, where depressions easily form, and not being treated promptly the street surface is speedily destroyed for traffic purposes.

The remedy consists in adopting the idea, which The Examiner has advocated, and City Engineer Parsons favours, of narrow driving surfaces, that will permit of thorough gravelling between curbs, costing less to construct, costing less to maintain in good condition.

In default of adopting this policy, the next best thing is careful repairing—the filling of any depressions that form. If this is done promptly and continuously on streets made smooth in the first place, they will be kept smooth and comfortable for traffic, which is the only reason we construct or maintain streets.

In this way the life of a street surface will be indefinitely prolonged, and with the great benefit of oiling, another admirable help to preserving street surfaces, and more important than keeping down the dust, we shall get better value for the money spent on our streets.

These considerations are so obviously essential to the maintenance of good streets, that anybody can see their advantages.

The fault lies in not applying them. Making a good street at first costs money; but this is largely wasted if care is not taken to maintain the surface in good condition.

This can be done by providing and keeping open good drainage, and by prompt attention to filling depressions—both costing little money compared with the cost of reconstructing a street.

With these neglected the street rapidly deteriorates, and it soon becomes necessary to almost rebuild it, to repeat almost the initial capital cost.

Whereas with little cost in maintenance, with a good deal of attention to keeping street surfaces smooth, they will last almost indefinitely.

ST. PATRICK'S DAY.

As far as the elements go, the weather seems to conspire with the British government in making the 17th of March, 1917, a dark day for Ireland. But we can't keep down the Irish spirit. To-day, in spite of the dreary drizzle of rain, scores of Irish girls were abroad in the streets seeking to kindle in other hearts, the kindly Irish spirit that beats in their own—love and thought for the orphan. And there seems to be a sad congruity in the situation. Ireland itself is to-day orphaned among the nations, her hand held out in vain for the dole of freedom, which has come to, or been seized by, the peasantry of the land of the Czar—happily, however, no longer the land of the autocracy that Czarism represents. But Ireland is still the Ireland of old so far as concession of her rights to self government is concerned. Ireland and the United Kingdom and the better half of the world, are fighting to give other nations the boon of freedom, of autonomy, which is still denied the Emerald Isle. As of yore, Ireland is fighting gallantly for others, and if her sun is not shining, one of her sons is in the blaze of high distinction. General Maude, like the anticipated son of Henry V, of the play, is taking the "uncircumcised dog," the Turk, "by the beard," and smiting him hip and thigh. He is adding to the laurels of military glory in the fight for right and justice—another gleam of the lustre that Irishmen for centuries have won for British arms. Ireland fights to win for everybody but herself. But, like the sunshine that will follow the dreariness of to-day, Ireland surely, under the new spirit of right and justice that is rising out of the ruins of war and carnage, must some soon day cease to be a sad inspiration to the Lamentations of a modern Jeremiah.

POLICE CONTROL.

It is stated that some city councils favour government action in the direction of a return to the old system of having police forces under the control of the councils themselves, instead of police commissioners. One objection that present itself at once, is that the change would restore the patronage evil that is very largely, if not entirely, removed by placing police force administration under the control of an independent commission, which would not be influenced by considerations that would appeal to popularly elected representatives

It may be desirable that councils have a large measure of control over police expenditure; and it may be argued that the body that supplies money should have full control of the expenditure of it. This does not necessarily follow. Incidentally, city councils furnish very large sums to be expended by boards of education, and have no voice in its expenditure. Experience has shown that we have better guarantees of better law administration, and police service, with the appointment, dismissing and promotion of members of the force in the hands of an independent commission. It is reasonable to assume that a policeman of aldermanic appointment would feel that he had a less free hand to discharge his duties in conformity with his oath of office — "without fear, favour or affection," than if he were under the authority of a commission which would be less subject to considerations that interfered with full and proper enforcement of the law. All changes are not reforms; all new methods are not improvements.

LEARNING TO SWIM AND LEARNING TO LIVE.

The city council subsidizes by money grant open air skating rinks, in the interests of those who cannot afford to patronize commercial skating rinks. This is a proper recognition of the right of citizens of limited means to enjoy the pleasures of winter skating.

Yet we never heard of a life being lost from lack of knowing how to skate. But every season we hear of many at home, of scores in the vicinity, and hundreds in the country, losing their lives by drowning through inability to swim.

The water in the sweltering days of summer presents an irresistible temptation to enejoy a plunge in its cool depths; and the danger of fatal accidents to non-swimmers does not deter them from taking the risk.

Amongst the chief benefits of popular access to properly equipped and supervised bathing places, is the possibility or certainty of learning the life saving art of swimming. Now, both the law of the land and the law of decency exclude the major part of our population from enjoying the benefits and comforts of river bathing, so temptingly spread through the middle of the city.

It is said that the swimming tank at the Y.M.C.A. is one of the biggest drawing cards of its physical equipment, many persons taking membership for the use of the baths only.

The summer season is at hand, and the rush to river and lake enjoyment will begin. Without being pessimistic—only judging from precedent — we shall hear of drowning accidents happening, mainly to persons not knowing how to swim. It will be an agonizing reflection if some of these fatalities can be traced to our neglect to make accessible the splendid facilities we possess for permitting public acquirement of a knowledge of swimming.

A STATE DISASTER.

The railway operatives of the United States are demanding that the eight hour law, as the basis of railway service, "forced through the late congress by President Wilson," be made immediately operative. In default of this being done, a general railway strike is imminent, but the hour has been deferred till six o'clock this afternoon. The constiutionality of the law is under reference to the Supreme Court and a strike, with a cessation of railway traffic and with the wide-spread and acute suffering it would bring to millions of innocent persons, to make immediately effective a law that may be proved to be no valid law, does not seem to be wise. The United States is at a critical epoch of its history. It is on the verge of war and a railway tie-up that would paralyze preparations for a possible war, would not be in the interests of military success, and might be contributory to a national calamity. It seems to us outsiders in Canada that such a strike would be in the interests of the success of the German attitude of aggression, and it would not be surprising if German intrigue, which has been so impudently busy in the United States, may be a factor in bringing about the present situation The question of a general railway strike has an intimate interest to Canadians, their interchange of railway connections being so close. Already we are likely to feel the effects, despatches stating that the Grand Trunk, which has extensive United States connections, has declared an freight embargo.

Weekly Market Letter.

NEW YORK, March 16.—We had another proof this week of the strong resistance of stocks to bad news indicating a sold out market. It is becoming clearer day by day that the December break, on the peace talk, discounted most of the unfavourable developments which have occurred since then. It discounted a return to a peace basis, as we thought at that time. The break with Germany was thought to have discounted actual war. The market takes the railroad strike talk and the Russian revolution with hardly a quiver. In a word most of the weakly held stock was eliminated in December and it went into strong hands. Investors have an eye to the future, and the outlook seems good to most of them from the looks of things. There are ahead prospects of mere record-breaking earnings during the remainder of 1917. War with Germany, which many assume is coming, should mean large expansion in business, although the profits will obviously be smaller. But in many lines they will be good, and the general effect would be favourable.

The Russian revolution can only be judged from day to day. An overturn in Government may be attended with disturbance for some time, but so far the change appears to have come in accordance with popular demand and it is a good sign that the Duma remains unchanged. That a potent reason for revolution was a demand for more vigorous prosecution of the war is regarded as favourable to the allies, and as relating German influence to the background or its elimination altogether. We note that the army has now much to say about things. There is nothing as yet to indicate repudiation of old contracts for war supplies.

Few persons at this moment expect a railroad strike in the United States. This may be based on the recollection that a number of threatened strikes have been successfully avoided, through intervention by the President or other government officials. It is a time when loyalty to the country will play a large part. Current gossip indicates that many men would refuse to go out and that the managers knowing this have no strong objections to a test of strength. We give this as mere gossip and not as our own view. A general strike is to be deplored and we still believe the President is likely to avert it. There have been reports that the railroads would grant increased wages and give some assurance as to an 8-hour day later on. In such an event the men would gain something. It is an axiom that stock should not be sold on strike talk for a settlement may be reached over night. Standard stocks are relatively cheap and based on earnings they are a purchase on all setbacks. We would use such opportunities to buy good rails and industrials.

Chicago, March 17.—Grain closing. May wheat 184. July wheat 154 7-8. May corn, 109;

New York, March 17.—International Mercantile Marine stock, both Preferred and Common, were decidedly strong on the Stock Exchange to-day, Preferred advancing from 80 1-2 to 87, and Common from 28 to 29 5-8, on a very active market. These concerns operate steamers under both British and United States flags and the upward turn indicates that confidence in the safety of steamers, in spite of the submarine menace, has been restored.

Will Your Widow Write a Letter Like This?

Will your widow have to write such a letter as follows received recently from one whose husband after taking on insurance refused to continue it?

My husband met his death on May 22nd by accident drowning and as I am a poor widow of five children left without any means of support. I would think you if you would advise me whether I am entitled to the insurance.

"A heart-breaking letter to answer," you say. It is indeed.

BUT WHAT ANSWER WILL YOUR WIDOW GET?

CHOICE GARDEN LOTS
CLOSE SUBURBAN

Every family should have a garden this year and every year. Most of my lots in South End were gardened last year and several are ploughed and manured, all of this coupled with low prices and any reasonable terms desired should enable a sensible man to decide quickly. Every lot I own being so close outside the city must grow in value as the city grows in population. Hence a wise man will buy the lot he is going to garden because every hour's work helps to increase its value, best of all it compels a man to save a little of what he earns and enables him to own his home. Buy my lots now. Special terms $5.00 deposit and $5.00 monthly.

The Church Union Vote

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Sir,—A few facts are already known. It is known that the Assembly in 1905 and in 1912, and in 1915, gave the assured understanding that no steps would be taken toward Organic Union unless there should be—to use its own words—"practically unanimous action."

It is known that in 1911, out of a membership of 238,916, 113,000 voted for Organic Union and 50,753 against it; and that the Assembly halted the movement "owing to the extent of the minority."

It is known that in 1915 out of a membership of 339,722, only 113,600 voted for Organic Union and 73,735 against it.

It is known that the Assembly of 1916, disregarding its own constitutional limits—and its own previous declarations—and the increased opposition—and the sorrow of war—and the rending of our own church—resolved, if possible, to force the churches under one central control by the power of the civil law.

But it is not generally known that our church, after overlapping in home missions had been practically eliminated had more than five hundred home missions—English, French and foreign—supported wholly or in part by missionary funds, and that these missions, many of them non-Presbyterian, furnish much of the so-called "majority."

Take first the great central section—in Ontario and Quebec, containing well on to two thirds of our church, and contributing about two-thirds of all her missionary funds.

In this section, out of 205,864 communicants, only 63,[illegible] voted for Organic Union, 51,817 against it. Even of this small majority, many were not originally Presbyterian.

Take one example. The older central city of Montreal has eight large congregations, with an average of nearly eight hundred members each. These all voted against a church merger and the eight of them gave a combined vote against it of more than two to one.

In the same city and suburbs are eight missions, largely non-Presbyterian, knowing little of the question, and ready to vote as directed. Three of them, English, gave communicant votes, 59 "yea," 1 "nay";—two, French, 107 "yea," 7 "nay";—Pte. aux Trembles schools, French, chiefly children, 72 "yea," 7 "nay";—one Ruthenian Mission, 15 "yea";—one Chinese Mission 31 "yea";—total 294 "yea," 12 "nay."

Each of these missions is reckoned by the Union committee as a congregation, and they thus offset the vote of the eight congregations, Erskine, Crescent, St. Pauls, and others larger still, that support them. This is one local illustration. Others might be given from other parts of this central section.

On the other hand, the self supporting churches in the centres, give a majority against disbanding our church. The three largest centres, Montreal, Toronto, and Hamilton, with their seventy-five self supporting congregations, among them the largest and strongest in the church, give a combined majority against it.

Not only these three, but three score centres, yes, three times three score—with yet an added score;—two hundred in all—give a similar result. Read them carefully:

Montreal, Ottawa, Kingston, Peterborough, Toronto, Hamilton, London, Brantford, Galt and Guelph.

Almonte, Arnprior, Alliston, Alvinston, Avonmore, Allenford, Avonton, Acton, Ailsa Craig, Atwood, Argyle, Auburn, Aylmer, and Ayr.

Brockville, Belleville, Beamsville, Bowmanville, Beaverton, Bolton, Brampton, Burlington, Barrie, Bradford, Binbrook, Bridgeburg, Bayfield, Brucefield, Blenheim; Brussels, Bluevale, Belmont and Blyth.

Cobourg, Cookstown, Clifford, Clinton, Carleton Place, Cardinal, Campbellford, Colborne, Collingwood, Churchill, Columbus, Chesley, Chatham, Cornwall, Cromarty, Cranbrook, Creemore.

Delaware, Drayton, Dorchester, Drummond Hill, Durham, Dutton, Dunnville, Dunwich, Dundas, Edgmondville, Exeter, Essex, Embro, Elora, Erin, Eglinton, Fordwich, Fergus, Forest and Finch.

Listowell, Lindsay, Lunenburg, Lucknow, Latona, Lancaster, Lachine, Lachute, Maxville, Markham, Meaford, Melbourne, Morewood, Mt. Forest, Midland, Mitchell, Milton, Millerton, Norwood, Norwich, North Bay.

Oakville, Orangeville, Ormstown, Orillia, Oshawa, Oxford, Owen Sound, Pembroke, Prescott, Palmerston, Pinkerton, Priceville, Park Hill, Port Colborne, Port Dover, Port Elgin, Port Hope, Paisley, Paris, Petrolea, Parry Sound, Queensville, Quebec, Renfrew, Richmond, Ridgetown, Ripley and Rothsay.

Sarnia, Seaforth, Simcoe, Sonya, Shelburne, Sherbrooke, Scarboro, Stratford, Streetsville, Stirling, Smith's Falls, Sault Ste. Marie, St. Marys, St. Catharines, St. Thomas, Southampton, Sudbury, Sutton, Strathroy, Teeswater, Thamesville, Tiverton, Thornbury, Thedford, Tottenham, Town Line, Uxbridge, Turin.

Warkworth, Walkerton, Waterlob, Watford, Walton, Wyoming, Wroxeter, Whitechurch, Whitby, Woodstock, Woodville, Weston, Welland, Wiarton, Wingham, Windsor and Wick.

The self-supporting congregations in these two hundred centres practically all the villages, towns and cities in this great central section of our church, give—not each of them a majority—but a combined total majority against disbanding the Presbyterian church.

These people do not propose to be driven from their church and their convictions of right, either by the illegal use of church courts, or by the votes of strangers to whom they have extended a helping hand.

The vote in the other two sections, east and west, the Maritime Provinces and west of the Lakes, is equally interesting, but must wait another letter.

EAT LESS MEAT AND TAKE SALTS IF KIDNEYS ACHE OR BACK HURTS

Says Bladder Irritation or Rheumatism Means Kidneys Aren't Straining Out Uric Acid.

Meat forms uric acid which excites and overworks the kidneys in their efforts to filter it from the system. Regular eaters of meat must flush the kidneys occasionally. You must relieve them like you relieve your bowels, removing all the acids, waste and poison, else you feel a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, your stomach sours, tongue is coated, and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine is cloudy full of sediment; the channels often get irritated, obliging you to get up two or three times during the night.

To neutralize these irritating acids, and flush off the body's urinous waste get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine and bladder disorders disappear. This famous salts is made from the acids of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys, and stop bladder irritation. Jad Salts is inexpensive; harmless, and makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which millions of men and women take now and then thus avoiding serious kidney and bladder diseases.

MOTHERS OF CANADA SAVE THESE CHILDREN

"Tell it to the mothers of little children, they will understand."

This is the message that comes to Canadian mothers from one of who has become familiar with the sufferings of thousands of little ones in Belgium. Tell the women of Canada, he says, of the little blanched faces, drawn and wan form lack of food, of the frail little bodies, improperly clad against the cold winds. Tell them, he adds, of how they die in the streets—die of sickness that comes from lack of nourishment, die from want of proper care, die from starvation—a starvation that is the legacy of the Hun invasion and that can only be relieved when Canada does her utmost in the way of sending them food.

One has sympathy for the women of Belgium—the brave mothers of these children—but to see little ones, the innocent victims of a cause that they do not even understand—that is too much. It is beyond the description of human beings. Happiness should be theirs at this time when suffering, sickness and starvation is snuffing out their little lives.

The mothers of Canada those who can imagine their own children the victims of such condition—can they not give or urge their husband to give to this cause of saving those little lives? The need is great. There are thousands on the verge of starvation to say nothing of the millions of older persons.

Send your bit to-day to the Belgian Relief committee in your town or to 59 St. Peter street, Montreal.

ENCOURAGING THRIFT THROUGH MEDIUM OF PENNY BANK

The Penny Bank is Educational in Scope—One of its Chief Functions is the Development of Thrift Among School Children—Address in the Collegiate Institute.

It was a very small crowd that foregathered last evening in the Collegiate Institute to hear an address by Mr. M. A. MacKenzie, Manager of the Penny Bank, Toronto. The teachers of the city were conspicuous by their absence. The speaker, who was introduced by Mr. Vincent Eastwood, Chairman of the Board of Education, in commenting upon the size of the audience, said he was not surprised to see such a small audience, as it was in keeping with "our capacity for thrift." The Government has repeatedly urged the adoption of a more practical and consistent policy of thrift.

A Dollar Bill.

"Money, said the speaker, is a representation of produce and labour. A man with a one-dollar bill in his pocket has absolute right to an article of similar value which may be offered for sale in any store in the city. Thrift means the refusal of that right or the control of a desire for something that a man can get along without. Every dollar spent unnecessarily means direct aid to the enemy of the allies.

Development of Thrift.

The Penny Bank was established by the Government in 1904. The institution is educational in scope and the officials of the Penny Bank receive no remuneration for their services. One of its functions is the development of thrift among the children. It tends to check the impulse of the child to spend money unnecessarily. The first twenty-five cents is the hardest to save, after that it comes easy. The reflex action on the child's life is a good one. The child learns something of real value. The influence on the teachers is also a good one, and a vote taken in Toronto, recently, shows that seventy-two per cent. of the teaching staff favoured Penny Banks. It represents one of the simplest forms of thrift that can be inaugurated.

ENCOURAGE THRIFT.

In a recent circular sent out by the Minister of Education, it was pointed out that it was not enough to establish Penny Banks. There must be a consistent effort to encourage thrift through that particular medium. The Bankers' Association have signified their willingness to cooperate in the movement, and have notified their branch managers to do likewise. The school children of Canada have in the penny banks at the present time the sum of three hundred and fifty thousand dollars.

In reply to a question asked by Mr. G. N. Gordon as to the relative cost of operation, Mr. MacKenzie said that it compared favorably with any other class of work carried on in the schools. The Penny Bank was not established for the purpose of collecting funds, but as a medium to encourage thrift in the schools. The time required for the teacher to handle the banking business of a class of forty pupils ranges from five to ten minutes at any one time. In the words of Mr. MacKenzie: "It is the cheapest bit of teaching done in the public schools."

"FRUIT-A-TIVES" Brought The Joy Of Health After Two Years' Suffering

MADAM LAPLANTE

35 St. Rose St., Montreal, April 4th.

"For over two years I was sick and miserable. I suffered from constant Headaches, and had Palpitation of the Heart so badly that I feared I would die. There seemed to be a lump in my stomach and the Constipation was dreadful. I suffered from Pain in the Back and Kidney Disease.

I was treated by a physician for a year and a half and he did me no good at all. I tried "Fruit-a-tives" as a last resort. After using three boxes, I was greatly improved and twelve boxes made me well. Now I can work all day and there are no Headaches, no Palpitation, no Heart Trouble, no Constipation, no Pain or Kidney Trouble and I feel like a new being—and it was "Fruit-a-tives" that gave me back my health".

"Dear Hearts of Ireland"

The perennial success, the play presented by St. Peter's Dramatic Club, attracted a big house last night at the Grand, and well it might with the talent, ability and training which would have been a credit to many a professional company.

The plot of the play, the story of a villianous agent to an English Lord, who tyrannizes over the Irish farmers in the name of his master, until he (the lord) in the disguise of a roving, ne'er-do-well, discovers the villianry, has him arrested, and marries the girl they both loved, was cleverly staged, and the costumes, works of art in their beauty and suitability.

CHARMED THE AUDIENCE.

Frank O'Grady, as Shaun Aroon, a care-free Irishman, charmed the audience by his handsome personality and Irish wit, handling his lines and situations in such a way as to keep the audience in roars of laughter at his every appearance.

John McCabe, undoubtedly a born actor, in the part of Lord Fermay, was splendid.

James Condon as Dan O'Grady, won the hearts of all the house directly he appeared, with his easy handling of difficult situations.

Arthur Costello, eminently fitted for he part he played, the handsome, quick-tempered Irish lad, was a distinct success.

THE VILLIAN.

Vince McCabe, in the distinctly difficult part of the villian, made the most rascally rascal imaginable, and took his part in such a realistic manner the audience went wild with delight at his defeat in the finish.

M. Murty, the grasping old moneylender, showed himself to be an artist in making up and acting.

J. P. Wilson, as the Irish servant, was greeted with storms of applause at his very appearance.

Will Moher, as a detective, was very clever and realistic.

Lillian Simons, as Molly O'Grady, with her natural beauty and grace, was a great success, and will long be remembered for the excellent manner in which she took her difficult part.

IRISH COLEEN.

Gertrude Clancy made the most lovable little Irish Coleen, ever seen, and her every appearance brought down storms of applause.

Annie Simons, with her natural ability and sweet voice, as the tender-hearted wife of Dan O'Grady, won the sympathy of the audience from her first appearance.

The specialties were splendid, Mr. Hanrahan in particular, as usual carrying all before him with his beutiful voice.

The cast of characters was as follows:

Shaun Aroon—Frank O'Grady. (A roving fellow with a light heart).

Lord Fermay—John McCabe. (Disguised as Bad Andy; a good-hearted landlord).

Dan O'Grady (a sturdy old Farmer)—James Condon.

Tom Grady (his son)—Arthur Costello.

Fergus Riordan (Fermay's rascally agent)—Vince McCabe.

Old Hennings (a money lender)—M. McMurty.

Patrick (a servant)—J. P. Wilson.

Nipper (a detective)—Will Moher.

Molly O'Grady (Dan's daughter)—Lillian Simons.

Maggie (a maid servant)—Gertrude Clancy.

Mrs. O'Grady (Dan's wife)—Annie Simons.

Between the acts the following artists took part:

Miss Theresa O'Donnell in vocal solo.

Mr. Ed. Hanrahan, in vocal solo.

Miss Helen Wormington in vocal solo.

Mr. M. Murty in dance.

Mr. C. Legendre in vocal solo.

Mr. Ed. Bartley in vocal solo.

Mr Dave Quinlan and Mr. Sam Houlihan—Dancing, Irish jigs, reels and waltz clogs.

Miss Marion Gorman—Musical Director;

Miss Lillian Simons—Director of Play.

Mr. Sam Houlihan—Stage Manager.

PORT COLBORNE'S GENEROUS GIVING

Mr. A. B. Cunningham has just returned from a business visit to Port Colborne, and tells of a remarkable achievement accomplished by the people. It is a village of only 2,000 inhabitants, yet it contributed to Red Cross and patriotic funds the splendid total of $20,000—ten dollars per head for every man, woman and child of the population. To equal Port Colborne's per capita contributed to patriotic funds, Peterborough would have to give $220,000.

Editor of the Examiner:

To the Editor of the Examiner:

Sir,—Will you kindly publish the names of the Aldermen who voted for bathing places, also those who voted against it, and what wards they represent?

I don't know what the people of those wards think as regards their representatives who, instead of voting for a progressive Peterborough, to wit—bathing places—they simply turn round and vote against it and the will of the people. Such representatives are useless, when they know by facts, that lives are lost yearly by drowning, through having no proper bathing places, thus causing people to chance their lives along river banks having treacherous holes and currents and probably not a good swimmer near to help them in difficulties.

But not only that, the representatives of other wards are made useless by their antics, and their time is lost to the community too.

You cannot blame the Mayor and those representatives who voted for the will of the people, and did everything in their power to save lives if possible, by voting for safe bathing places.

Perhaps the anti voters think they are pleasing the people by trying to keep taxes down a little more. But such is not the case, for the people of Peterborough are sensible enough to know the above is written from truth and facts, and would be to their benefit.

No one can go against truth and facts, except asses. Yours truly,

Mayor of "Nother Town."

INTERESTING BY-ELECTION IS EXPECTED

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

TORONTO, March 17—There promises to be an interesting bye-election in May sometime, in Lennox County, to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Thomas G. Carscallen, in the Legislature. Although the late Mr. Carscallen held the seat continuously for fifteen years each election has been very close, and in the last general election only a few votes saved him from defeat. The Liberals have already made a choice of their candidate, who will be Carleton Wood, a cheese box manufacturer of Roblin, Ont., and well known throughout the Riding. His choice was made at a convention last mid-summer.

THE VILLAGE DOCTOR

Y. M. C. A. NEWS

Mr. H. B. Cowan of the Farm and Dairy will address the Y.M.C.A. meeting Sunday afternoon at 4.15 o'clock. Mr. Cowan is Chairman of the Physical Department, and an active leader in all Y.M.C.A. activities. It is expected that there will be a good attendance of young men to hear his message on Sunday. Another reason why there should be a good rally on Sunday is that this is the closing Sunday afternoon service for the present season, although special services may be held from time to time.

The Senior Collegiate Club listened to a very instructive address by Mr. Joseph Wearing, the subject being "The Legal Profession as a Life Calling." Mr. Wearing described the course of education necessary in preparation of the practice of law and recommended most highly that a university course be taken before the law course was attempted. He, however, stated that many good lawyers had only obtained a high school matriculation, followed by two years of practical work in a law office, and then the regular course at a Law College. Mr. Wearing maintained that the practice of law was a most noble calling. Most of our representatives in parliament are lawyers. Every judge is a lawyer, in fact, the most respected men of the Dominion are members of the legal profession. He stated that, like other callings, the practice of law required very diligent application and hard wrok if a young man desired to head his profession.

A most hearty vote of thanks was tendered to Mr. Wearing for his instructive and inspiring talk.

There will be two more sessions of the Senior Collegiate Club before the close of the season. Next week, it is hoped that an address on "Teaching as a Life Calling" will be presented to the members of the Club.

The twenty-six Y.M.C.A. dormitories have been constantly filled since last November. In the meantime seventy-five young men who have applied for rooms, have been unable to secure accommodation at the building. As spring approaches, however, there is a slight tendency to break away from the dormitories and at the present time several dormitories are available for young men.

Colds or Coughs SHOULD NEVER BE NEGLECTED

If They Are, Some Serious Lung Trouble Are Sure To Follow

A cold or cough, if neglected, will sooner or later develop into some sort of lung trouble, so we would advise that you get rid of it before it becomes settled. For this purpose we know of nothing to equal Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. This preparation has been on the market for the past twenty-five years, and has always given universal satisfaction.

Mr. Erwell Bolton, Wilton, Ont., writes: "Last winter I was caught in a storm and had to stay in a barn all night. I caught a severe cold which several medicines failed to cure. I went to some of the best doctors but these failed to do me any good. A friend advised me to use Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. I used three bottles and they gave me instant relief."

When you ask for "Dr. Wood's" see that you get the genuine, put up in a yellow wrapper, three pine trees the trade mark, and bearing the name of The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont. Price 25c and 50c.

17 LINES OF DEFENCES PROTECT GERMAN LINES AT CAMBRAI

Report By American Recently Returned From Berlin

Chas. H. Grasty, who returned recently to New York with the Gerard party, gives the following interview with General Watson, former colonel of the 2nd battalion:

When all the careful preliminaries have been attended to and when the coveted white pass has arrived from general headquarters in France, which alone has authority to select those who are to visit the front, the person so favoured is told what train to catch at Charing Cross, what boat to take at Folkestone, and what officer to be on the lookout for at Boulogne.

My train was the 11.05 A.M. Three minutes before train time a guard yanked my hand luggage out of the compartment, which a prudent punctuality had pre-empted, informing me that the train had been cancelled.

There would be no channel crossing, owing to the fog. A different train was leaving on another track, and, being an American and alive to possibilities, I boarded that and went to Folkestone, anyway. It was a tight squeeze to get in at the hotel; at the office they strongly advised my returning to London; there had been no Channel crossing for four days. Meanwhile the Germans, according to the gossip, had undoubtedly sown the Channel thick with mines and there would be no crossing for several days after the fog lifted to give the mine sweepers a chance to clear the lane. As a fact, three days' extra leave had been given to soldiers waiting at Boulogne, which tended to bear out the foregoing.

All the same, I stayed. The next morning when I came down at 9.15, as a chance shot, I asked the lift boy if there would be a boat that day, and the reply came back, "Yes, sir, at a quarter to 10.00." I didn't stop for breakfast, but packed up and made a rush for the boat."

The Onward, which I recognized as an old friend of peace time, was packed with soldiers, who came marching aboard to the popular airs played by their bands. The first thing every one did was to put on a life preserver. In twenty-odd Atlantic crossings I had never before made the acquaintance of one. I got a jolly good breakfast of cold meats and coffee in the Onward's restaurant, and sharp at 10 we steamed out.

Thrilling Cross-Channel Trip.

The sweepers had been at work two abreast. We had all kinds of craft as escort. Every one knew that danger lurked about. It was a thrilling passage. I didn't sit down once; I couldn't, for there was no place to sit, but it never occurred to be to be tired, there was so much to see. I moved about among the men, talking with them and getting their point of view as far as I could. But the most interesting thing of all was the convoy. The destroyers threshed about, zigzagging like a drunken man on a sidewalk. All the boats moved swiftly, the destroyers each leaving a boiling wake and carrying a "bone in their teeth." The other boats, packed to gunwales, followed the Onward to take advantage of the same escort.

We backed in to the familiar dock at Boulogne and there an army Captain met me in a limousine, and drove me to General Headquarters.

It is difficult to know precisely what one may tell of a visit of this kind without violating hospitality. Besides there is nothing that I could describe that has not already been better described by the splendid fellows who from day to day, at greater sacrifice and often with much danger to themselves, are writing the story of this war. My story, in so far as it is a story, is that of a new pair of eyes barely glimpsing scenes long long since made familiar to newspaper readers all over the world.

I wanted to pick out something that was of particular interest on our side of the water and had not been done to death, so I asked to be taken to that part of the front occupied by the Fourth Canadian Division. I knew something of the General in command of this division. In the first place, he was a newspaper proprietor. His paper is The Quebec Daily Chronicle. At the outbreak of the war the then Lieutenant Colonel D. Watson was taking quite an interest, mainly civic, in what in Canada corresponds to our militia. With his battalion he sailed immediately for England, arriving there in September, 1914.

These men had been playing at soldiering, but they knew practically nothing about it expertly. After six months' training they went to France. In April, 1915, they were blooded near Ypres, when they relieved the French, who, brave as they were, turned away from the first experience of poisoned gas and stumbled to the rear. The epic of the Canadian stand was written by Max Aitken, who the other day became Lord Beaverbrook in the English peerage. That stand will live in history with the charge of the six hundred. It required quite as much courage and a good deal more presence of mind.

Watson got a brigade after Ypres. A year later he became a Major General. When I arrived at his headquarters I was interested to notice that at the entrance to the typical small French villa there hung an instrument labeled "gas alarm." Three miles back of the first-line trenches it is necessary to have this protection against surprise. Colonel Ironside, a Highlander from the very top of Rossshire, showed me up to the General, from whom I got a genuine American welcome. I found later that the General maintains his Americanism to the extent that he has not learned to join in the tea drinking. I knew then that he was sincere in what he told me, as we sat out this function, about his fellow feeling for Americans.

AMERICAN SPOKEN IN TRENCHES.

After we had talked a while General Watson and one of his aids drove me out to the front and I made a visit to the trenches under his personal escort. It was like a visit to America, for the General had easy, personal relations with all his men and American was the language of those trenches. There was none of the stiffness which belongs to the European system. We passed the cemetery of Carency, where 200,000 French lie buried. That was the bill of the French capture of the sector landmarked by the Lorette ridge and the Souches sugar refinery, to the neighbourhood of which our walk through the trenches took us.

It was a dull day. There was desultory firing back and forth, and shells were whistling over and bursting around us. The "whiz bangs" impressed me most, but as a matter of fact it was difficult to think that there were possibilities of personal damage in any of them. Now and then a section of trench had been obliterated by shell fire and you had to crawl through a sea of fresh-made mire that sucked the top boots off your feet. The trenches were waist-deep in watery mud. The General raced along sure-footed as a cat on the back fence, while I slipped and slid on the lattice work which formed the footway, a misstep from which meant a bath in the trench soup.

A walk back through a mile or two of communication trench rejoicing in the name of Cabaret brought us out on a road that seemed to me well back of the lines. I was frankly relieved in body and spirit to reach the open ground again, and surmised to the General that this was probably safe country. "Oh, yes" he replied cheerily, "but when I came out here yesterday at this very point there lay a soldier freshly dead. A shell had caught him as he walked along this road."

"What you have seen will doubtless make you think that the life of the French soldier, especially during the Spring thaw, is an intolerable one, but men accustom themselves to it," said General Watson, who is a philosopher as well as a soldier. "Human beings in youth put off habits of body and mind as readily as they do a suit of clothes. Under the conditions you have been seeing there is a return to the elemental. Men do not think of danger or death, nor even for the moment of home and loved ones. Food and rest become the subject upon which the thoughts dwell."

As General Watson made these observations he maintained a kind of dog trot a few paces ahead of me. I could not keep up by breaking into a run now and then, especially as my steel helmet, worn as protection from shells, gave me some trouble, and it was necessary to slow up now and then to readjust the chin-strap. The General's gait reminded me of the wolf's as I had seen it on the Texas prairies. He didn't seem to be going fast; and it added to my difficulties that the walk had rather winded me.

He proposed an extension of our promenade to another part of the front; but I didn't want to overtax his hospitality. "Well," said he, "I'll tell you what I'll do. We've got a raid on for to-night, and I'll let you go out in the rear of it; it will give you a chance to see something real." I thanked him, but replied that Times Square looked pretty good to me, and that, as a matter of fact, I wasn't as young as I looked.

Well, when we got back to the car I crawled in a bit stiff, and sitting down never seemed such a luxury in all my life. After a few restful moments I regained the courage of my curiosity. I asked the General about his soldiers.

"When we got here," said he "may be we weren't much good, but we were as good as anybody else. War was a new game, even the trained men had to begin again and learn their A B C's. There was equality and fraternity of ignorance."

THE ENGLISH OFFICER UNIQUE

"Who are the best of the soldiers now?" I asked.

There was a lurking smile in his quiet gray eyes, and I imagined he was thinking of the kilted men from his motherland or of his own Canadians, but this is what he said:

"The bravest soldier in the world is the English officer. I salute him. There is none other like him. He doesn't need to lash himself into a passion to get out 100 per cent. of his courage. He will walk right up to death twirling his cane.

"The fact is," continued the General, again dropping into the philosophical vein, "that men of our race, whether in England, Canada, or the United States, while equal to any other in patriotism, are dominated by the spirit of adventure. It is what is sometimes called sporting instinct that brings us across seas to the scene of danger."

When in the evening I told English officers of the Canadian's tribute to the English officer they almost violated the rule of a lifetime for the stern repression of every show of feeling.

General Watson was strong on two things—that Frits had lost his morale, and that the British forces had just begun to develop their full fighting spirit. He was serenely sure of his Canadians, and his eyes danced as they surveyed on the map the 2,000 yards of front that had been turned over to three Canadian divisions on the firing line—the very hottest corner that could be picked out, and therefore just to their liking.

I honestly believe that those sports of England and Canada would be tremendously disappointed if the Germans themselves should pick up and move back thirty miles without a struggle. They want to lick Fritz out of his hole. They want to have a go at the chemical attack. They have a theory that the much vaunted dugout where Frits has hid himself and planted his guns in precisely the trap in which the English hunter can run his quarry to earth. They are bursting with the spirit of novelty in regard to their new 17-inch guns. And they want to try out Frits a bit more at the point of the bayonet.

We went back to headquarters, where the others drank tea while General Watson and I talked war and journalism. He asked me about newspaper conditions and for the first time learned the price of print paper in America. He had literally not had time or heart to acquaint himself with matters of such vital personal importance. I hated to leave this gallant gentleman of my own craft. His fellowship and sympathy brought home to me more than ever before that on these bloody fields our own battle for liberty, our habits of thought and speech, our kind of honour and manhood, was being fought. Watson cheerily assured me that he would see me in Times Square within a year or so as we drove away to G. H. Q.

The same evening I went with Captain Fowler to the chateau in the neighborhood, where the Intelligence Department is established under the capable superintendence of Colonel Wilson. Here live the seven newspaper men who tell the world about the war. After a merry dinner I had the chance of making the further acquaintance of these war correspondents. Two of them, Small of the Associated Press, and Sims of the United Press, are from Atlanta. I was much impressed of course in Philip Gibbs, the brilliant correspondent with whose descriptions The Times readers are familiar. His genius is recognized by all his colleagues.

Another interesting fellow is Montague of the Manchester Guardian, who overcame his qualification for service of age by painting his hair raven black. He has just been promoted to a captaincy. Percival Phillips is an American serving the Daily Express of London, Russell is the Reuter man, while Filson Young looks after the Northcliffe interests, and Tomlinson represents the London Daily News.

Cars are furnished to these men by the Government, but they pay for the keep. The correspondents are constantly on the front, and the press is most fortunate to have such capable representation. I thought I had already had a glimpse of mountains of munitions, of miles of lorries, of countless marching soldiers, but it was only when I went to the Somme front proper that I saw the real thing. From Albert to Pozieres and thence to Coutralmaison, Montauban, Mametz, and Trone Wood, the scenes witnessed on Feb. 24 would have challenged description by Sir Walter Scott. The day was not one for either aeroplanes or guns, and the trenches were comparatively quiet. It was just as foggy as it could be to be so rainy, and raining as hard as it could to be so foggy. On the tops of the hills the roads were knee deep in mud and water, but the macadam was hard underneath it all, and through the muck there swarmed such a press of men and machinery as perhaps had never been seen before in all the history of the world.

Through the mire, rain, and fog, in as desolate a picture as lust of power ever drew, the fresh men marched blithly to their stations in the trenches. The contrast between the soldier who came out and the one going in was vivid. You could get a smile by giving him one from ever man marching to certain distress and suffering, and possible death; but the men coming back thought only of rest, and very little of that, for they were dead on their feet.

The impression that I got from these scenes was that the late General who remarked that "war was hell" was just talking through his hat. He didn't know anything about it. Only around Bapaume and places like it, in this 1917th year of the Christian era, has the Devil staked his real show on this planet. And if I may enlarge the metaphor, it is not alone the Kaisers who have been the advance agents and managers. They would have been powerless without the unconscious cooperation of the spuriously pious like the Haldanes and Ramsay MacDonalds of England. The same breed are working overtime to help open the doors of America to the hell of war.

When I joined the Berlin contingent at Madrid I brought the optimism of the British front with me. I felt sure that with the advance of the season the nibbing would develop until a battle should rage along the whloe line from the Channel to Switzerland. I found among the Berlin crowd men who had been a few yards to the eastward of where I had been—on the German front—not for a few days, but for weeks. They spoke with knowledge and authority, and they said that the optimism of the English was the optimism of the amateur. The Germans were dug in and concreted. Their subterranean fastnesses were channeled and connected. There were communication and transport ann every facility for beating off an attack. I confess that I was, and am, somewhat staggered by what comes to me with such authority.

But the news wirelessed to the Infanta Isabel these past few days indicates that the British confidenre may not be misplaced. Eleven miles by two deep, with three lines of trenches, looks like business. "Let us wait and hear the cost," say the men who know Germany's strength. "In the thirty kilometers between the present English line of defence, with three trenches to each, or fifty-one trenches, all with dugouts, subways, and transportation. If the English take this area, the cost will make it a losing operation. They will be making a ruinous swap with the Germans of irreplacable life for valueless land."

We shall see.

The Beauty Chorus with "The Million Dollar Doll" the new musical Comedy at "The Grand" to-night. Good seats still available at 50c 75c and $1.00. Gallery opens at 7.30—25c. This will be one of the season's brightest attractions.

SECURE YOUR SEATS FOR INTOLERANCE

The Greatest of All Photo Plays —First Performance Monday Matinee

On Monday a matinee will begin an engagement limited to three days, of D. W. Griffith's stupendous spectacle, "Intolerance."

"Intolerance" is revolutionary in its handling of dramatic themes both of things as they were in the far distant past and as they are to-day in the present. The four great parallel stories are handled in a manner which gives the spectator the feeling that he is living in four widely separated ages of the world's history during the progress of one evening.

In "Intolerance," Babylon that wondrous cradle of civilization, which gave arithmetic and astronomy to the world, is made to live again with all its splendours; the Judea of the Man of Men appears to wondering eyes as if the paintings of the great masters had come to life; the France of Charles the Ninth and of Catharine de Medici becomes as real as the France of to-day, and flash by flash is told a thrilling story of the present time. Grand Opera House, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. Matinee and evening.

THIS IS A REAL SUNSHINE CITY

Mr. Popham, of Peterborough, who is visiting in Florida just now, has sent north an unusual copy of the St. Pitsburg, Florida, Independent — unusual inasmuch as the whole issue was given away on that day. This was in accordance with the standing offer of the Independent that its entire circulation will be given free of charge to everybody every day the sun does not shine on St. Petersburg. The city is known as the "Sunshine City," and just how well it lives up to its name is shown by the fact that only forty times in 6 1-2 years has the Independent had to make good on its sunshine offer.

FANCY SOAP WINDOW

The north window in S. H. Mitchell's Corner Grocery, Park and Sherbrooke streets, has an attractive exhibit of fancy soaps, and demonstrates what can be done by "knowing how" in window dressing. The window-trim is in the form of a crescent, and affords a good design for displaying twenty-nine different kinds of fancy, perfumed and other soaps.

Mute, nude kiddies, with clean, white bodies, are skylarking over the display as if to prove the cleaning power of the soaps.

Special Meeting of Landowne Lodge, S.O.E.B.S. will be held on Monday, March 19th. All members are urged to be present. Special Business. 2d-15-17

TRYING TO AVERT STRIKE

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

NEW YORK, March 17.—The federal mediators and the railway brotherhood chiefs went into conference at 10.30 to-day in a final effort to avert the nation-wide strike scheduled to start to-night.

MILITARY NEWS

Smith street a member of the 4th Canadian Mounted Rifles, and formerly of the Peterborough squadron, 8th C.M.R. Pte. Teabo is still very lame as the result of a shrapnel bullet through his thigh, and will go to Kingston for another operation after two weeks' furlough. He has already had seven operations since he was wounded nearly ten months ago.

Pte. Teabo enlisted in Peterborough in August, 1915, with the last draft for the 8th C.M.R., which joined the Peterborough squadron at Barriefield camp. He went overseas with the 8th C.M.R. and was transferred to the 4th at the front. He received his wound on June 3rd last, the second day of the terrible battle of Zillebeke, in which so many Peterborough boys were killed or taken prisoner. Pte. Teabo was in the front line trenches when the Germans cut loose their terrific bombardment, the greatest concentration of artillery fire up to that time. The trenches were wiped out of existence and Pte. Teabo was one of the few survivors who came through safely, spending the night in a shell hole in the midst of a bombardment which continued all through the hours of darkness. He was finally wounded at 2 o'clock the next day after coming through the worst of the fighting. A shrapnel shell burst near by, wounding Pte. Teabo and a comrade, the latter having his leg taken off.

RECOMPENSE.

Although I do not know God's wondrous ways.
Yet I believe from out life's puzzling maze
I shall be brought.
He knows.
I do not ask to see the journey's end,
For He walks at my side just like a friend,
So all is well,
He sees.
I will not care, though roads are long and rough,
Sure will His grace sustain, and that's enough
To bear me up,
He cares.
I would not be my own guide if I might,
But rather trust to His unerring sight
To lead me on,
He guides.
I could not guard myself, for that were vain,
Yet this I know: He faithful will remain.
And keep me safe.
He guards.
I would not live when done my task is here,
For I can heed His summons without fear,
He died for me,
He lives.
So when from scenes of earth He beckons hence
To fairer realms, t'will be sweet recompense,
For evermore
With Him.

—Written on the Somme battlefield by a Canadian soldier.

"A High Priest Who can Sympathise."

Thoughts from a sermon by Archdeacon Patterson-Smyth.

Hebrew 4-15-16. "A High Priest who can sympathize." If such a one is anywhere to be found, do you not think the poor old world needs Him pretty badly to-day? When, outside all our private sorrows and perplexities and sins, we are sharing in that awful pain at the heart of the Empire? If ever men needed Jesus, they need Him now. If we believe that anywhere in the universe there is a Divine Being who feels with us, it is surely worth while thinking about Him now. It is a big thing we are asked to believe—that our worries and disappointments, our struggles and temptations, as well as the big sorrows that are breaking our hearts are all understood by Him who sits to-day in the midst of the Throne of God.

It is not enough to go to men with the mere bold statement that Jesus can understand and sympathise: not even though you get it out of the Bible. The writer of the passage seems to feel this himself; and therefore, it is he who adds, "He was in all points tried like as we are."

Which would you rather have, merely the statement that He could understand and sympathize with people, weary and overworked, or in addition to it that graphic little touch in the Gospel of St. Matthew, telling him, after a long tiring day of preaching and teaching and healing the sick brought to Him, at evening He went into a little boat to cross the lake and He was so tired He fell asleep on the hard floor of the fishing boat—so utterly weary that even the howling of the storm around could not awake Him till the frightened disciple shouted in His ear, "Lord save us we perish." Would you rather be told that He understands the feelings and experiences of plain, humble, poor people, or be told also that He was born a poor country carpenter's child—that He lived the hard life of a poor man—that He was hungry and thirsty—that He had nowhere to lay His head—that he was sneered at by the more respectable classes at Nazareth as that "Carpenter's Son" who had set up to teach His betters?

Would you rather merely hear that He can feel for you when you are tossing on your bed in sickness and pain, or know in addition that for long weary hours He Himself hung with throbbing brow and racking limb and every nerve quivering with intensest agony?

Does it not help you to understand His sympathy in sorrow, when you learn that He was Himself, the Man of Sorrows—that He lived a lonely troubled life—that the hot tears had trickled down His cheeks? And if you want to go farther than mere sorrow, to behold of that crushing mental anguish that wrung great drops, as it were, of blood from His brow in the awful night of Gethsemane? Cannot you hope that He would understand you in the crisis of temptation, when you know of His experience, "forty days tempted of the devil?"

Does it not comfort you when you are crying to God for your boy gone wrong, to know how He grieved for the hardness of men's hearts? Does it not help you when you are lonely and troubled and longing for human sympathy, or in those darker days still, when the very heavens seems as brass above you and God seems to have gone away into the darknes, to remember that He had to cry aloud in the desolation of His soul, "My God, my God, why hast Thou forsaken me."

Will we not all try to think about it and pray about it, and take courage from it? And weak and cold-hearted and sinful and doubting and wavering as we are, will we not all thank God for this blessed truth. "That we have not a High Priest who cannot sympathize with our infirmities, but was in all points tempted as we are, yet without sin."

FIDELIS

Oh kindred soul, be steadfast and be true!
Put doubts and fears and lamentations by;
List the calm voice: 'All this I did for you;
As you are suffering, even so have I.'
His hand has blunted every cruel string,
His feet have hallowed all the thorny way;
His lips have tasted every bitter spring,
His smile lights up each rude and hateful thing,
He knows each moment of the longest day.

COPPER

Based on current dividend rates and earnings, h e copper stocks are cheap. Most of the large producers will have surplus accounts at the end of 1917 sufficient to pay current dividends for three of four years. There is to-day no one group of securities in which the protection of the investment is so great in measurable values, or on which the yield is so high as in the securities of the leading copper producers. MYSTERIOUS TRUNK ARRIVES IN LONDON

LONDON, March 17.—The mysterious broken and sealed up trunk which started with ex-Ambassador Bernstorff from New York to Copenhagen on the Scandinavian-American liner Frederick VIII., arrived in London yesterday. It was taken at once to the Foreign Office where it will be later opened in the presence of the Swedish Minister.

This trunk is the same one which has figured extensively in various rumours circulated in the United State. Apparently it was at first, according to despatches, sealed with the seals of the Swedish Embassy in Washington, apparently the trunk was discovered to have been opened, the original seals removed, and resealed with the seals of the New York Swedish Consul. Consulate seals are not exempt from breakage as are diplomatic marks. Therefore it was assumed that when British inspectors examined baggage aboard the Frederick VIII. at Halifax, they had no compunction in looking over the trunk. One report circulated was that the famous Zimmerman letter proposing a Mexican-Japanese-German alliance against America, came from this trunk.

Another, and probably more correct version, was that on protest of the Swedish authorities the trunk was examined in the presence of a Swedish Embassy attache from Washington.

Maple Syrup Will Soon Be On Market

The prospect of the maple sugar season were under discussion at the market where it was believed that a final period of fairly cold weather was approaching. Farmers state that there is plenty of snow in the woods, but little frost in the ground. Hence they are doubtful about the run of sap.

French Troops Make a Big Gain

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

PARIS, March 17.—(French Official).—A gain of two and a half miles over a front of twelve miles east and north of Avre was announced to-day by the War Office.

PARIS, March 17.—From 12,000 feet in the sky, French expert anti-aircraft gunners brought down to-day at Compiegne, in blazing fury, a giant German Zeppelin, one of a number apparently returning from a raid on England. It fell in one of the main streets of the city in a charred mass. Those of its crew who remained aboard were burned into unrecognizable masses. Two or three of the crew, mad with the pain of flames and certain of death, preferred to get it otherwise than in a mass of fire, and jumped thousands of feet to the earth. The great Zeppelin broke in two just before it landed, a blazing, almost molten, mass. The Zeppelins from their vast height aloft launched several bombs at the town. No one was hurt by them, and the damage was insignificant.

Paris got part of the Zeppelin scare when the alarm was sounded at four o'clock in the morning, but the Zeppelin didn't arrive as expected.

This is the first raid in which Zeppelins have participated since the death of their inventor.

Most of Otonabee Power Customers With Commission

Customers of the Otonabee Power Company which was recently absorbed by the city, are arranging in large numbers with the Utilities Commission for the continuation of their lighting service. The great majority of those who were on flat rate have shown a preference for the meter system, assuming that, if present consumers of the Utilities power find it profitable, the flat rate plan should be discarded.

Mr. H. O. Fiske remarked this morning that the Commission expected the Otonabee power consumers to effect the new arrangement before April 1st and from present prospects there should be comparatively few who will have neglected this duty at the end of this month.

It may be repeated as a reminder to the citizens that the Utilities Commission is conducted "by the people and for the people," operates directly in their interest, and persons desiring information need not hesitate to approach the Utilities office.

REV. MR. MITCHELL'S LAST SUNDAY AT ST. ANDREW'S CHURCH

Rev. T. H. Mitchell will preach his farewell to St. Andrew's congregation to-morro- and during the week will leave for Toronto to undertake the pastorate of Old St. Andrew's. It is expected that there will be large attendances at both the morning and evening services.

Several Thousand Policemen Locked Up

PETROGRAD, March 17.—One of the curious results of the revolution apparent was the soldiers and the populace joined in a busy hunt to arrest policemen.

Several thousand have already been locked up, and the public is eagerly enjoying the hunt for more.

WILL MEET THIS EVENING

The Finance committee of the City Council will meet this evening for further consideration of the greater production scheme.

Since the last meeting one week ago, several owners of vacant lots throughout the city have signified their willingness to turn over their lots for cultivation.

Bomb Exploded In Boston Court

BOSTON, March 17.—A bomb exploded in the Suffolk County Court House late yesterday, killing two men and injuring another. One of the dead was Louis A. Zeelinger, a janitor employed in the building. The other, unidentified up to a late hour, was believed by the police to have been the bearer of the explosive.

The object of the bomber is uncertain. It is thugoht the explosion was premature and that the bomb was dropped while being carried to the door which opened into the Supreme Court corridor.

The unidentified dead man apparently was a foreigner, probably of Southern European origin, associated medical examiner W. H. Watters announced. The clothing contained nothing which would assist in identification.

Eggs 30 Cents Dozen Potatoes 70 a Peck

Eggs sold down as low as 30 cents a dozen this morning and with better weather the supply would have been heavier and the quotation lower. Potatoes are 70 cents a peck but watch them tumble during the next two weeks. Everything points to an immediate and a substantial decline. The people have boycotted potatoes from necessity and not by design.

Prices Were Lower To-day

Bad weather had little effect on the market this morning, which was well attended, and the prices substantially lower than last week:

Eggs—30c-35c per doz.
Butter—43c-45c per lb.
Chickens—65c-$1.25 each.
Ducks—$1.25 each.

Flour Has Been Advanced This Week

Market Situation For the Week —The Sugar Situation

The following comment on the market situation as regards food stuffs appeared in Canadian Grocer this week:

Flour has been advanced an additional 30c. per barrel during the week, which now makes the base price again reach $10 or over. The advance was occasioned through the continued firmness of the wheat market. Eggs are decidedly on a downward trend, declines of approximately eight cents per dozen having been recorded. With the coming of milder weather it is anticipated there will be a heavier production of eggs in Canada and a consequent further reduction in price. In the Chicago district new-laid eggs are already selling at 25c. per dozen. Butter is in a firm market with advances recorded in some districts. Cheese is also higher. There has been a generally tendency in cooked meats of all kinds. Pure lard and compound lard have been advanced and live hogs are quoted at still higher levels. Dressed hogs are quoted at new high levels.

Sugar Situation.

The sugar situation continues to be one of considerable firmness. There have been no advances with Canadian refiners, but the latter are restricting sales to prompt delivery orders. They will not book orders for future delivery at present prices. There has been a fairly heavy buying movement in sugar during the present week. Tea continues an object of much interest with importers and wholesalers. Advice received from London is to the effect that the British government intends to allow only such tea proceed to Canada as has already been entered for shipment prior to the placing of the embargo. From this time forward the primary markets at Colombo in Ceylon and Calcutta in India will be the centre of interest for tea men. Negotiations are proceeding for shipments of tea direct from those ports to Canada. Some cars of Alberta potatoes reached Eastern centres during the week. The first shipment of Porto Rican spring pineapples is expected to reach Canadian distributors within a few days. Business generally has been satisfactory during the week.

Iron and steel have both scored further advances in price during the week and it is reasonable to expect further advances in the manufactured products. Other advances have been made in the prices of strap and tee hinges, steel butts, currycombs, cutlery, borax, taskle blocks, loaded shells, coil chain, cross-cut saws, buck saws and many other lines. One of the most important was a sudden and rather unexpected advance of 10c per lb. in Paris green, used extensively as an insecticide. Business continues good. The outlook for spring is very satisfactory. The chief difficulty of wholesalers is in securing supplies. Many shipments of badly-needed goods have gone astray and despite effort of the wholesalers and railroad officials, no trace of the goods can be found. In many cases full car-lots are lost, causing serious inconvenience to both wholesaler and retailer.

THE WORLD OF SPORT

SAY SOLDIERS WANT ANOTHER GAME WITH THE HAMILTON CHAMPS

The Hamilton Herald says:

Uneasy lies the head that wears a crown!

Hamilton Hockey club, which wears the O. H. A. intermediate crown, is finding this a truism. Since the red-shirts captured that much-desired title, challenges have been coming at them from all sides. Dunnville, northern league champions, want just one chance at them right in Hamilton, and the 247th battalion of Peterborough, which the Hams eliminated in that never-to-be-forgotten finish, some weeks ago, also clamours for a sudden-death struggle. The eastern soldiers want to stage the game in the Toronto arena. Probably one or two other clubs in the intermediate section of the O.H.A. who believe their foot slipped when they encountered Hamilton in the dash for the championship, will want another chance, and the result of all the challenges might be that the Hams will have to forego their summer vacation in order to give 'em all battle.

There is a large-sized chance, however, that both Dunnville and Peterborough will be accommodated. President Bob Parker, of H.H.C., is heartily in favour of taking on Dunnville, and when he learns of the Peterborough challenge, is also likely to gladly consent to trimming the soldiers all over again. The Hams believe they can defeat either team on any ice and the majority of the players are favourable to continuing in training in order to meet both clubs. Something definite may be learned to-night.

The 247th battalion officials believe that with Bobby Armstrong again available, and their strongest team on the ice they are better than the intermediate O. H. A. champions. They firmly believe hat they should to-day be in possession of the championship.

DENTALS HAVE LEAD OF THREE COUNTERS

WINNIPEG, March 16.—The Toronto Dentals will go into the final game for the Allan Cup on Monday with a lead of three goals as the result of defeating the Winnipeg Victorias, holders of the cup, 9 to 6, in a wild exhibition of hockey here tonight in the first of two games to settle the destiny of the trophy for the next year. Playing on ice that was ideal for fast hockey, the teams put up a dazzling display of the great Winter pastime, but the Easterners showed class in the final period, when they broke a four-to-four tie and piled up five goals while the Bisons were getting but two. Poor defensive tactics by the locals and fast combination plays by the visitors tell the story of the defeat of the defenders.

Weakened by the absence of O'Connell, their star defence player, who took sick at the last minute, the Victorias were forced to readjust their line-up, putting a forward back to play defence, and putting a centre ice player on the wing. This worked havoc with the team, the defence work being weird, with the result that the visitors with their fast two-man rushes worked right in on the goal for nearly all of their scores.

BOWLING

The West End bowling team got away with a good start last night, winning the three games from the King Pins. Their team was somewhat strengthened by the presence of Dawson, the hook ball artist.

Dawson had the high score for the evening of 573 for the three games, and also the high single score of 204.

Solomon had high score for the King Pins, passing the 500 mark. Hard spares were made by Stewart, Dawson, Thompson and Pratt.

The league game on Tuesday night next, King Pins vs. the Can. Gen. Elec. (Those who survive after Monday night's game.)

as every member of it is as anxious to get away from deceptive verdicts, which would be accomplished by a general election, as Roscommon is to place before all Irish constituencies a clear-cut issue betweeen constitutional and revolutionary methods. They are winning for Ireland as the days proceed. The ultra Tories, also, are in favour of a general election, which they believe would result in a huge Khaki majority, and thus restore their supremacy over Parliament, over the ministry and even over the Premier, himself. Now he is their master, but they are convinced that a general election would result in making him their servant.

Threatened Overthrow.

This threat, for so it has been considered, of a general election, and cool contemplation of what the result is sure to be, soon cooled the ardor of all parties, and it became known that a division on cotton duties, which at one time threatened the complete overthrow of the ministry, would be unable to obtain support in the House of Commons outside of the members from Lancashire, and that with this danger removed, the ministry, though it would suffer undoubted and serious damage, still would escape with its official life.

Thus do we live in a condition of parliamentary equipoise, with the universal tendency, outside of the Irish and the ultra-Tories, to strain every nerve to keep the House of Commons, as at present constituted, intact, until we can see more nearly the approach of the end of the war.

But that which is in plain view of the people is not all. Behind the parliamentary screen that shuts off their view, many further moves regarding Home Rule in Ireland are going on, only a hint of which escapes from time to time. The Irish party is holding itself sternly aloof from all pledges and entanglements, having given their pledges to the Irish people that they will have nothing to do with the present negotiations, although, as a matter of course, they are ready to give consideration to any proposition from the Government, and to accept it or reject it strictly on its merits.

"Tactless Speech."

The tactless speech of Lloyd-George has produced a reaction of feeling in favour of Ireland, and this feeling is accentuated, and even facilitated, by every one of his utterances, in public and in private as well, since his speech. It is certain that now all political parties, outside of the Orange extremists, are heartily in favour of reaching a solution of the Irish problem before the peace conference shall take place.

President Wilson's recent speech before the United States Senate, is widely quoted as a justification for this demand. It is whispered that Lloyd George has been so impressed by the movement to this end that his nimble mind is already seeking out some way by which it may be accomplished. Whatever decision he has arrived at, if he has arrived at any, he has kept it a secret so far, with the result that all parties are publicly further asunder on the Irish question than ever, though they are being drawn nearer together by irresistable pressures from the outside for a settlement.

Highest of Praise.

But, on the other hand, the speech made by Lloyd George, in defence of the scheme fathered by himself of providing for the men who have so gallantly defended the nation in their great fight against the common enemy, Germany, can elicit only the highest of praise.

Forgotten were the arts of the orator—only was there apparent the man who thinks only of the suffering of women and children—the dependents upon the soldiers—those clerks, draymen, and artificers of other days—who have shouldered their rifles and so gallantly faced the foe on the battle riven plains of the Marne, and those dreary, blood-stained swamps over which our gallant troops are steadily forcing back the enemy.

With the perfect simplicity of language and lucidityof ideas that mark the introduction of any great national movement, Lloyd George pleaded for pensions—for the pitifully small recompense that will partially assist those maimed and injured heroes who have borne the flag of Britain to higher glories than ever before recorded on the banners of the nation, to care for their loved ones after peace has once more come to Great Britain.

That the establishment of the pension system means many sacrifices upon the part of the nation, all will admit, but really, as the Premier put it, any nation which is not willing to make these sacrifices should not enter in this great war for the liberty of all nations.

Sacrifices Imperative.

When I think of what our Allies have had to suffer: butcheries, the devastation of large tracts of territory—the wholesale deaths by privation of countless women and children—the deportations, the insults, the outrages; when I think of these things, I cannot regard with any sympathy the people of our own country—if there be any such—who regard it as a serious sacrifice that they should earn less money, eat less meat, or drink less beer, in order that the helpless ones of those who have stood as a living wall between their country and all of the awful depredations which would have been inflicted upon them had our islands been invaded by a conquering foe.

Now at last we realize that it is necessary to provide for these helpless ones—these women, mothers, and wives, and their little ones—of the "boys" in the trenches, and to care for these boys themselves when we come to the time when we welcome them back—some with but one leg or arm, others sightless or worse—those hundreds who are and who will be, incapable of returning to their desk or bench through physical incapacity.

Over two years ago the man who is now Prime Minister of the United Kingdom told me "if we would win, we must tighten our belts." We are called upon to tighten them now, by the same man who whispered those words in my ears when the war was in its infancy.

From that hour Lloyd George had never changed his views. No matter what other quarrels we have had; no matter how dark the situation iff which the Irish National party finds itself involved, the man who has the had the courage to stand firm, without ostentation or rhetorical speechifying, for the cause of the widows and wives and children of the English, Irish, Welsh, Canadian, and other Colonial men who have shouldered the brunt of the efforts to keep the ravening foe from our very doors, that man has my highest respect.

He it was who first realised the need of the nation to stand ready for sacrifice at the very start, and he it is who has had the courage to wage the battle again: the more selfish motives of a nation, who, through this hitted war may, please God, become a nation united in very fact.

WITH THE CURLERS

The Vice-Skips' bonspiel, played through the semi-finals last night, leaving G. H. Logie and C. C. Parsons for the final game whenever the ice hardens.

In the 'eights' three games were played, resulting as follows:

W. H. Bradburn, 7; G. H. Logie, 11.

J. Metheral, 8; C. C. Parsons, 9.

Jas. Skinner, 8; J. Wiley, 10.

This left Logie, Parsons, Wiley, and E. G. Patterson in the 'fours,' resulting as follows:

Logan, 9; Wiley, 7.

Parsons, 14; Patterson, 3.

There were no consolation games played. The centre ice was under water and only the outside sheets were used. Even these were quite moist, resulting in many of the stones failing to reach the "hog" line. All the rinks suffered thereby, particularly Jas. Skinner's and E. G. Patterson's.

LAKEFIELD'S SEASON.

J. W. Ridpath won the scheduled games competition held by the Lakefield Club, this season. Thursday night he defeated Skip D. H. Morrisen by 77 to 8, getting four shots on the last end. The final standing of the rinks was as follows:

	Won.	Lost.
J. W. Ridpath	4	2
W. Sherin	3	3
O. A. Langley	3	3
C. S. Tanner	3	3
D. H. Morrison	3	3
N. A. Moore	1	5

DON'T WANT TO GO ON FARMS

MONTREAL, March 16.—At this morning's session of the special Parliamentary Committee of the House of Commons and Senate now meeting here to inquire into the care and disposition of returned soldiers, the evidence was by New Brunswick men. It was pointed out by these men that only an insignificant section of the men invalided from the front were willing to go on farms. Most of them wanted to remain in the city—for a time at least—after their hardships. It was said, too, that many were not willing to go on the land until they knew exactly where they would be situated and the condition of life there. They were waiting for the Government to announce its land policy for the soldiers.

EASY CHEMICAL FEATS.

How to Fireproof Cloth and to Make Sympathetic Ink.

"Sympathetic ink," popularly considered a "first aid" to war spies in writing invisible communications, and "fireproof cloth" offer two interesting chemical experiments the formulas for which have been supplied by a contributor to the Electrical Experimenter They follow:

Sympathetic Ink.—With a clean steel pen write on white paper with a cobalt chloride solution and let dry. When the paper is held near a fire the writing will gradually appear and disappear again when it cools because the chloride absorbs moisture from the air Even though the paper is scorched, the writing will still be visible.

Fireproofing Cloth.—First get two glass tumblers. Add two teaspoonfuls of ammonium chloride to the water in one glass and stir until dissolved In the other glass put a piece of cotton cloth two or three inches square and then pour the dissolved ammonium chloride into the glass containing the cloth and see that it is well soaked with the solution. Hang the cloth up and let it dry. Then touch it with a lighted match. It will burn in the flame, but will go out as soon as the flame is removed.

An Old Voyageur.

One of the few remaining links in the past was severed last week when Narcisse Marion, a French half breed, who has been living near Red Deer, Alberta, for the last thirty years, quietly passed away at the age of 68 years. He came from Manitoba in the early eighties, and was well known to the old timers in Central Alberta, and to know him was a real pleasure. He was truly representative of the "Voyageurs" referred to by Whittier in his poem, "The Red River Voyageur," and to know him intimately was to respect him abundantly. Perhaps in the stillness of the night, around the camp fire, he would give you a glimpse of his beliefs in simple and quaint language. Nor were they very complex or intricate, for he would say that, in substance, he thought that a man who was honest and truthful and kind was living the life that the Great Spirit demanded and his life was more largely governed by his belief than perhaps some are influenced by a much more involved theology. He had a great kind heart, was courageous and determined, and possessed a native dignity which never, under any circumstance, failed him.

Rhodes Scholar Serving.

Captain W. Burton Hurd, B.A., now serving in France with the Western Canadian Infantry Brigade as Y.M.C.A. officer, has been chosen Rhodes Scholar for Manitoba for 1917. He is the sixth Manitoba Rhodes Scholar now on active service. He was born at Brockville, and received his common and High school education at Toronto.

PRESENTATION TO MRS. JAS. LOCKE

Organist and Choirleader of Mark Street Methodist Church is Leaving the City

For some time past the choir and congregation of Mark street Methodist church have been looking forward with regret to the departure of their organist and choir leader, Mrs. James E. Lock, from this city. On Thursday evening last the members of the choir assembled for their regular weekly practice. Instead, however, of this being held at the church, as usual, they were invited to the parsonage for a social evening, where they were happily entertained by Mr. and Mrs. Whatam.

At the close of the evening's enjoyment, the pastor called upon Mr. John Speer to read an address to Mrs. Lock, after which Mrs. Edwin Wand, on behalf of the choir, presented her with a beautiful pearl sunburst.

Mrs. Lock was taken completely by surprise, but made an appropriate reply, thanking the members for their kindness and faithfulness during the past two years, and wishing them and her successor a prosperous future. There is very general regret felt at the severance of the happy relationship which has existed between Mrs. Lock and the congregation of Mark street. Her many friends in Peterborough wish for her a similar but greater sphere of usefulness in Montreal, and believe, knowing her talents as they do, that she will surely find this. Dear Mrs. Lock,— It is with deep feelings of regret that we have learned of your intention to sever your connection with our choir and take up your residence in another city. Your relations with us during the past two years have been most happy. The associations we have had together have given you a large place in our hearts We have enjoyed to the full our fellowship in the service of praise. Your leadership has been efficient and inspiring. Whatever assistance we have been able to render our church and the kingdom of God in our midst has been largely due to your ability as our organist. We realize that the ending of our intimate companionship will be fraught with temptation to us. Our hope is that the ideals which you have set before us may abide in your lives and that the remembrance of your gracious though unrelenting authority may enable us to cherish like principles in whatever may be entrusted with the sacred responsibilities which you are about to surrender. We are anxious lest we drift into languid irresponsibility and undisciplined carelessness.

There are many kind things we would like to say to your esteemed husband whose good fortune has occasioned your residence in another place. Will you kindly convey to him our appreciation of his splendid services as a member of our organization. We have come to regard him as a cultured Christian gentleman. May you both enjoy prosperity in your new sphere of life.

Feeling is never fully expressed. Poetry at its best gives only a partial picture. Music however tender it may be, is only a faint echo of our inner selves. We know therefore it is useless for us to attempt to express to you our poignant regret at your departure from us. We desire, however, to send with you to your new home some slight token of our regard. Trusting that in the days to come it may awaken pleasant memories in your life and sometimes turn your thoughts back again to the little red brick church on Mark street, Peterborough.

Signed on behalf of the Members of the Choir.

BRITISH ADVANCE ON A HUNDRED MILE FRONT

70 TOWNS AND VILLAGES ARE CAPTURED

Four Hundred Square Miles of Territory Is Recovered

England Is Thrilled By The Greatest Drive Since The Huns' Sweep Towards The Marne

Allies Sweep Forward on the Western Front--Seventy Towns and Villages Captured---Peronne and Bapaume Occupied By the British---Nearly Five Hundred Miles of Territory Recovered---At Some Places the Thrust Forward Has Carried the Allied Troops Ten Miles Into Territory Formerly Occupied by the Germans.

BERLIN ADMITS LOSS OF PERONNE

LONDON, March 19.—The Allies continue to sweep forward on the western front. Seventy towns and villages have been taken: Peronne as well as Bapaume occupied by the British. Four hundred square miles recovered. Advance is on one hundred-mile front.

(By Ed. L. Keen, United Press Correspondent.)

LONDON, March 19.—The greatest occupancy of territory by any belligerent since the German sweep toward the Marne, thrilled England to-day.

Nearly five hundred square miles of territory between the Arras sector and the River Oise have been definitely added to the Allies' holdings.

Although there was general rejoicing to-day over the success of the Allies' "push," experts were inclined to put the soft pedal on the popular tendency toward over optimism.

SYSTEMATIC RETIREMENT.

They pointed out that the German retreat was no headling flight, but a methodical, systematic turning back from untenable positions to others doubtless long and carefully prepared.

The retreat has undoubtedly been accelerated by the Allies' unexpected superiority to the Germans. They have surprised the enemy with the vigor of their pursuit.

But the lack of reports of any considerable losses of war materials by the Germans indicate the withdrawal was far from a disorderly retreat.

There was much guessing here today as to the line to which the Germans are retreating.

The line most favoured by military experts was from Donai to Cambrai, St. Quentin, La Fere and Soissons.

Observers here do think that the Germans will permit the Allies to get in the approaches of the valleys of the Sambre, Scheldt and Carpe without strenuously contesting their advance.

To-day the Allies were systematically consolidating their lines and still pressing steadily against the Germans. At some places the thrust forward has carried the Allied troops ten miles into territory formerly occupied by the Germans.

BERLIN, March 19.—War office announces the abandonment of Bapaume, Peronne, Roye, and several other towns between Arras and the Oise.

Practical Experiments Have Been Conducted For Five Successive Years —Methods Employed to Deal With the Weed Evil—Programme For the Year 1917.

These cooperative experiments have now been conducted for five successive years. The object of this work is to have carried on by men on their own farms experienments in the eradication of weeds, the results of which will furnish data from which definite statements may be made regarding the best methods of controlling the various injurious weeds. Each year early in the spring circulars are sent out inviting men who have any weeds included in the list of experiments on their farms to cooperate in the work. Those who sign the application forms for any of the weed experiments are furnished with detailed information concerning the carrying out of the work, and late in the fall they are supplied with blank forms on which to report the results.

Seven experiments in all have been tried viz. 1. The use of rape in the destruction of Perennial Sow Thistle. 2. A system of intensive cropping and cultivation for the eradication of Perennial Sow Thistle. 3. The use of rape in the eradication of twitch grass. 4. A method of cultivation and cropping for the destruction of twitch grass. 5. Spraying with iron sulphate to destroy mustard in cereal crops. 6. A method of cultivation for the destruction of oxeye daisy. 7. A method for the eradication of Bladder Campion or Cow Bell.

Five-Year Experiments.

These experiments have been carried on for five successive years in many parts of the Province, on various types of soil and under different climatic conditions. The results therefore should be a safe index for the whole Province. They may be briefly summarized as follows:

First, that good cultivation followed by rape sown in drills, provides a means of eradicating both perennial sow thistle and twitch grass; second, that rape is a more unsatisfactory crop to use in the destruction of twitch grass than buckwheat; third, that rape gives much better results in the eradication of twitch grass and perennial sow thistle when sown broadcast; fourth, that thorough deep cultivation in fall and spring, followed by a well-cared-for hoed crop will destroy bladder campion; fifth, that mustard may be prevented from seeding in oats, wheat and barley by spraying with a twenty per cent. solution of iron sulphate without any serious injury to the standing crop or to fresh seedings of clover.

Points of interest brought out by the experiments in spraying with iron sulphate to destroy mustard were:

1. The necessity of spraying early, just when the plants are coming into bloom. If the spraying is left too late, the older plants will not be destroyed by the solution, and will form seed, and hence the experiment will not be entirely satisfactory.

GERMANYS TOILERS IN MOOD FOR REVOLT

A. C. Roth, Ex-Vice Consul at Plauen, Describes Sombre Misery in Saxony—Tells How the Emaciated Poor Talk Sedition and Blame Kaiser for Horrors They Suffer.

CITIES LIKE DANK PRISONS

"Wage earning Germany's nerves have been worn raw by the increasing weight of suffering that the war has brought it. This class of Germans has become sullen, dissatisfied with the Government, almost rebellious. While the middle class remains intensely patriotic, parading before the casual observer a unified and determined Germany, fatigue of war is making alarming strides among the working people. A great many of these humble people want peace at any price—at the price of their colonies, of Alsace-Lorraine, even of their country's prestige and position."

This is the opinion of A. Curtis Roth, American Vice Consul at Plauen in Saxony, who has lived in close touch with the people since the beginning of the war. Having spent seven years in the teeming, industrial Saxon district, intimately acquainted among all classes and accepted everywhere as a friend, Mr. Roth has an unusually strong claim to an accurate knowledge of conditions there. He was, moreover, a friendly observer, full of admiration and sympathy for those among whom he lived.

"The working people, at least, in Saxony, are becoming restive. They have hungered and grieved and overworked for many months, with conditions steadily growing worse and with each promise of peace fading into an indefinite prospect of endurance. All foods but the very coarsest are beyond their means. The ration of these coarse foods is insufficient. The poor have been subsisting throughout the last year upon bread, potatoes, turnips and salt.

FORSEES A PEASANTS' WAR

"Pushed much further by the galling stress of starvation, overwork and loss of dear ones, a second peasants' war may well be added to the miseries of Central Europe.

"The standard of living among the working people has been lowered fearfully. It is now on a par with the coolie standard of overcrowded Asia. Their work has increased their share in clothes and foods and other creature comforts has diminished, and their amusements have entirely fallen away. The urban poor have become desperately poor and they are beginning to realize that each added month of the war means that their plight must become more and more hopeless.

"In the beginning all was wild enthusiasm for the war. The people crowded around the railway stations to see the troop trains hurling past every twenty-five minutes. Then came the floods of wounded, the difficult readjustments made necessary by the absence of the wage-earners, and, then, the numbling pinch of hunger. Worst of all was the atmosphere that settled down upon the land, an atmosphere of want, of fear, of suffering of black depression, which, seemed to seep through and through one and chill the consciousness.

"An eternal New England Sunday gripped the formerly bursting manufacturing towns in my district. The streets were bare of traffic. People passed about their errands silently. There was no laughing whistling, loud talking, or jovial greeting. The business streets were dotted everywhere by stores closed up by war. Grass grew between the cobbles in the roadway. Now and again oxen dragging primitive carts of farm produce lumbered through the streets. Restaurants and cafes were deserted. It cost money to frequent them, and, moreover, they had nothing to sell.

STRANGELY SEDITIOUS TALK

"It is hard to describe life under these conditions. The best I can do is to say that it was suffocating. When not going to and fro about their work, the less well to do hid their unhappiness in their rooms. As it was, one was forever meeting on the street hollowed-cheeked emaciated, dry-eyed sufferers. I felt as though I had escaped from a dark prison when I got back to this country and saw happy, healthy, well-fed people again.

"The strain is beginning to tell. I have heard the Emperor soundly berated by his famished subjects in the shops that the poor frequent. I have often during the last months of my stay listened to strangely seditious talk among the worker, men and women, which grew in violence after the check at Verdun. The working women have threatened a number of times to get out of hand and rough things. In Saxony, at least, was in successfully throttling, one by one, all the people's impulses for living.

"The Saxon casualty list has been very heavy. The Plauen regiment has been wiped out six times. All the young, dashing, professional officers, who led the first onslaught, have been wiped out. The troops are now officered by men of all classes, who have made good in the field and in some cases that I know of the derivation of the officer testifies to the startling demoroatising effects of war. The call for more men is always insistent. The high school boys go out once a week for drill. Boy Scouts drill from twelve to sixteen. The land has been denuded of its physically fit men.

"Saxony has borne an over-large share of the war, suffering. It is primarily a manufacturing country, and so, has suffered most keenly from the effects of food shortage. At one time last year the Saxons were eating a bread eked out with chopped straw. Then, Saxony did an enormous export business. The war swept this business away and closed hundreds of factories. I knew many men in my district, who, wealthy in 1914, their all wiped out by war, saw themselves paupers in 1915. I believe that it will take many years of peace to repair the frightful losses and bring back the old prosperity.

"The rich textile industries of Saxony have suffered staggering disaster. The woollen and cotton goods' mills, once shippers to every part of the world, are just barely employed, going backward in organisation, enterprise, capital and, hence, in ability for the old stiff competition. War conditions are threatening the destruction of the great leather glove industries. The famous machine-made lace and embroidery industry of Plauen, whose products before the war graced the dresses of milady in every land, likewise is decaying under the war stagnation. And the highly-trained operatives in these and other industries are being killed off as fast as cannon, machine gun, rifle, gas and bomb can accomplish their work upon the battle fronts.

"A revolution, an economic revolution, has already been worked in Saxony, a revolution of destruction whose effects will outlive this generation. The Saxon poor realizes this better than their more fortunate countrymen, and they are bitterly very bitterly, war-weary."

Railway Heads Capitulate Rather than Hamper Railway Facilities with the Country on the verge of War

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

NEW YORK, March 19.—The railroads have met the fullest demands of the Adamson eight-hour law, and thereby definitely averted the threatened nation-wide strike with the country on the verge of its most serious crisis. The railway managers' committee early to-day announced that they would accept the Brotherhood chief's demands rather than hamper railway facilities at this time.

The railroads surrendered completely, leaving their end of the adjustment entirely in the hands of President Wilson's Mediation Board.

A joint committee is to thresh out the minute details.

OUR SERIAL STORY

THE RED PAPER

By C. HOTCHKISS

There was no verbal answer, nor did the man need one. "It is a serious and a dramatic wooing," he went on. "It has been tragic all along. God knows that I have earned you, if a man ever earned a woman. And I have been sorely stricken for now I have lost a staunch friend—the sheriff who made this day possible, and without whom I could not be here."

They were standing near the body of Planet. The girl raised her white face to his. "Oh, my dear——" she began, but she was interrupted by a voice from behind them.

"Easy, my lady! I am not out of the fight, son! Would you mind giving me some of your attention?"

Wentworth swung himself around as though he had heard a shot. The sheriff had drawn himself up and was sitting propped against the door-post, with blood streaming down his face. The young man ran to him, his own weakness forgotten. "Thank God for this!" he exclaimed. "I thought you dead!"

"I'm off a little from that, I reckon," was the grim reply. I hate to break up your side show, son, but I have cinched a busted head and a busted leg; they have got to be considered. Drag me to the fire; I'm fair freezing."

CHAPTER XXIII.
NEMESIS.

Half an hour later the hut was bright with flame from a heap of wood thrown on the fire. The body of Planet had been pulled from the building and Wentworth was working over the wounded sheriff.

"It is a nasty clip," he said. "The bullet cut a swath through your scalp, just grazing the top of your skull. It was a close squeak, Thorp—but you were stunned, that's all. You'll have a welt to match your father's, after this; but it is not half so serious a blow. The cold has almost stopped the bleeding. Let's see the leg." He cut away the blood-stained trousers and washed the bad wound from the bucket that had been brought in.

"Why, I can feel the lead with my finger!" exclaimed John, joyously a moment later. "I'll cut it out to-morrow, it isn't more than an inch under the surface. You can hack a horse in three days."

"Then I guess I'll pull through," said Thorp. "Were you hurt?"

"Not a scratch—or only scratches—thanks to Miss Merridale. It has been providential."

"I reckon, son, we can thank the lady for pretty much all of this traverse," said the sheriff, with a touch of humour in his weak voice. "Leastwise, I have a right to judge so from what I have seen."

Wentworth smiled. "You don't have to be a Solon," he said, as he looked at the girl who was busy tearing a white skirt into strips.

"So? And that is what gave you the sand to go through with the business, isn't it?"

"I deny nothing."

"It would not alter my mind if you did, son. Your trail is pretty well marked. Where's Bagshot?"

Wentworth started. "By Heavens, I had about forgotten him!" he exclaimed. "He ran out after he shot you."

"But not until I hit him—that I'll swear. You bet he won't run very far. You know what I came for—if you had another object. Better look him up. Carry my gun, and don't take any risks."

But there was now little risk in dealing with Simeon Bagshot. Wentworth found him several rods from the house, rolling on the ground in agony—for in the catalogue of human sufferings nothing surpasses the pain of a wound in the abdomen.

Bagshot could not rise, nor could the young man lift and carry the big body, but he dragged him to the house and laid him by the fire, the wounded man groaning and cursing in the same breath. When he was brought in the girl recoiled from him, retiring to the far end of the cabin, where the sheriff had been laid and covered with blankets. Wentworth proceeded to look for the wound. He found it, a dark blue hole, and a glance told the young man that the hurt would prove fatal; it took no experience to determine that. And there was nothing that could be done for the moaning sufferer.

But the wound in the abdomen was not all that Wentworth found. Round the body of the helpless man was a money belt and with it its discoverer proceeded to make free while his old enemy looked at him, his eyes filled with impotent rage. The searcher knew what he was looking for and was not in the least surprised when he came upon the red paper—the cause of all his trouble—wrapped in oiled silk. Besides this there were several hundred dollars in money, which Wentworth returned to the belt and laid in Bagshot's hand, though that individual did not seem to notice it. For his eyes were on the young man as he unrolled the oiled silk wrapper, and their expression was sinister enough as the paper was refolded and Wentworth placed it in his own pocket. This done he covered his fallen enemy with a blanket, and returned his attention to the sheriff.

After a series of intermittent contortions, continuing for upwards of an hour—and during which time Bagshot cursed, groaned and demanded whiskey, he suddenly spoke rationally and his voice had lost the tension that was caused by acute suffering. "There—"he said, shifting his big body. "I am better! The tearing has stopped."

Wentworth went over him, bent down and took his pulse then shook his head as he spoke to the man. "I expected this. You are dying Mr. Bagshot,"—he said, looking down on the pinched face, and well aware of the meaning of the sudden cessation of pain.

"The h—— I am!"

"It would be useless to deny it, as it would be useless to say that I regret it. You brought this on yourself, sir. If you have anything to say you had better say it at once."

"You are a damned cheerful kind of a raven to come croaking around me! Don't try to scare me, sir; you have not been able to do it yet."

"I have no desire to do more than speak the truth to you at this time, Mr. Bagshot. And you would do well to do the same."

"Oh, I'm on to you!" was the reply. "You look for me to confess killing your father. You think I murdered him. Well, I did not—but I came near it—damn you both!"

"You were with him that night?" Wentworth bent forward to catch the answer, for the man's voice was now growing feeble.

"Yes, I was with him—Planet and me. Where's Planet?"

"You will join him shortly," said Wentworth, lowering his voice. Bagshot gasped as if a sudden realization of the truth had come to him.

"My God! I believe that you are right! I'll tell Heaven's truth about it. I got there right after you left. We rang the bell, and your father came to the door and let us in. We went back to the library. You know what we went for."

"Your father cursed us both; he was awfully excited. He made me mad. I got him by the throat to make him tell me where the map was, but I did not hardly touch him until he fell. I thought that he had fainted, and I tried to bring him to with ice water from the pitcher; but I soon knew he was dead. We were in a fix."

"I didn't dare call any one, but I ransacked the drawers and his clothes—then Planet flunked, got scared; so we went out the way we came in. You see I didn't kill him. Your murder theory was all wrong, and I knew it."

"You did kill him, for all your story," returned John, keeping down his resentment in the presence of death. "You brought on the attack that ended my father's life and you were his murderer at heart. You would have robbed him. You had already ruined his life by a lie—the lie on which you traded and blackmailed. Captain Wentworth committed no crime, and you knew it. I know it now for I have met the man my father struck while a mere boy. He knows you. It was Thorp—Bud Thorp. His son lies yonder—the sheriff of Bexar County. You have wounded him, but not seriously, thank God! And it was he that shot you—not I!"

Bagshot opened wide his eyes. "Hell!" he exclaimed. "It's all up to Shearpole! Why did he let you go—he promised to hold you?"

"He didn't let me go. I know him for the rascal that he is! I escaped and was hidden in the boat that took you ashore. You robbed me and would have robbed your niece, had your plans carried. You have been a living lie most of your life—a common thief and a murderer in purpose. May Heaven forgive you, for as yet I cannot. You are dying. Do you want anything?"

Later Wentworth wished he had revised his speech before he made it. It seemed heartless, on mature thought, but at that time he was full of his wrongs, and his passionate hate for the man before him overbore what charity he possessed.

Bagshot lay still for a moment, apparently looking at the ragged walls of the room. Outside the storm still howled, the rain hissing as it tore along the roof which dripped in a dozen places. Presently the dying man turned his face toward Wentworth; his voice was singularly mild, but his eyes belied his tone.

"You are right—you are right—you are right!" he repeated softly. "I am dying—going out like a shot dog. And you have come out ahead! Say—you ask me if I want anything. Yes—but not for long. That paper has been all that I have worked for for ten years and more. I married Merridale's sister, and she told me of it before she died—told me of the old man's find, and how to read the map. I worried it out of her. I confess it. I have been—a bad—man. I wanted—money. Don't take the map away from me before—I go. I love the feel of it. Let me—touch it; let me hold—it—in—my hand. You'll have it—always. Please—please—as—you hope—for—happiness."

"The weakening voice and the strange appeal—childish in its nature—made the scene pitiful. Wentworth looked toward Grace. The girl, who had been listening, was white with sympathy, and her eyes moistened. She nodded. Wentworth put the thin oiled silk packet in the hand of his enemy. He felt he could do no less—nor more; it would not be for long.

The dying man hurried the packet to his breast, cuddling it as a child might have cuddled a favorite doll. It was a moving exhibition of human weakness, and one which did not increase Wentworth's respect for the abject man.

For some time Bagshot lay silent the paper tight in his grasp, his eyes turned to the leaking roof then he moved his head, and looked at his victor.

"You—are a—decent sort of a chap after all!" he said brokenly. "Give me water—water!"

Wentworth took the cup that he had found in the ambulance, and went outside. The storm was unabated, the rain even heavier, and a stream of water was sluicing from a corner of the dilapidated roof. From this he filled the cup, and was about to return when he was started by a shout from the sheriff and a scream from the girl. He bounded back into the hut and at once saw the cause of the cry.

Bagshot with an access of strength, had rolled close to the fire near which he had been lying, and reaching out pressed the precious paper into the centre of the bed of now glowing embers. The oiled silk cover flashed up like powder and before Wentworth could reach the fire and snatch the document from destruction the light paper was consumed, its feathery ash stirred by the effort at rescue, floating up to the roof of the cabin.

As its total loss was assured, Bagshot yelled: "There, damn your lily-colored soul!" and rolled away from the fire, shaking the hand blackened by the heat. "You thought you had me, did you? Get the fortune I've worked for, if you can! Did you suppose I'd be such a fool as to let you have it? Did you think to get the best of me? I win! I win! You are—a—callow—ass!"

He wrung his scorched hand, and it was while he was waving it in the air that his arm suddenly relaxed, and he became unconscious.

At the last desperate act of the outlaw and when the loss of the paper was a certainty, Wentworth felt a sense of defeat that was purely personal. He was tempted to take the triumphant man by the throat and shake the little remaining life out of him. And yet he knew he cared nothing for the paper for himself. It had been the object which had started him on his errand of justice, but as a motive for his action it had long ceased to be a factor. He turned and looked at the girl, expecting to see an expression of consternation on her face, but to his surprise she greeted his voiceless question with a smile.

"It is gone!" he said. "Gone past redemption! There is nothing of it left!"

"And then the curse of it has been lifted," she returned quickly, rising and going to him. "Do not be sorry for me. I cared nothing for it—save on your account. It has left a trail of violence wherever it went! It has cost more lives than it was worth. Oh, I am glad, glad that it has gone!"

"I am more than thankful that you feel this way about it," said Wentworth fervently. "To me it has not been an unmixed curse. I, too, am willing to be glad."

"But I'm most everlastingly sorry," said Thorp from his corner. "We had enough trouble in getting it—and it would have been worth millions."

Wentworth laughed; it was his first laugh for many days. "Only possibly millions in money," he said, 'And it has been worth millions to me—but in something better than cash." And regardless of the sheriff's presence, he passed his arm around the girl's waist and kissed her as she bent over her fast-dying uncle.

Thorp coughed. "Well," he said "the lost San Saba mine is still lost, though you may have found enough else to console you. But my errand goes for nothing—except a bunged head and a busted leg."

"Does it?" asked Wentworth, slowly straightening himself. "I think not. You got your man—your men."

"And you your woman," returned the sheriff grimly. "I can now see how you feel paid—and perhaps I ought to be satisfied."

"I know I am," said Wentworth. "Under the circumstances I suppose I ought to bless Bagshot for forcing himself into my life as he did, instead of cursing him. And—ah, he's gone. May God forgive him!"

And with that he drew the end of the blanket over the face of his dead enemy.

BAD DREAMS ARE SYMPTOMS

Ill Health the Cause—Many Alarming Symptoms of Woman's Ailments—How Cured.

Paterson, N.J.—"I thank you for the Lydia E. Pinkham remedies as they have made me feel happy and healthy. Some time ago I felt so run down, had pains in my back and side, was very irregular, tired, nervous, had such bad dreams, did not feel like eating and had short breath. I read your advertisement in the newspapers and decided to try a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It worked from the first bottle, so I took a second and a third, also a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Blood Purifier, and now I am just as well as any other woman. I advise every woman, single or married, who is troubled with any of the aforesaid ailments, to try your wonderful Vegetable Compound and Blood Purifier and I am sure they will help her to get rid of her troubles."—Mrs. ELSIE J. Jump from Bed in Morning and Drink Hot Water

Tells why everyone should drink hot water each morning before breakfast.

Why is man and woman, half the time, feeling nervous, despondent, worried; some days headachy, dull and unstrung; some days really incapacitated by illness.

If we all would practice inside-bathing, what a gratifying change would take place. Instead of thousands of half-sick, anaemic-looking souls with pasty, muddy complexions we should see crowds of happy, healthy, rosy-cheeked people everywhere. The reason is that the human system does not rid itself each day of all the waste which it accumulates under our present mode of living. For every ounce of food and drink taken into the system nearly an ounce of waste material must be carried out, else it ferments and forms ptomaine-like poisons which are absorbed into the blood.

Just as necessary as it is to clean the ashes from the furnace each day, before the fire will burn bright and hot, so we must each morning clear the inside organs of the previous day's accumulation of indigestible waste and body toxins. Men and women, whether sick or well, are advised to drink each morning, before breakfast a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it, as a harmless means of washing out of the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels the indigestible material, waste, sour bile and toxins: thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach.

Millions of people who had their turn of constipation, bilious attacks, acid stomachs, nervous days and sleepless nights have become real cranks about the morning inside-bath. A quarter pound of limestone phosphate will not cost much at the drug store, but is sufficient to demonstrate to anyone, its cleansing, sweetening and freshening effect upon the system.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

Seeking a Theme

It Was Found, But Never Used

By ETHEL HOLMES

Miss Julia Henderson was very much courted. She was generally attractive, comely and prominent socially. But that which raised her above her fellow spinsters was that she was a novelist who had won her way to literary recognition.

Miss Henderson had recently finished a story. It had been published and had made its mark. Already the public had begun to clamor for more from her typewriter. She was casting about for a theme. She had thus far relied rather upon the naturalness, the humanity of her scenes than upon plot. Now she had come to realize that to the bulk of the reading public plot was very acceptable. But for this she had little talent. She wished she might come upon some real happening out of the ordinary that she could develop into a novel.

Miss Henderson asked friends of hers to suggest some real happening in life that had come to their notice. Some of them tried to think up a combination of circumstances that might serve her purpose. But they were all too tame. She proposed if she should attempt to please the public by this kind of fiction to go into it for all it was worth and develop only what was startling and original.

One day she was out for a walk. When she wished for originals for her characters she would stroll about, noticing every person she passed. Wherever she came upon one who struck her as being unique she would make a mental note of the person and when she got home would jot down a few salient points by way of description. On this walk she received a surprise.

A man, evidently a gentleman, who was passing her passed, looking at her with wide open eyes.

"Belle!" he exclaimed.

There were in the man's face pain, reproach, a burning love. Evidently he fancied that she was some one other than herself. She returned his gaze, but said nothing.

"Oh, Belle," he continued, "where have you been all this while? Why did you conceal yourself from me? It was all a mistake. When we were separated coming out of the opera, having lost you, I went to the carriage. The door stood open, and I saw a woman inside. Supposing she was you, I got in, closed the door, and we were driven away. She supposed I was her husband. He was coming for the carriage when he saw me get into it and drive away. He called another conveyance and followed, overtook us, and then came the tragedy, an account of which you probably saw in the morning papers. This is the truth, and all the truth, I swear to you."

Miss Henderson restrained speech, but not thought. She thought very hard and very rapidly, and this was the substance of her thinking:

"Here is not only a theme, but I one of the characters, the heroine. The woman in the carriage must be the wicked foil. The man who made the mistake in thinking his wife was running away with another should be the hero, but I haven't got so far as that yet. One thing is certain—I'll get points by permitting this man to remain in error so long as possible."

Drawing away, she said, "Sir, I don't know you."

"Listen to me. It was not my fault that this woman had been an old flame of mine. Your playa sigaure pranks, but you should not, you shall not hold me accountable for this one."

SCOTT'S EMULSION

Miss Henderson was delighted. "The plot thickens," she thought.

"If you wish my forgiveness for"—

She paused. She preferred not to make the only finish she considered safe—viz, pretending that she was some one else than herself. But she was dishonest enough to put a slight tremolo into her voice. He continued:

"I not only wish your forgiveness; I will tell you a story that will convince you of my innocence of wrong. This man who had married the woman I once thought I loved was burning with jealous rage. He knew of his wife's former predisposition for me, and, now thinking that she was untrue to him, that I had taken my former place with her, as soon as he had caught us, drew a knife and plunged it into"—

The man, overcome by the memory of a horrid sight, stopped short and covered his eyes with his hands. Miss Henderson, who was wrapped in the dramatic situation, forgot herself and asked:

"You or the woman?"

Removing his hands, he looked at her wonderingly.

"Do you not know he killed her?"

"Her? Certainly. What was I thinking of?"

"That settles the matter of the female villain," said Miss Henderson to her self. "She dies too early in the story I must find another. But I fear there's more in this plot than I bargained for. I wonder who I am—I mean the woman he has mistaken for me?" Then to the man she said aloud:

"From your knowledge of me, do you consider me a woman to forgive an outrage upon my dignity like this upon such a thin explanation?"

"You have always had an atom of distrust of me. You should see the position in which I am placed. Circumstantial evidence is against me. It is the part of a noble woman to have faith in me, to stand by me in adversity."

That seemed a good point to the authoress for her story. She would show in her heroine that beautiful faith of a woman in the man she loves.

"I will think it over," she said. "Now leave me. If I decide that it is best to permit you to plead your cause, at the same time furnishing evidence of what you claim, I will receive you at my home."

The man clasped his hands and looked up to the heavens, and his lips moved in mute thanks. Then, taking a card from his pocketbook, he scribbled his address on it.

"You see that I have changed my quarters. I shall expect to hear from you—when?"

"If at all within a few days."

She moved on without further reply to the wistful look he gave her. As soon as she conceived herself to be out of sight she looked at the name and address on the card he had given her. It was "Edwin V. Atterbury, University Club."

She was somewhat appalled now that the interview was over at having entered upon a complication with a clubman that might place her in a very embarrassing situation. Fortunately she had not given her name and need not communicate with him further unless so disposed. She resolved that she would let him alone. But this prudent resolution was combated by a sympathy for a poor fellow who was the victim of circumstances. Would it not be better to send for him, convince him of his error and offer sympathy? Possibly she might assist him in reconciliation with the woman she herself was supposed to be.

There was one objection to going further with the matter in any way—that was the murder that had been committed. She had been so interested in getting material for her novel, or, rather, forming the plot, that she had not thought to ask whether the woman had succumbed under the blows she had received or whether her husband had suffered for his crime. Indeed, she had not been in a sufficiently calm mental condition to get a very clear view of the tragedy.

After much debate with herself and having considered the case pro and con she reluctantly decided that it would not be wise to follow the matter any further.

A short time after her meeting with Mr. Atterbury she was invited to dine with her friend, Mrs. Winston. The note of invitation contained the following: "I wish you to meet a friend of mine who has for some time been admiring you from a distance. I confess that I don't like the idea of introducing him to you, for he is a scapegrace. I don't mean that there is anything bad about him, but he has the assurance of a confidence man and would not hesitate at any means to secure the favor of a woman he loves."

There was nothing repellent about this to Miss Henderson. Indeed, she was quite pleased at the prospect of meeting this bold unknown man who had been admiring her without making himself known. She went to the dinner in a tremor of expectation.

When she arrived the hostess was chatting with a gentleman in the conventional evening dress. Both arose, and Miss Henderson stood stock still in astonishment. Surely the gentleman was the man who was waiting for her forgiveness.

"Julia," said Mrs. Winston, "I was

HAD INDIGESTION
COULD KEEP NOTHING ON STOMACH

Indigestion is one of the worst forms of stomach trouble. The stomach becomes upset and you have a raw, debilitated feeling in it.

After a meal you feel that you must get rid of that nasty, bilious, burning sensation; that souring and rising of the food which is so unpleasant and in many cases very painful.

It is not necessary for you to be troubled with indigestion when Burdock Blood Bitters may be so easily obtained. This old and well-known remedy, which is a combination of nature's best roots, herbs, barks and berries will cure indigestion and all stomach troubles.

Mr. Lazare Savoy, Pokemouche, N. B., writes: "About two years ago I was troubled with indigestion that bad I could keep nothing on my stomach. I was sorely disappointed in everything I tried to relieve me. At last a friend advised me to try Burdock Blood Bitters. I took four bottles and can now eat anything that is set in front of me."

That grand old medicine, B.B.B., has been on the market for the past forty years, and we claim, without any fear of contradiction, that it is the best cure for all stomach troubles.

EASY TO DARKEN YOUR GREY HAIR

You Can Bring Back Color and Lustre With Sage Tea and Sulphur.

When you darken your hair with Sage Tea and Sulphur, no one can tell, because it's done so naturally, so evenly. Preparing this mixture, though, at home is mussy and troublesome. For 50 cents you can buy at any drug store the ready-to-use preparation, improved by the addition of other ingredients, called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning all gray hair disappears, and, after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully darkened, glossy and luxuriant.

Gray, faded hair, though no disgrace, is a sign of old age, and as we all desire a youthful and attractive appearance, get busy at once with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound and look years younger. This ready-to-use preparation is a delightful toilet requisite and not a medicine. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

"ANY PLACE THAT IS WILD."

John Muir Wanted to Get Far From the Madding Crowd.

Once, on reading a magazine article by an enthusiastic young mountain climber who dilated upon his thrilling adventures in scaling Mount Tyndall, John Muir commented dryly: "He must have given himself a lot of trouble. When I climbed Tyndall I ran up and back before breakfast."

At a time when trails were few and hard to find he explored the Sierra, which, he said, should be called not the Nevada or Snowy range, but the Range of Light. When night came he selected the lee side of a log, made a fire and went to sleep on a bed of pine needles. If it was snowing he made a bigger fire and lay closer to his log shelter.

"Outdoors is the natural place for man," he said. "I begin to cough and wheeze the minute I get within walls."

Never at a loss to make his way in the wilderness, he was completely bewildered in the midst of city streets.

"What is the nearest way out of town?" he asked of a man in the business section of San Francisco soon after he landed at the Golden Gate in 1868.

"But I don't know where you want to go!" protested the surprised pedestrian.

"To any place that is wild," he replied.—Mary R. Parkman in St. Nicholas.

Brief Sketch of Man Who Does Honor to Dominion.

News has come to his home that C— H—, a young man who lived in or so near Toronto as to make no difference, has been gazetted a lieutenant. To those who knew him the case of C— H, for in this instance the good old custom of the censorship must be followed, and credit withheld where it is due, is one of the most inspiring of the war. It has been generally supposed that the great majority of the soldiers who enlisted in the first contingent, who threw down their tools of trade at the first blast of war and rushed to arms, were lured by adventure, that they were fighting men who never backed away from an argument, and who would rather be in a muss than not. That may be so, but perhaps most of us knew an exception to the rule. C— H— was such an exception. He was not a fighting man. Probably he had never struck a blow in anger in his life, even when he was a schoolboy. He was not thirsting for adventure. He was not tired of home; nor did he yearn, so far as anyone knew, to see the great world outside of the narrow circle in which his life had been spent. C— H— was what is often contemptuously called a "goody-goody boy." He never played truant. He always went to Sunday school, even long after he was old enough to wear a moustache. He sang in the choir. He shook hands at the door. Maybe he gave his "experience" now and then. He was a good boy, and he looked it, and this may have been what exasperated a lot of people who knew him casually.

When the war began our friend C— H—, who was a Methodist, a Grit, and no doubt a member of the anti-cigarette and abolish-slang societies, had been married for a couple of years. He had one little baby. The only son, he was also, in a sense, the chief support of his father and mother and a sister, for the father's business had been slowly crumbling before the fierce assaults of local competition, and it was C— H— who was keeping the little ship afloat. A very short time after the war broke out C— H— said to his father, "Dad, I feel I ought to go." It must have been a blow to the father, and what a blow to the young wife and mother we can imagine; but if they sought to point out to C— H— that he was not a fighting man, that he had tremendous duties and responsibilities at home, that the place was full of single slackers, it made no impression upon C— H—. He enlisted as a private, and soon this lad who had been gently, tenderly brought up, was roughing it in the mud at Salisbury Plain. He went to France later, was promoted from private to corporal, from corporal to sergeant, and to sergeant-major. Now he is a lieutenant. Incidentally he has won the Distinguished Conduct Medal. His father is dead in the meantime; his business is gone. His wife, his sister, and his mother pick up the paper in the morning with trembling fingers, for C— H— is still on the firing line somewhere in France. It would appear from all this that there are worse places than Sunday schools for building up characters, that the best soldiers are not the roughnecks, and that you may know a man for years and know nothing at all about him if you have failed to make allowance for the part that devotion to what he believes to be right plays in his actions.—J. V. McAree in The Mail and Empire.

Rest Money in Banks.

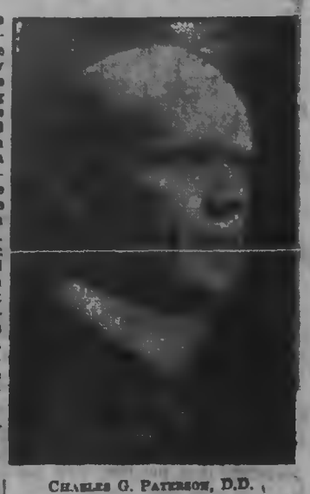
There have been a lot of people in Canada to whom money was no object. They have left balances distributed among the chartered banks amounting to nearly a million dollars. A blue-book brought down by Sir Thomas White shows that to the end of 1915, there were $916,535.74 of unclaimed balances, held by the various banks as follows: Bank of Montreal, $103,299; Quebec Bank, $18,891; Bank of Nova Scotia, $40,214; British North America, $51,934; Bank of Toronto, $2,627; Molsons Bank, $20,151; Banque Nationale, $25,034; Merchants, $26,558; Banque Provinciale, $951; Union, $85,778; Commerce, $78,560; Royal, $54,345; Dominion, $61,989; Hamilton, $47,701; Standard, $4,612; Hochelaga, $17,752; Bank of Ottawa, $14,472; Imperial, $20,849; Home Bank, $2,598; Northern Crown $3,723; Sterling, $435; Montreal City and District Savings Bank, $118,794; Caisse L'Economie De Notre Dame De Quebec, $11,509.

NOTHING LIKE IT FOR COLDS

Mrs. Holland Fergusson, Sheffield, N. B. writes: "Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine has cured my children and myself of severe colds. We are never without it in the house. There is nothing like it for colds and throat troubles and it is so soothing and pleasant to take, my children would drink a whole bottle if they were permitted."

Church Union and a Greater Canada

By The Rev. Charles G. Paterson, D.D., Winnipeg.



CHARLES G. PATERSON, D.D.

TO the enemy and to ourselves the war has revealed a united Canada. In the trenches across the ocean men from all parts of every province of our Dominion stand side by side, while here at home loving hearts and busy brains and hands are joined to keep them there and to send them reinforcements. A cross section of our national life from sea to sea would show that underneath the particular differences which emerge like the peaks of a mountain range there lies a solid substructure of conviction and purpose that gives unity to it all. Undoubtedly there is a real Canadian consciousness, a distinct national spirit, an indivisible union of British subjects within our borders. To meet the problems which are fast approaching us from out the mysterious future we go forward as a Canadian commonwealth, which in its constituent parts may be separate as the fingers, but in its totality is one as the hand.

Something even more important is now clearly recognized by the thoughtful observer. The war has demonstrated the existence throughout Canada of vast reserve powers of righteousness and love and has proved that they can be summoned and marshalled on behalf of an enterprise that kindles the imagination, grips the heart, and rouses the determination of the people. There is evidently an enlightened and sensitive public moral consciousness which is of greater value to our country than all the wealth with which the Creator has stored its land and water. Only too numerous and scandalous, it is true, are the instances of unscrupulous and treasonable conduct which recently have been brought to light through our courts and commissions. But the very thoroughness with which all such proceedings have been condemned and their agents repudiated, and the universal and insistent demand for radical action in other cases of a like nature, gives ground for the conviction that the old virtues of truth and honor are securely enthroned in our midst. And more particularly may be noted the extraordinary display during the war of that mutual kindness which underlies all higher phases of social evolution, and is essential to national fitness. The shock of combat with our cruel and mighty foe has released a flood of sympathy and good-will that has cleansed and fertilized our land and prepared the soil for rich harvests in the days to come.

Naturally, therefore, we are looking for a greater Canada henceforth: not as regards territory, nor primarily in growth of population, nor increase of material development, but greater in quality of spirit and expression of life. And we are sure that such a hope will be abundantly realized, provided that these ethical powers and this moral passion be conserved and augmented, and enlisted for national progress after the war. Especially must this "furing kindliness," now so much in evidence, become even more general and active; for the strain and irritation of the readjusting process when normal times return will be severe and dangerous. Many of the forces now working together for the winning of the war will afterward become again antagonistic and divisive, and there will be an imperative need for that kindness and forbearance which are indispensable to national unification in thought and action. Our genuine social upbuilders will be those who strive with energy to bring Canadians together in larger bodies of mutual appreciation and good-will, and so extend the reach and increase the effectiveness of kindly feeling. And any proposal merits our cordial support which will promote closer fusion of minds and more mingling of emotions with fellowship, aiding in the welding of an entire people into a moral unity.

One such proposal is that which would merge the Methodist, Congregational and Presbyterian Churches into the United Church of Canada. No one would pretend that this union of churches would furnish the key to millennial conditions. A change in ecclesiastical organization, on however large a scale, could not insure a higher type of national character and life. But such action taken by more than half a million of our adult citizens would have a very great effect for good upon themselves as Canadians, and would make it easier for other union movements to come to maturity. The tendency to-day is toward greater simplicity and flexibility of structure in every province of life, and toward united emphasis upon the essentials held in common in every department of thought and belief. Let this trend of sentiment and conviction find expression in the calling into existence of one great Church to take the place of three lesser bodies, and it will be seen that sometimes the whole is greater than the sum of all its parts.

Should these hundreds of thousands of our church members take this step, they would in so doing lay upon the altar of true patriotism the sacrifice of inherited customs, tender associations, deep-rooted preferences and cherished opinions. Such a sacrifice would be costly and hard to make, but the reaction upon those who offered it would be most wholesome. In losing their denominational life for the sake of others they would find a larger and more worthy life of usefulness and power. They would give to the nation also a manifestation of good-will in action that would greatly facilitate the increase of friendliness and the growth of kindness. The scientific discoveries of last century have made the world a neighborhood; the religious spirit of this century must make it a brotherhood. One of the first requisites is the subordination of organization to life, and willingness to give up what is not essential so that the institution may render the largest possible service to the people for whom it exists. This is what Church Union would involve; and Christian spirit and religious life of Canada would be purified and energized by this display of genuine magnanimity and downright moral earnestness. For a greater Canada we need a greater Church.

NEW GUN MONSTERS.

PARIS, March 18. — The thunders of the allies' newest and largest guns have been audible in Paris during the past six weeks, but it has been only within the last few days since there has been artillery activity near Soissons that the detonations have been clearly heard. The air concussion, plainly felt at the discharge of the largest pieces, indicates that they are of greater calibre than any before fired, but the secret is being jealously guarded. The distance from Soissons to Paris is 50 miles, while it is 80 miles from Paris to the Somme, and 130 to Verdun.

THE CITY BERNSTORFF MISSED

(1) A Water Carnival.
(2) Dry Dock, Halifax, N.S.

COUNT VON BERNSTORFF and his party stayed longer in Halifax than they would have wished, and saw less of the town than any other tourists on record. For while the neutral passengers on board the "Frederick VIII" were allowed to promenade on deck, the German passengers, deprived of their hundreds of suits of pyjamas and their thousands of phonographic records, were condemned to gaze at each other in wrath, or stare Halifaxward at the dock wall through a mere porthole!

And this despite the fact that some of the very best of the original settlers at Halifax were Germans—born to be sure before the Kaiseristic taint had entered the good old Teutonic blood.

Halifax from the harbor looks like a long grandstand rising tier on tier, crowned tier with the fort at the top gazing out over the immense circle of unspotted water where the whole British Navy could take shelter if it wanted to. When a consignment of Canadian troops is due to start for the sub-endangered trip across the Atlantic, cruisers, destroyers and submersibles hover like grey clouds over the white sea, and the visitor who isn't thrilled with the sight of so much potential hell must have bilge water in his veins in place of blood.

But there was no such commotion in the harbor or on the land when Colonel the Honorable Edward Cornwallis arrived with his fluttered little fleet chaperoned by the sloop of war "Sphinx," in the summer of 1749. Nothing was to be seen but "a range of low hills with an unbroken forest that grew to the shore."

Halifax is none of your war-baby cities, born of chance and the spirit of adventure. Halifax came into the world fathered by the Lords Commissioners of Trade and Plantations because the fair Boston to the south wanted a stable guardian to protect her from the French of Quebec, who were uncannily able to raise fleets, punitive expeditions, Indian insurrections and Cain generally.

The Earl of Halifax, at the head of the Lords Commissioners, who o.k.'d the request from Massachusetts, imbibed from it some latent American spirit we must suppose, for to produce his city he immediately anticipated by a hundred and fifty years the method of the beer that made Milwaukee famous and the car that saved Hy. Ford from oblivion—he advertised.

London newspapers carried his propaganda somewhat after this fashion. Halifax had a grand situation but she had no settlers. She must have 'em to match. Wherefore, to any private of any regiment disbanded since the recent French wars, the Government promised free passage, free grant of land of fifty acres, freedom from taxes for ten years; free arms, agricultural, fishing and building implements and free food for twelve months. To any officer above the rank of captain the land grant swelled to six hundred acres, with additional grants for every member of his aristocratic family that he could induce to follow him.

In two months' time 2,576 adventurers had signed on—men, women, children and suffragettes—thirteen transportsful of heroines. It took them a month to reach Nova Scotia, but the day they landed they got to work to turn the forest into log cabins and the situation into a city. Timbers and boards for the most pretentious buildings were brought from Massachusetts.

From Boston in the following year came the framework of St. Paul's Church, that staunch colonial meeting house which still gazes haughtily across the Parade at its upstart neighbors. George II contributed the edifice to his new colony, to which shortly afterward he sent five hundred of his German cousins—Hessians and Brunswickers—some of whom built the town of Lunenburg, while others settled in Halifax itself, putting up a church of their own which still stands, showing what careful carpenters these ex-soldiers could become when their Lutheran hearts were in the work. The visitor who is interested in the Halifax Dockyard will pass the little "Dutch" church a couple of blocks to the west, with its graveyard beside it. An awesome bit of history is the fact that three successive pastors sent to the Halifax Lutherans from Hanover were all wrecked and drowned during the voyage! It surely speaks volumes for old-time German heroism and devotedness—of the pre-and-anti Bernstorff type—that a fourth minister was found intrepid enough to volunteer—and lucky enough to arrive.

The Northwest Arm was a favorite resort of the early settlers, who were as fond of merry making as the present Haligonians, despite the fact that in those grey-homespun times they could put on no such colorful spectacles as are achieved by the Waegwoltic Club of to-day on carnival occasions. But the fishing was as good, we may be sure, then as now, and the bathing has always rivalled that of the famous Annapolis Basin. In the old days the mouth of this pleasureful "Arm" used to be closed by a huge chain cable, lest a hostile ship should slip in like a shark and disturb the merrymakers.

If Bernstorff had been allowed off his boat he would undoubtedly have liked to drive out to the picturesque Quinpool Road to "Dutch village," built by his countrymen of the pre-decadent period. Here lived two naturalists who instituted the first Zoo in America—sixteen years ahead of Central Park. A short drive across country would have brought the Ambassador to Bedford Basin where, if there had been no Treitschke and no war, he would doubtless have been entertained by all the yachtsmen of the jolly summer colony.

Finally, if the cast-off Count had been of the old-time German worth, he would doubtless have taken the Dominion Atlantic Railroad line to the township of Clements, in the beautiful apple-blossomed Annapolis Valley, between Old Port Royal and Digby, where, at the close of the Revolutionary War, Dutch-speaking Loyalists from New York and New Jersey were given shore lots, with two parallel lines of German settlers behind them, still known respectively as the Waldeck Line and the Hessian Line. These old soldiers turned out to be excellent peace-time settlers. Although they met at the English Church before service to sing their German hymns, they always stayed to listen reverently to a sermon in the tongue of their adopted brothers, the English.

ascertained, the Rev. Mrs. Barr stands alone in this particular phase of religious work. An amazing thing is brought to light in that the Rev. Mrs. Barr holds a Sunday afternoon "men only" meeting in each city where she campaigns. She is a member of the Western yearly meeting of the Society of Friends. This is her second year of endeavor in the evangelistic field, and her fruits have been unparalleled. She has recently been conducting meetings in Indianapolis and will soon start a campaign in St. Louis under the supervision of the Women's federation of that city. Mrs. Barr has been a Friends minister, having held various charges in the yearly meeting for the past fifteen years.

WEAK FROM GRIPPE

Ottawa Woman Tells How She Restored Her Strength

Ottawa, Ont. Last winter both my husband and myself had a bad attack of La Grippe, and it left us run-down, with no appetite and no strength, and my husband had a bad cough. We tried Emulsions of Cod Liver Oil and other remedies without getting any better. Finally one day a friend told my husband about Vinol. He got a bottle right away and it proved to be just the medicine we needed to build us up and restore our strength." Mrs. John Shaw.

The reason Vinol was so successful in building up Mrs. Shaw's health is because it is a constitutional remedy which contains beef and cod liver peptones, iron and manganese peptonates and glycerophosphates, all combined in a delicious tonic wine.

We wish every person in Peterborough who is suffering from a weakened, run-down devitalized condition, would try Vinol on our guarantee to return their money if it fails to benefit them. McDermid & Jury, Druggists; E. L. Payne, Peterborough. Also at the best druggist in all Ontario towns.

striped black and white corduroy, the gaudy pockets being cut horizontally, with diagonal lids. The belt takes three novelty black and white buttons.

ABOUT VEILS.

Up to Date Notes About This Feminine Accessory.

There seems to be a new fad in veilings almost every week. At least there is some novelty veiling displayed in the shops, whether it "takes" in the popular fancy or not.

For one thing, there is oriental veiling, sold by the yard. It is made with a plain, thin mesh at the top, and the lower half is a heavy figured mesh. Supposedly the heavy mesh covers the lower part of the face and the thin mesh covers the eyes.

Then there are tea veils—tiny veils, semicircular in shape—that cover the eyes and leave the mouth uncovered so that one could drink tea while wearing such a veil, if need be. These come in various meshes, with border or all over designs. They are also made in lace.

Striped chiffon for automobile veils is a novelty. It is, of course, in keeping with all things in awning stripes. In pale violet and white it is especially pretty.

Touring veil is the name applied to the chiffon automobile veil with an inset of isinglass to cover the face. These veils are comfortable to wear on a long and dusty trip. There are holes for ventilation; but, even so, they are a bit warm. However, compared to the dust and wind sometimes encountered on a long motor trip, the warmth and security behind the isinglass are welcome.

Chenille dots, big ones, decorate a veil with square mesh that is very smart in appearance. The dots form a border design.

Round veils of lace that are spread over the entire hat, to fall in daring ripples about the face, are much worn this summer. They are useless, of course, in keeping stray locks in place or adding to the general neatness of the appearance. But they help produce the flaring silhouette and are considered smart.

The woman who wishes a veil to keep the hair in place does well to buy veiling by the yard, in taupe, dull blue, violet, brown or black, with fine mesh and a loose all over design or a simple border.

Table Covers.

Chintzes and French cretonnes come in charming colors and in odd conventional designs. When squares or runners of these materials are bound in heavy gold galloon, no smarter effect could be asked for. Strips and squares of heavy crash bound with linen of a plain color or with a linen border buttonholed on are practical and good looking for camp or bungalow verandas.

The blue and white Japanese toweling is fresh looking and equally serviceable for summer table covers. The blue and white or red and white barred linen toweling, when finished with a white cotton fringe, makes smart covers for wicker tables when out of door teas and luncheons are served.

Burlap For Stove.

A piece of burlap is good for polishing the kitchen stove or range. It does not burn readily and for that reason is better than flannel or cotton cloth as mesne.

PROHIBITION IN MANITOBA.

Interesting Figures After Being Dry Seven Months.

Although Manitoba has been "dry" only since June 1, drunkenness in the province decreased 87 per cent., as compared with 1915, according to the official reports from the police court records. The statistics for 1916 closed on December 30, and police and prohibition officials agree that, owing to rigid temperance laws and rigid enforcement, there was a huge decrease in crime. There were only 631 convictions for crime in Manitoba in 1916, as against 927 for 1915.

There are five judicial districts in the province. The following are detailed figures of commitments to jail secured in each district for 1916 and 1915:

	1905.	1906.
Winnipeg	573	471
Brandon	206	65
Minnedosa	32	21
Portage la Prairie ..	111	58
Morden	15	7

There are 24 criminals in the Portage la Prairie jail at present. Of these 16 come from far northern Manitoba, which is being formed into the northern or Dauphin judicial district. Only 8 are from the central or Portage section. Another interesting fact in connection with the report is that during 1915, in Carberry, there were 34 convictions for various crimes. Since the Temperance Act came into force in Manitoba, there have been none.

In 1915 and up to the time that prohibition shut out the bars of the province, there were 3,176 drunk or drunk-and-disorderly convictions in the eastern judicial district. Since then there have been only 419. In Brandon district, for the same periods, the figures are 423 and 46; in Portage, 205 and 23, and in St. Boniface, 132 and 6, or totals for the cities of the province of 3,937 and 494. There was only one conviction for drunkenness in St. Boniface during the past four months.

There were 214 persons convicted for selling liquor in the province since June 1, 1916, as far as the records of the provincial liquor license department show. Of these 107 passed through the city police court in Winnipeg.

Prohibition has reduced drunkenness in Manitoba more than 86 per cent. during the half year the Macdonald Act has been in operation, according to a statement by J. N. McLean, chief inspector of the provincial liquor license department.

Mr. MacLean bases his assertion on official figures for Brandon during the half-year period the prohibition law has been in force. Since June 1 there have been only 46 cases of drunkenness in the second city of the province, as compared with 455 cases from January 1 to June 1, 1916.

"These figures are typical of the entire province," said Mr. MacLean.

"The Macdonald Act has had a remarkable effect on sobriety in Manitoba," said Mr. MacLean. "A year ago drunkenness was common. Today it is exceptional, at least the public evidence of it is lacking."

The biggest effect of the Macdonald Act, in the opinion of Mr. MacLean, has been in entirely abolishing the "treating system." "A man may drink as much as he likes in his own home now," said the chief license inspector, "but there is no public drinking at bars, and no crowds of 'drunks' collecting in the jail cells. The abolition of treating has reduced drunkenness to the minimum.

"That was the purpose of the law. If absolutely prohibition had been wanted, such a law would have been passed. The greatest menace of liquor to the public has been removed, and the general moral tone of the province has been uplifted."

Can Replace Picture.

Senator Boyer recently gave out a piece of news that will be very welcome to Canadians who prize our national relics. One of the serious losses sustained by Canada in the burning of the Parliament House was the destruction of the picture of the Confederation conference which hung in the Railway Committee Room. The canvas showed all the figures who had finally brought to consummation the federation pact; each of the persons was represented by a true portrait. The canvas was destroyed and could never be restored, but the National Advisory Art Council has secured from Mr. Harris, the artist who painted the picture, the original drawings from which he painted the group. In the drawings, as in the picture, each of the fathers of Confederation is represented by a true portrait. The artist is too far advanced in years to paint another group, and it has not been thought advisable to have the work done from the drawings by another hand; but it is a consolation to know that the original drawings are now the property of Canada.

Dinosaur Bones Lost.

Two skeletons of the duckbilled Dinosaur were lost to science with the sinking recently by a German raider of the ship Mount Temple, according to Charles H. Sternberg, who found the bones in the Red Deer country in Alberta. The prehistoric specimens were 32 feet long, and were being sent to the British Museum in London. They filled 22 boxes and weighed 20,000 pounds.

His Advantage.

The second officer of the brig was in the act of upbraiding the able seaman, Aaron Tappin, for his weakness for rum. Said the second officer:

"Tappin, you might have been a second officer, like me, instead of a sailor before the mast."

"Stow that stuff," answered the able seaman. "When I'm drunk I'm an admiral."—London Opinion.

War On Weeds To Be Continued

8. To spray thoroughly, with a good pressure. In order to spray thoroughly with an ordinary broadcast attachment, it is necessary to keep the horses walking very slowly. If this attempt is made to cover the ground quickly some of the plants will be missed and the results will not be entirely satisfactory.

3. In regard to the cost of spraying with iron sulphate it was found that the cost of material per acre varied from $1.00 to $2.40 per cwt., so that it now costs from $2.50 to $3.50 per acre for material to spray mustard.

Will be Continued.

These cooperative experiments in weed eradication will be continued this year (1917) and it is hoped that a large number of men will take part in them in order that sufficient information may be gathered to warrant definite statements being made in regard to the best methods for controlling these pernicious weeds. The experiments for 1917 are as follows:

1. The use of rape in the destruction of perennial sow thistle.
2. A system of intensive cropping and cultivation, using winter rye followed by turnips, rape or buckwheat, for eradicating perennial sow thistle.
3. The use of rape in the destruction of twitch grass.
4. A method of cultivation and cropping for the destruction of twitch grass.
5. A method for the eradication of bladder campion or cow bell.
6. Spraying with iron sulphate to destroy mustard in cereal crops.
7. A method of cultivation and cropping for the destruction of oxeye daisy.
8. A method of cultivation and cropping for the suppression of Field Bindweed or Mild Morning Glory. (Requires two years to complete).
9. A method of cultivation and cropping for the eradication of wild oats. (Requires two years to complete).
10. A methdo of cultivation for the destruction of Chess.

Those who are troubled with any of these bad weeds are invited to write to the Director of Cooperative Experiments in Weed Eradication, Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph Ont. He will be glad to furnish full information concerning these experiments and to supply application blanks for the same. All experimenters will be supplied with full and detailed instructions for carrying out the experiments selected, and with blank forms on which to report the results of the same. All interested in clean farming are asked to cooperate in this work. Address all communications to J. W. Howitt, Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph.

EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE

GIRL'S PLAITED DRESS.

By Anabel Worthington.

8125

A little lady following in her mother's footsteps could hardly ask for more than yokes, box plaits and the panel effect front and back in her new dress. In the model illustrated these features are successfully blended.

To give diversity in the styles for growing girls the designers vary the detail touches, but keep steadfastly to the simple lines that are so decidedly girlish. In the dress pictured the yokes are cut rather deep, joined to the fronts and back, in each half of which a box plait has been introduced: the fulness is loosely belted in such a way as to leave the front in panel form. Satin, silk or bengaline for the collar, in a shade that will harmonize with the general tone of the dress, will be appropriate, and the sleeve cuffs and belt should be trimmed to match. The button decoration is new and pretty, but one may give time to embroidering the frock in silk or wool threads to advantage. This decoration will be suitable if the frock is made up in velveteen, serge, wool poplin or similar fabric. For a small girl who just plays, wash materials may be considered, with contrasting color goods to trim. If you like the things you make yourself you quires 3¾ yards 36 inch material and ¾ will welcome such a neat little model as yard contrasting goods.

To obtain the pattern send [illegible] to this office.

The dress pattern, No. 8,125, cuts in sizes 4-10 years. To make in size 8 requires 3¾ yards 36 inch material and ¾ yard contrasting goods.

TURKISH TROOPS IN RETREAT BEFORE ADVANCE OF RUSSIANS

Harunabad Occupied by the Russians and Turks are Retiring---No Lives Lost or Damage Done by Last German Zeppelin Raid---British Destroyer is Sunk in the Channel and a Second British Vessel Torpedoed But Not Seriously Damaged—Women and Children in Monaster Killed by Enemy Bombardment

A SUMMARY OF TO-DAY'S WAR CABLES

PETROGRAD, March 19.—The Turks are retreating before the advance of Russian forces, the official statement regarding operations in the south to-day stated. Russian forces have occupied Harunabad. The Turks were dislodged south of Bana and are retiring towards Penashevin.

LONDON, March 19.—It was officially announced in the Commons to-day that no lives were lost and no damage done when German Zeppelins bombarded the English coast. British aeroplanes forced the Zeppelins to change to a southward course, causing one to be destroyed over France.

LONDON, March 19.—German destroyers sank a British destroyer in the Straits of Dover yesterday morning and torpedoed a second British destroyer, according to an Admiralty statement issued this afternoon. The latter British warship was not seriously damaged.

A strong German flotilla was attempting to enter the English Channel to attack transports when intercepted by a British destroyer patrol and driven back to German waters.

LONDON, March 19.—Many women and children in Monastir were killed during the night in a bombardment of the city by enemy artillery hurling gas filled shells.

The granting of complete citizenship to all Jews was corroborated in despatches to-day.

LONDON, March 19.—Characterizing the Russian revolution as "one of the landmarks in the history of the world," Premier Lloyd George announced in the House of Commons to-day that the form of the resolution which England should send to the Duma re new government, would be discussed Thursday. The Prime Minister said, however, that the information does not indicate that all danger in Russia is past.

"I am confident," Premier Lloyd George declared, "that Russian events, which are first a triumph of the principles for which we entered the war, will not result in confusion or in a slackening of the conduct of the war, but on the other hand, will make closer and more effective the co-operation of the Russians with the Allies in the cause of human freedom."

Members of the House of Commons cheered voiciferously when the Premier declared that the Russian soldiers had refused to obey the orders of the imperial officials to shoot down the food rioters.

PARIS, March 19.—One hundred towns and villages have been occupied by French troops in the last three days of advance on the western front, an official statement to-day asserted.

BERLIN, March 19.—"During the last few days a strip of land between the district of Arras and the Aisne has been systematically evacuated by us," declared to-day's official statement. "Strategic movements prepared long ago were carried out, without our being disturbed by the enemy, who follow only in a hesitating manner."

GREAT DAYS FOR THE ALLIES.

Despatches published yesterday announce:

At Bapaume and several other points the German rearguards offered desperate resistance. The foe systematically ransacked several towns before their retirement and destroyed many houses. They also set fire to a number of villages.

Advances by the British in France on a front of 45 miles to a depth in some places of ten miles, and the occupation of 63 towns and villages. The advance covers an area from a point south of Arras to Neale.

Advances by the French on a front of 37 miles to a depth of twelve miles, from Neale, where they joined hands with the British, to Noyon, and the capture of a number of towns and villages.

London despatches figure the area retaken by the Allies at from 400 to 600 square miles. The retreat continues.

Both the British and French are using cavalry as well as infantry in the pursuit of the retreating Germans.

General Maude's forces have reached a point 75 miles north of Bagdad, having routed the Turks, who attempted a stand.

The Russians have taken Van, in Armenia, and a number of places in Persia, and are driving on to link up with the British.

Berlin admits that north of Monastir, in Macedonia, the British have occupied Poroy station.

The Russian Foreign Minister, in a message to the Allied nations, declares that his Government will devote all its energies to preparation of victory.

It is announced that three American ships are reported to have been torpedoed without warning, and some members of their crews are missing. Unofficial opinion in Washington holds that a state of war now exists between the United States and Germany.

SIX HUNDRED AND TWENTY SQUARE MILES REDEEMED.

PARIS, March 19.—Later despatches from the front indicate that a total of 620 square miles of territory have been redeemed by the British and French during the last few days.

Guiscard has been occupied and such important highways as the national road to St. Quentin are now fully in control of the Allies.

BIG PRODUCTION CAMPAIGN GROWS DAILY IN VOLUME

City Assessor is Looking Up List of Available Lots—Y.M.C.A. Boy's Camp Will be Located on the River and Boys Will Cultivate the Land

SATURDAY'S MEETING

The thing looks as if were going to be practical. That is, this Greater Production movement. The more we keep the name up, and respect the endeavour that is being made, the more will men come into the service, both for themselves and the example it will set to others. There are those who will follow a lead. There are are a lot who will take a hand if they think they are to be allied with a success. So the best thing to do is to have all hands embued with the idea that the movement is going to do some real and practical good. That depends on individual effort.

The meeting on Saturday night was hopefully inclined and somewhat enthused. There were members of the Finance Committee of the Council, several members of the Council of Labour interests, and a sprinkling of just plain people, without titles or emoluments. But all had the same thought to push the work along. That is what concerted effort means. Pulling together.

Certain portions of lands that had been listed in the last few days were tabled. That is laid out for mental inspection. The pile melted, for Mr. Meserve of the Y.M.C.A. Boys' Forward Intensive Agricultural Development Movement, or some such title, reached over and snaked eight acres off the top of the pile. Said he wanted it for purposes, which he explained. The committee suffered the taking because of the adage that the end justifies the means. And it means just this.

The summer camp of the Y. M. C. A. boys will now be held on the property donated for use by Mr. W. Harper of Lakefield. The block is at the river, below Crawford's Grove. Mr. Meserve and his accomplices had been looking for a water lot, where the boys could recreate in the way of aquatics and swims. The block of land will be spaced off, a plot allotted to each boy, a competition instituted, and practical instruction given in the matter of gardening and production. Then in the fall, when the results are known, there will be a Fall Fair and certain prizes. So the camp will be one of useful instruction.

Further than this is being done. Mr. Henry, the Assessor, who knows all about properties, and lots, and pieces of ground that would be good to cultivate, and which are vacant, is preparing lists of such pieces, along certain streets. Many of the places are owned by non-residents. These will be written to and asked for permission to make use of the Railway Companies Agree to Put in Operation the Eight Hour Day With a Ten Hour Pay Basis and Pro-Rata Pay For Overtime

13 MILLIONS BACK PAY

(SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER)

NEW YORK CITY, March 19.—The railway managers' agreement with the Brotherhood to-day to put into operation the eight hour day, on a ten hour pay basis, with pro-rata pay for overtime, means approximately one million dollars a week added to the payrolls of the railroads. Thirteen million dollars extra back pay, dating from January 1, when the Adamson law was to have become effective, will be distributed among the four hundred thousand trainmen.

WASHINGTON, March 19.—The Adamson eight hour law is valid. This was the ruling of the United States' Supreme Court to-day. Chief Justice White read the decision, which declared constitutional the law passed under spectacular circumstances in the closing hours of last summer's Congress session.

SHAMROCK TAG DAY PROCEEDS $975 NEARLY $100 MORE THAN 1916

Saturday's Shamrock Tag Day in aid of St. Vincent's Orphanage produced $944.13, practically an increase of $100 over last year's collection of $849.98.

The ladies' committee who have had charge of the work, wish to thank the citizens for the kindly manner in which they were received and for their generous contributions; also the street railway officials for permitting the collectors to ride free.

At the Church of the Sacred Heart on Sunday morning, Bishop OBrien referred to the tag day receipts. He paid a tribute to the ladies who had braved the weather for the cause of the orphans and spoke of the liberality of the citizens, and especially desired to acknowledge the contributions of non-Catholic friends. The city had been called upon for large donations to patriotic funds, to which they had given generously. The citizens apparently had a warm place in their hearts for the orphans who were cared for in the two local institutions.

THE ALLIES SWEEP FORWARD ON A FRONT OF NEARLY 90 MILES

THE GLORIOUS NEWS FROM THE WEST FRONT

The big news from the western theatre of war is the clearing out of the Germans from the Arras and Noyon salients on the British and French sections. The advance was along afront of eighty-two miles, and reached a maximum depth of twelve miles. The Allied western front now runs through Arras, Achiet-le-Grand, Bapaume, Le Transloy, Peronne, Nesles and Noyon. This latest withdrawal by the Germans surrenders to the Allies nearly five hundred square miles of territory, extending from Arras to the Oise River. The Allied advance continues. At some points the British gained ten miles, while within the Noyon salient the French pushed forward over twelve miles. Joining forces, British and French together entered the town of Nesles, where the people turned out to cheer them as they marched through the battered streets.

British Take Peronne, Bapaume and Sixty Villages, Advancing Ten Miles on 45 Mile Front While French Forge Ahead on a Front of Thirty Seven Miles

NOYON ON CAPTURED LIST

WAR CORRESPONDENTS' HEADQUARTERS, Sunday. — Today our troops entered Peronne. Standing a' 'e that statement would be sensatio. l enough. The French fought for Peronne desperately, through more than two years of war, and now it is the luck of British troops to enter it, as yesterday we entered Bapaume after a short action with the enemy's rear guards; but the news does not stand alone. The whole of the old German line south of Arras, as strong as one vast fortress, and built by the labour of millions, dug and tunneled, and cemented and timbered, with thousands of machine guns, redoubts with an immense maze of trenches protected by forests of barbed wire, had slipped away as though by a landslide, and the enemy is in rapid retreat to new lines many miles away.

Enemy Applies Torches.

As the enemy goes he is laying fire and waste to the countryside north-east of Bapaume, into which we went yesterday with our troops, and east of Peronne scores of villages are burning. One of them, larger than a village, the town of Athels, is a flaming torch visible for miles around. Others are smouldering ruins from which volumes of smoke are rolling up into the clear blue sky. In all of the great track of France which the enemy has been forced to abandon to avoid the menace of a combined attack there is no beauty left and no homesteads nor farms, but only black ruins and devastation everywhere.

Poisoning the Wells.

The enemy is adopting the full cruelty of war's malignancy. He poisoned the wells in his wake, so that if our soldiers or horses should drink there they would die. This was first discovered at Barleux, where the water tested yesterday after the German retreat was found to be full of arsenic. Other wells have been found treated in the same way. Over the waterways he has burnt his bridges. The cross-roads have been mined, opening up enormous craters like those I saw yesterday outside of Bapaume. High explosive traps have been placed in the way of our patrols to scatter them in fragments if they lack any caution.

Allied Cavalry Is Busy.

Patrick Tobin of the 93rd came back to Canada on the same boat. He was orderly to Lt.-Col. Johnston.

No details have been received by local militia officers in regard to the new scheme of raising an army for home service in Canada, which was announced by the Minister of Militia on Saturday. It is presumed that the 57th regiment will be among those in the district who will be called upon to raise a battalion for home defence.

Among the casualties listed to-day from Ottawa is No. 220514, Pte. W. H. Heard of Peterborough, who is reported wounded. Pte. Heard went overseas with the 80th Battalion.

PTE. BRADLEY WOUNDED

OTTAWA, March 19.—Recruiting for the first two weeks of the month of March shows a falling away of 870, as compared with the last two weeks of February. The total since the beginning of the war is now 403,913. Enlistment of Ontario districts for the fortnight were as follows: London, 300; oronto, 525; Ottawa and Kingston, 373; Montreal contributed 234.

ON VERGE OF WAR NOW

First Meeting of An Armed American Vessel and a U-Boat Will Mark Opening of Actual Hostilities

Special to The Examiner:

WASHINGTON, March 19. — The United States and Germany are on the verge of open hostilities.

With a virtual state of war existing as a result of the ruthless sinking by German submarines of three American freighters, with part of their crews, it is now believed inevitable that the first meeting between an armed American merchant vessel and a U boat will mark the opening of actual hostilities. The Kaiser has forced this government into a state of war.

President Wilson and his cabinet are meeting this afternoon to consider what the next move of the United States shall be.

"Peterborough Presents Possibilities Unsurpassed."

MONDAY, MARCH 19, 1917

A LOSS TO PETERBOROUGH.

Rev. T. H. Mitchell, interim pastor of St. Andrew's Church, preached his last sermon in Peterborough, last night, and will leave the city during the week to assume the pastorate of "old St. Andrew's," Toronto—a worthy successor of the most brilliant men of the Presbyterian Church, who have been its incumbents. It is no mere fashion of speech to say that Mr. Mitchell's departure is a large loss to the church life and citizen life of Peterborough. As a minister, as a preacher, he is a big man—one of the biggest in the Presbyterian communion to-day. His sermons are full of deep thought, conveyed, however, in language that appeals to the simplest as a stimulus to the mind and a refreshment to the soul. As a man he is quiet and unassuming, genial and alluring in personality. He personifies in his social relations the injunction of St. Paul—courtesy to all men. During his ten months in Peterborough he has won hearts in the pulpit, in the home, in the street; and just as the public was learning to fully appreciate his exceptional worth, circumstances deprive Peterborough of the presence of an outstanding figure and wholesome and benign influence in church and social and citizen life. He leaves large, reverent, and tender memories in Peterborough, and carries with him the best wishes and prayers of a community that will not forget him and his worth.

THE PENNY BANK SYSTEM.

The address upon the subject of Penny Banks in schools, given by Mr. MacKenzie, on Friday evening, was remarkable for two things—for its simplicity and self-evident logic, and for the small attendance. There was one solitary member of the School Board present, except the chairman, and a few teachers.

These conditions argue a lack of interest in the highest interest of education and indicate that reform is as greatly antagonized—passively, perhaps, but effectively—in Peterborough as it was antagonized in Petrograd by the most obstinate and obdurate Romanoff of them all. But reform in Russia won the day, as it will in time do in Peterborough.

That will be when and after our Board of Education and our provincial educational authorities, shall have got over the habit that Lord Shaughnessy in a recent speech condemns. He says, as to one of the chief causes of the slowness of national progress:

> "We must get out of ruts. We do our thinking in ruts, and that keeps us acting in ruts."

Penny Banks introduced in our schools would be an innovation—getting out of the rut—and that is why progress towards its adoption is slow.

Mr. MacKenzie described it, as The Examiner has done before, as an important educational element of a school curriculum. Education consists in expanding, moulding and developing the mind—implanting principles, not cramming with facts. He says, and says truly, that we implant principles in the child's mind—principles of saving and of thrift, of efficiency, that will influence his whole life, we make him or her a valuable and patriotic member of society.

The principle of thrift, of the right conception of the use of money, as the right to purchase, has been, he pointed out, the salvation of England. When war caught her unprepared she was able to reach out her hands to every quarter of the world to draw to her the money the sinews of strength, her thrift had made available.

Our schools can easily be made the media of implanting in our people the principles of saving and thrift, the absolutely essential conditions of satisfying individual and national progress and development. Principle is the parent of purpose, and purpose animated and made effective by the right principle, contributes to accomplishment.

It is argued by those who cannot deny the benefit of the Penny Bank system, that it would take up a good deal of the teacher's time. Of course it would take some of a teacher's time; but other and less important subjects also take up time. That's what the teacher is there for. It would be just as logical to discard any subject of the school curriculum, because it takes up the teacher's time. This is a puerile objection. The teacher is employed in order to devote time to useful educational work, and certainly it would be no waste of time to give ten minutes a day, once in seven days, to implementing the most important educational training on the curriculum, from the point of view of equipping pupils to successfully fight the battle of life.

It is also weakly urged that there is no strong public demand for the establishment of the Penny Bank in our schools. The teaching of geography or grammar or other subjects were not put on the roster of school subjects in answer to strong public demand. Nor was compulsory attendance an answer to public demand. The good of the school and the good of the pupils are considered independently of public demand. All the public demand is discharge of educational duty, and the decision as to that rests with those responsible in the premises.

Financial experts like the Bankers' Association, approve of the the principle of the Penny Banks, as a capital influence in contributing to the financial strength of our people and through them of the country.

Some better excuse than disinclination to get out of the rut, or the waste of time in teaching one of the most important educational subjects, or the lack of public demand, will have to be provided, before our educationists can justify a failure to deal with the question of providing Penny Banks for our schools.

PROVINCIAL HIGHWAYS.

Provincial highways are a more important subject than even the Provincial highway that the government has decided to construct from Windsor eastward through the province. As to the desirability of this there is no question. As to giving it a somewhat exclusive place of prominence there is much question. Such a provincial highway from one end of the province to the other, is primarily in the interests of auto traffic, and as such serves only one, if one very important, interest. Its usefulness to the general public is only incidental and only available by an insignificant minority of the general public.

While there is no no objection to the fact of the government fathering and providing for the provincial highway, that seems to be only a small and limited part of the obligation of the government to promote the travelling interests of hte general public, through the constriction of highways. The Examiner has often pointed out that, important as trunk lines of highway are, the provision of a general system of good roads to serve the townships remoter from the front, is even more important, and promotive of public welfare. And members of the legislature in discussing the new provincial highways bill have insisted upon the same idea.

There is an insistent and laudable call upon the farmers of the country to greater production. The benefits from this increased production depend for their greatest measure of importance upon facilities for getting these products to market—facilities for their distribution. These facilities, these aids and incentives to greater production, consist chiefly in good highways.

It is true that we have an admirable system of government aid to good roads. But admirable as are its good results, they are greatly delayed, if not neutralized, by the permissive conditions of implementing the good roads policy. It seems that better results would come from the government assuming general oversight and construction of the highways of the province. Government construction of roads, as will be practised in the construction of the proposed provincial highway, can be more cheaply, more thoroughly and systematically done, than if the work were done by municipalities. We all know that the statute labour system of making good roads, in practice and application, virtually means making bad roads, and means a great waste of labour (even perfunctory labour) and a corresponding waste of money, with most unsatisfatcory and temporarily bad and ultimately doubtful, good results.

If the government in the true interests of a good road, assumes responsibility of constructing a provincial highway, why could it not assume responsibility for the construction of the whole highway system of the province, at least as far as leading township roads. The government now builds what are called "colonization roads." Why could it not extend the practice to embrace the roads in the longer settled parts of the province. There is great complaint over the wasteful, if not corrupt, expenditure of money on these colonization roads. Whether well founded or not these complaints would be silenced by turning over colonization roads and all the roads of the province to an independent High ways Commission, something of the sterling and effective character of the Hydro-Electric Commission.

This may seem to be a large proposal, but its principle granted and acted upon, its successful application is only a matter of detail. The Hydro-Electric system is a vast enterprise, but with a capable commission in charge, with effective organization, its infinity of details is worked out easily and satisfactorily. A scheme of provincializing the highways of Ontario, should present no greater, or more insurmountable difficulties than that of electricalizing the province, nd its advantages would be as great and widespread as the scheme itself.

In the first place, the construction and maintenance of highways would be reduced to a system— something which, being entirely lacking now, is responsible for waste of money and lack of results. The work, reduced to system, with the most ample necessary equipment, would be more cheaply and at the same time better done. The cost of good roads to the province would be based on a wholesale, instead of a retail, scale. The cost to the user of electricity supplied by the Hydro Commission, at a few dollars, would be impossibly increased if supplied by a small establishment or by the individual. Then, in such a scheme, a chief element would be fairness to all sections of the province, which is absent in both the proposed provincial highway and in the "good roads" system itself. The money of the whole people is used to pay a large prooprtion of the costs of these roads, from which nine-tenths of the people get no direct benefit and no indirect benefit proportional to the amount of their money that is expended.

Government control, through an independent commission— government construction of the highways of the province, energetically applied, would be a much greater provincial benefit than the Hydro-Electric. It is impracticable to extend the latter to every part of the province, whereas a provincial system of highways would reach every side line. With generally good highways established everywhere in the province, the settlement and cultivation of waste lands, now inaccessible, would be promoted; larger production would be encouraged, for the farmer being thus helped to get his produce to the market, would get better profits, and the wealth of the province, through production, would be immensely increased.

Temperance Reform in Canada

Our own land evidences perhaps more fully than any other the strength and universality of this growth of determination to embody sound principle in wise legislation. Outside the Dominion, there was a vote taken on Thursday last in Newfoundland on the question of total prohibition, and returns so far received indicate that the dry party won out by a very substantial majority. Looking at the Provinces of Canada in their geographical order beginning from the East, we find the following conditions, nearly all of which are the result of developments within the last few years.

Nova Scotia, through either Provincial prohibition or the Canada Temperance Act, has driven legalized liquor selling out of every part of the Province excepting the city of Halifax, in which there are forty-six licenses, and indications are that the law will soon be extended to include that centre as well.

New Brunswick has prohibition in ten of her fifteen counties, in two of three cities, and also in a number of smaller areas. The temperance movement is going on rapidly. The total number of licenses in the Province is only about 130, and it is expected that general prohibition will soon prevail.

Prince Edward Island has a provincial prohibitary law covering every part of it, making illegal any retail sale of intoxicating liquor except for certain permitted purposes and then only under very stringent regulation.

Quebec has a very comprehensive Local Option system, under which prohibition may be put into operation either by Municipal Councils, directly, or by popular voting. The great influence of the clergy is often thrown on the side of temperance legislation. The parish in Quebec is a municipal as well as an ecclesiastical unit. There are 1291 municipalities in the Province, and in only 291 of them are liquor licenses granted.

Ontario has a fine record. Despite the heavy handicap of the three-fifths requirement under which 100 bar-room favouring votes can defeat 149 votes against the bar-room, there has been won a splendid series of Local Option victories during the past ten years. Adding together the municipalities that have Local Option by-laws in operation, those in counties that have carried the Canada Temperance Act, and those in which for other reasons no licenses are granted there will be found a total of 555 under prohibition of all bar-rooms and licensed shop liquor-selling, and there are left only 292 municipalities in which licenses are in operation. On the first Monday in January voting will take place on Local Option and license reduction by-laws in forty-two places including eight cities and temperance workers are hopeful of winning victories in all of them.

Manitoba has a Local Option system under which more than half of the territory of the Province is free from licensed liquor selling. The present Government has announced its purpose to submit a law of total prohibition to the electors, and if a majority is polled in favour of it the law will be put into effect. Voting is expected to take place in March next with prospect of great success for the temperance cause.

Saskatchewan has provincial prohibition already, the only sale of liquor permitted being in some twenty-three Government dispensaries. These dispensaries may be closed by votes of the electors on the Local Option plan. Within a short period there will be a provincial vote taken on the question of the continuance of prohibition.

Alberta voted on a prohibitory law on the twenty-first day of July last, and the temperance party won by a majority of more than twenty thousand votes, polling in behalf of the proposed legislation fully sixty per cent. of the votes cast. It is only a matter of a short time till the legislature must make the approved law effective and this Province will be lined up with those under total prohibition.

British Columbia is the only province in which there has not yet been definite legislation for the suppression of the liquor traffic, either directly or through popular vote. The Government has, however, promised a referendum on a prohibition proposition, details of which have not yet been announced. There is a great tide of temperance sentiment along the Pacific Coast, and with a fair chance, the temperance voters of British Columbia will in all possibility be able to line up the great territory they control under the flag of prohibition, which it might almost be predicted will soon be world-wide in its jurisdiction.

THE MIDDLE WEST.

Can Any One Really Tell Just Where It Is Located?

The east retains a somewhat condescending attitude toward the middle west, and in its friendliest moments speaks of the plainsmen as "first rate raw material," as if the middle west existed and had somehow a local habitation and a name.

The middle west itself is by no means so sure about that. Although the prairies begin at Batavia, N. Y., Buffalonians resent being termed middle westerners. Omaha I should describe as unquestionably middle western, yet there are middle westerners who repudiate Nebraska and only tepidly accept Kansas, while St. Louis and Kansas City belong to the middle west according to some authorities, to the south according to others as vociferous.

By general consent Minnesota belongs to the northwest. However, if you go halfway from Portland, Me., to Portland, Ore., all of Minnesota lies behind you. In Chicago they say: "Why, man, alive, there's nothing western about us! This is the interior." A dear soul in Montana remarked to me: "How jolly to hear that you came from the east! I'm an easterner myself. I lived in Iowa."

Where, then, is the middle west? In the words of the immortal Artemus, I answer, "Nowhere—nor anywheres else."—Rollin Lynde Hartt in Century Magazine.

The Height of Trees.

When one is out for a walk it is a very common thing to wish to know the height of a particular tree which happens to catch the eye. When the sun is shining it is possible accurately to measure the height of the tree from the shadow it casts on the ground. In order to do so a stick must be set upright in the ground so that its shadow falls beside the shadow of the tree. Then, as the length of the stick's shadow to the stick's height, so is the length of the tree's shadow to the tree's height. For example, suppose a two and a half foot stick shows a shadow three feet long and the tree's shadow is eighteen feet long. Therefore the tree is six times as high as the stick, which shows that the height of the tree will be fifteen feet.

He Was Short.

Early one evening a frail little girl entered a candy store and asked for a cake of chocolate. After she had the candy she put four pennies on the counter and started out.

The storekeeper, though averse to frightening the little thing, called after her in a gentle voice:

"You're a penny short."

"No; you're a penny short," she called back as she disappeared.

Well Named.

"A wonderful man is my uncle," said little Binks, "so very original and witty."

He says he called his dog "Sausage" because it was half bread, his goat "Nearly" because it was "all butt" and his prize cockerel "Robinson" because it "Crusoe."—Exchange.

Canterbury As Seen By A Peterboro Soldier

Signaller Leo Copp Writes a Descriptive Letter Concerning a Visit to the Historic City of Canterbury—The City Is About the Size of Peterboro

Mrs. W. J. Copp 210 Antrim street, has received the following interesting letter from her son, Signaller Leo Copp, who is now in France:

Canterbury is practically the cradle of England, giving a setting for the earliest of England's religion, and for the lives of some of the most faithful of the founders of England's Christianity.

It is a city about the size of Peterboro, 56 miles from London and 18 miles from Shorncliffe. There is a great difference, however between Canterbury and most other cities of England, in that it is so ancient, and to meet the desire of the people, or commonality, as they are called, is to keep the city as nearly like its medieval stage as possible.

A charge of from tuppence to a shilling is made to visitors to the historic buildings, but fellows in khaki are usually admitted free.

The first place of interest we saw after leaving West Canterbury station was "Falstaff Inn." This inn, although lately rebuilt, still has the old "Falstaff metal-work sign" suspended over the street.

A little further on, going towards the heart of the city we came to Westgate, the former entrance to the old walled city. We were allowed to go to the top of one of the "towers" forming the gate, from where we obtained a fine view of the city and especially of the Cathedral. About half way down the tower a door led into a small room, guarded by a veteran soldier, and here we found all sorts of relics of early England. One of these was a metal arm piece which looked like a huge wristlet, and though it only weighed about three pounds it was a combination of a double barreled revolver and a spear head. The spear head was made ready for action by pressing a small spring with the other hand.

There must have been hundreds of "great persons" pass through this gate during its existence. Some of these were Henry II., William I., John, Edward I., The Black Prince, Geoffrey Chaucer, Henry V., Edward IV., Henry VII., Henry VIII., and almost all of the later monarchs of England.

Not far from the "Westgate" we wound through some alleys to the "remains of the Friary," used by the Grey Friars of England or the Brethren of Assisi, who landed in England in 1224 A.D. The "remains" are situated on a "wee" island surrounded by two branches of the River Stour, a stream about twenty feet wide and often not more than a foot deep. This is the only river which Canterbury can claim, and the people seem to be quite proud of it even if it does bring a laugh to us Canadians. However the stream is quite in harmony with its associations, the small, almost ruined Friary, partly hidden by other buildings, and partly by the ivy which clings to it, the tiny Friars' Bridge, of stone, consisting of tiny arches, and fringed along the top by a regular wicker-work of English shrubs and vines.

Is it surprising that Richard Lovelace, 1618, with such a view, perhaps remembering the prison-like Friary, should have written—

"Stone walls do not a prison make,
Nor iron bars a cage,
Minds innocent and quiet take,
That for a hermitage."

The next place we visited was, perhaps, the greatest of Canterbury's interests to us, the Canterbury Cathedral. Passing through Mercury Lane, the ancient colonade of Canterbury of Roman England, we came to Christ Church gate, the chief entrance to the Cathedral and Monastery grounds. This gate as well as the older part of the Cathedral, was built by King Ethelbert between 313 A.D. and 413 A.D., and although the stone looks very old it is still in a good state of preservation. Going inside the precincts or archway, we could see the grey stone Cathedral, just as the sun had gone down, which seemed to add to the beauty of the grand building. The first of importance to catch our attention were the tall towers; the Angel Tower towards the east end of the building, is 235 feet in height and the two towers manning the south west corners each 130 feet in height. Before going inside we walked part way round the building to get some idea of its size. We were later told by the verger that the building is 53 feet long. One side of the building can only be reached through the dark alley, within which are the Cloisters, Archbishop's house, the old Monastery ruins, the King's School, the Norman staircase, and the Mint yard. Each of these has a "story of its own." Coming back and entering the building through the south west door, we were escorted by a verger who acted as our guide. We first passed through the "Nave" or main part of the Cathedral, which is 187 feet long, 71 feet wide, and 79 feet high. Each side of the nave has about 12 pillars stretching for 79 feet to the ceiling.

From the nave we reached the choir or main worshipping section by ascending a broad flight of steps from either corner of the nave. The choir is screened from the nave by beautiful arches and small pillars and is 2 feet higher than the floor of the nave. The choir is 191 feet long, 87 feet wide and 71 feet high. In the choir is the very fine organ, with 8,000 pipes. The first organ ever heard in England was placed in Canterbury Cathedral in 600 A.D., by Archbishop Theodore.

Coming down from the choir we passed through the chancel into the square cloister enclosures, bordered along one side by the Archbishop's House, along another by the "Dark Alley," and along the other two by the Chancel and Cloister. It was from the Archbishop's House through the Cloister and in through the door of the Chancel that Thomas a Becket came just before his murder. Going back into the Chancel and standing around a small square stone, we were told the story of Becket's murder. At the time of Thomas a Becket, Henry II. was ruling in England and it was his aim to diminish the power of the church in England. To do this he must put a man who would side with himself at the head of the Church of England. Becket at this time was a great friend of King Henry, and quite a frivolous, pleasure loving man. So Henry placed Becket as archbishop of Canterbury to accomplish his ends. But to everyone's surprise, as soon as Becket became head of the church, he dropped his old life, and became a sober, righteous leader. Of course this made him practically an enemy of Henry, and in a fit of passion, caused by the remonstrance from the Archbishop concerning his marriage, Henry II. exclaimed: "Who will rid me of this man?" Henry's knights who were present supposed that he wanted Becket murdered. In consequence six knights went to the archbishop's house, and leaving their swords at the gate, went in and after a stormy interview with Becket, went back to get their swords. The monks, who guessed the intention of the knights, and fearing for Becket's safety, rushed him through the cloisters into the chancel and then barred the church door. Becket was ascending the stairs from the chancel to the choir, where evening vespers were being sung, when the knights returned to the chancel door through the other cloisters. The knights tried to force the door, but Becket hearing the noise, exclaimed that the house of God must not be made a castle, and ordered the door to be opened; while he descended to meet the six knights armed with their swords. The knights called to Becket that he was "traitor to his king." The reply was, "Thomas a Becket, but not traitor."

The knights then attempted to drag Becket from the chancel but it is said being a large man he laid the leading knight at full length upon the floor. Becket, over-powered, was then slashed with swords, and murdered at the foot of his own altar, the most sacred of places.

As proof of Henry's unconditional surrender to the then power of the church, no more conclusive proof would be necessary than the fact that Henry submitted to punishment by ashes from the monks, over Becket's tomb.

Leaving the chancel or Chapel of Martyrdom, formerly St. Benedict's Chapel, we went to the Warrior's Chapel. Here we find the tomb of Stephan Langton, who chapterized the English Bible, and later forced King John to sign the Magna Charta at Runnymede in 1215, the first clause of which stated that the church should be free. This chapel also contained a beautifully stained window dedicated to the heroes of the Crimean war, and a number of the flags of the Crimean regiments.

Alongside the tomb of Stephen Langton is the tomb of Admiral Booth who was in charge of the British at the capture of Gibraltar. In the centre was the tomb of Margaret Holland, 1439, but this tomb was covered with sand bags on account of air raids. We were told however that it was most beautifully mounted with gold and marble. From the Warriors' Chapel we were taken to the lower part of the Cathedral, the double crypt. Peering through the pillars in the dusk we could see Becket's "ghost." Later, on closer examination we found that this was a pillar with natural dark markings in the stone.

From the crypt we were led into Trinity Chapel where the tomb of Edward the Black Prince is placed. This wonderful tomb has been covered with sandbags and the armour which hung above has been covered in a section of the crypt.

Alongside of Trinity Chapel is the Hugenots' Chapel, where the Hugenots hold service every Sunday at 3 o'clock, while service is going on up in the Cathedral. Services have been held in this chapel for over 300 years. Opposite the door of the Hugenots' chapel is the Mortan's Morgue. The next chapel or section in the crypt is that of St. Gabriel, 1096, where Becket's tomb is situated, and where Henry II. did pennance, and received lashes from the monks, because of his part in the murder of Becket.

Looking over St. Gabriel's Chapel are two window-like alcoves where the monks took turns in watching over the tomb of Becket, who after his murder was made St. Thomas of Canterbury. In one end of this chapel is Becket's well which came within the walls of the Cathedral when the building was extended. From this well the pilgrims of Canterbury, spoken of in Chaucer's Canterbury Tales, drew water in their bottles, and Becket also used this (holy) water to perform the miracles attributed to him. By the use of a flashlight, we could see the water, still at high level in the well.

From the "later" or English Crypt under the western part of the Cathedral we passed to the earlier Norman Crypt. Looking down through the pillars we were attracted by the fine carvings on some of the pillars and capitals and the entire plainness of others. It is supposed that the work of carving was in progress in 1174 when the great cathedral fire occurred and that after that they were not completed because the style of architecture had changed. These pillars seem still more grand when we remember that all the carving up to the fire was by an axe. But these carvers worked, we are told, for the very love of beautifying the House of God.

In the Norman Crypt are the tombs of Lafranc, 1070, and Arnold, 1093. At the extreme west end is a wall built partly of the stone from the first Canterbury Cathedral, conferred by King Ethelbert upon St. Augustine, somewhere about 313 A.D.

After being privileged to see and touch such ancient and sacred objects in a church where services have been held for over 1500 years, and listen to the stories told by the verger, we left the southwest door feeling almost too serious to back into busy Mercury Lane. But we were sort of awakened by the sound of the Cathedral clock tolling five o'clock. To one who has never visited the Cathedral it is not possible to realize the almost sacred feeling as you leave the gate.

Leaving the Cathedral, we went to St. Augustine's Abbey and St. Augustine's College, where Christian students are educated.

From here we went through the north gate of the ancient city wall to St. Martin's Church, the oldest church in England. The exact date is not known but it is certain that King Ethelbert, King of Kent, was baptised here, and that St. Augustine held services here before the Cathedral was conferred upon him. The church is very small but nevertheless holds just as much interest as the Cathedral because it is the cradle of English Christianity. Divine service is still held here.

By this time it was quite dark and but for a very fine moon we would have had to leave Canterbury without seeing at least one more point of interest, the Dane John or Don John, which we reached by going to the cattle market, spoken of by Dickens, going up a steep incline and following along the parapet of the old city walls for a few hundred yards till we reached the mound built before the city walls, supposed as a means of defence. The top of the wall is surmounted by a large obelisk, and climbing to the top we were enabled by the moonlight to read the inscription in the marble. From the mound we could see faintly the cross in the Martyr's Field. The cross was erected in honour of those who were executed by Queen Mary for the cause of Protestantism.

Near the western end of the moat, surrounding the walls, we find the capstan of Nelson's flagship, the Fondroyant, and not far from the Riding Gate we see the "Invicta" locomotive, built by George Stephenson in 1821.

Going down a long lane lined with lime and elm trees we came out on the cattle market again, and as we were beginning to get a hungry feeling around our heart, that told us it must be past supper time, we enquired our way to the "Fleur-de-lis" hotel, the spot where Charles Dickens was frequently a guest. We were told that dinner would be served in half an hour. After a brush-up we began inspecting some of the interests of the hotel, for although the hotel is quite modern, the automobile association, which has its managment, is endeavouring to keep it as nearly like the 19th century as possible. One point of interest was in the 13th century windows, and another was a very old staircase, still well preserved.

After a meal of rather extraordinary "army rations" we had just time to catch the train back to Shorncliffe and arrive in camp shortly after "lights out."

JAPAN MADE RICH BY WAR.

Russia Buys Back Even Rifles Taken from Her in Last War.

NEW YORK, March 17.—Because of conditions brought about by the war, there has been a great increase in travel between the United States and Hawaii, Japan, China and the Philippines, according to George H. Corse, Jr., of the Union Pacific.

Mr. Corse received a letter from an American merchant now in Japan which gives interesting information relative to present commercials conditions in that county. He says:

"In a letter you wrote to me before I left New York you asked me to write you of the conditions in Japan when I had spare time. I have now been here almost a month and have been around enough to be fairly well posted on matters in which you will be interested.

"The country is very prosperous, and prices for everything are on the rise. Enormous orders have been and continue to be placed by Russia for all kinds of supplies to enable them to carry on the war. Osaka is crowded with Russians buying chemicals and leather goods, while in other sections they are buying blankets and miscellaneous goods. The Japanese Government plants are busy and enlarging capacity for making rifles, etc., for the Russians, having already sold all the rifles to them that they captured in the Japanese-Russian war. Any number of people in this town are selling out rifle stocks by hand.

Chaplain Major Davidson Sends Letter Of Greeting To The Congregation Of St. Johns

Interesting Details of His Work in Hospital and Camp, Chaplin's Living Link Between Sick or Wounded Soldiers and Relatives

The following letter was read at the morning service in St. John's, yesterday:—

No. 3 Canadian Hospital,
France, 10th Feb., 1917.

To the Officers and Members of St. John's Church, Peterborough:

With great pleasure do I offer you again my warm greetings and sincere best wishes for the New Year, or rather what remains of it.

I have now been exactly two months in France, and this time has been crowded with all manner of experiences and doings. I left Orpington on 11th December by ambulance, and Waterloo Station, London, at 1 o'clock, arriving here late on Thursday afternoon, after a most wearisome journey (a part of it with soldiers in a box car), and having had no sleep since Monday night except on a station floor.

When getting settled down I was summoned to report to the Chaplain-in-Chief at H. Q., and spent another day, from 8 a.m. till 10 p.m. getting there — almost exhausted. Bishop Gwynne, the D.C.G. (Dep. Chap. Gen'l) seeing my plight, was extremely kind and brought me back in his motor car, across country, in four hours. There was no possible way of avoiding this practical lesson in the geography of France.

On Monday, 18th, I was at last enabled definitely to enter on my work, and soon realized the very important position and wonderfully interesting task which had been given me. We are quartered in an ancient fortress, as close as may be behind the lines, being the only stationary hospital thus situated. There are four grades of military hospital in France. (1) The Field Ambulance and First Aid, (2) The Casualty Clearing Station, (3) The Stationary Hospital, and (4) The General Hospital at the base, on the sea front, where the patients are sorted out and sent to England. Ours is a combination of 2 and 3, our patients being sent here direct from the field and trenches.

This ofrtress is just outside a good ized town and military centre, whence stores of all kinds are transported to the line

The town and roads leading from it are filled with men mules and munitions in constant motion. There is a perpetual stream of big covered motor lorries part with ammunition and part with supplies, distinguished with sized town and military centre, whence appears the face of the driver, keen and serious. Detachments of troops of all kinds to and from rest camps and the front are in constant evidence with occasionally colossal guns. The men wear every kind of clothing dirty, bespattered uniforms, sheepskins, leather jerkins and other odd, but warm garments. It is a living moving panorama.

But to return to my work. We have at the present time over 650 patients—a large number of whom are suffering from the effects of the intense cold. Our staff is small, only about 10 doctors and 3 or 4 other officers, a matron and only 16 nursing sisters. The kind and competent matron (Miss Wilson) is a cousin of our fellow citizen, Mr. E. G. Patterson. The O. C. and she received decorations for their work in Lemnos. There are two chaplains, my comrade being Captain Pugsley (Meth). who acts for Free Church men. We work, however, in the closest co-operation and harmony. During the past two weeks of his leave I have been here alone.

Our work is very much more interesting and evidently useful, than at Orpington, where there were numbers of visitors and helpers of all kinds while here we are cut off from all except occasional soldiers. Besides our spiritual and general ministrations to the patients (of a most important character) we chaplains are the one human link between them and their relations and friends, whom we try to keep informed in serious cases. Except the short official telegram, our information is the only news they get. I keep an accurate account of letters and find that during January I wrote 346 and in February, up to date, 161. Writing being a great difficulty to me this has been a hard task, and my arm is often lame, but for the last ten days I have well assisted by a kind and competent secretary from among the patients who is kindly writing this. The replies of anxious and bereaved relatives simply overflow with gratitude and requests for further information. Since beginning my work here I have taken 20 funerals, with all that goes before and after, and in each case carefully notifying relatives. The Military cemetery, where many hundreds of men lie side by side, marked with simple crosses, lies only a mile away. The coffin is carried by four soldiers who march behind me, a bugler in front and the sergeant behind. In France, apparently, the coffin is generally carried by the bearers, through the streets, and last week I saw four little white dressed girls carrying the stretcher on which lay the coffin of a baby. The military graves are all under the supervision of capable officers, and are most carefully looked after. Here they are planting trees, and the local officer, whom I know well, told me that the whole matter will be even more carefully dealt with after the war. Peterborough citizens losing relatives should write to me for further suggestions.

I prepared a most interesting Confirmation Class early in January, and marched my 11 candidates to the Army Church in the town which was crammed with soldier candidates only—every inch of standing-room being taken, with 6 Chaplains and Bishop Gwynne of Khartoum. All the candidates were then entertained to tea at the adjacent Y.M.C.A., for which they would generously not allow the Chaplains to pay. I had charge of the tea and then marched my men back again through the crowded streets and entertained them in my room the following evening. I am now preparing another class with a present attendance of over 20. My last candidates were, each one, thoroughly satisfactory, and will, I am convinced, be a help to religion wherever they go. They now write me appreciative letters from their different regiments along the line.

These are a few sides of my life, and work, and if there were double as many hours in the day I could fill them up to advantage. I cannot be thankful enough for having been entrusted with a work of such interest and evident usefulness.

On another occasion I shall tell you something of other experiences and sides of my work, c. g., my lectures on Canada, still going on. When I went up to the headquarters of our Army Corps, close behind the Line, to give one of these, ten days ago, I had the unexpected pleasure of being accosted by our former St. John's chorister, Jack Fessenden—now Lieut.-Colonel in the A. S. C., and in charge of the work in this District, a responsible post. He has had a brilliant career, especially in the Serbian campaign. I, of course, went to tea with him, and we chatted for an all too short a time over by-gone days. He was actually in the near-by town over Christmas without either knowing of our proximity. He is a soldier of whom all Peterborough citizens may well be proud and is widely known in his branch of the service.

It is almost my only disappointment that we have no Canadians near here as they all moved out over two months ago, and indeed, passed this very place.

Our patients are all Imperials except 3—Germans, one a "head" case and 2 "gas". Last night I went into the "Gas Ward" to visit a serious patient. I found all the well ones bubbling over with excitement. I was greeted with "Who do you think we have here, sir?" "Two Fritzes—took an overdose of our gas! Isn't it a joke?" I went to their bedsides, and not being able to converse, simply pointed upwards and made the sign of the cross, and they nodded. They are, of course, being treated exactly as other patients.—"As we forgive them that trespass against us."

I have heard comparatively little from Peterborough since the New Year. Letters from one's friends and fellow-citizens are very precious and I hope more may be moved to write.

I warmly thank those, who I learn are sending, or have already sent, some help towards our equipment here, which will be most useful and a pleasant link between Peterborough and the Front. We are newly established and far away from the source of supplies and our equipment is in strange contrast with other hospitals. This naturally struck me more forcibly on first coming here from such a perfectly equipped (Ontario) hospital as that at Orpington. My friends in England have already been most generous and I have already received a most handsome crimson Altar cloth, of considerable value, a beautiful material for bright, pretty table-cloths, and a large number of beautiful pictures and illustrated papers.

In addition to hospital experiences I have opportunities of coming into contact with numbers of soldiers, quartered around here, insofar as time will permit. We two Chaplains take occasional Sunday services for an anti-aircraft battery, near by, and have constant invitations to the Y.M.C.A. and Church Army Huts, which are crowded centres where I have already lectured. I have also been a guest at the Fifth Army Corps Headquarters Mess, and last night at the 3rd Dragoons Officers Mess. I have, too, been able to entertain several of the Imperial Chaplains here thus bringing one into interesting contact with different sides of army life.

I greatly appreciate the many prayers which I understand are being offered on behalf of myself and my important work, publicly and privately by you and many other friends elsewhere from which I feel most real and valuable benefits have been received. Never in my life has there been such a demand upon my faculties of spirit, mind and body, as in the last few months, and I have been wonderfully upheld, my health being almost provokingly good in cotrast with the examples of utter weakess and collapse among which I move. I am quite often called out at all hours of the night and yet I am not pulled down by these things, at least, up to the present, which I attribute to spiritual powers being exerted on my behalf.

When you receive this we shall be passing through the season of Lent. Most men in France are having a rigorous and very exacting life which, however, braces one up, makes one keen and reveals the presence of strength formerly undiscovered.

Assuring you all of my spiritual fellowship and of my desires and prayers for your welfare.

Sincerely and affectionately yours,
JOHN C. DAVIDSON,

P.S.—I have received information of a handsome gift to our Hospital by the ladies of Peterborough. My grateful appreciation.

"THE MILLION DOLLAR DOLL" A GENUINE HIT

Dainty Musical Comedy Scored a Big Success at the Grand Saturday

Harvey D. Orris' presentation of the musical comedy, "The Million Dollar Doll," scored one of the greatest popular successes of the season at the Grand on Saturday, pleasing two big audiences. Dainty and lively, free from blatant vulgarity, with clever principals and a chorus that could sing and dance as well as look pretty, a wealth of witty lines and lilting melodies, the production was a winner all the way. Harold Orr gave one of the best "black face" performances ever seen here and his work as "Jasper Jackson" was irresistibly funny. He had his audience with him from his first appearance and grew better as the action progressed. Associated with him in the comedy, Harvey Orr brought ripe skill as a facteur to the part of the hen-pecked husband, his extra dry personality and genuine drollery being a splendid foil to the work of his "coloured" companion. Irene Medora was winsome and charming in title role. Lee Johnston made a pleasing Spanish senorita, Louise Willis was a realistic suffragette, and the rest of the principals scored heavily in their respective parts. In fact there was not a weak spot in the whole company, which created in an unusual degree an impression of good breeding.

The musical numbers were infectious and whistlable throughout. "My Little Fox Trot Girl," "Proposals," "When the Sun Goes Down in Romany," and "The Way to Your Heart," were some of the best, while Clayton Frye sang splendidly the number, "When a Fellow Needs a Friend." There was real humour in Harold Oris' topical song, "Nobody Satisfied," and he made equally as big a hit in the rag number, "The Unforgetable Tune." The Imperial quartette sang popular melodies in finished style and the audience could not get enough of them. The Le Roys won a triumph in their third act dancing divertisement, and Fred Raymond, Jr., and Miss Medora contributed a clever burlesque of an old time ventriloquist act, Miss Medora's imitation of an animated doll being remarkably realistic.

The scenery and costumes were conspicuous, and an illuminated runway into the audience was used to good effect. Altogether "The Million Dollar Doll" was one of the biggest hits of the season. It was the first visit of Mr. Orris' attraction to Peterborough, and local theatre-goers have already placed it in the list of "welcome at any time" productions.

Organization Meeting Of The Peterboro Industrial Association

Two Sub-Committees Formed—Proposal is Change the Name of the Association to the "Peterboro Civic Association" Constitution Will be Drafted

The Peterborough Industrial Association met on Saturday evening for the purpose of completing the organization which owes its inception to the public meetings held a short time ago by Mayor Duffus. Those present were His Worship Mayor Duffus, who occupied the chair, Messrs. R. Denne, T. F. Matthews, W. H. Denham, R. H. Turner, J. Begley and J. J. Hartley. The following sub-committee was appointed to draft a constitution: Messrs. J. J. Hartley, T. F. Matthews, W. H. Denham and Mayor Duffus. A sub-committee composed of R. Denne, R. H. Turner and J. Begley, were also appointed to draft the committees. The sub-committees will complete their duties and report to another meeting of the executive committee and subsequently a general meeting.

Eight Committees.

It was suggested that the following eight committees be formed:
Executive and Nomination.
Industrial Labour and Mercantile.
Transportation.
Civic Improvement and Good Roads.
Publicity, Social and Reception.
Public Holidays and Sports.
Educational.
Exhibition.

The scope of the Association promises to assume such large proportions that it has been proposed that the name be changed from the Peterborough Industrial Association to the Peterborough Civic Association.

The Bicycle Is Coming Into Its Own

100,000 New Wheels Will Be Put in Commission in Canada This Season

It is declared that the bicycle is coming into its own again as an aid to health, utility, pleasure and economy. Approximately 60,000 bicycles were sold in Canada last year, and the concensus of opinion among the dealers from coast to coast is that 100,000 new bicycles will be put to use in the Dominion before next fall. The factories are being taxed to the limit to supply the orders already in hand and it is expected that more wheels will be sold throughout Canada during 1917 than during any previous year in cycle history.

For the official opening of the season, the period of March 31 to April 7th has been set aside as "Bicycle Week," when the 3,000 dealers throughout the country will hold various demonstrations. All stores will be brightened for the occasion, and various means will be adopted to attract the favourable attention of the public to the silent wheel. In many places there will be races, parades, and different demonstrations while the local dealers will also employ the advertising medium.

In practically all the larger centres of Canada, the bicycle trade has been organized into a local association for the purpose of raising the standards of salesmanship and store management and for arousing enthusiasm generally. Considerable attention is also paid to the matter of service to the many bicycle users. The formation of these associations has, it has been found, worked out to the benefit of both retailer and cyclist.

The first big bicycle sales campaign in Canada was held one year ago, and since that time there has been a marked increase in the number of enthusiastic bicyclists, while the bicycle business itself has become a respected industry. The increasingly neat bicycle stores in the Dominion reflect the activity and spirit of the times.

Particularly at this time when National conservation counts for so much, the low price and economy of the bicycle is attracting considerable notice. Bicycles were sold last year to all classes of people and to all ages, while there was not one part of the country where a great demand for wheels was not experienced.

Bicycling has returned as a practical form of transportation and not as a fad or craze, it is declared.

Funeral Of The Late J. C. Kells

MILLBROOK, March 19.—The funeral of the late J. C. Kells, which was held on Saturday afternoon, was largely attended. St. Thomas' church, where the service was held, was filled to capacity. The service was conducted by the Rev. Canon Allen, assisted by the Rev. Mr. Westmacott. The pallbearers, who were life-long friends of the deceased, were as follows: Messrs. W. T. Hood, Charles Needler, Robert Fair, Peterborough, G. E. Burnham, Charles McNeil, George Fowler and Thomas Campbell.

The flags in the village hung at half mast, while the blinds in the stores were lowered in recognition of the respect in which the deceased was held.

Interment took place in St. John's church cemetery Ida. The inclement weather prevented a large number of friends from attendin the funeral.

PROGRESS IN ST. PAUL'S CHURCH

St. Paul's Presbyterian Church shows very encouraging progress under its present pastorate. The attendance at communion yesterday morning—a recognized test of the spirituality of the congregation, was the largest in the last nine years—the number of communicants being 220. At the preparatory services on Friday night, the admission of members established a new record. Eighty new members were added to the church, the largest number in the history of the church, with one exception — about forty years ago, at the time of the Hammond evangelistic crusade.

INACTIVITY IN CHRISTIAN LIFE A STUMBLING BLOCK

"There is Such a Thing as a Luke-warm Church" Comments Rev. Cannon Cornish in an Impressive Sermon at St. John's Church—Sins of Omission

Speaking in St. John's Church last evening, Rev. Canon Cornish took for his text the 59th verse of the 119th Psalm, which reads: "I thought on my ways and turned my feet unto thy testimony." This Bible version was slightly different from the same text in the Prayer Book, but he had chosen it in preference because of that word "thought." "Thought" comes from a word in the original Greek meaning to look ahead and regard the possible future progress of any work being undertaken, as well as to look back to see if there are any flaws in the work. To the Psalmist in endeavouring to leave us a lesson points out the importance in our spiritual life of thorough self examination—looking both forward and backward. We look forward to what progress we may make, and look back to see wherein we have failed and how it may be improved upon. This is dealing with our spiritual life in a business-like way. It is realizing its true importance.

It is not that we should doubt salvation if we are thoroughly penitent. We do not doubt if we are true Christians. But we must keep it in mind how weak we are and realize that we are always liable to make a false step again, and sin in the sight of God.

If we lay down the commandments in front of a man and ask him if he had ever transgressed them or ever likely would in the future, some men would thoughtlessly answer "No." But the man who says that hasn't realized the spirit of the commandments. We should remember that the command "Thou shalt" means just as much as the command "Thou shalt not." We sometimes think so much more about the sins of Commission than the sins of Omission.

It is inactivity in our Christian life that is the stumbling block. It is the forgetting of God's Commands that hinders us in our spiritual life. It is in being satisfied in not doing any great outstanding sin that we fall short of His design for us. This aspect of inactivity is a great mistake. Jesus himself said, "He that is not with me is against me." God knows if our every thought is filled with Him—whether our words proclaim Him, and whether our deeds serve Him. It is when we realize this that we can see that indeed there is such a thing as a lukewarm church, and how often we forget our baptismal vow.

Woe betide us if we think we can stand alone, and dispense with the Hand of God. Woe to us if we are not guided by His holy spirit. That is why we fail and fail so miserably. That is why the church so often falls short of God's plan for it. We listen to the voice of the tempter trying to ween our souls from the God who made them. Who else but God should know our needs?

O, that we were a thinking people! O that we had thought more in the past! If we would only try to realize what life means. If we would only rise above the things of this world and remember the eternity before us. How can we ever expect to know about God, let alone know Him, if we neglect to read His word. If we only would hesitate frequently in our actions and say, "Lord, what wilt thou have me to do?" We cannot know God unless we read what Christ has said about Him. There are so many souls wandering through this life and taking eternal forgiveness for granted. What must God think of us when we treat Him so lightly? The custom that was prevalent in the old days of taking our troubles to the House of God has ceased to be. We have none of this now. We have lost our close touch with the Church of God.

Yes we must know about God. But that is nothing to knowing Him. Knowing of God is nothing to finding a place for Him in our lives and hearts. The most glorious thing is to love God with all our heart and mind, and all our strength. We must ask that His holy spirit may be a light unto our path. We must draw nearer to God. We must feel that our Christian life is one of activity—that we are doing something day in and day out—something that will please Him.

The Allies Sweep Etc.

We have no exact line; village after village has fallen into our hands since mid-day yesterday. Our cavalry patrols are over the hills and far away. Our infantry patrols are pushing forward into new territory so that only the airplanes know the exact whereabouts. As one aviator has just reported: "Our men are lighting fires and taking dinner at places off the map. They are going into pubs which have been burnt out to find beer which is not there."

North and west of Bapaume our patrols have gone beyond the villages of Rocquenes, Bancourt, Favrenil and Zapignies. The intelligence officers, riding out on bicycles to these places, were scared to find themselves so lonely and believed the enemy must be close at hand, but the ending was still farther off. Our cavalry, working up past Logeast Wood, penetrated east of Achiet-le-Grand and turned the German line off Behafnies-Ypres.

Round Peronne our cavalry reconnoitred, crossing over the canal Du Nord, dry in parts, as the Germans have blown up the locks. Much farther south, in the neighbourhood of Nesle, the French and British cavalry patrols came in touch to-day, and one of our aviators reports he saw French civilians waving flags and cheering the men.

British Airman Kills a German Cavalryman.

The Germans have a cavalry screen behind their rearguards. They were seen yesterday north of Bapaume and southwards beyond Roye, and some of them were chased by a British airman at a place called Ennemain. He swooped down low, like an albatross, and brought a man off his horse by a machine gun bullet. The others stampeded from this terrible bird.

This morning our troops were through Eterpigny beyond Barleux, and found the villages of Miscry and Marchelpot. There was some fighting last night and this morning in the neighbourhood of Peronne. The enemy had snipers and machine-gunners about, which kept some of our batteries back until the last possible moment, flinging 5.9's and smaller shells over our side of the lines.

Last night our patrols got into the village of Mont St. Quentin, which is the chief defense of Peronne, and this morning they were in and through Moislains, Halle and Fevillancourt. Until late to-night the enemy was still holding the trenches on the other side of Peronne, northwest of Haute Allaines, but he is now gone, and our outposts now look down the valley of the little River Totille, a tributary of the Somme, from Moislains to Halle.

British Enter Peronne.

This morning our mounted troops entered Peronne itself. No enemy was there. The only thing there that looked like soldiers were two dummies which were shot at by our men until the German fake was discovered. many dugouts were on fire, and part of the town was smouldering, but Peronne is not utterly destroyed and will be known again when the civilians come back to see the ruin of their homes. Many houses still stand, though wounded in their walls and roofs. The place is unlike the villages on the Somme battlefields, which are mostly wiped off the earth. The enemy seems to have abandoned his positions last night at a given time all along the line, firing heavily until about ten o'clock. Then the gunfire ceased and there was not a shot. His guns were going back along the dark roads. His rearguards moved away, leaving behind them their great defensive works of Bapaume ridge and burning villages. It is not for me to say how the German high command will explain this great retreat to the German people. It is "a strategical plan," but not all the phrases like that will hide the truth— that it is indeed a retreat, and that in front of British troops.

Boy Scout Earns Rhode's Scholarship.

When Cecil Rhodes died and left his money for scholarship purposes, his will directed that to win a scholarship a man must develop notable literary and scholastic ability; love of the out-of-doors; strong, virile personal character and an unselfish desire to serve others. A New York State Boy Scout, Ernest S. Griffith, of Utica, N.Y., has filled the above requirements, which means that he will have three years and $4,500 to spend at Oxford University, England. Griffith's training as a Scout laid the foundations of his success.

FAREWELL SERMONS BY REV. T. H. MITCHELL

Acting Pastor of St. Andrew's is Leaving to Enter Upon a Permanent Parsonage in Toronto and Large Congregations Hear His Addresses Yesterday.

WILL BE GREATLY MISSED

Yesterday was Rev. T. H. Mitchell's last Sunday as acting pastor of St. Andrew's Presbyterian church. At both services the church was crowded, every available sitting being utilized by members of the congregation and others desirous of hearing Rev. Mr. Mitchell's last messages to St. Andrew's church. It was a very high tribute to the departing minister that a considerable number from other congregations were present both in the morning and evening to hear him. This fact was a concrete demonstration of the hold he has taken upon the community, and an indication that not only St. Andrew's church but the city as a whole are sorry to lose him. Rev. Mr. Mitchell who came to Peterborough to take charge of St. Andrew's church until Capt. (Rev.) Rollins returned to his pastorate, and in his sermon and ministrations he made himself a blessing to all with whom he came in touch.

It is well known that all would have been greatly pleased had Mr. Mitchell remained in charge of the work at St. Andrew's until the pastor returned. In going to an important charge in Toronto, however, Mr. Mitchell takes a permanent pastorate, and in his new work has the best wishes of all who have known or heard him. He held a foremost place among local ministers, and cannot but become a power for good in the Queen City.

Yesterday morning Mr. Mitchell took for his text the 8th Verse of the 1st Chapter of Acts, which reads as follows: "Ye shall be witnesses unto me both in Jerusalem and in all Judaea, and in Samaria and unto the uttermost part of the earth. The theme of foreign missions had suggested itself to the speaker because of the visits to be made the congregation on behalf of missions during the coming week. It was with that in mind that he was to talk on this great project. The theme of foreign missions is a very large one, and the opportunity in the mission fields at the present time, is unparalleled. In connection with this the speaker would mention three of four of the dominant features of the situation.

The first was this. The foreign missionary's message provides an antidote for the very thing that has caused this war. What had caused the war? A false nationalism was the cause—a kind of narrow patriotism that thinks only of its own country. But the message of the Bible was in direct contradiction to this. God hath made of one blood all the nations on the face of the earth. In origin all nations are the same. Why do the missionaries take themselves to the foreign fields Not to exploit or to get advantage, but in order that as time goes on, all nations shall kneel at the Throne of God. The foreign missionaries' message is international and unifying. The nationalism of Christianity is international and that is the only kind of nationalism that can endure.

The foreign missionary suggests the only kind of peace that can be staple—peace based on righteousness. There are two kinds of wounds in surgery. With those that are clean, the surgeon has no difficulty. But others, in healing, leave malignant pockets containing poison. And the wounds of war are very similar. Take for example the Russo-Japanese war. A few years pass and the wounds are healed. But not so with the Franco-Prussian struggle. The wounds of that conflagration are not yet healed. Germany imagined that day that she had conquered when as a matter of fact she had never done a worse thing in all her history. One of these days we will be asked to make peace. "For I have no doubt as to how this war will end," said the speaker. And, while the Prussian War Lords should be unseated, we should remember that the people of Germany have been misled. They are in many ways a lovely people. The peace we give must be a peace of righteousness. We must leave no poisonous pockets to break out again. The finest description of the Heavenly Kingdom is given when it is described as a place of "Righteousness, Peace and Joy in the Holy Ghost." "Note the order in which those words appear," said Mr. Mitchell; "Righteousness before peace—and joy only in both righteousness and peace."

Secondly the missionary work provides a field for the heroisms developed by the war. This struggle has unified many nations. In a large measure our own Empire had been unified. Heroism has been brought out of this war of which we never dreamed; qualities have been discovered and moral fibres retempered in an unparalleled degree. This would find a splendid outlet in the words of the text—"Jerusalem" we need purifying at home. "Judaea" our Province needs attention, "Samaria" our neighbours need assistance and it is a privilege to spread the great gospel of unselfishness "to the uttermost parts of the earth. Here was a field in which the splendid heroism born by the war may be sustained.

Fourthly the doors of all nations are open. Every gate is ajar. Take for instance Japan. In that country the alternative is not between Christianity and budahism. It was between Christianity and nothing. A few years ago a census was taken in a Japanese college where there were 5,000 students. There were 50 Budahists, 60 Christians and 3,500 Atheist and Agnostics. In Japan there is that great Japanese revivalist Hallelujah Kim, corresponding to our own Billy Sunday. In Tokio the crowds that want to hear him cannot get into the buildings. Through him great men are being brought to the foot of the cross. Japan is searching for religion and the coming days are going to be critical ones.

It was much the same in China. In one province the officials asked the missionaries to take over the Provincial Normal School, and the Public Schools of thirteen counties. Already they have charge of the schools in nine counties. In China they are giving up old temples and throwing out their idols and asking the educators—our educators—to come in with the Bible.

In India last year 30,000 were baptised into the church there and the Methodist church alone was forced to refuse 150,000 souls because they could not take care of them. In one church they had a waiting list of 1,000 people. "Imagine!" said Mr. Mitchell, "Imagine St. Andrew's church with a waiting list of one thousand! Oh! If I had my life to live over again I would become a medical missionary."

In Africa the seat of savagery which has been demoralized by whites and owned by men in European capitols—even there, in the Kameroon district whole villages werecoming into the church. It was in Africa that one Scotch girl, single-handed, Christianised three entire African tribes. In 1915 she died and the natives said "Everybody's mother is dead." The world to-day is open. Never before was the message of the missionary so opportune.

"THE QUEST OF LIFE" AT THE EMPIRE

A Beautiful Story in Photo play Appearing To-day, Tuesday and Wednesday

"The Quest of Life," which comes to the Empire to-day stars the two internationally famous dancers, "Maurice" and Florence Walton. The story was depicted from the play by Edmund Goulding and Gabriel Enthoven.

The beautiful daughter of a poor family is much run down in health, and the doctor tells her that she must go where she can spend more of her time out of doors. She has been a stenographer and bookkeeper in a small butcher shop. In her desperation to obtain money to carry out the doctor's plan, she applies for work with a threatical company.

The manager laughs at the idea of employing her in his chorus or among his dancers. However, he needs a stenographer and employs her. Here she sees something of the work of preparing stage productions, and expresses a longing to be able to dance. Her chance comes, and she makes good.

She becomes a star, and is selected to dance with a man famous for his dancing. She falls in love with her mate. Her health breaks down when she is sent to a sanitorium for a rest by a rich admirer. His chief purpose in doing so is to get her away from her team-mate, the one who has fallen in love with her.

How the two dancers are finally united, to dance through the rest of their lives together, finishes the interesting story.

Say Women Are Interested In Franchise

(SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER)

TORONTO, March 19.—Organizers of the Liberal party state there is a keen interest shown by women every where throughout the Province in the proposed extension of the Franchise to them by the Legislature. The women feel their responsibility in the matter and are intent upon becoming registered on the voters' list as soon as this is made possible with the view of exercising their voting privileges when they have an opportunity.

The statement in a morning paper that the Liberal Executive, like the Conservative Executive, had sent out letters to women and had not been encouraged by replies, is incorrect.

OXO CUBES IN FRANCE.

The following is an interesting letter received from France:—

"You must already know how widely OXO CUBES are used and how sincerely they are appreciated wherever the British Army is to be found fighting for the Empire, but I feel sure it will interest you to learn that both during the 'great push' on the Somme, and now, when we are nightly worrying the Hun with raids, I make it an invariable rule to make an issue of hot OXO to the men before they 'pop the parapet.' We have, as you know, to face all weathers out here, and learn to take things as they come. This is done the more easily because we are never without a supply of your OXO in its most convenient form—cubes. We find them of the greatest possible benefit to us. OXO CUBES are of enormous value for home consumption, but you may take it from me that their value is multiplied many times over out here in the trenches, and often times when nights are bitterly cold and horribly long, I really do not know how we should get on without the hot OXO."

OXO CUBES aid and increase nutrition and stimulate and build up strength to resist climatic changes; they are invaluable for all who have to undergo exertion either to promote fitness or to recuperate after fatigue.

They take up little space, are easily carried, and can be converted quickly into a hot nourishing drink, which, with bread or biscuits, will sustain for hours.

BIBLE PROPHECIES AND THE GREAT WAR

An Interesting and Scholarly Address by Rev. Canon Cornish in the Public Library on Saturday

THE RETURN OF THE JEWS

On Saturday afternoon, Rev. Canon Cornish gave a most interesting address in the Public Library, the subject being founded on the war and the propheay of the return of the Jews to Palestine, Ezekiel, xxxvii, 3: 21-22.

In opening his address Canon Cornish paid a tribute to the Otonabee Chapter for the heroic and magnificent work they have done during the present war—a work which means no small amount of sacrifice. Though not actully in the trenches, women, he said, are still doing their bit in bringing about a successful conclusion. Canon Cornish said that though advertised as speaking on prophesies of the war, his theme was more a question of taking the prophesies out of the Bible to see the fulfillment in the present war. He said that God would not allow such a struggle if out of it something would not be produced for the betterment of the world. The world is at present going through a fiery furance and it is our duty to take our place as citizens and see to it that as a result the lives given for it and for the principles we profess to love, there arises a greater and stronger nation in the right sense of the word.

The British Empire.

We have faith in the British Empire—there is nothing to be ashamed of—no shameful page. We glory in the fact that we belong to the great family of nations, and it is a serious matter that we should not hand away the privileges she has given us. We must see we hand down the principles of the nations without tarnish, so our children and children's children may look back and speak of us as we of our forefathers.

God's Chosen People.

The Jews, the speaker said, are God's chosen people, and always will be, and in the war we see the fulfillment of the prophesy of them in Ezekiel, where the return of the children of Israel to their own land is prophesied. The study of the fulfillment of the propehsy is interesting. We watch with interest the working of the British armies in Mesopotamia and Palestine. The army is practically knocking at the gates of Jerusalem. Is this the beginning of the fulfillment? If so is not the British Empire taking part in it bringing it about.

Zionists Working.

The propheay contained in the 37th chapter of Ezekiel concerning the shakin gof bones is being realized. For centuries the Jews have been hunted—not wanted—spurned in every land. Now a great and powerful body, the Zionists, are working for the repopulation of Palestine, binding the Jewish people together and striving to regain possession of the holy land. Every year a conference of 500 is held in some great city, and every year the enthusiasm grows. Gradually the land is falling into the hands of the wealthy Jews. Rothschild has bought up vast tracks. 100 years ago there were five hundred Jews in Palestine, before the war one hundred thousand.

Rain Falls in Palestine

God has prepared the land for the return of his people—if the land is no good the country is no good. Twenty years ago nothing would grow in Palestine because of the lack of rain. Twenty years ago one-half inch fell. Since then gradually year by year the rainfall has become more and more abundant until now vines and fruit trees have become important factors. In the East colonies have sprung up al lover Palestine, until in 1913 there were 40 established colonies, 14,000,000 fruit trees had been imported. The holy words of, "Palestine is beginning and flow with milk and honey,' to-day are a literal fact.

Temple Being Prepared.

The most remarkable achievement is contained in two facts. Funds amounting to £56,000,000 have been gathered together for the building of a temple. Quietly piece by piece this temple is being prepared secretly, and when the time comes one site only will satisfy the Jews—the site of the ancient temple.

Palestine and the Turks.

Palestine belongs to Turkey, but much is happenin tog the Turks. Their downfall, which began with the Balkan war, has continued with the present struggle. Turkey is no longer classed as a European power. Russia has her eye on Constantinople and will endeavour to put the finishing touch on the Turkish Empire.

The Turning Point.

The news of the past few days is perhaps the turning point in the war. This has been the greatest blow to Germany. The past quiet on the eastern front no doubt meant that the matter hung in the balance. We might have found Russia quieted or even friendly to Germany, but now, with Russia a democratic Russia, we may predict that the German armies will be driven back once again, and with our armies advancing in the west, we may look with some degree of confidence to the closing of the war in the present year.

Britain in Palestine.

With Turkey reduced and out of business some power must take Palestine, and we may be confident it will be handled by the British Empire. For there is no nation the Jews would prefer better. We have always, as a nation, dealt fairly with the Jews, and now the opportunity presents itself for him to return this. We may be confident he would sooner see the British Empire in power than any other.

A vote of thanks was moved by Mrs. John Allen and seconded by Mrs. E. L. Goodwill. Mr. Clarke, Principal of the King Edward school, was in the chair.

WATERLOO HAS MADE RECORD

WATERLOO, March 18. — This town's second Patriotic campaign has closed with the splendid total subscription of approximately $60,000, being almost $12 per capita, a record not reached by any other municipality in Canada. Under the very efficient guidance of organizer Mr. A. Miller, of the Canadian Patriotic Association a perfect organization was formed, and the work was carried out in a systematic manner. Judicious and thorough advertising was done, and every person in town was made aware of the fact at every turn of the "Patriotic and Red Cross Fund Campaign on March 14-15-16; serve by giving," with the result that the canvassers were without exception well received in every quarter. The work of the ladies of the town is especially commendable, and through their canvass $3,600 were subscribed from amongst themselves.

Speeding Up the Shipyards.

It is said that British interests have placed orders with American yards for a total of thirty-two vessels, of which seventeen are for the Cunard Line. Companies which had boats on the ways when the demand for ships began to fill up the builders' books have been offered very large premiums on their unfinished vessels. In the case of one steamship line which had two ships well along an offer was made to take them over at $2,000,000 above their cost. All of the American yards are being pushed to their utmost, and some of them are now working two or three shifts for the first time in their history.

New Vigour and Strength For The Run-Down System

More Proof That Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is Accomplishing Great Good in This City—Many More Cures Reported

PETERBOROUGH, Ont., March 19.—In the most simple and natural way imaginable this food cure is restoring to health and vigor people who have been ailing for years and apparently getting no lasting benefits from the medicines used. Here is the reason:

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is composed of the elements from which Nature forms new, rich blood and thereby nourishes the cells and tissues of the body. By supplying these elements in condensed and easily assimilated form so that the most delicate digestive system can make use of them, the Nerve Food brings health and strength to the weak and suffering.

It works in a different method to most medicines, and as a result the benefits obtained are both thorough and lasting.

Mrs. John Roach, 581 Elm St., Peterborough, Ont., writes: "About four years ago, I received splendid results from the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. I had been troubled with nervous debility, sleeplessness, and my system was run down generally. At times the pain in the top of my head was unbearable; and I also had severe pains across my kidneys. There would be nights and nights that I could not sleep. I had tried many remedies as well as doctor's medicine, without their doing me any good. A friend recommended Dr. Chase's Nerve Food to me, so I secured some and commenced using it. Finding myself benefitted, I kept on using them until I got better. Before long I could eat and sleep well, and my headache was all gone. I have recommended Dr. Chase's Nerve Food to many friends, as I think there is nothing better for nervousness or run down system."

Mrs. J. Riedeman, 165 Adeline St., Peterborough, Ont., writes:—"I was troubled with nervous headaches, which, at times were so severe that I could not do my work. I also suffered from indigestion and pains in the back. From reading in the newspapers of the benefits other people were deriving from the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, I was encouraged to try it. I began using them, finding good results from the beginning, so I continued the treatment until I obtained great benefit. Now I do not have the nervous headaches so frequently or so severe. My appetite is much better, and in fact, I am better in many respects. I would not wish to be without Dr. Chase's Nerve Food in the house now. I have recommended this treatment to many of my friends, who also find good results from their use."

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, 50 cents a box, a full treatment of 6 boxes for $2.50, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto. Do not be talked into accepting a substitute. Imitations only disappoint.

HOME HEALTH CLUB

By DR. DAVID H. REEDER

Medicinal Foods: Much has already been said by me upon this subject, but I know that many, especially new readers will profit by learning how to use certain foods as effective remedies. More and more every day the Home Health Club is finding reasons for self-graduation that its constant urgings are having effect that is as widespread as the public prints. Many special articles are appearing in the newspapers endorsing and emphasizing our theories and methods in the use of nature's remedies for ills and the prevention of disease. An example of this is a prominent article in a late Chicago daily headed "Making What You Eat Your Medicine." This speaks of how primitive people and animals cure all their ills by eating curative vegetables and fruits and how they instinctively understand the healing properties that are contained in the great storehouse of nature. It repeats what the Home Health Club so often says: "If civilized man understood and applied the same laws that these savages and other animals do, he would need no doctor," and adds: "But food specialists are now studying the question of natural vegetable cures and are teaching the people the value of the common fruits and vegetables when used as medicine for various ills."

The article under consideration goes on to repeat and beneficial characteristics of a few of the hundreds of directions given in the Home Health Club book concerning fruits, vegetables and herbs and their curative properties. The Home Health Club book Vol. 5, especially and exclusively treats of these facts. This article particularly mentions the following: Pineaples that is discovered to be "a sort of complete medicine chest in itself for derangements of the stomach."

Pineapple has been regarded as an indigestible food, and it is when the pulp is swallowed. The juice alone contains the medicinal quality and this should not be sweetened, but slightly salted. This juice has a digestive principal much like pepsin. In diptheria, sore throat and croup, it acts quickly and most favourably, the powerful and penetrating acid serving to dissolve the false membrane to the great relief of the patient.

Beets help to make new good blood and should be eaten raw for this purpose and served as a salad with oil and lemon juice. Celery is strong in medicinal effect, helpful in nervousness, nervous dyspepsia, rheumatism and neuralgia. It should be chewed until the juices are extracted and some of the pulp should be swallowed. The green leaves and the roots boiled make an excellent soup for the purposes mentioned. Lettuce cools the system and is good for sleeplessness and it should be eaten green. When it is white, it has been bleached and much of its medicinal quality is taken from it.

Carrots are excellent for the blood, for Asthma and nervousness. They should be eaten raw, finely chopped and served as a salad with lettuce and dressing. Tomatoes are good for the liver, acting directly upon that organ. They should always be eaten raw when used as a medicine. Heat destroys the vegetable calomel in them. The skin is indigestible and should never be eaten. Spinach, dandelion and asparagus are all good for the kidneys. Asparagus should be used only in spring and summer. Spinach is efficacious all the time.

The onion is the king of vegetable medicines. It is excellent for nervousness, sleeplessness and as as binding to sore throats. Onion syrup is potent in the cure of coughs, colds, hoarseness and as well known as an old-fashioned and perfect remedy. The prejudice against the odor is more or less a fad, and is not half so bad as many of the fashionable perfumes. For nervous troubles onions should be eaten raw in large quantities, though they are beneficial cooked, especially well baked and served with butter, pepper and salt. Cases of nervous prostration have been entirely cured by a persistent diet of onions, whole wheat bread and butter, raw eggs and a simple dessert of pineapple and salt.

Of lemons a great doctor has said that if they cost a dollar a piece they would be the greatest remedy known for numerous ills. For fevers, liver troubles, sore throat, biliousness and cold, they are without a rival. Never combine the lemon with sugar or other cane products, molasses and the like. Sugar instantly destroys the medicinal value of lemon juice. Watermelon is of great value in yellow fever cases and in erysipelas. Under circumstances of general nature, they are good for kidney and especially bladder troubles, but the pulp should never be swallowed when the watermelon is used medicinally.

Cranberries are excellent for malaria and erysipelas when used raw. Cooking them weakens the medicinal properties. Used as a beverage or a salad, raw, they may be made delicious as well as effective. For a salad take the largest and ripest berries, wash them thoroughly, cut them in halves and serve with lettuce and a dressing of olive oil, lemon juice and raw egg. As a beverage, crush the berries and leave them to soak in a covering of water over night. Serve in tumblers of added pure water. The acid is particularly cooling to the blood and refreshing.

This list of helpful fruits and vegetables could be extended greatly. Nearly all vegetables properly prepared have their medicinal qualities, but the best are those mentioned here in the matters of both food and medicine.

Dear Doctor: Will you please give me some information as to the cause and treatment of the distressing disease known as Shingles? I am told that it is neither contagious nor infectious.—W. I.

(Answer) Shingles is an annoying difficulty usually occurring in the winter time and may be due to various circumstances. Unhygienic surroundings, unwholesome food, overeating and undereating, exposures, nervous troubles and other derangements ofter bring about shingles. In nearly all cases there are other disorders present such as constipation, indigestion, neuralgia and also sometimes a slight feverishness. Locally dust the parts with powdered starch and golden seal or apply witch hazel extract and spirits of camphor. Let the diet be light. Bathe the body frequently and change the underclothing often. Be sure that the bowels move freely every day and provide an abundance of fresh air in the sleeping rooms and outdoor exercise during the day. An attack of shingles may last two or three weeks. The disease is never fatal nor is it considered contagious. Use internally the Compound Gentian with perhaps a little fluid extract of cascara added to it.

Milner's Proposal Rejected

LONDON, March 18. — Viscount Milner's recent mission to Russia, according to the Manchester Guardian, was undertaken principally in an effort to bring about a compromise between Emperor Nicholas and the Duma and thus avert a revolution. Lord Milner is a member of the British war council.

Internal conditions in Russia have long been known here, the newspaper adds, and it is said that the Emperor informed the British Royal Family that he anticipated some such happening but was confident that he could suppress it. The Manchester Guardian continues:

"Sir George Buchanan, the British Ambassador at Petrograd, has kept his government well informed, and has been throughout a staunch supporter of the Duma and the Liberal element. It is said Lord Milner urged the Emperor to appoint a Ministry responsible to Parliament, although this was more than the Duma had asked for. The Emperor rejected it on the ground that it did not harmonize with Russian institutions and could not be worked by so politically unripe a people.

Viscount Milner then proposed that the Emperor appoint a Ministry acceptable to the Duma, suggesting Sergius Sazonoff (now Ambassador at London) for Premier and Foreign Secretary. This proposal also was rejected. Lord Milner made other suggestions and also held conferences with various leaders of Russian opinion in the hope of working out some scheme that would avert a revolutionary outbreak. Every effort was shattered by the obduracy of the Emperor.

"It is notable that the outbreak promptly followed Lord Milner's return from Russia. His failure was generally understood to mean that nothing could be hoped from the Emperor, and that the people must work out their own salvation."

KITCHENER HAS RAISED $105,000

KITCHENER, March 18. — The three-day Patriotic and Red Cross funds campaign is not yet definitely concluded. President A. R. Lang says that it was found that a goodly number of the largest subscribers are out of the city, and replies have not yet been received from them. Nearly $105,000 was reported at headquarters, and it is expected that between $10,000 and $15,000 would be turned in later. The woman campaigners turned in over $7,000 and the various schools over $1,000.

Final arrangements will not be made until the middle of the week.

TO REORGANIZE GERMANY.

Chancellor Predicts More Power By People After the War.

LONDON, March 19.—A political reorganization of the German Empire after the war, involving a greater share by the people in the conduct of Imperial affairs, was predicted by Chancellor von Bethmann-Hollweg in a speech before the Prussian Diet, according to a Berlin despatch to Reuter's. The Chancellor opened his address by protesting against criticism levelled at the Reichstag by the Upper House of the Diet.

"A strong foreign policy will be necessary for we shall be surrounded by enemies whom we shall not meet with loud words, but with the internal strength of the nation," he said. "We can only pursue such a policy if the patriotism which during the war has developed to such a marvellous reality is maintained and strengthened."

The maintenance of Patriotism could only be attained by granting the people in general equal co-operation in the administration of the Empire. "Woe to the statesman," he said, "who does not recognize the signs of the times, and who, after this catastrophe believes that he can take up his work at the same point at which it was interrupted."

GERMANY STARVING WANTS PEACE SAYS RETURNED ATTACHE

Gen. Jos. E. Kuhn, U. S. A., Says German People are on the Edge of Starvation

NEW YORK, March 17. — Brig. Gen. Joseph E. Kuhn U.S.A., President of the Army War College in Washington, and until recently the American Military Attache at Berlin, made the statement recently that "the German people are on the edge of starvation," and added that "Germany is prepared to entertain terms of peace and to go a long way to get them."

"One would naturally expect that a world war must be a big affair and bigness is in fact the most striking feature of the present conflict of nations. No less than ten European States have to-day reached the extreme limit of the mobilisation of their military resources which means nothing more or less than the employment of the last man, woman, and child as well as all available financial, industrial, gricultural and commercial machinery for the sole purpose of war.

"Approximately 37,000,000 men stand arrayed on the battlefields of Europe, and a daily average of 5,000 men are laying down their lives for principles and ideals which they believe to be true. The battle line on the west, east, Italian and Macedonian fronts aggregate about 2,000 miles, equal to the distance from New York to Denver. Truly, to understand the magnitude of this war one must think in large figures, for we have to deal literally with millions of men and billions of dollars. Were the United States ever to call out its resources in men to the same extent as has Germany at this hour, we should have an armed force of 15,000,000 men. How pitifully small and petty appears our patchwork military establishment in the face of the present tremendous and far-reaching world events.

Importance of Ammunition.

"During the Russo-Japanese war," he continued, "I was so impressed by the fact that a Japanese field artillery brigade had fired an average of 500 rounds per gun during the ten days' battle of Mukden. This represented about ten tons of ammunition per gun. I then remarked that the consumption of artillery ammunition in future wars would be limited only by the ability of the transport service to bring it forward. In Europe the railroads, good waggon roads and the motor trucks have so well solved the problem of transportation that the expenditure of ammunition is now limited only by the ability to manufacture it. Repeated instances have come to my notice where German field batteries have expended 50 per cent. more rounds per gun in twenty-four hours than the aforementioned Japanese guns did in ten days. Earl Kitchener stated accurately that this was a war of munitions, and it is a fact that to-day the whole world, the United States not excepted, is the one vast arsenal working night and day and employing millions of men, women, and children.

With the increase of artillery has also come a change in the character of the ammunition. While shrapnel is still unquestionably best against personnel, the strong field works and obstacles now so common in trench warfare call for more violent and powerful action. High explosive shell has therefore become the most common type of ammunition, and I venture that three-fourths of all the ammunition used is of this kind. Its use alone enables strong field works and obstacles to be pulverised, and the way paved for a successful infantry advance.

'The Germans were the first to show how this must be done when they made their masterful break through the Russian front at Tarnow Garlice in May, 1915, where they crushed the Russian defences after four hours' drum fire, expending 10,000 tons of ammunition. But this was mere child's play to later developments. In the Champagne in September, 1915, the French drummed the German lines for seventy hours, continuously, and the Somme offensive was inaugurated by an overwhelming artillery fire of eight days before any infantry advance.

NEED OF MACHINE GUNS.

"At the beginning of the war Germany had just finished her machine gun organization providing one machine gun company of six guns for each regiment of infantry of 3,000 men and one company for each battalion of Jagers. For cavalry divisions she had also organised about fifteen machine gun detachments, each of six guns. To-day Germany has at least three machine gun companies per infantry regiment, probably more. New organizations of machine gun units have been constantly springing up, including mountain organizations, some forming parts of regiments and others extra regimental. The machine gun saves men, therefore life, and to this fact is due the large increase in this weapon.

GERMANS NEAR STARVATION.

"How long will the war last! This question is frequently asked. I answer, I do not know. It would seem as if the strain must soon tell and that some one of the principal nations would break. From a purely military standpoint, there is no ground for believing that a decision can be reached in the immediate future. But other forces are at work and these may decide the issue. Economic conditions are trying everywhere, especially in the case of the Middle Powers. It is certain that the German people are on the edge of starvation and the bravest man will succumb to an empty stomach. I believe Germany is prepared to entertain terms of peace, and to go a long way to get them. Her case is that of the man who has caught a wildcat by the tail. He needs no help to hold on but would like some to let go.

"And what does the world war mean to the United States? One thing is certain and that is if we manage to keep out we will have all the money in the world and Europe will have all the guns. The period of readjustment is one fraught with grave possibilities, in which we may become involved only too early. That we are not entirely without apprehension on this point is evidenced by the move for preparedness of which one hears so much these days.

"However great a part material resources and munitions have played and are playing in this war one fact must not be overlooked, and that is the fighting man. He is just as important and necessary as ever, and the demands that will be made upon his nerves and endurance will be greater than ever before. We need and must have men, millions of them, and they must be trained thoroughly; trained to face the grueling requirements of modern warfare. How can we get them Only through the American people who are their own masters.

"Unless this great nation of free men wakes up and safeguards its priceless heritage of liberty and free institutions it must sooner or later pay the penalty of its self-assurances which still confides in the million men who will spring from the earth between sunrise and sunset, each armed with a squirrel rifle and a Ford automobile. There is but one solution for the problem—universal military training; but the solution rests in the hands of the American people."

CONFIDENT OF VICTORY.

Hon. F. B. McCurdy Gets First-hand Impressions at Front.

Impressed by the splendid spirit of the allied troops, including the Canadians, and the resolute determination and confidence in winning the war, Hon. F. B. McCurdy, Parliamentary secretary of the Militia Department, is back in Ottawa after an absence of almost two months in Great Britain and at the front. He crossed on the Noordam.

Mr. McCurdy went over to acquaint himself more fully with the condition of the Canadian forces. He visited the headquarters in London, all the camps in England where Canadians are training, and each of the Canadian divisions.

"At the front," he said in an interview, "the French are confident and the British and Canadians optimistic. The former, differing from opinions prevailing in some quarters, have very substantial reserves. The feeling which prevails among the allied forces is that they have taken the measure of the enemy and that the latest development in their campaign of frightfulness is induced by their appreciation that the tide has definitely turned against them in the decisive theatre—the western front."

"There is no question whatever as to the successful outcome of the war. The armies are in fine shape as regards the main forces and reserves, but at the same time no one closes his eyes to what has to come before victory is accomplished. The spirit everywhere is one of grim determination."

Mr. McCurdy observed with satisfaction that the Canadians have won a great name for themselves.

"Their great prestige," he stated, "is built upon a record of achievement at the front. The consultation of the Dominion is the coming War Conference is a national corollary of the work our soldiers have performed. They have richly earned for their country the honor of participation and consultation in what will probably be the most important assembly in the Empire's history."

Alluding to the reorganization of the Canadian forces in England, the Parliamentary Secretary stated that the feeling among the men is one of confidence in Sir George Perley, the Overseas Minister, and General Turner, commandant in England.

HAMS READY TO QUIT AFTER FRIDAY'S BATTLE

The Hamilton Herald says:

If Hamilton Hockey Club entertained any intentions of accepting the challenges issued by the Dunnville and Peterborough clubs, last night's game with 227th put them on the blink. The boys are quite ready to place their paraphernalia on the shelf after their next game with the soldiers on Friday night next President Bob Parker was particularly anxious last night to have the locals take on Peerborough, but he doesn't feel so much inclined that way after the gruelling that the team underwent against the soldiers.

PARKER, HARD LUCK MAN OF THE CHAMPS

The Hamilton Herald has been publishing sketches of the players of the champion hockey club team. Here is what it has to say of Harold Parker, the former Peterborough boy with the Hams:

Harold Parker, brother of President Bob Parker, is the hard luck member of the champion H. H. C. crew. Getting injured has become a habit with the brilliant defence player, but, despite his numerous set-backs, he always came back to the game as if he hadn't suffered an injury in his young career.

Last season Parker was the victim of a broken nose; this year he received a nasty cut on the mouth in Niagara Falls that cut open his lip, and knocked out two teeth. He was forced to stay out of acion when the Hams invaded London but was back on the job when the Londoners returned the visit, and he was very much in evidence. He and Leo Reise proved a veritable stonewall for the Cooknds and both featured the game with sensational rushes that played an important part in the Hams' fierce attack.

Parker is one of the foremost defence players in the intermediate ranks, and quite ready to take his place in senior company at any time. He is a fast, a neat stickhandler and a mighty strong checker. Once under full steam he is hard to stop on his rushes toward the enemy's goal. Just like the other members of the championship team, Harold is a quiet, unassuming chap, who plays the game for the fun he gets out of it, and always gives the best that is in him.

He is but 21 years of age, and was born in Peterborough, the town that the Hams eliminated in the right for the championship. He played his first real hockey in that town in the city league during the seasons of 1911-12. He moved to this city shortly after the 1912 season ended, and was a member of the Hamilton juniors in 1913. From that time on he has been a mainstay of local aggregations, working his way up with the other lads who made their local debut in junior company.

Harold has been set a good example by his brother, Bob, who some years ago was rated as one of the best wings in the Province.

Curling Club Annual To-Night

The annual meeting of the Curling Club will be held at the rink to-night and should bring out a large attendance. There will be the usual presentation of prizes, election of officers and consideration of new business.

The ice is hard to-day, but the weather is uncertain. The probs promise milder weather to-morrow. Some of the remaining vice-skips' games may be played off to-night. There is the final game in the primary round and a bunch of them in the consolation.

However, the curlers have discerned the handwriting on the ice and are well aware that spring is drawing faster than the stones.

FINAL GAME.

The following games in the Vice Skips bonspiel are down for to-night at 7 o'clock:

Primary final—C. C. Parsons vs. J. H. Logie.

CONSOLATION.

Widdess vs. Boucher.

Tooley vs. Fitzgerald.

Seymour vs. Bowes.

Metheral vs. Pennefather.

Patterson vs. Wiley.

The ice is keen and hard and the committee is anxious to complete the bonspiel as soon as possible. Two draws to-night will bring the end near, and it may be that the annual meeting will be postponed. The feeling may be expressed thusly: "If the annual meeting interferes with the bonspiel, cut out the meeting."

BOWLING

Following are the games for this week in the Bowling League:

Tuesday, Mar. 20.—King Pins vs. C. G.E. Umpire, H. Outram.

Thursday, Mar. 22. — Grocers vs. West Ends. Umpire, G. L. Myland.

Friday, Mar. 23—De Laval vs. Printers. Umpire, J. Solomon.

R. V. Dawson won last week's prize by a grand total of 649 in three games. Score, 222, 242, 175. Wm. Henderson and J. D. Fitzpatrick also won a prize by making nine spares out of ten in one game.

To-night's Capt. Langley's team meet Capt. Bishop's team of the C. G. E.

BASKETBALL

The girls' basketball team of the P.C.I. which played in Cobourg on Saturday, was defeated by 1, the score being 14-13 in favour of Cobourg. The line-up was as follows: Phyllis Young (captain), Vera Stock, Rhea Peever, Marion Grady, M. Mills and Helen Bulmer.

The boys' team, which played in Cobourg, though only organized in time to play on Saturday, defeated the Cobourg High school, the score being 64-0. The line up was: Charles Elliott (captain), D. Canniff, H. Copp, George Greene and Martin Kirn.

A large number of the Collegiate students went down to Cobourg with the team.

Public Opinion

(Ottawa Citizen).

It is beginning to be a question whether the average man would prefer to have a pretty girl make eyes at him, or a potato at him, or a potato.

FRUIT CHEAPER THAN VEGETABLES.

(Providence Journal).

"Oranges Lower Than Potatoes; Grapefruit Costs Less Than Onions or Cabbage," says a headline. Which gives a modern and perfectly practical application of the suggestion attributed to Marie Antoinette, to the effect that the poor people of France should eat cake if they were unable to buy bread.

GERMAN KNITTING NEEDLE

(St. Louis Times).

One of the singular conditions out of the many arising from the war in Europe is that for some reason not clearly explained the efficient German is the only person now extant who knows how to make a really first-class knitting needles "made in Germany" in the United States a famine which knitting needles "made in Germany" alone can assuage. Numbers of textile manufacturers in this country have been forced to limit the output of their knitted goods, and hundreds of thousands of workmen and their families have been affected by the necessity because of the knitting needle shortage.

BRITAIN'S FATHOMLESS WEALTH.

(Philadelphia Ledger).

More and More do the astounding financial operations of England stagger the human mind. Upon the dizzy top of a sixteen-billion-dollar national debt that country swiftly and with apparent ease places another three and a half billions. The world has witnessed nothing in the past like these stupendous loans. In a day Great Britain floats a larger debt than the total debt of the United States at the close of our four years of civil war. In a day its people purchase as great a bulk of debt as England's debt was when its present awful war began. There seems to be no bottom to the British purse, and the mighty war loans doubly prove the Briton's boast in the past about his country's fathomless wealth.

THE FIRST TELEGRAM.

Contrary to general belief, "What hath God wrought?" was not the first message to be sent out by telegraph nor was Morse the sender of the first communication, says the Popular Science Monthly. Instead, it was sent by one of the committee who were debating upon the proposal of Morse, the inventor, to string a telegraph line from Baltimore to Washington. Mr. Morse, who wanted to end the discussion and at the same time demonstrate his invention, strung a wire from the committee room to the top of the Capitol. One of the committee, who was opposed to President Tyler wrote, "Tyler deserves to be hanged." This was received by the man at the other end exactly as it was composed.

HELPED DISCOVER X-RAY

(San Francisco Chronicle).

One day in the laboratory of Roentgen a Crookes tube through which a current of electricity was passing produced a fluorescent glow, was suspended over a table in the drawer of which was a pasteboard box with a dozen unexposed photographic plates.

Some keys lay on the top of the plate. When the plates were later used and developed they were found to be clouded and on each plate was the imprint of the keys.

Roentgen realized at once that some kind of rays had penetrated through the top of the table and had been interrupted by the keys enough to have made a shadow picture. So he started to experiment. He tried all sorts of articles and things in place of the keys under the same conditions. At last one of his assistants picked up a frog—always handy in laboratories—and put it in the spot the keys had been on. When Roentgen examined the plate he saw not a shadow picture of the frog's body but of his skeleton.

In this accidental way did he learn that he had discovered a ray to which flesh transparent. Thus did the frog play a most important part in the discovery of the X-ray.

CORK STANDS ALONE.

When a man goes into a hardware store for a supply of cork for some purpose he generally gets what he asks for. The reason why the dealer does not endeavour to persuade him to try something else "just as good," is because there is nothing else he could offer says the Popular Science Monthly. Cork is cheap, and for ages it has stood alone in its field of usefulness. It is tough and elastic to the fact that it is impervious to water accounts for its use in life-preservers.

The cork oak which grows principally in Spain, Portugal, Algeria and Southern France furnishes the supply. Only the outer bark of the tree is used for the commercial product. When the tree has attained a diameter of approximately five inches, which it usually does by the time it is twenty years old, the cork, as the first stripping of bark is called, is removed. This cork is so rough, coarse and dense that it has little commercial value. But its removal does not kill the tree. On the contrary, it seems to promote development. The stripping is done in July and August and great skill is necessary in order not to injure the tree. If it is injured at any place the growth there ceases and the spot remains ever afterward scarred and uncovered.

Joseph Brown took thirty days on the hill in preference to paying $14.10 in police court this morning for assaulting Leonard Orde. The complainant went to the Temperance House on Saturday for dinner. He saw Brown in the sitting room and greeted him with "Hellow Mr. Brown." The defendant approached him and threatened to knock him down with a chair. He also called Brown abusive names followed him outside and threatened to smash Orde's brains out with an iron poker.

Corroborative evidence of the assault was given by Hugh Pilgrim and R. Roach.

John McDonald who is not a stranger to the police, was fined $10 without costs, for having been drunk in a public place Saturday night. He was arrested by Sergt. New Effort For The Exclusion Of Liquor

A united effort is being made by the Temperance Organizations of the Province as well as by other organizations interested in temperance to bring pressure to bear on the Dominion Government to introduce as a war measure an act prohibiting the manufacture and importation into the Dominion of Canada of all intoxicating liquors for beverage purposes and also the sending or carrying of any such liquors into, and the delivery or receipt of such liquors in any province or area in which the sale of such liquor for beverage purposes is prohibited. It is suggested in the petitions that are being circulated that as an alternative to granting this legislation the Government might arrange to have a vote of the electors before June first 1917, and that if the electors approve of the proposal that the act should be put in operation within three months thereafter.

A petition has already been sent forward from the County of Peterborough and City Temperance Association. It is understood that somewhat similar petitions are being circulated amongst the city churches. It is expected that a great volume of petitions will reach the government from all parts of the Province.

NEW ZEALAND PROSPEROUS

Sir James Mills Says the Country is Intensely Loyal to England.

NEW YORK, March 19. — Sir James Mills, Chairman and Managing Director of the Union Steamship Company of New Zealand, who was in New York recently on his way to London, said that New Zealand was prosperous and that the people were intensely loyal in their support of the mother country in the war. They had already sent 75,000 troops to Egypt and France, and 26,000 more were in training when he left the country a month ago.

"At one time," he said, "New Zealand exported grain to Great Britain every year, but now we have to import a certain quantity, which depends upon the condition of the season's crops. New Zealand continues to export mutton, lamb, cheese, and butter to England. All our steamships are engaged in carrying merchandise for the Government, and the fleet is being added to all the time."
